No more forceful confirmation of our evidence that it would be only reasonable to the hundreds of retailers throughout the country to take such steps as may be necessary to prevent the discharge of the contract in the manner described. As already pointed out the government can stipulate that the imprint of the Educational Department be placed upon the books instead of that of the T. Eaton Co. The Education Department also has the power to take over the distribution of these books. By requiring the observance of these clauses in the contract, the department would retail firm the power to concentrate the sale of school books in its own hands by making the sale of them by any other dealers unprofitable. Evidently this is what may be done under the contract. The Eaton Company has the legal right to refuse to sell books to retail dealers at any but the retail price. Probably it will take advantage of this right. The result will be that retail dealers will be obliged, for the convenience of the public, to sell school readers at a loss, or the people of Ontario will be obliged to buy their readers from recent contention that the contract would be employed as an advertising lever for the huge departmental store could have come to light at the present time. It is striking proof that those who let the contract, though properly impelled by the consideration of cheap readers for the schools, entirely overlooked the possibility of unjust application of advantages of enormous value when placed in the hands of such a concern as the T. Eaton Co. Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, cannot fail to recognize, in the face of this latest greatly modify an evil foreseen by country retailers, and one which is already taking actual form, judging from the manner in which the enquirer's letter was treated.

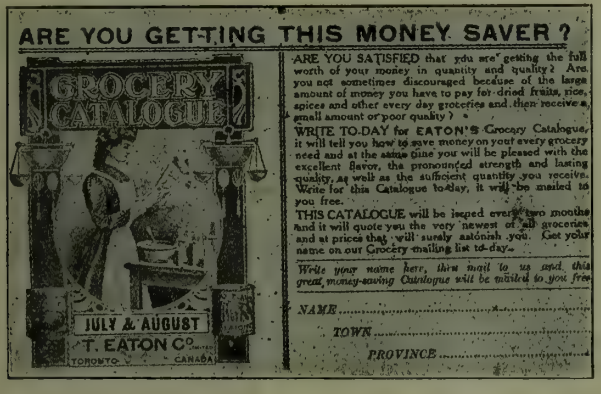
A very considerable number of those newspapers in which the new contract has been commented upon hold that steps should be taken whereby the sale of school books will not become a monopoly. The Hamilton Herald, for example, states that it is not only unjust to the retail trade of the province, but also to the general public, to give any one the Eaton company only. Such a condition would entail a great deal of inconvenience. The contract should have stipulated that the contracting firm must sell the readers to the retail trade at a reasonable discount. The objection to the school books being used to advertise the retail business of the Eaton company is also a sound one. No advertising matter ought to be allowed within the cover of these school books."



Patronizing Home Merchants.

Every country newspaper in the province has, from time to time, exhorted its readers to patronize home merchants —the men who pave the streets, who contribute to the maintenance of schools churches and charitable institutions and who help out the local newspaper by advertising. Yet there are newspapers who see no injustice in this contract, who have not noticed how it will undoubtedly endanger the business of country merchants, and who claim, like the Ridgetown Dominion, which presumably voices the opinion of Phil. Bowyer, M.P.P., for East Kent, that the contract is not an advertising coup pulled off by the T. Eaton Co., whereby another means of access to the homes of the people in smaller towns and cities is obtained, thus extending the mail-order business, and cutting in upon the trade of the local mercantile houses.

Unreasonable Contention.

To those who have not sized up these phases of the matter, the latest proof is here presented. Every enquiry, every order will undoubtedly bring a bunch of Eaton advertising literature. No person is interested in Dr. Pyne's free information to the effect that so-called electric corporations are responsible for the opposition to the contract. This line of talk is rendered somewhat nonsensical when ranged alongside the serious weakness of the contract, and the absolute freedom from political consideration with which the matter has so far been considered. This paper is entirely ignorant of any such influence. It feels that it has taken a stand well within its province as a trade newspaper, and that the injustice of the proposition made its duty in the matter imperative. The Canadian Grocer advocates no course that would detract from the public benefit to which the Department of Education so commendably pledged itself in this matter. At the same time, it strongly disapproves of any action by which a public contract might be employed to the serious disadvantage of a large section of the mercantile community.

An Eaton "Money-Saver" tip sent to the man who enquired about school books.

SOME TRUTH IN IT.

The grocer thinks the baker has an easy time through life;
The baker thinks the doctor's path is ever free from strife;
And to us all this truth comes home as through this life we bob—
It's the other fellow every time that has the easy job.

Canners Consider Salmon Run Unsatisfactory

Preparations Made by British Columbia Canneries Exceeded the Requirements—Fish Get Past Nets at Mouth of Skeena River —Good Season at The Naas—Record Season in Washington State.

Vancouver, Aug. 14—"Salmon run to date has not been very satisfactory," was the remark of a canner to The Grocer a couple of days ago. The run started in late, and during the last week or ten days was fair, but it was expected that more fish would have put in an appearance. The average daily pack has been about 300 cases or over, about one-quarter of what could be put up were the fish available. The best day 700 cases were put up, while preparations have been made for 1,200 cases daily. Prognostications have been made, but all these have failed, and now the canners are waiting, but with falling hopes. Humpbacks have been caught, and while this may not be a sure sign of the end of the run, it is only a few days now until the 25th, when the close season commences. As is usually the case, the traps on the United States side of the line have caught large numbers of fish, and these, too, the salmon that were bound for the Fraser River. Under existing conditions, the salmon are hatched and propagated in British Columbia waters to the advantage of the canner in the United States.

The pack on the Naas River has been good, while that on the Skeena was very poor. The fish in the Skeena seem to have got past the nets at the mouth, for they have shown up in the upper reaches of the river in large numbers on their way to the spawning grounds. At Smith's Inlet, the pack is good, while at Rivers Inlet it is improving. With the exception of the Skeena, the pack in the north is better than on the Fraser.

Season May be Extended.

The question of an extension to the season has been discussed with R. N. Venning, of the federal department, who is on the coast, but he will not say anything until he has made a thorough investigation. Spawn examined shows that it is not as much developed as at this date in former seasons, and the belief is entertained by some that the salmon will come in all right.

Advices from Port Townsend, Wash., state that all salmon-canning records for the season to date have been broken, 460,000 cases have been packed on Puget Sound, while on the Fraser less than 170,000 cases have been packed. Some canneries have not been able to dispose of the catch, and in such cases traps have been opened to allow the fish to escape. Every canner on the Sound has exceeded his contract pack.

HEALTHY TRADE CONDITIONS.

Revival of Trade in Canada, as Shown by Figures Recently Issued.

Ottawa, Aug. 18.—Government statistics issued this week show a healthy condition to Canadian trade and that at the present rate of advance will soon reach the high mark of a couple of years ago. The total trade of the Dominion during the first four months of the present fiscal year, which is to the end of July, approached the two hundred million mark, totalling $191,919,304. Of this $111,791,842 was merchandise entered for consumption, a gain of $22,377,301. Dutiable goods were entered to the amount of $66,028,887, a gain of $13,810,834, and free goods entered were valued at $45,762,945, a gain of $8,566,467. Duty was collected to the amount of $17,855,948, an increase of $3,633,440. Exports of domestic produce totalled $73,398,595, a gain of $6,193,585.

There was a falling off in the four months of mineral exports of $200,000. Before July there had been a gain in this item, but owing probably to the Sydney strike the month of July witnessed a falling off in the mineral exports of a million and a quarter dollars.

During the four months there was a decrease in fishery exports of almost three-quarters of a million, a gain of a million and a half in lumber, and an increase of a million and a half in animals and their produce, a gain of over three millions in agricultural exports, and a gain of a million in the exports of products of Canadian factories.

For the month of July alone the trade of Canada totalled $56,250,000, a betterment of $7,500,000. In this month there was a gain of $9,500,000 in Candian exports, and an increase of $7,500,000 in articles entered for domestic consumption.

The Gathering and Marketing of Wild Black Rice

Indians at Rice Lake, Ontario, Have Sole Right to Harvest the Crop—A Food Containing Great Deal of Nourishment—Primitive Methods of the Red Men in Preparing the Grain for Market—The Grocer's Encyclopaedia.

WILD BLACK RICE.—A commodity little known in the retail grocery trade, particularly on account of its scarcity, is black rice. As a food this rice is unexcelled, having an exceedingly rich flavor and containing a great deal of nourishment.

One of the principal homes of the wild rice in Ontario is Rice Lake, which forms the southern boundary of Peterboro County, and the northern boundary of Northumberland. There the Indians have the sole right to market it. The lake is nothing more than a level, submerged valley, its greatest depth being about twenty feet. Two parallel ridges show in places by a succession of small islands, and it is on these submerged ridges and in the shallows between them and the shore that the wild rice grows. The land around is for the most part of a heavy clay soil, and consequently the bottom of the lake is covered with two feet or more of a dark, oozy substance.

Controlled by the Indians.

The plant grows in all parts of the lake where the current is not sufficiently strong to wash away this mud; but there are two places where it grows particularly rank and thick. The one great "bed" extends northeast from Pandash Point (Island) to Rainy Point (Island), a distance of two miles, and the other from the north end of Rainy Point in the same direction, about four miles to Upper Foley Island. The former is owned and controlled by the Mississauga band of Indians, located at Hiawatha, and the latter by the Chippewa band, at Alderville, Rainy Point being the dividing line. No white man can lawfully harvest a grain of it. The plant is an annual that grows from seed fallen the previous autumn.

As the level of the lake is raised yearly eighteen or twenty inches by spring freshets, the plant does not show itself till the middle of June; previous to this, one would not suspect its existence. As the water lowers and the plant grows, its bright green leaves, resembling very much the leaves of oats, rest on the surface of the water, and it is not until the last week in July that the stock shoots to a head, and consequently stands erect.

Although it is almost submerged, yet should the season be dry, the crop will be light. It grows to a height of about four feet above the water and blossoms about the middle of August.

Gathering the Harvest.

The crop is garnered during the last few weeks in August, when the Indians, guided by instinct and habit, rather than by necessity, leave their well-tilled Government lands and camp on Sugar Island in the heart of the great northern rice bed.

After arranging their tents, they build their fireplaces of stone and wind-breaks of brush, haul out the large wooden threshing trough, set up the great drying kettles, sharpen their long-pointed threshing sticks, and, in general, prepare for the harvest.

The mode of gathering the rice is unique. A dusky, muscular brave sits close to the bow of the canoe, while his better half sits well to the stern. He guides the canoe slowly and skilfully through the dense beds, while the squaw wields the two sticks, with one bending the stalks well over the canoe, and with the other beating out the grain, hulls and all, into it.

Canoes often return from the fields laden to the gunwale with this grain. It is then spread out in bins to dry in the sun. Large quantities are marketed in this condition, to be shipped to foreign lakes, where it is sown, and more or less successfully grown. The greater part is subjected to a still further process. The big iron cauldrons are placed over a moderate fire, and half-filled with the unshelled grain. An attendant keeps it constantly stirred to prevent its burning. When thoroughly parched it is allowed to cool, and is placed in circular wooden troughs. These are set close to a tree, and in them, supporting himself by a limb, an Indian, to the tune of some popular air, "dances the grain from the hull."

The contents are then spread on a large sheet, and before a brisk wind great handfuls are let fall, the heavy grain dropping to the sheet, and the light hulls being blown away. This is exactly the same method as that used by the early settlers to winnow their wheat. It is crude and slow, but the Indian's time is not valuable; the machinery used is not expensive, and, more than all, he loves this work, not thinking it in the least laborious.

Great numbers of whites are annually attracted to the rice camps, where the simple life may well be studied. A description of this life, of the annual rice picnic, and the Sabbath camp meeting would furnish interesting and amusing reading.

Advanced in Price.

The quantity of rice an Indian family will gather depends entirely on the industry of the operators. Families have been known to gather no more than sufficient for their immediate needs, while others market a dozen bags (one hundred and twenty pounds each) of shelled grain.

In the hull, the grain resembles oats, but is much longer and more slim. The kerned is of the thickness of the lead in a pencil, and nearly three-quarters of an inch long, the outer skin being almost jet black and the inside snowy white. Fifteen years ago it sold as low as three cents per pound, unshelled, and five cents, shelled, but now it is disposed of wholesale at about twenty cents per pound, shelled, at a distance from the place of growth.

It has a rich flavor without additional helps, and when boiled, sweetened and served with cream, it is a food fit for the gods. What the oatmeal is to the hardy Scot, black rice is to the dusky Trent Indian. He cooks it when convenient, but more often eats it raw.

One year Anderson & Skinner, general merchants, of Keene, near Rice Lake, handled three tons of it, while Mr. Edmison, of Harwood, did an equally good business. Tons of it, however, are never marketed, for the Indians have a great love for it, and always keep their own share for winter use. It is safe to say, that on account of the crude method of harvesting, and the Indians' monopoly of the crop, one-half is never gathered. Thus thousands of teal, black and blue-bill ducks are attracted to Rice Lake in the fall to feed on the rice before it sinks to the bottom of the lake.

It is probably an exaggeration, but one is tempted to remark that almost an equal number of hunters are attracted to Rice Lake by the ducks. Sheltered by the vast rice fields, the nimrods wage war against the feathered tribe. The grain that is not eaten by the ducks sinks to the bottom of the lake and affords seed for the next year's crop.

ADDRESS TO WM. ALGIE.

Something About The Characteristics Of A Man Beloved By The Travelers.

As founder of the Drummers' Snack Club, a report of the annual outing of which appeared in last week's issue, Wm. Algie deserves the respect and admiration of not only all its members but its sympathizers as well. At the banquet held on the occasion of the big picnic he was presented with a handsome gold-headed cane and his wife with a gold-headed silk umbrella.

The duty of addressing Mr. Algie prior to the presentation fell upon Wm. Colville and his speech gave a splendid idea of the work of the founder; but owing to the dearth of space in The Grocer of last week it was necessarily held over.

Mr. Colville said: A pleasant and pleasing duty has been assigned me this evening, yet notwithstanding, it is with a great deal of diffidence I undertake the carrying out of the same, owing to the fact I realize my inability to address myself adequately to the occasion.

For some time—for some years I may say—the boys have felt a desire to make known to you in a tangible manner, that they fully realized the debt of gratitude they owe you, and to express—feebly though it be the sincere admiration they have for you, your good wife, and all bearing your honored name. But knowing you were opposed to any public manifestation on our part while the Snack was being held at Alton, we respected your feelings, much against our wish and desire, but to-night we have captured you away from your own fire side, and consequently we propose to have our own way.

Some seventeen years ago, you cast a big, broad, ray of sunshine into the lives of the boys traveling in and around your neighborhood by inviting them to come to Alton on a fixed date, and participate in the pleasures arranged for them and enjoy your inexhaustible supply of open-handed, large-hearted, hospitality, without money and without price. Your generous invitation was unlimited. Sixty-five travelers accepted your invitation by being present in person, though preparations had been made for a much greater number. Needless to say those sixty-five travelers were the most surprised and delighted bunch in Canada at that time. They were for all the world like a lot of school boys out for a vacation and accorded full freedom to act as they felt inclined. Some of the first Snack contingent, I regret to say, have crossed the "Great Divide," presented their certificates for the last time and been admitted to the "Rest" that awaits the "Chosen Class" commercial travelers; and methinks I see them as they hover around the "Old Camp-fire" (That's to suggestive) I should say "The Great White Throne." relating reminiscences of by-gone Snacks, the Crow's Nest, Cyclone Cellar, and the Algie Clan. Memories of that Red Letter Day in the history of our traveling career can and never will be effaced or blotted out. To try and imagine that any person—(outside our wives, sweethearts and our dear old mothers)—allowed or permitted even a passing thought for the "Toilers of the Road," "Knights of the Grip," "Commercial Ambassadors," "Drummers," call them what you may, was never dreamt of and when confronted with "The Goods" we were more delighted and surprised than had we been elected a member of the firm we represent, so unexpected, so unlikely was the act.

Since then Mr. Algie, we have learned to know you, and are deeply imbued with the truth of our convictions that such generosity as you so freely dispense; such tender feelings you express and put into practice for the welfare and happiness of others, was born in you, and years have not diminished but rather enlarged and developed the many happy faculties you possess, so worthy of emulation, that has made you to-day, what you are—a man among men, most humane, most honorable, and commanding the respect and esteem among all classes, high and low, and commercial men in particular. You are in a word, a purveyor of the milk of human kindness and a strong and fearless advocate for the betterment of mankind in all walks of life.

The author of the words—"Man's inhumanity to man makes countless ages mourn" would never have penned the same had there been traveling salesmen in his day. You holding a Commercial Certificate from the Toronto Association, are embraced in my contention, and we are within our rights in saying a kindness shown a traveling salesman is never forgotten, and those that extend to them a courtesy, treat them honestly are entertaining Angels unaware, and providing for themselves a reciprocal "Demand Policy" bearing compound interest, and payable at any time—night or day—they make a call.

Therefore, Mr. Algie, as a testimonial of our good faith and belief in yourself, we ask your acceptance of this cane as a slight token of the great regard we have for you and the hold your genial personality has on the affection of the members of the D.S.C. May the gift accompanied as it is by the good wishes of all the boys, support you through life's pathway in your declining days and we trust sincerely you may live many many years to enjoy the blessings you have so generously distributed among commercial men, also the pleasure of being present at a great many Snack re-unions in the future. We would also ask you, Mrs. Algie, to accept this remembrance from the club members assuring you of our deep appreciation of your innumerable qualities of heart and mind, not forgetting to assure you how sincerely we all felt for you as we stampeded your home and called on you to provide food and lodging for forty to fifty tired and hungary commercial travelers, which huge undertaking you cheerfully performed as if it were a pleasure and not a task, bearing out the truth of the words "Love maketh Labor Light."

A TRAVELER'S NARROW ESCAPE.

One of the knights of the grip, R. Robertson, by name, for Minto Bros., Toronto, has some weird tales to tell of a soiourn in Fort William during the big strike. It was his misfortune to be there at a time when real bullets were doing the aeroplane stunt. On the pretence of looking for business around the docks, "Bob" wandered that way, but instead of meeting customers he was introduced to whizzing pieces of hot lead. Of course they all missed him for he is still very much alive. Anybody who knows "Bob," however, can readily imagine the manner in which he made his escape. But it is said that to hear him tell it, Waterloo was insignificant compared to that Fort William strike riot. When he arrives home his friends around Minto Bros. will exhort him to write a story on 'army' movements and their relation to the commercial traveler.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY

THE MARKET FEATURES.

Returns from all over the Dominion this week show a general scarcity of fresh eggs, and in the important markets advances are announced. Fresh-laid eggs in Vancouver are retailing at 45c per dozen. In Halifax the figures range around 21c, while in Bracebridge they were 25c on last Saturday's market. The Toronto market also shows eggs firmer in price on account of the scarcity. Eggs of a doubtful character are too plentiful all over.

Wholesalers and brokers would not be surprised if sugar were to advance in the near future. Raws are up, and in view of the large quantities of refined being consumed, an advance in the latter would not be unexpected.

In Winnipeg declines are noted in Japan rice, rolled oats and pork and beans. Among the features of the Montreal market is the depletion of molasses stocks, due to the recent heavy demand of that commodity in the Province of Quebec.

The currant situation provides some interesting information. Recent cables from Greece indicate an extra strong market. Prices steadied down somewhat after a flurry of a week ago and there has been a good deal of buying done for inportation. Reports also speak of heavy damages, caused by rains. Different shippers are quoting currants at prices varying as much as a shilling and threepence.

The tea market is exceedingly firm in London, having advanced last week three farthings. As a result, dealers here are not taking a great deal of interest in it.

VISIT NATIONAL EXHIBITION.

The Canadian National Exhibition opens at Toronto on Saturday, August 28th, and closes on September 13th. Everybody recognizes the educational value of it and particularly do merchants know that a trip to the National Exhibition is of great assistance to them in their business duties.

Therefore, all those merchants who can possibly secure the time should make it a point to attend. Any observant person can easily have his attention occupied for a considerable length of time and with profit too. The exhibition provides information and ideas that will be substantial and a great help to any man in business.

If you have not already had a day off, take your vacation during the Exhibition and visit the industrial buildings. If you have had your day, business will keep if you take another. The education is one that you cannot afford to let pass.

IMPORTANCE OF SIGNS.

Keep your name before the public—is a motto which should be hung up in the mind of every business man.

A trip through the country districts impress one with the absence of signs used by retailers and manufacturers—a condition of affairs which can and should be rectified without delay.

Large manufacturing plants are observed with not a sign to show the name of the company or the products turned out.

Similar lack of interest and enterprise is noticed among retail merchants in some country town and village districts. Signs can be procured at little expense and every merchant who is not prejudiced against his own name should have it appear on the window, store or awning as well as in as many other conspicuous places as possible.

Sometimes the best window space in a store is taken up to advertise somebody else's products, but there is not an inch of space to indicate who even owns the store. Signs are clearly a good advertisement and their importance must not be overlooked.

LOOKING INTO THE FUTURE.

There is no mistaking the feeling with which the trade generally views the prospects for the fall. On every side are heard expressions of opinion that business will go ahead with great swing when once the country can settle down with hard facts as to the great crop in the Northwest, and farmers can look around with a certainty of good money to supply their many needs. Apart from this feeling of confidence as to the effect of the harvest, there is the additional assurance that trade since the spring has been marked by a steady improvement. There has been no uncertain boom with consequent slump. As if following upon a well-regulated plan business has gradually extended as time went on with the evident intention of widening out into a great fall volume.

Manufacturers, who are now trying to accumulate stocks, are certainly confident, jobbers are equally assured, and it is evident from the reports from travelers that retail merchants have most rosy views as to the consuming demand. And there is good reason for this.

For a long time now the farmers have been economizing. Last year's harvest did not do more than settle old obligations. There has still been a scarcity of spending money. Household requisites have been done without, and farm equipment kept down to the lowest limit. But there will be a great stream of money to the west this fall. The man who has been obliged to economize is the one who spends most liberally when the embargo is removed. The reaction will bring forth a mighty consuming demand. Are the retail merchants prepared?

Up to now there has been little attempt to look after future requirements. Bookings generally are very light, and the merchant, it would appear, is inclined to follow out the old course of buying as the goods are wanted. This plan has been successful up to now, owing to the fact that with the demand developing slowly, jobbers have been enabled to ship promptly. But what must happen if the fall demand breaks in as heavily as anticipated? Goods will be wanted all at once, but as jobbers' shipping departments are limited, and manufacturers cannot turn out goods at a moment's notice, there is likely to be a tie-up in transportation, to say nothing of a shortage in some manufactured lines. Already delivery is hard to obtain in several lines, and if this is so now, what will be the case if the fall demand reaches the proportions that is expected?

In addition, there is the prospect that many lines will advance in price ere the fall comes. It is, therefore, well for the merchant to consider seriously his fall requirements, for it is the man with the goods who will reap the greatest benefit from the demand. Because hand-to-mouth buying served all right in the spring and summer, there is no reason to believe it will be the same in the fall. Merchants, therefore, must look alive, and take courage from the confidence that is generally felt, and see that they are well prepared with their orders early placed with the jobbers.

ERIOUS CONDITION OF OUR BACON TRADE.

Developments in the Canadian export bacon trade show some interesting and somewhat alarming conditions. Hog prices have rushed to such a dangerously high level and our supply is running so low, that we have lost our once enviable position in the estimation of the mother country.

A member of a Canadian firm which does an extensive export trade with Great Britain is authority for the statement that scores of English dealers are going out of the bacon and hog-product trade. The fact is, prices have been so high that consumption has fallen off considerably and consequently dealers are afraid to handle these goods. It is estimated that consumption has been reduced by thirty to forty per cent.

Bacon in London, England, is being sold by grocers and provision dealers at a price in many cases that does not cover cost and working expenses. The shortage of supply is not only a local but a world problem and it is going to take considerable time before it will right itself. So long as the imports into Great Britain are restricted as at present, the prices will remain at a high figure.

There has been a recent development in the old country situation which may eventually become a serious matter, so far as the Canadian trade is concerned. It is the import into England of Chinese hogs.

Figures have been received by Canadian firms placing the number at 8,500 carcases up to the present. These arrivals mark an epoch in the British provision trade. What the future will bring forth can only be conjectured. The quality of the Chinese product is good. The labor conditions are such that hogs can be raised in the Orient at a comparatively low cost, and there is such a dense population there that if the cause of its fall from its once high ish market can be supplied with a considerable portion of its requirements from that source..

Should this come to pass, the bacon export as well as home trade in Canada would be seriously affected, and more so if the present conditions prevailed. Following the low prices of a couple of years ago, Canadian farmers went out of the business. The supply now runs so short that prices of hogs to packers are abnormal and it will take considerable time to produce the quantity of hog-products that will give Canada her former prestige on the British market. Even if it is a long haul from China, the quantity that could be produced and the small cost necessary to raise them, would tend to keep prices down. At the present time there are said to be more pigs in China than in all Europe.

While the quality of Canadian bacon has by no means deteriorated, the quantity, or at least the absence of it, was the cause of its fall from its once higs position in the eyes of the British trade. Farmers everywhere are now rushing in to try to meet the demand at present lucrative prices but, as before intimated, it will be some time before the prestige can be regained. Should the Celestial Empire take seriously to the hog-raising industry, as it is apparently doing, Canada will have a still more difficult problem to face in the form of Chinese, as well as Danish competition.

The home market for our bacon must not be forgotten. The peopling of the great west and the shortage of the supply of hogs in that section of the Dominion, have produced a large trade for Ontario. But this country is naturally an agricultural country; farmers cannot afford to overlook the fertilization of their land, and hog-raising is a natural industry. Therefore Canada cannot be content to supply only home demand. She should naturally be an exporting country of hog-products and the hog industry must necessarily be given its share of consideration; for it will be a long time yet before Canada will become so populated as to be able to consume all that is produced.

HOLIDAY WINDOW DISPLAYS.

Labor Day this year falls on Monday, September 6th. Stores will be closed so that the Saturday preceding will be a busy day among the grocers.

The wide-awake merchant gets the big share of the business. The holiday provides a good opportunity for grocers to arrange special "Labor Day" window displays and to advertise something extra for the latter end of the week preceding.

Show-cards might be utilized calling attention to the holiday and to as many seasonable articles as possible. Price-cards are another feature which can be used to advantage and those with original window-dressing ideas have a good subject to work on.

A UNIFORM CIVIC HOLIDAY.

The Chatham Daily News, commenting upon the civic holiday celebrated at that city on August 9, endorses a suggestion recently made by this paper that one day be chosen by all municipalities proclaiming a civic holiday.

As has already been pointed out travelers for wholesale and manufacturing concerns are put to a great deal of annoyance and expense by visiting a town or city to do business, only to find on their arrival that the day has been set aside locally as a holiday.

At the present time civic holidays are celebrated from the first Monday in August to the last of the month, and there is no system of letting non-residents know what day is selected. Not only are travelers subjected to annoyance, but country merchants visiting Toronto, Hamilton, London, Ottawa and other cities, also find the business places closed unexpectedly.

Why cannot the Commercial Travelers' Association take the initiative in bringing this matter to the attention of the Dominion Government with the object of having legislation passed to the effect that any municipality desiring to celebrate a civic holiday shall select a given day—say the first Monday in August, midway between Dominion and Labor days. The travelers will undoubtedly receive the backing of the various retail associations, if they take action along this line.

BUSINESS MEN NEEDED.

It is refreshing to note that business men constitute a goodly portion of the recently formed Cabinet in Newfoundland, following upon the recent defeat of the Bond Government and the ascendency to power of Sir E. P. Morris and his colleagues.

The cabinet consists of eight members, and of this number three are men who are engaged in business in Newfoundland, and of the others, one has had a thorough business training. It may practically be stated, therefore, that fifty per cent. of the cabinet is composed of business men.

While this condition of affairs in Newfoundland is gratifying, we in the various provinces of the Dominion would by no means be averse to seeing similar conditions prevailing with respect to our legislatures and our federal government. It seems a too-serious matter that so few men acquainted with our internal business affairs are sent to represent us in parliament and selected to form our cabinets, when practically the progress of the country depends on the way in which the web of business is woven.

KEEP DOWN THE DUST.

Sweeping a store constitutes one of the daily duties of a grocer's existence, and special attention should be given this to prevent the dust arising; otherwise the goods will acquire a generous coating, which will not make them attractive to the customers.

There are now on the market various oils and compounds which, spread on the floor, will prevent dust arising, and their use will more than repay the grocer for the slight additional expense. There is observed in some stores of newer construction, dust holes, where the dirt can be swept, where it falls through into receptacles arranged to receive it in the cellar.

Shippers' Opinions as to the New Bill of Lading

Conditions Generally Approved of—Vagueness in the One Referring to Damage Caused 'By The Act of God' — Knotty Points That Will be Subsequently Elucidated — Filling in Weight and Rate.

Toronto, Aug. 18.—Interviewed by The Canadian Grocer as to their opinions of the new bill of lading approved by the Railway Commission, which comes into effect on October 1 next, a number of representative Toronto shippers expressed themselves as heartily approving of the new form.

P. C. Larkin, of the Salada Tea Co., thought the bill "an excellent one; much better than the United States uniform bill of lading, and infinitely superior to the old form, it will replace." The placing of responsibility on the railroads in case shipments are destroyed at destination point before delivery is one feature wherein the new Canadian contract is superior to the United States form.

"Across the border the railroads as a usual thing do not deliver goods as here in Canada, and after 48 hours notification to sonsignee the railroad will not be responsible for damage or loss to goods. Under the new Canadian bill, delivery being provided for the railroad will be responsible even after the 48 hours. All the clauses seem fair, though the third section may prove to be either favorable or unfavorable; time will tell. The third section says that carriers shall not be liable for loss, damage or delay, 'caused by the act of God,' etc. Now the 'act of God' may mean a lot of things, and the railroads may seek a loophole. It all depends on the interpretation placed upon it. How it could be bettered I do not know at present; and perhaps on the whole, it is the best that can be done.

"I think that when a merchant buys a bill of goods he should be reasonably sure of receiving them intact, or being compensated if damaged or destroyed, even though an accident occurs through a washout due to a storm or any other 'act of God.' The railroads can obtain from Lloyds a blanket policy for the goods they are carrying, which would protect them in case of loss, and though it might mean a little higher freight rate shippers might not object when assured of the added security. The rate need not be much greater either, for the losses are not many and the risks not so great. However, that is a matter for the Railway Commission. As it stands at present a retailer buying a quantity of goods, may be wiped out of business, because the shipment may be damaged or destroyed in transit and he would have little or no recourse for compensation. The new bill of lading will to some extent remedy this, and on the whole I think the new bill an excellent one."

Best Possible Bill.

Hugh Blain of Eby-Blain, Ltd., speaking from memory rather than close scrutiny of the wording of the bill thought it, "was the best possible under the circumstances." There were many points that were intricate and knotty, but he thought these might be simplified in time. In one direction until international trade and commerce was more unified there would be obstacles in the way. For instance, a consignment of goods from Greece to Toronto might be handed to the G. T. R. at Portland, in a damaged condition. The railway would accept the goods giving a receipt to the ocean steamer specifying the damage. The only recourse the consignee has at present is to sue for indemnity in Greece, the expenses of which might cost much more than the case would be worth. As to insurance of shipments by railroads, that is practically covered by one section of the new bill of lading, at least the carrying companies are responsible for damage up to 48 hours after they arrive at destination, which really means that the consignee is insured.

On the question of filling in the weight and rate blanks in the bill of lading,—a question which has caused some discussion in the United States—Mr. Blain was of the opinion that the responsibility for this should rest with the shipper, and not with the railway company.

"The railway will certainly look after their interests and check over bills of

NEW STORE OF SUTHERLAND & CO., WINNIPEG.

There are at the present time four stores in Winnipeg owned and operated under the management of Sutherland & Co. The new store was opened by them a short time ago in the north end of thecity. The management do not cater to the down town trade, but their stores arelocated in the four corners of the city. They are to be congratulated upon the success of their business which is doubtless due to the fact that cleanliness and interior attractivness have always been given special attention. The above is a cut of an interior view of the beautiful new store opened on May 15 last.

lading to see that there are no errors. In fact there are now inspectors for just such work. However, I do not think there has been any great number of serious objections from retailers as to the leaving out of the weights or rates from shipping bills."

Needs to be Tested.

R. C. Steele, who was president of the Board of Trade two years ago, when the question of a new bill was mooted, is away from the city, owing to illness, and his son is conducting the business in his absence. Mr. Steele, jr., had not taken the interest in the question as had his father.

"The old bill certainly needed improvement, but until the new one has been in force for a year it would be hard to say how it will work. There were many things that looked well on paper, which on trial might not work out so well."

Omission of Weight and Rate.

"On whom should responsibility rest for inserting the weight and rate in bills of lading?" was asked H. A. Gunn, of H. S. Howland, Sons & Co. "I do not think that is an important matter at all," said Mr. Gunn. "We send out many bills of goods and frequently leave off either the weight or rate, and sometimes both. There are just a few of our customers who insist on this point, and the complaints are very few. We have to apply to the railway for the rate in many instances. To fill out the blanks would be very nice, but it would be costly, for an extra clerk would be necessary and he would find a mistake of probably not more than $5 in the whole year. Paying out $1,000 to discover a $5 error is not good business. And if the hardwaremen were to figure up every bill of goods to see whether an error had been made, he would be giving a lot of time to unprofitable labor away from his store, and in the end discover a mistake very, very seldom. I do not think the matter is a serious one."

BUSINESS IN THE WEST.

Geo. A. Stone, commission merchant, Vancouver, B.C., has been east on a business trip during the past few weeks. While in Toronto he was seen by a representative of The Canadian Grocer, and, by the way, he is very enthusiastic over the western business prospects for the next few months. The prairie crops indicate a splendid harvest and the lumber industry is opening up well in the Pacific province. Up to the present, the business year has been a good one and there is no reason why conditions should not continue. Mr. Stone visited Montreal and other Quebec towns and cities while east.

Alex. Minto and T. L. Carruthers, of Minto Bros. staff, Toronto, left last Saturday on a holiday trip to Atlantic City and other sections in the Eastern States. They expect to be away about ten days.

Notes from the Maritime Provinces and Quebec

World's Fish Markets Bare —Good Apple Crop in Nova Scotia —Bread Law Change Talked of in Montreal—St. John Business Men Attending Board of Trade Convention.

ST. JOHN.

August 17.—Business has been quiet here for the past two weeks. There have been very few, if any, changes in prices and a warm weather apathy seems to have settled over the grocery houses.

In the country market new potatoes are coming in freely and reports are to the effect that the crop will be a good one. Practically everything in the line of green stuff is now coming in and prices are reasonable. Potatoes are selling, wholesale at 50 to 60 cents a bushel; cabbages, 50 cents a dozen; peas, 50 cents per bushel and beans 35 to 50 cents; cucumbers are quoted at $1.25 to $1.50 per barrel. Beets, carrots and turnips are as yet only coming in small lots. In berries, raspberries are scarce and are quoted at 10 to 12 cents a box, while blueberries are selling at 50 cents per water pail.

Shippers interested in promoting trade between this port and Cuba will meet this week with the provincial secretary, Hon. J. K. Flemming, to discuss arrangements for providing steamship sailings, as well as such official representation as may be decided necessary at Havana.

HALIFAX.

Aug. 17.—The wholesale grocery dealers report trade improved since last report. The travelers in some sections of the province are sending in better orders, and the prospects of a good autumn business are now much brighter. The farmers in all sections of the province are now busily engaged in housing the hay crop, which is somewhat below the average, owing to the dry weather about the middle of the season. The weather so far has been favorable to the fruit, and a bumper crop of apples is expected. The apples this season give promise of being of excellent quality. All the fruit so far is without a blemish, and in this respect it is away ahead of last season. In anticipation of a large crop several large apple warehouses have been erected at various points through the Annapolis Valley, this season. Some of them have a capacity of 13,000 barrels.

The fruit dealers report trade brisk. A large quantity of stock is being handled weekly, and the consumption of fruit is increasing very greatly in this city. During the present year, more than a dozen new fruit stores have been opened in Halifax, and while they are not large, all appear to be doing a good trade.

There is a slightly better demand for eggs since last report. There is an unusual scarcity of fresh laid stock since last week, and as a consequence the price is stiffer. New laid eggs are selling at 21 cents, and if the scarcity continues the price will continue to advance. Butter is in good supply, and there is ample stock on hand to meet all the local demand at the present time. Prices are steady and they will likely remain so for some time.

The world's consuming fish markets are more or less bare of fish just now. This is particularly true of Portugal, Italy, and Northern Brazils. A combination of circumstances contributed to this unusual state of affairs; the principal causes being a late season for new cure, and unprecedented consumption (due to low prices) on the record catch of last year. On August 1, Newfuondland warehouses were virtually bare, compared with 60,000 qtls. on hand on August 20 1908, when the season for new cure is supposed to commence. In Halifax fair stocks were held, and general distributing demand is rapidly clearing up the old cure. Naturally, prices are tending upwards, and demand will exceed supply until possibly the end of September, when a re-action is looked for.

The Newfoundland shore fishery to date is a fairly good one. Fish generally strike in plentifully, when they show up. Last week in the Straits, the fishermen could hardly handle the catch. The Labrador fishery to date is more or less uncertain—ice greatly impeding the Northern floaters—but the season there does not end until early September, and ten days good fishing is all that is required. to bring the Newfoundland catch up to that of an average voyage. Local bankers are making record catches. The fleet, however, is small, but at $4.00 a qtl. the business pays well, when catches are good. Herring are reported east and west, and mackerel are also found in stray schools. Demand for both articles is good.

MONTREAL.

Aug. 17.—Samuel D. Stewart, local representative of H. J. Heinz, died last week. He was a director of the Canadian Commercial Travelers' Association.

It is estimated that the apple crop around Montreal will be an enormous one this year, and that within the next three months there will be a half million barrels of apples packed. On the island and mainland, within a radius of about forty miles is the great apple growing district.

The city by-law dealing with the inspection of bread, pastry and similar articles of local manufacture, is silent upon the minimum weight of the loaf, and as a consequence the bakers are not held to any fixed weight for the bread placed upon the market. It is probable the council will add a section to the by-law fixing the weight of the loaf. The bill for this purpose is now pending. The weight usually adopted by the bakers here varies from 32 to 28 ounces, according to the kind of loaf.

Review of Ontario Grocery Trade Happenings.

An Inferior Quality of Lard Being Sold in Kingston—Collection System Established in Peterboro—Over supply of Tomatoes at Guelph—Ottawa R.G.A. to Resume Work—Good Potato Crop Around Perth.

PETERBORO.

August 18.—The grocers are enjoying one of the best seasons of the year. This is the time when preserving is at its height and as a consequence sugar is in great demand. In fact everything connected with the laying in of the store of winter fruits, pickles, etc., is obtained from the gtocer all but the preserving kettles and in many cases the grocer is carrying this line. The new vegetables are selling well and together with fruit are rapidly disposed of. Plums are coming in just now and the grocers vie with the fruit dealers in catching the trade of their own customers. In this regard the general report is that they have been successful with the result that the majority of the grocers are handling more fruit than in past years.

Ald. Geo. A. Gillespie was presented with a son one day last week and during the same 24 hours received a new auto which he had arranged to purchase.

Peterboro merchants including the grocers have exhausted their patience with deadbeat customers and have recently inaugurated a scheme by which a man will be engaged to collect debts and will place delinquent payers on an Indian list. The success of this system in other cities and towns has been one incentive to the local business men and there is an unanimous opinion that it will be beneficial to the trade in this city. Speaking to a grocer your correspondent learned that the trade journals have been instrumental in educating the merchants to this point and he himself stated that he had been impressed by the accounts that had appeared in The Grocer of results that had been obtained in other places. The system will be commenced shortly.

Fresh potatoes are reaching the normal price now after being high throughout the early part of the season. Up to the present they have been dearer than in other years for some reason that is not exactly known or at least has not been explained. New apples are coming in and are in good demand.

Market quotations of late have been favorable to the grocer. The prices are above the normal and the supplies are apparently none too plentiful on the Saturday market with the result that the trade is driven into the stores.

KINGSTON.

August 18.—The sympathy of all is extended to the merchants who undertook to supply groceries to government institutions at low prices. The advance in products is ruinous to them in the extreme. A local man tendered ton of beans lately to an institution for which he paid $2.25 a bushel, while the contract price was $1.80.

Travelers are reported to be offering bakers all kinds of substitutes for lard. If butter is imitated the government bull-dog is let loose and why not sic him on the lard imitators. Any old kind of grease seems to be allowed. The government pretends to be anxious about the people getting pure food stuffs and pure drinks, yet the other kinds are as thick as weeds in a garden.

A grocer remarked recently that the United States strawberry box was better made and stronger than the Canadian box. The rounded corners, full quart and no broken boxes to lift up and replace, were characteristics worthy of the notice of the fruit inspector. Broken packages are troublesome to the express companies as well as to the dealers.

"A good looking grip-holder looked up at me," said a retail grocer the other day, "and with a sweet smile he said: 'Sign this document for 5,000 lbs. coffee and I will ship you an electric mill worth $75 free; you will increase your trade and save muscle. Your girl clerks can touch the button and grind to suit the trade.'" "Well," he answered, "I shall think it over; I've been taken in in nine swindles lately and I want to turn the mill in my head a few times." He thinks he will make out a form for the coffee dealers to sign something like this: "I do solemnly swear that not one ounce of chicory or any coffee bean other than pure Mocha or Java, etc., will be sent you in the 5,000 lb. deal, so help me Maracaibo."

PERTH.

August 18.—Perth had almost an over supply of new potatoes about 10 days ago and prices kept coming down until some farmers sold them at 50c a bushel. Three weeks ago the price was 50c per peck. It looks at present as if the crop would be a record-breaker, and potatoes consequently may be quite low this fall.

In looking over a local paper of a date 10 years back, one is surprised to notice that a large percentage of those merchants advertising then, are to-day out of business. In this town almost 50 per cent. have disappeared from business life in a little over ten years.

Why not push collections now instead of next January when everyone else is at the same work? If people ever have work they are likely to have it now. Money is therefore circulating more freely and "those back accounts" should be more easily collected than at other seasons of the year.

The Boyde Caldwell Co., Lanark, have snld their business to Walter Robertson, a man who has been connected with it for many years.

Some new honey has been offered for sale. The price for clover honey is about 10c.

LONDON.

August 18.—Grocery travelers are back on the road again this week, and business, which has been rather quiet, has begun to look up.

Brokers' advices report raw and refined sugars firm and advancing in England. India and Ceylon teas are also firm. First crop Japans has been nearly all sold out, and dealers are daily expecting quotations for second crop. Coffees are firm and other staples unchanged.

Retail grocers report trade rather quiet, due to the fact that so many citizens are away holidaying. The backwardness of the various fruit crops also affects retail trade.

The proposed grocers' "Donnybrook" at Dorchester has been postponed until the first Wednesday in September, which is to be made the final weekly half-holiday of the summer, although the east end merchants have decided to close on both the first and second Wednesdays.

President Ed. Ryan, of the Retail Grocers' Association, is one of the proudest men in London, because the annual picnic of the Irish Benevolent Society, of which he is president, held on Thursday last at Port Stanley, was the biggest in that society's history.

The past week has seen a marked change in the tomato crop prospects of this district. Last week tomatoes were selling at 60 cents a basket, and at that the sales were not any too brisk. On Saturday they were selling at 90 cents to one dollar for the same article or even not so good. The dry weather is blamed for it all, the growers stating that the tomatoes are dropping off the vines, and that they are also affected by a rot. They are also running to small sizes, and in every respect the quality is inferior to that of a week ago. The demand for the tomatoes is beginning to make itself felt as the season progresses, and if a fair amount of rain comes before the damage becomes too extensive, there may yet be a fair crop. The heavy rains the beginning of this week are expected to work wonders among the plants.

J. A. Henderson, grocer, corner of Colborne and Grosvenor Street, has sold to two of his employes, Mizzen & Sargent.

R. C. Eckert, until recently with Gorman, Eckert & Co., has been caught by the lure of the west, and it is understood, will go out there shortly to look around.

CHATHAM.

August 18.—Arrangements for the merchants' picnic to Erie Beach, on Aug. 26, formed the chief theme of discussion at the regular monthly meeting of the Merchants' Association on Tuesday evening last. Everything is progressing finely. A good list of events, with substantial prizes attached, has been provided. A mid-day parade will take place on King Street, at 12.30, following the general closing of the stores; after which clerks and merchants will depart for the lake.

W. M. Murdock, official collector for the Merchants' Association, tendered his resignation at last week's meeting, the offer of a "better thing" financially having come his way. The resignation was the subject of long and earnest discussion, but the majority of the merchants were strongly opposed to a change in the collectorship, provided Mr. Murdock could be retained. A committee was appointed to confer with him, the result of the conference being that Mr. Murdock decided to stay. The work of the collection department, hitherto divided between Mr. Murdock and Mr. Powers, official secretary of the association, is.

it is understood, to be combined at the end of three months and all placed in Mr. Murdock's hands. The collection department now numbers 66 members.

This is the season when the grocers take to the woods, the waters or elsewhere for their holidays. Last week Fred Ward, of Harry Andrew's grocery was off duty, while on Monday Mr. Andrew was fishing at Erieau with Dr. Anderson of Detroit. J. H. Bogart, the Queen St. grocer, is on a trip up the lakes, and Wm. Anderson is spending the week at Bay City.

The King Edward grocery is now getting in melons from Leamington, having pretty nearly a cinch on the Chatham end of the supply. They handle 10 crates a day.

Tomatoes have hitherto been selling strictly by the pound. On Monday, however, H. A. Andrew offered them at 30c. a peck. This is the first year on record that selling by the pound has been so general.

Howard Gillies, for some time past a member of H. A. Andrew's grocery staff, has dropped groceries for banking, joining the Dominion Bank staff.

Blackberries have been in for some time past, and will probably see their finish this week. The price has been remarkably steady, scarcely varying from 12½c. a box or $2.75 to $3 per crate.

Wm. Potter, the Queen St. grocer, and John McCorvie, of John McCorvie & Son, have returned from attending the I.O.O.F. convention at Ottawa, as delegates from the local lodges.

Tilbury merchants have come to an agreement to ask their customers to leave all orders for groceries before 9.30 at night. No order taken after that hour will be delivered the same night. This move is designed to do away with late Saturday night deliveries, which are an evil in Tilbury, as elsewhere. One Saturday night recently—or rather, Sunday morning—deliverymen were on the streets till 1.30.

B. Kaplan, general store keeper, of Cottam, has made an assignment to M. Masuret & Co. The creditors' meeting takes place on Aug. 23.

B. R. Elliott's general store is being moved from the north side of the M.C.R. to the corner of Main and James Sts.

The new T. B. Adams & Co. general store at Harrow is progressing rapidly and promises to be a handsome structure. The Adams company contemplates the introduction of an early closing scheme, the intention being to close every evening except Wednesdays and Saturdays at 6 o'clock.

Harold Cousins, of the O'Flynn & Burgess grocery, Wallaceburg, is away on his holidays, his place being taken by Russell McCarron.

The King Edward grocery has an interesting sideline in the shape of genuine home-made bread. It is baked by a lady in the neighborhood, and sells at 6 cents a loaf, the weight being somewhat more than the baker's loaf. At present the grocery sells about 15 loaves daily, though the trade is a growing one.

Wilfred McCorvie, of John McCorvie & Son, returned last Thursday from a trip through the Canadian Northwest to the Seattle Exposition, returning via Los Angeles, Denver, Salt Lake City, and other American points. He was accompanied by Will Foreman. Mr. McCorvie had an enjoyable trip and speaks highly of the Canadian exhibit at the Exposition.

GUELPH.

August 18.—The travelers of the R. and J. H. Simpson Company, all having had their two weeks' holidays, have returned to work again and started out yesterday morning on their accustomed routes.

W. C. Benson, of Benson Bros., the Lower Wyndham Street grocers, has returned from Ottawa, where he has been attending the Oddfellows Grand Lodge, as a delegate from Guelph.

The price of butter went up on Saturday on the Guelph market. It was selling at from 22 to 24 cents a pound. Eggs were from 20 to 22 cents a dozen. Green groceries were about the same in price as last week.

The Clerks' and Salesmen's Association held a meeting last night at which they made further arrangements for their big Clerks' Day at Exhibition Park on the 26th of this month. They have engaged the Guelph Musical Society band and are arranging for a big programme and amusements. It is their intention to try and raise enough money to pay off all the debts incurred by their proposed excursion to Hamilton which had to be called off on account of wet weather.

Miss Tunks of the crockery department of Benson's down town grocery is away on her summer holidays.

Guelph was loaded with tomatoes on Saturday last. A local fruit dealer had a lot on hand on Friday and got as many as possible into the stores for the Saturday trade, and then a great many came into the market from the Hamilton growers and other sources. Owing to the fact that the merchants did not buy any up on the market the prices came down there very quickly, and soon tomatoes were selling retail as low as the merchants had bought them wholesale. Not only that but hucksters who failed to get rid of what tomatoes they had on the market peddled them around from door to door and there was hardly a grocer in town but had a good quantity of tomatoes on hand on Saturday night in spite of the fact that they had them ticketed at what should have been alluring prices. It is doubtful if any of them suffered much of a loss, but the overloading of the market was very noticeable. One local grocer told your correspondent to-day that he thought they all pulled out all right, but that there was not the life in the trade that there would have been under more favorable circumstances.

There is very little small fruit on the market at present. Green corn, cantaloupes and other delicacies of the late summer season are coming in and local grocers are enjoying a fairly brisk sale of these. There are some apples sold in local groceries but they are poor as usual so early as this.

Walter Scriven, of the staff of Anderson's Lower Wyndham Street grocery, is holidaying in Woodstock and Ingersoll.

R. Millar, who has charge of the grocery department of Williams' store, states that local celery is coming in now, replacing the Californian product, and from what he has seen of it so far the local product is of exceptionally good quality.

W. Metcalfe, the Queen Street grocer, has been developing his corner grocery business in such a manner that the residents of his part of the city are thinking twice before they go past his store to shop up town. It is not so very long ago that he started business with a little push cart as a delivery wagon, but only last week he put on a regular delivery service, a good horse and neatly painted rig.

There is some talk among the members of the local Retail Merchants' Association with respect to procuring a down town office for D. A. Scroggie, their official collector. Mr. Scroggie stated to your correspondent that he did not know just what steps had been taken, but he admitted that it would be a great convenience to him if he had a down town office.

This is the time of the year when local merchants are being asked to assist the various Fall Fairs throughout the country and it would be well for the Association to remind its members that it is a foolish practice to contribute to fairs outside of the one held in their own city. The local fair is the only one that is of any value to them and the practice of contributing to little one horse agricultural exhibitions throughout the country does not benefit them either in advertising or in bringing trade.

BRANTFORD.

Aug. 18.—Mayor Wood, head of the Brant Milling Co., has returned from an extended business trip to the eastern provinces.

The Canadian Machine Automatic Telephone Co., is now installing telephones in this city. A public demonstration was held at the offices of the company on Tuesday night, when citizens were afforded an opportunity to witness the system in working order. As yet the business men, the grocers included, are not anxious to put in the 'phones until several hundred householders are secured.

W. F. Cockshutt, ex-M. P., a former local grocer, and who now conducts a seed store in this city, has been named as representative of the Toronto Board of Trade at the Chamber of Commerce Congress of the Empire which is to be held in Australia this fall. He has left on the trip. At previous gatherings he has been a notable figure in the leading debates.

The Palace restaurant which was opened by Greeks in this city some months ago is no more. This week it was closed up by the bailiff for rent. The liabilities outstanding are about $1,200, and the fixtures will be sold by auction to aid in meeting them.

The circus on Saturday was a great boon to trade in all lines. Saturday is always a big day in Brantford on account of the market, and this time there were 10,000 outsiders, mainly from the surrounding country, in the city for the day. The hotels and restaurants did a big business, the grocers, of course, also profited.

Trade continues good for the summer months. The industrial conditions are more favorable here at the present time than in other centres, mainly because all of the factories are running with large staffs, and in addition the city is undertaking exceptional outside work on the streets and sewers. A great deal of street paving is being laid and the Brantford Street Railway is being extended and rebuilt. This all means money, and as a result the merchants are benefiting.

OTTAWA.

August 18.—An exceptionally large market was in evidence on Saturday last. Vegetables were again the chief offering, but there was a fairly good supply of lamb and mutton. Raspberries were scarce, the season being practically over. Blueberries are coming in, but in no large quantities. New Brunswicks have been selling at 10c to 11c per quart box, but the American markets offer 14c, and away they go over there. The supply at present is coming from the Ottawa valley, principally around Mattawa, and the price is $1.10 per 10-quart basket. Potatoes saw a further drop and could be bought for 75c and 80c per bag, just half what was demanded two weeks ago. Corn is plentiful at 12½c a dozen. Tomatoes (local) are $1 a pail, while western can be bought for 35c per 11-quart basket.

The winter sport of snow-balling seems rather out of place in the middle of August, but the flaky snow was flying freely on Nicholas Street, at the Dominion Fruit Exchange, one day last week. About a cart-load of snow was dumped on the street from the Ottawa cold storage building, and the dealers, waiting for the auction to commence, had quite a pitched battle. It was a unique sight on a midsummer day.

At the Cheese Board meeting on Friday last there were 361 white and 746 colored cheese boarded, which was 65 more than for the same week last year. There was one difference, however, and that was that the price last year was 12½c, while this year it is 11 7-16c.

Charlie Scott, of F. A. Scott & Sons, and Joe Harper, of H. N. Bate & Sons, have been enjoying their holidays in Kingston for the past two weeks. While in that city both young men made a heroic rescue by stopping Kirk & Lee's grocery wagon, in which were two young ladies. It is rumored around that Mr. Scott will shortly take up his abode in the Limestone City.

The Ottawa Retail Grocers' Association will commence their semi-monthly meetings again in September, the Board of Trade room having been secured for that purpose. There is a big winter's work for the boys, if they will only attend. The one question in particular which must be taken up and dealt with is the peddling nuisance. It means so much to the grocer, and the quicker these people are taken in hand, the better for the retailer.

Organizer Edey, of the Retail Merchants' Association, has been in the city for the past two weeks. His work seems to be confined to the drug trade.

BRACEBRIDGE.

August 18.—Tomatoes this year do not seem to be up to the standard. There is too much waste in the handling of them. Even the home crop, which is very large, has the same fault. Some growers claim the extra hot dry weather experienced the last three weeks is the cause. At any rate the grocers who handle large quantities are the losers. One merchant here states that out of fifty baskets he has lost eighteen in picking them over.

Huckleberries are arriving in town in wagon loads. The price local merchants are paying is from five to six cents per pound. The quality this year is excellent. Wild raspberries are also plentiful, selling at ten cents per Imperial quart.

The grocers' section of the Board of Trade held another successful meeting the other evening. Matters pertaining to the trade were discussed and progress made. One important question taken up was the advisability of cutting out the delivery on Saturday nights. It is hoped this will become the law.

Eggs up in this section are becoming firmer all the time, that "fruit" selling on Saturday at 25c per dozen. Good fresh dairy butter is also bringing the same price.

The Sharon Fishing Club, of Sharon, Pennsylvania, composed of business men of that city, are at present at their summer home on Lake Muskoka, near this town. Last Thursday night they entertained some of our merchants and our citizens' band. Needless to say, a happy time was spent. Business cares were forgotten, and a beautiful sail home in the moonlight terminated an eventful evening. Hurrah for the merchants from Yankee land!

Spring chickens are beginning to make their appearance on the market. These broilers are readily sold to the many tourists, who make Bracebridge their market, at good prices, making that trade a profitable one both for the grocer and farmer.

HAMILTON.

August 18.—Wednesday, Sept. 1, has been decided upon as the date of the annual "hump" of the Retail Grocers' Association. It is expected it will be held at Oaklands. Committees named to attend to the event were: General—Jno. O. Carpenter, W. Smye, R. M. Hill; transportation—Jas. Kirkpatrick, A. G. Bain; amusements—Jno. Forth, Ed. Hazell; games—J. M. Semmens, A. Lavis. A request from the Young Women's Christian Association for a grant towards the building fund was received, and J. O. Carpenter gave notice of a motion to be introduced at next meeting to give a grant.

Robertson Bros., confectionery manufacturers, have purchased buildings on Mary St. for the purpose of manufacturing here.

BERLIN.

August 18.—Edward Dunke, of Dunke & Co., speaking of the fruit season said that up to the present it has been the best in several years, this applying particularly to raspberries, the crop of these being the biggest he can remember. Indications are that there will be a bumper apple crop. Plums are going to be plentiful also.

J. A. Good is again running the Market Grocery and is continuing his "China Palace" in connection with it.

Henry Stuebing, of Stuebing & Son, grocers, is an enthusiastic lawn bowler and spent his holidays this year participating in the tournaments at London and Berlin. He is also something of a poet composing a poem of which the following is a representative stanza:

If you wish to have a jolly time,
Then take your bowls and fall in line
And play a game on the bowling green.
It's the grandest game that can be seen.

TORONTO.

Aug. 18.—The peddling business, especially in Toronto, where it is entirely overdone, is always a source of annoyance to the legitimate retail trade but it has special reasons to be up in arms against the beastly yelling and yelping, and calling out prices of goods, which are generally of an inferior quality, within hearing distances of grocery stores. It is not only unpleasant to the merchants, but also to their customers. It would be entirely beneath the dignity of a merchant to be yelling in front of his store. If he did so he would likely be taken in charge by the police, as insane, or for taking undue advantages of his competitor, or for being a nuisance. But why is the peddler allowed to do it? If the peddling nuisance cannot be stopped, by all means save the people, especially the storekeeper, from this howling annoyance.

The merchants are also complaining about the lax way the law regarding peddlers is enforced. A peddler by paying $1.00 a year is allowed to have a helper, but he has no right to make sales or in any way be a peddler. He has only to drive the horse, weigh or measure goods. These men are however selling and are in every sense of the word peddlers, without paying their licenses. The licenses in the city are only $10 a year where in the estimation of many they should be at least $100 and no one should be allowed peddler's privileges without paying his license. Peddling has become such a strong rival to the ordinary retail trade that steps should be taken before another year to make them pay a fair share, in proportion to their business, of the rents and taxes now resting on the retail merchants.

J. B. Spooner, 72 Sussex Ave., is not the only grocer who is annoyed from the constant yelling of the fruit peddlers. The whole city seems tired of it, and would like to see it stopped.

A. Provan's store, 134 King St. East, under the management of Mr. Arthurs, is undergoing a complete overhauling, and will in a short time appear in its new garb. This will greatly add to its appearance and should correspondingly increase the business. A little money spent in paint and paper during the slack weeks in brightening the shops is always a good investment.

Bail & Brown, 418 Church St., who recently bought out W. J. Fawcett, have made a wonderful improvement in the appearance of the store and the trade is rapidly coming their way.

A. O. McArthur, 21 Herrick St., has bought the Galloway business and is putting new life into the place.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Sugar—Prices firm.

Molasses—Stocks getting small.

Peas—Scarcity of stocks.

Evaporated Apples—Firm.

Montreal, Aug. 19, 1909.

With the advance in raw sugar, refined sugar is firm in tone, and seems likely to advance. Stocks in molasses are being rapidly depleted owing to the active demand that has obtained for some time. Favorable reports are to hand regarding the new date crops, and the fruit will apparently be of high quality. There is a scarcity of peas on the market, and in consequence the market is firm.

SUGAR—The demand is fairly good. Prices are firm and unchanged, the advance in raw sugar giving the market a strong undertone. New York prices have not yet advanced as anticipated, and the markets there are being watched with interest.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES—The demand for molasses has been so good for some time that stocks are rapidly being depleted, and in consequence the market keeps firm. Syrups are in much less request. The supply, however, is on the light side. No change in prices is announced.

DRIED FRUITS—The demand generally continues quiet, except for Valencia raisins. Stocks are low, and merchants are waiting for the new crops. All reports respecting the new date crop are favorable, and the fruit will be of good quality. Spot stocks are stated to be lower than usual to supply the early fall requirements. No further reports from Denia or Patras are to hand regarding the situation there. No price changes are announced. Evaporated fruits and prunes are practically off the market, the season being over for some time.

MONTREAL.—Canned vegetables are in very good demand, but fruits are quieter. Corn is a little firmer in price, and runs from 75c to 80c. There is a good supply of goods on the market. TORONTO.—The feature of the week in canned goods is the quotations being given on several new pack fruits. Up to the present strawberries alone have been quoted. This week raspberries, peaches, Lawtonberries, red-pitted cherries, gallon apples, Bartlett pears and Lombard plums are now offered by wholesalers at prices below those of a year ago. As yet, however few orders have been taken by wholesalers, as retailers are not generally acquainted with the prices.

Old pack corn is very scarce and prices are some higher on new pack for future delivery, the low price being named at 5 cents above that of a week ago.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Tea—Market firm.

Sugar—Upward tendency.

Currants—Strong primary market.

Toronto, Aug. 19, 1909.

The wholesale trade on the whole is satisfactory. Some even say that it ts "first class" and others that it is "A1." Travelers are all on the road again and are fully making up for the time they rested from their toils. While the retailers often get tired of them they are glad to see them back again.

Brokers are of the opinion that sugar will advance in the near future in view of the strong condition of raws and the good demand by consumers. Spices seem to be waking up and more than usual are moving, including pickling spices. The tendency is towards a firmer market in peppers and ginger.

The tea market is on the upward incline, prices being firm for some weeks.

SUGAR—Although no advance in the price of sugar has taken place this week the feeling is so strong, that it would be no surprise to any if a raise would take place any minute.

TEA—The tea market has been somewhat disappointing to the tea dealers in general. In anticipation of a change in the United States tariff, large quantities of tea were bought up in speculation, and when the tariff did not come their way, it was supposed that tea would decline, but instead, it has taken an upward turn.

COFFEE—Coffee is gradually following tea, in being put up in packages, by expert blenders. It is interesting to hear experienced coffee men talk about the almost endless varieties of coffee, and the skill and knowledge required in blending to make a real first class coffee from the different kinds.

EVAPORATED APPLES—These are out of season but the stock is so well cleaned out that even the small orders that come in, cannot be filled.

CUTTING OUT THE MEASURE.

Selling by weight seems to be increasing in favor among the grocers. The Illinois Legislature, at its last session, passed a measure enabling town or city officials to pass ordinances requiring dry groceries and vegetables to be sold by weight instead of measure. Several of the associations throughout that state have taken the matter up with local councils.

An Ingersoll Window and Store Front Display

Neatly Printed Price-Cards Utilized—Flowers and Vegetable Plants Temptingly Shown Along The Sidewalk—Staple Lines Should Not Be Forgotten—Suggestion For a Coffee Window.

Ingersol, Ont., August 17.—That the store window is nearly always an index to the store interior is recognized now by merchants in all classes of business. This, however, applies to the grocery trade more particularly than to any other. A grocery window slovenly dressed is not going to draw much custom from the better classes of people, but on the other hand if the window display is attractive and shows that cleanliness has been exercised that display naturally will be a business getter.

An Ingersoll grocer who takes especial interest in looking after his store front is F. McDougall, who recently came here from Fenelon Falls.

In a recent display, a cut of which is shown here, Mr. McDougall had an interesting store front. The window proper showed bacon, canned goods, flour and breakfast foods in the background with pineapples at the base. Price cards, which should be used wherever possible, can be seen and this feature is a strong one from a selling point. Outside the curb-stone are displayed vegetable plants and flowers, both of which the proprietor sells a considerable quantity.

That a large business is done by the McDougall store may be judged from the staff. They are all live employees who are making a study of salesmanship from the scientific standpoint.

Display of Staple Goods.

There are many grocers who think that in making window displays it is not necessary to include the popular staples which are asked for every day, but simply display those goods for which the call is limited and on which a larger business is desired.

While it is of course essential that the unpopular goods, especially those of merit and on which a good margin of profit can be realized, should be given liberal space in the window, it is just as important that the popular staples be given a large share of attention in this respect.

It is an established fact that advertising, no matter in what form so long as as it is good, tends to create sales, and this applies just as much to the sale of staples as other goods, and as the display window is considered one of the best advertising mediums the merchant can use, the popular staples should not be kept from it.

To make a display of coffee The Twin City Commercial Bulletin suggests the following plans:

Cover bottom with yellow or red crepe paper.

Place half a dozen imitation palms well towards back of window.

Between palms fill in space with package or can coffee to make background—preferably red packages or cans.

On bottom place coffee in fancy dishes (or cups with saucers) filled with various grades and kinds of coffee—green to fully roasted.

Between dishes place cans of coffee, with small, paper napkins on top; dishes on top of cans with various kinds of coffee labeled from different sections grown, or kind.

In centre place latest design coffee can, sugar bowl one side, cup and saucer other side.

On top of a can place a card reading, "Coffee from the tropics to the cup. We are selling a very good grade at —— cents," or "Coffee to suit every taste and purse. These prices (quoting prices) convince you of their cheapness, and a trial will convince you of their exceptionally good quality for the price."

The above should make a very tasty and impressive display, creating a somewhat tropical effect. The people will talk about it and that means additional advertising for you.

The Traveling Salesman: Is He an Absolute Necessity?

A Claim That Personal Representation Under a Competent Sales Manager is Cheapest and Best System—Catalogues do not Answer Questions—Specific Instances Conveying Practical Lessons—Salesman's Connection With House He Represents.

By Irwin Ellis.

"Away out west the other day," said the traveling salesman, "I met a fellow in the hotel lobby who wanted to buy somebody a drink. He was tickled to death about something. Curious to know what it was I let him buy a drink for me, at which he explained that he, too, was a traveling salesman and that day had made his first sale in six months—a church organ costing about $4,000.

"I expressed just a little surprise—that a total of $4,000 sales in six months didn't look particularly big to me—when he broke in with the statement that only three to four such sales a year were expected of him by his house. Salary, traveling expenses, and commissions for twelve months, with a total of only $12,000 to $16,000 annual sales!

"'O, yes,' he admitted, instantly, 'it costs the house more to sell an organ than it costs to build it.'"

It was this incident related by the traveling man which resulted in canvassing the question of the traveling salesman at large; his position as to permanency in the commercial world; whether he may be in course of elimination or whether in the evolution of modern business he may be accepted as at least a necessary evil.

Experience Teaches Its Lesson.

In the case of the church which bought the $4,000 organ, for example, one may get the view of the purchaser. Probably the church treasurer never has thought for a moment about the money the church paid the manufacturing house, merely for the privilege of buying that particular organ from that particular salesman. But the church paid that bill—paid $4,000 for an instrument which, if the sales cost might have been eliminated, probably could have been bought for $2,500 easily.

Here, then, before the beginning of negotiations, was a church away out west which wanted to buy a pipe organ. Away back east was a manufactory which had just the kind of organ that church would like to buy. Years ago the manufactory had discovered to its satisfaction that a church out west wouldn't come under those circumstances to the manufactory back east. Probably for ten years or more the manufactory had salesmen stopping two or three times a year in this particular section of this particular church, looking for sales which they couldn't and didn't make. But out of this experience the manufactory had learned that a good salesman ought to sell three or four of these organs, year after year, and [illegible] sales cost [illegible] st, the house had discovered that it could sell an instrument costing $2,500 to manufacture, for a net $4,000.

If the treasurer of that particular church chances to see and recognize this little story of their $4,000 organ, is he going to feel a little sore about it?

It was along the line of this thought that I have been seeking some information of men who are past masters in the problem and the art of salesmanship. I have found some differences of opinion, some contradictions, but after all it appears that the ultimate consumer must look forward to paying his sales costs for a long time to come.

Salesmanship in general is a broad term. It may range in detail from the establishing of a huge stamp mill and smelter plant, costing hundreds of thousands of dollars, down to selling a country drygoods merchant $150 worth of general merchandise. But regardless of the commodity sold, the part of the salesman remains virtually the same—that of advisory counsel to the buyer who can command confidence of the potential buyer to buy the particular goods which the salesman represents.

Typical of the "Art."

Here is a typical situation described for me by a past master in the art of salesmanship. In its interpretation one may get the highest definition of the salesman and his part in the passing of a commodity from the manufacturer to the ultimate consumer.

"I was selling a line of millinery," he said. "Before I met Jones, of Jonesville, by appointment in the sample rooms of the Jones House, I had spent an hour running through my samples, laying out perhaps a dozen styles from all the others on a separate table.

"I knew Jones and I knew Jones' trade. I was representing a house which couldn't have afforded to sell Jones $5,000 worth of hats, knowing that he would be stuck with them. I'd rather have refused to sell him a dollar's worth on any account. Jones had reason to know this, too. Therefore when Jones came in and I directed him to the special table containing the goods that I'd selected for him, he took notice at once.

"'There's the stuff for you,' I said, confidently. 'Don't accuse me of a swelled head, either. The fact is I know more about this thing than you do. Lord knows, I ought to; I've been six months in Paris and in the home factory three months, just before starting out on the road. You don't think I want to stick you, do you? Then if you want some of the knowledge that I've been nine months in getting, here it is.'

"'Well, don't you think I could sell hats on that basis?'" Here and there would be a shape that Jones would take off the table as something that he had tried out before and would'nt go, but in the main I sold Jones the hats I thought he ought to buy to the best interests of both of us. I was assuming some of the responsibilities of Jones' business for the coming season, but that was what I was paid for, I wouldn't have been a salesman if I couldn't have done it. In making a choice for him an hour before he came to the sample room I prepared to assume certain responsibilities in his coming season's business. But I kept within the line of honest dealing.

"'Don't load up to the ceiling,' I would advise. 'I'm coming back this way in about four or five weeks. Take a dozen of these—two dozen of these—five or ten of these. You'll know more about what I know when I come back the next time.'

"Don't you appreciate the part the real salesman plays in the business of the country, when he assumes as much as this and makes good on his knowledge? Most business men don't know exactly what they want. Not knowing, they like to confer with some one who has some ideas that they can accept in good faith. The salesman who is a salesman must have these ideas, he must make good on them, and, having made good, he has that buyer's confidence until he betrays it willfully."

Salesmen Literally House Itself.

Literally a salesman for a house appearing before a customer is the house itself and something more. His powers for good and for bad are limitless, according to the man himself. One crooked salesman in a week may so queer the reputation of a house through a territory that not five years of efficient service by a successor can recover its old prestige. Yet that house which has fifty salesmen over its territory is open to fifty individual, personal interpretations by its customers. Next to the house's stock, open accounts, and plant, this sales territory is its most valuable asset, but it is forced to give over that territory to fifty individual men, any one of whom has power to ruin, almost as much through ignorance as through intent.

It is recognition of the value of sales territory to the industrial and commercial world, which in the last decade has developed the sales manager. In the beginning this sales manager in embryo was the individual in the house to whom traveling salesmen reported matters that seemed to them to need reporting; he was the head of the sales department to whom the dissatisfied customer was allowed to kick. But as salesmanship has developed and as competition in territory has grown, the progressive house has had forced upon it the necessity of a staff of salesmen which shall represent the house.

"We've got to train these men," decided the wise management. "If we are more and more to delegate to the salesman everything that the house is, it is up to us to know everything we can about that traveling delegate and have him know everything about us."

Sales Manager Supreme Ruler.

The sales manager is the supreme ruler of the destiny of a business. Having on the face of things the powers of a czar, he had to assume the role of a tactful, diplomatic arbitrator and director. He had to stand by his salesmen who proved worthy, while he had to satisfy the customer who might have felt himself aggrieved and wronged. Salesman himself, he had to have the power of imparting sales methods to competent men, willing and able to learn. He sought out a man's weak points and showed him wherein he was lacking. In a word, he was a maker of salesmen.

It was in the larger, more progressive houses that the sales manager developed. This fact put the larger number of individuals under his direction and gave him the larger task of molding widely differing natures to his ends. One, two, or three of these individuals inevitably must be of a character to overshadow all the other ninty-nine, ninety-eight, or ninety-seven of the 100 salesmen, but at the same time that one hundredth poorest man in the list must be good enough to represent the house. Do you see the task?

Necessarily this has increased the cost of salesmanship. Years ago the mail order house evolved, doing away with the whole question of salesmanship in its particular field. Later, one or more great jobbing houses, questioning the necessity of the traveling salesman in reaching sales territory, adopted the catalogue idea and have pushed it. They have had their measure of success. Are they finally to displace the traveling salesman?

I asked this question of a man who ought to know. His answer was crisp and decisively in the negative.

"Never," he said, "so long as human nature is constructed as it is now."

There are at least two points in support of this opinion. In the first place, the potential customer who isn't quite sure of what he wants may have his catalogued lists before him, when the personal representative of a competing house steps in. The catalogue can't answer questions, while the salesman can. Not only this, but the personal salesman, accordingly as he is equipped for selling, can talk down points in the catalogue which the potential buyer may have accepted.

Is Catalogue Really Cheaper?

But, again, expensive as the personal salesman may be to a house, it has been questioned if the catalogue and its train of postoffce correspondence is any cheaper. Where the catalogue house has its own printing and binding plant it costs money to put out a catalogue, and when postage stamps are affixed other dollars pile up rapidly.

"But more than this," said an authority, "anything which might result in destroying the idea of personal salesmanship in favor of the catalogue must promise in a few years to concentrate the business of the whole country in the hands of a few great houses. There are no numerous small mail order houses scattered all over the country; two or three great corporations have swallowed the whole field of the direct consumer. It is the continuance of the personal sales representative which must keep room for the scores of institutions that are in existence and in healthful competition. To me, speaking from some limited experience with the catalogue idea I believe that the cheapest, best, and altogether the most satisfactory publicity for the business house is found in the idea of personal representation under a competent sales manager big enough for his job."

OLIVE OIL TO BE COSTLY.

It is estimated that the entire Turkish output of olive oil will not exceed 900,000 quintals (Turkish), or, say, 50,000 tons. It is, therefore, stated to be relatively insufficient to meet the requirements at home and foreign demands. The olive oil crop in Greece, Crete, Italy and Morocco has completely failed. The crop of Tunis is estimated at about 10,000 tons, or about one-fourth of its average crop. As far as Spain is concerned, opinion is divided, but it is believed that the country possesses a considerabe stock of last season's oil and that the present crop will reach about one-third of that of a good year. Spain is the largest olive oil producing country in Europe. A good harvest gives about 500,000 tons oil. Its home consumption is considerable, and it is probable that the high market price will prevent its exportation to a large extent.

USE OF PRICE TICKETS.

Every retail store uses some price tickets. A few stores use many price tickets. Not one retail merchant in a hundred uses price tickets enough. The average store does not use one-tenth as many as it ought.

No store uses "enough" until shoppers can tell the price of every article without having to ask the question. The purpose of price tickets is to interest people in other goods than those which they have decided to purchase.

You use price tickets in your windows to attract attention of passers-by, of whom probably only a small minority can by any possibility be persuaded to purchase.

Why is it not infinitely more important to price mark goods in your store so that people who come in will buy other wares as well?

PERSONAL.

Geo. H. Campbell, manager Toronto branch Red Rose Tea, returned this week from a fishing expedition to Sturgeon Lake, where he has a cottage. Mr. Campbell is a fisherman of repute; he knows all about the art of hooking the finny tribe and of telling how the big 'uns escaped.

W. J. Crawford, grocer, Ripley, Ont., returned last week from an extended trip to the Seattle Exposition, the Pacific coast, and also Nova Scotia. While in Toronto on his way home he made a visit to the office of The Canadian Grocer. Mr. Crawford has the right idea about work and pleasure. He does not hesitate to "take a day off" occasionally and he finds his business goes on just the same.

TRADE NOTES.

The man who is behind the times has a view that should be stimulating.

Partnership of Hennigar Bros., Wolfville, N. S., grocers and butchers, has been registered.

An Ottawa despatch says that the United Soap Co., of Brantford, Ont., is desirous of locating a branch in Hull, Que.

George Hortop has been admitted to the firm of Frederick Dane & Co., Toronto, grocery brokers, the company to be hereafter known at Dane, Hortop & Co.

J. J. McDonald has opened a new grocery store in Goderich, Ont. He has been for six years in the employ of the Grand Trunk, as conductor and yardmaster.

Frank W. Jackson, New York, representing the Greek Currant Co., was in Toronto on Monday and Tuesday of this week and appointed W. G. A. Lambe & Co., grocery brokers, the company's agents.

IMPEACHING HIM.

The attorney for the defence proceeded to cross-examine the witness, says the Chicago Tribune.

"Mr. Chucksley," he said, "what is your occupation?"

"I am a grocer."

"Do you sell any real Mocha or Java coffee?"

"Why—er—"

"That is all, Mr. Chucksley. You may step aside."

In a recent issue of The Grocer there appeared a cut of Theo. Miles, a traveler for Boeckh Bros., Ltd., Toronto. By an error his Christian name was made to read "Theodore." Of course Mr. Miles is well enough known to the trade in Toronto and district, even if his name had not appeared beneath the cut at all. But, like all who have had an English military training, and properly too, he likes all his T's crossed and I's dotted.

VANCOUVER.

August 17.—Local eggs are scarce and are up to 45c retail. Eastern eggs are 28c and 29c. Manitoba eggs lately have been bad, individual dealers having had to throw away several dozen. Evidently there is no system of collecting eggs in Manitoba, the process being for the producer to bring them to the storekeeper after a sufficient number has been collected, and the storekeeper, after he has a certain number of cases, ships them on. In this way, they are quite old before they ever leave the point of shipment. On the other hand, a dealer explained, the eggs in Ontario are collected regularly, are cleaned, candled, selected and graded, so that the dealer knows just about what he is getting. The eggs from Ontario seem to be better keepers, too, though what the reason is, is hard to say.

R. D. Dinning has succeeded James Roy as secretary of the Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association, Mr. Roy having taken the position of secretary to the Exhibition Association at a higher salary.

At the meeting of the Board of Trade on Tuesday night, W. H. Malkin brought up the subject of the monopoly of refrigerator space in the boats coming to Vancouver from Australia. This matter has been discussed in these columns previously. Mr. Malkin said he had received a communication, and it was stated that as a result of the monopoly Australian butter had to be bought through one firm, regardless of the price asked. F. R. Stewart, another wholesale produce man, supported this statement, but the matter was referred to the committee of trade and commerce of the board, with power to act.

The Brackman-Ker Milling Company has decided to disassociate its grain trade from its milling interests, and has consolidated its elevators with those of the Alberta Grain Company, of Calgary. There will be no changes in the personnel of the management, D. R. Ker continuing to direct the affairs of the B.-K. Company, while John McFarland will be the general manager of the Alberta Grain Company, with offices in Calgary.

The B. C. Fish Company is the latest fishery concern to start. This is composed of local capital, some of the prime movers being late of the Old Country. Among them are J. R. Ockleshaw-Johnson, who has been connected with commercial concerns in Lancashire and London, and I. M. Vince, a practical fish curer, of Yarmouth. Mr. Vince's business here, the B. C. Fish Company, as well as the business and premises of Peter Buchan & Co., fish dealers, of this city, have been acquired. Waterfront premises have been secured at Nanaimo, where fish will be cured for both foreign and domestic markets.

Previous mention has been made of the condition of fruit arriving from California, and last week two carloads of peaches and pears were condemned by the provincial inspector and sent back. Thos. Cunningham, the inspector, has left on a trip to the interior, and will adjust the quarantine stations at different points. The inspection of fruit will be thorough, despite the protests of growers in California.

VICTORIA.

August 17.—The salmon run continues and with every assurance of a fair pack. On the United States side of the straits every cannery has been working hard. A huge devil fish was found in the Alsop fish trap when lifted some days ago. The fisherman killed it after a big fight. A monster shark reported 14 ft. long was killed on the same day in another trap. Many hungry foes of the salmon follow them up the Sound and occasionally get caught in the traps; several sword fish are captured every year.

Mrs. Comerford has sold her grocery business with the post office department, at Thoburn on the Esquimalt Road, to Philip D. Johnston, who has had many years experience in wholesale and retail grocery business and lately has been employed by Harrison & McDonald at the corner of Yates and Douglas Streets.

Recently a trusted employe of the post office was caught in the act of appropriating letters, not addressed to himself; complaints have been made for some time of letters not being received that were known to have been sent. It has engendered an air of suspicion which has affected all hands at the post office, and it is to be hoped that now confidence will be restored, and mail business conducted with safety and satisfaction.

REGINA.

August 17.—McGinn Bros, have opened a first-class general store at Glenavon, Sask., on the line of the Canadian Northern Railway, between Regina and Brandon.

There have been no changes of interest to report here during the last week. Both retailers and wholesalers report a satisfactory business being done. The wholesalers in all lines are looking for a large business this fall, but say there is a tendency on the part of the trade yet to buy only for immediate requirements, but just as soon as the crop is assured prospects point to a large movement. The Provincial Government this week issued a statement that from their statistics not more than one per cent. of the crop in the province has been lost by hail. All lines of grain promise better than the average yield. Regina is the centre of the implement trade for the province and the number of cars of threshing machinery seen recently is really surprising.

Philip Gerschel, sales manager of the Young-Thomas Soap Co., of Regina, returned this week from Calgary, where he has been on a business trip.

Among the grocery salesmen noticed in the city this week were: Mr. Watson, of Blue Ribbon, Ltd., Winnipeg, Man.; Mr. Marshall, of Mason & Hickey, Winnipeg; Mr. Morish, of the Tetley Tea Co.; Mr. Cameron, of Holbrooks, Ltd., and Messrs. Roberts and Harvey, of the Edwardsburg Starch Co.

CALGARY.

August 17.—Business in all lines is especially good here, none being particularly favored. Fresh fruit from the Okanagan is having a ready sale but new potatoes are still quite high. Apples, also, are yet scarce and high, retailing 2 lbs. for 25c. Package cereals are also selling freely.

Our present weather, very warm days and cool nights, is indeed the most favorable to the standing crops, and there is every reason to feel confident of reaping a rich harvest this year. The damage from hail in this particular district has so far been slight and will cut practically no figure in the general result.

There is a very heavy movement in sugar these days.

MANITOBA MARKETS

Winnipeg, Aug. 19. 1909.

Conditions are favorable for a splendid fall trade. At present wholesalers are not encouraging merchants to place heavy stocks. When crop conditions present a good outlook wholesalers are usually preyed upon for long heavy credits. This year it is noticeable that wholesalers are taking precautions against a naturally exuberant spirit. Rather than give long terms of credit they are anxious to make some collections which will place them in the healthy condition which they enjoyed previous to the stringency of two years ago.

The retail trade is quite satisfactory in spite of the hot weather and the absence of good customers. The fresh print trade is excellent with the average merchant.

The tendency of the market at present is weaker, than usual. We quote various declines, principally in Japan rice, rolled oats and Clark's pork and beans. Currants have a strong market and supplies are less than usual. We quote a slight advance on almonds.

BUTTER—Creamery butter is reduced about 1 cent per pound this week. Jobbers are selling fresh bricks for 24 cents. There is little being shipped from large creamery centres on account of the extensive dairy production. The No. 1 dairy is in good demand and jobs for 19 cents.

EGGS—It is difficult to bring in eggs from distant rural centres and assure good quality. There are many stales on the market at present and customers refrain from buying. The price for Manitoba fresh (?) laid is 21 cents to-day.

AN ENTERPRISING MOVEMENT.

Missionaries Leaving Ontario for the Orient Supplied With a Perfect Service.

Toronto, Aug. 12.—An effective example of enterprize is being exhibited by the Robt. Simpson Co. in their attention to missionaries' supplies which they send to China, Japan, etc. They advertise that special service will be given to any missionary entering the store for goods which he may desire to take with him.

Manager Stewart of the mail order department, sends an experienced employee with him through the store with the precaution that as much time as desired be spent with the intending purchaser. He is never hurried and it matters not whether a half or a whole day is taken up in showing goods ; nor does it make any difference as to what the extent of the purchase is. The same service is given to the missionary who buys $20 worth of goods as to the one who buys $500 worth.

The articles purchased are packed exactly as requested. If the buyer thinks he will need any of the articles while on the voyage, these are packed in separate cases. All the cases are numbered and invoices given showing every article and the number of the case in which it is located. In this way if any of the goods are desired it is an easy matter to determine just where they are. The goods are classified also.

Especial care is exercised in the packing. For instance butter is packed in hermetically sealed glass jars and even if the weather is fairly warm, it will arrive at the Orient in good condition. The stock carried for the missionary trade includes everything and the company will pack anything that is wanted.

In this way the Robt. Simpson Co. are building up an extensive missionary trade in China and Japan. The practically perfect service they give is responsible. The missionaries not only carry the gospel, but they tell their friends about this service.

Herein lies a lesson for all retailers. They must be progressive, but most of all they must provide for their customers the best service possible if they wish to branch out.

TO TAKE AND KEEP CUSTOMERS.

The simplest way of answering the question, "How can a travelling salesman make new customers?" is to show how he never will be able to make or hold customers, thus:

By dressing shabbily and being unclean.

By having a whiskey or tobacco odor when entering a store.

By going into a strange store with soiled shoes, unclean hands and black finger nails; or having a cigar in his mouth.

By becoming discouraged too soon.

By treating salesmen or clerks uncivilly.

By handling a line of goods that does not give satisfaction.

By having a peevish or morose face when entering a store. A traveling man, to get orders, must take sunshine into the store, even on a rainy day.

By bothering the mechant when he is busy selling goods or writing at his desk.

By being too obtrusive.

By teling vulgar stories.

By not being able to gain the confidence of the buyer.

By having two or three prices.

By leaving town without having canvassed the field thoroughly.

By playing poker.

By talking ill of a competitor or his goods.

By taking "no" for an answer. A new man always gets a "no" if he requests the buyer to look at his goods in the sample room.

By spending time fishing, card playing or looking at baseball games when he should be hustling for orders.

By misrepresenting his goods.

By changing firms or his line of goods every year or two.

If a young man avoids these and other stumbling blocks; if he has a good share of common sense, tact, determination and perserverance and knows how to approach different characters, it is certain that he will be able to make many new customers every year. — From an article in Modern Methods.

PERSONAL NOTES.

An official lecturing in Bombay the other day, stated, "It may surprise some of you to learn that an average sample of Bombay milk contains more than ten times as many living bacteria, as are to be found in an average sample of crude London sewage."

A meeting of the creditors of J. R. Schmidt, general merchant, of Millbank, who assigned some time ago, was held during the week in the offices of Richard Tew & Co., Toronto, but adjourned for three days in order to allow Mr. Schmidt to prepare a cash offer. The liabilities amount in all to about $16,000, with the assets about the same, the creditors belong mostly in Toronto and Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. McDowall, of McDowall Bros., Dunville, Ont., returned home last week from a pleasure trip to Ottawa. From Toronto they took the R. & O. boat to Prescott, and thence by the picturesque Rideau canal to the capital. While quiet and unassuming, Mr. McDowall is one of the most enterprising grocers in Ontario, and is a prince of good fellows.

The management of the "New Systems" store at Winnipeg, have dispensed with the "New Systems," and at present they are auctioning off part of the stock, preparatory to the moving of the remainder of the goods to a new site on Portage Avenue, where a general store will be operated on the ordinary plan.

It is one thing to win the buyer's favor for an article and another to make adjustments incident to closing the sale.

Western Grocers Issue Weekly Price Bulletin

This Gives Store News of Interest to Consumers—How Paying Delivery Man High Wages Brings Business — Johns Bros. Have Their Own Farm for Source of Fresh Meat Supply—No Price Cutting.

Victoria, Aug. 18.—Fifteen hundred copies of the "Hustler," a bulletin sent out weekly, and giving news of the happenings in the store as well as a list of prevailing prices, constitutes one of the innovations in the retail grocery store of Johns Bros., Burnside Road, Victoria, B.C. A glance at the reproduction herewith of one of these bulletins, shows that Johns Bros. are progressive, up-to-date advertisers. The "Hustler" is 12 inches by 9 inches in dimensions, is invariably illustrated, and is printed and run off on the firm's own press by one of the store assistants.

The story of the development of Johns Bros.' business demonstrates clearly the advantages of constant attention and advanced business ideas, and the application of them. While the publication of the "Hustler" is an important feature in the store system, it is not the only one. One progressive method could not possibly produce the success which has attended this firm's journey through the business world.

Owen Sound, Ontario, was the birthplace of the Johns Bros. Their original occupation was that of machinists. They entered the grocery field 20 years ago with no knowledge of the trade whatever.

The combined capital was $800; to-day they are worth in the neighborhood of a quarter of a million dollars.

Meat From Their Own Farm.

An idea of the extent of the business they carry on may be gleaned from their method of supplying their meat market, which they have added to the grocery department. They own a farm of 200 acres—this is the source of supply for all fresh meats; and it is an important factor in interesting the consuming public.

A large grocery stock is carried, the store being superintended by A. Johns, 44 years of age. His brother does not now take any active part in the store.

"Our success is due," said A. Johns, "to our application to business; sticking to work; paying clerks a good wage and expecting them to do their work well."

For example, one time Mr. Johns had a boy engaged at $9 per week to drive the delivery waggon. Now he employes a man at $75 per month, because he says, the man is polite and accommodating. He not only holds the business the firm has, but he brings new customers. On the other hand the boy was slipshod in his manner and did not study customers. In this way the Johns' business has progressed and the extra expenditure in employing a good delivery man has been well rewarded.

Front of Store of Johns Bros, Victoria, B.C., Worth a Quarter of a Million Dollars And Who Began With $800 Capital.

Not a Price-Cutter.

The price-cutting evil has no sanction in the Johns' store.

Mr. Johns believes in maintaining a price that will produce a fair profit, and he keeps quality goods.

The firm is one of those, which through its industry, has kept well up with the leaders in the grocery trade of Western Canada and it has by no means finished growing yet.

Was it Advisable to Discontinue Selling 25c. Package Tea?

A Fifth More Red Rose Tea Sold Without the 25c. Grade

The sale of Red Rose Tea during the first half of this year was 19 2/5 % more than during the same months of 1907 and shows a very heavy increase over 1908. During 1907 we were selling the 25c grade and it was our banner year up to that time.

The large increase this year, without a 25c grade, proves conclusively that people appreciate better tea and are willing to pay for the higher quality. We did not ask the consumer to pay 3oc for a 25c tea; but entirely discontinued the 25c grade, and kept the quality of our 30c tea fully up to the high standard we have maintained for years.

Do you not think that if YOU put the same energy into selling the better grades of tea that you put into selling 25c. tea YOUR TEA TRADE would show a very decided improvement?

Red Rose Tea stands higher than ever in the estimation of the Canadian public; more of it is being used than ever before and better grades.

Business Methods that Proved to be Money Makers

Disadvantages of Price-Cutting—How a Montreal Grocer Overcame Shortage in Shelf Room—Erects a False Wall—Growth of a Cardinal Business Due to Advertising—Value of Quality.

Hamilton, Aug. 17.—"If anybody is willing to give a dollar bill for 95 cents, the public is always willing to take advantage of the offer," remarked a grocer, in discussing the merits and demerits of the price-cutting system. He did not believe that slashing prices was at all necessary. It only served to injure the manufacturer and wholesaler, and the retailer as well, because the majority of grocers do not care to handle an article which does not show a fair profit.

"The greatest blessing that can fall upon any retailer," he continued, "is to get the money for the goods before they leave the store. Sell often, get the cash, make quick payments and then you know where you are at—not nearly—as most of us are situated at present.

"There are so many failures now-a-days, and I believe a great many of these can be indirectly traced to slip-shod business systems. The cash system is the only one and it is coming and coming as fast as it can."

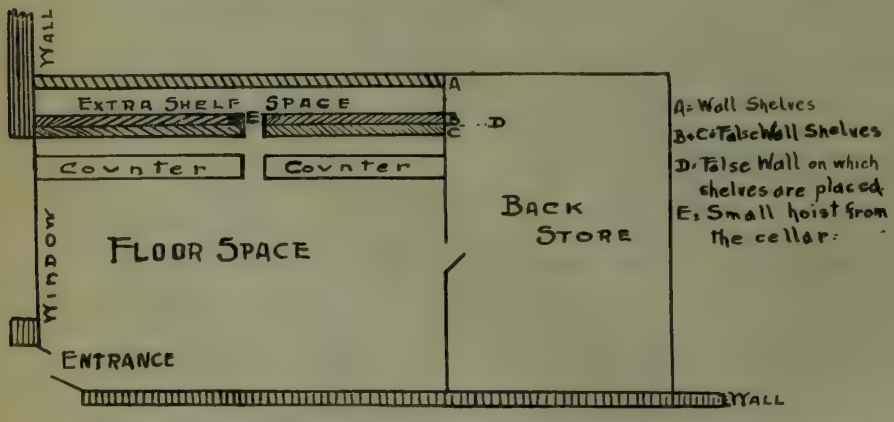

Diagram Showing False Wall Shelves In a Montreal Grocery Store.

The speaker maintained that business generally was being placed on a better basis. In former years there was some reason for tardy methods. Farmers secured money only about once or twice during a year—after the annual threshing, in particular—and the merchants then, and not till then, got their money.

"Nowadays farmers can get money every day if they want to, with the introduction of so many side-lines on the farm, and we are being paid more regularly—for which we are truly thankful.

"We have reduced our bad debts wonderfully in the last few years. If we hadn't done so the probability is that we would have been up Salt Creek long ago."

UNIQUE SHELF ARRANGEMENT.

Montreal, Aug. 17.—A bright idea in interior arrangement of a store may be seen in a large grocery store in Montreal. Upon entering, one is struck by the apparent width of the top shelf. Upon investigation it is found that these shelves are not on the wall proper, but are built up on a false wall about two feet in front, and in this way an enormous amount of shelf room is obtained.

It is observed that this grocery is remarkably free of boxes and other disfiguring objects scattered around the floor. Of course, in small stores where the grocer is cramped for room it becomes necessary to do this, but where there is a large store, most of the goods can be confined to the shelves. The grocer in question explained that he put his most attractive goods on the front shelves and the less so in the rear, out of sight. The clerks are not permitted to leave the front store. If anything is required from down cellar or from the rear, there are speaking tubes provided, by means of which they can make their wants known to men in these parts of the store, and they are immediately supplied.

The wonderful precision in the arrangement of the stock enables the clerks to execute orders with the greatest speed. It is also the duty of the back storeman to keep the front shelves supplied with goods, and in the morning nothing is missing to give an incomplete idea to the eye.

QUALITY IS ESSENTIAL.

Kingston, Aug. 17.—A local grocer, who happened to be in a retrospective as well as a prospective mood, in discussing the grocery business, said that the volume of business, speaking of each individual customer, was decreasing. This was not to be taken as an indication of a decrease in the amount of money spent, but rather in the character of goods now bought. At the present time quality is the first essential, quantity becoming less considered. This is interesting, as it indicates a phase in the development of dietetic knowledge.

It is generally conceded by the medical profession that the great majority of people eat much more than is necessary for the upkeep of the body. This condition is reflected, as was suggested by the grocer in the changing character of the grocery trade.

AN $8,000 BUSINESS INCREASE.

Cardinal, Ont., Aug. 17.—"Advertising did it."

That's what F. F. Adams, general merchant, says about his business, which last year totaled more than $23,000, when four or five years ago it was not more than $15,000.

Mr. Adams is a thorough believer in the feasibility of placing one's name before the public as much as possible, if he desires to increase his business.

He has struck a new idea for getting next to the farmers' trade. He "gets in right" with the cheese factory makers and is able to use the factories for the distribution of dodgers to farmers who happen to call there. These are printed regularly and they give the current store news in the most attractive form. Mr. Adams claims to have secured considerable new business from the country through their use. There is no newspaper published in Cardinal, but the Adams ad. appears in the columns of the paper in the nearest town, which circulates extensively in and around that village. The population of Cardinal is about 1,200, so that a yearly business of $23,000 speaks well for the thrift and enterprise of Mr. Adams.

The debt question is given a good deal of attention. Cardinal is a factory centre, employes being paid every two weeks, and although Mr. Adams lost some money when he first began business ten years ago, he carefully watches the dead-beats now.

Commenting on the mail order business, he contended that general merchants all over the country are losing trade, in dry goods especially, to the department stores.

"The trouble is," he remarked, "they do not keep the assortment they should to meet the mail order competition. If they carried the variety of stock, more business would be done, because they can sell goods just as cheaply."

The Adams store carries staple lines of crockery and does a comparatively large trade in it. It is a paying investment.

TO IMPROVE TRADE.

Equip, decorate and arrange everything so that a visit to your store is really a pleasure. Do not keep your customers waiting unnecessarily. Be courteous and accommodating—put yourself out a little bit to make the women folks feel that they are welcome whether they buy or not. There may be little immediate profit in this suggestion, but it gets you acquainted, and personality furnishes the keynote of your business success.

Gentlemen :—

Ship me at once, ten tubs of Easifirst, and a further shipment of forty tubs next week.

I am retailing this lard over the counter for household use, and it is giving excellent satisfaction. Practically every sale I have made has resulted in repeat orders, and many of my customers prefer it to any other lard on the market. Easifirst is one of the best sellers we have on our list, and we are not handling any other lard, either wholesale or retail.

Produce and Provision Situation of the World

Canada Losing Her Hold on English Hog Market—Not Producing Enough to Meet the Demand and Other Countries Step in—Butter Export Trade Falling off—Cheese Trade Better.

The hog situation is still a puzzling proposition to the provision dealers of Canada. While they are constantly short in the supply of hogs, they see that the English market is drifting away and is taken possession of by other countries. Even China is now taking a hand in it, and is threatening to be a dangerous rival. In the meantime, however, our packers find a ready market at home for all the product they can manufacture from the limited supply of hogs at their disposal. Some of the packers are inquiring about the "commission" of farmers who were sent to Denmark and other European countries to look into this state of affairs, and are waiting to find out whether they have discovered anything that will save the situation.

There is a great deal of uncertainty entertained in reference to the shaping of the butter market. It is the prevailing opinion that the make of this year is equal to last year, and yet the quantity exported is far below last year. From this we must conclude, making a fair allowance for a larger home consumption, that there must be an unusually large quantity in the hands of dealers. With this in view, creamery butter, which is the only kind now bought for export, has declined, and is not selling at the figure that was paid for June butter, the bulk of which is still in storage.

The exports of cheese, however, so far have exceeded last year's, and the prices are firm with an upward tendency.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS — Little change has taken place in the provision market. Canada short cut back pork is easier in tone, and quotations have declined $1. Dressed hogs are also somewhat easier being quoted at $12.25, despite the fact that trade is fairly good. Hams continue to sell well. Lard is moving more freely, but altogether trade is quiet.

BUTTER—The export demand still keeps quiet, and in consequence the storage stock is accumulating. This tends to an easier feeling in the trade generally. The local demand continues quiet for dairy butter. The market is unchanged this week.

PROVISIONS—Hogs are easier this week, without any special reason, further than that it so happened. BUTTER—A slight decline is noticeable in the butter market, especially in creamery, which is offered from 1c to 1½c lower. The disappointment dealers met with last year is not yet forgotten and buyers are particularly careful. Good dairy butter is in fair demand and is maintaining its price. Off flavor butter is accumulating and is hard to sell, as cotton seed oil is more and more taking the place of baking butter. The recent rains have freshened up the pastures and will help to increase the supply, and as there is already a heavy surplus, and no export demand, prices are likely to remain easy.

CHEESE—There is no startling feature to report in the cheese market. Prices have been steady all summer, with the feeling among dealers that they are a little too high to handle safely. In small quantities to retail dealers the prices may be quoted a quarter of a cent higher.

Cheese, new, large	0 12½ 0 12¾
" " twins	0 12¾ 0 13

EGGS—Eggs are scarce or rather good eggs are scarce, and bad ones too plentiful. Dealers are figuring up and are finding out that even with an apparent fair profit, they are losing money, through the heavy shrinkage on bad eggs. Prices are very firm and some are asking from 1 to 2c more for selected stock.

Fresh eggs	0 23 0 24

POULTRY—The poultry trade is picking up and will soon be in full swing. Spring chickens are of a better size and look more like something to eat, than a mere toy. The receipts of all kinds are liberal and business is satisfactory. According to reports the season was favorable to raising young fowl, so that a good supply will soon be ready to draw from.

HONEY—As far as reports can be secured the honey crop is above the average in quantity and quality. But owing to the greater demand, especially for the Northwest, prices are likely to be firm. In small quantities to the trade it may be quoted as follows:

" 10-lb. pails	1 20
" 60-lb. cans, per lb	0 11½

SOME SIGNIFICANT FACTS.

The steamship Palermo arrived at London, Eng., a few weeks ago from Hankow, China, with a cargo consisting of the following:

21,048 cases of eggs.
10,674 cases of wild game.
8,118 cases of poultry.
12 quarters of beef.
4,663 carcases of pigs.
1,345 carcases of deer.

The factory employes of the Wm. Davies Co., Toronto, held their annutl excursion to Niagara Falls on Saturday last. There was a large attendance, the crowd being composed of a coterie of fun-makers, which helped to make the day a lively one. Sports were run off and prizes presented to the winners. The trip was made by boat.

A SET OF BUSINESS MEN.

New Officers of the La Chambre de Commerce de Joliette, Quebec.

Joliette, Que., Aug. 17.—The election of the officers of La Chambre de Commerce, de la Ville et du District de Joliette, was held on Thursday, the 6th inst. The following list gives the names of those who were elected :—

President, W. Pouliot ; vice-president, Jules Breton ; secretary-treasurer, L. P. Deslongchamps ; directors, E. E. Lepine, A. A. Boucher, H. Beaumier, J. U. Chaput, I. E. Lalonde.

It is needless to recall the numerous advantages and benefits which a lively and well directed Chambre de Commerce procures to commerce, industry and trade generally in a town or country. But it is well to point out that the town and district of Joliette have been particularly favored by the work of their own organization. Transportation, freight rates, markets and postal service, have in turn been discussed and improved to the benefit of all.

W. POULIOT,

Members this year have been fortunate in the selection of their officers. They have faith in the ability of their President, W. Pouliot, to carry out successfully all matters under his consideration.

Mr. Pouliot, who is the head of Chevalier, Pouliot & Cie., and now president of our Chambre, has won for himself a well deserve reputation as an energetic and enterprising business man, a prudent financier, and expert buyer. Aided by the other directors who also belong to the group most devoted to the welfare of our town and district, he should mark his tenure of office with real success. It is hoped that this association will continue to help trade and render it profitable to the whole community.

DEVICE FOR TESTING EGGS.

A well-known test for eggs, says the Scientific American, consists in placing the eggs in water, when the bad ones will float. But of the eggs that sink there is no way of determining which are the fresher ones and how much less stale one may be than another. A very ingenious device has recently been invented which enables one to note the slightest variations in the eggs. The device consists of an aluminum air chamber comprising a main body portion and a stem. The latter is graduated, while at the bottom of the body portion are two spring-wire loops shaped to engage and hold an egg. The device with the egg attached thereto is placed in water and will sink to a depth depending upon the specific gravity of the egg. The freshest and best eggs sink the stem down until the water is on a level with the XX mark. Even if the egg registers 0 it shows that the egg is quite fresh and still has sufficient food strength to hatch a live chick. Mark 4 registers the limit of fair eating. At 8 the egg is fit for cooking only, while 12 shows that decomposition has set in. Not only is the tester valuable in the kitchen but to the chicken raisers as well, as it tells how much nutriment there is in the egg for the support of life in the chick, and during incubation it shows the progress of evaporation in the incubator as compared to normal hygrometric conditions as found in the eggs under the hen.

Guelph Retail Grocer Gives Picnic to His Clerks—An Impetus for Better Business Relations.

Guelph, Aug. 17.—Last Thursday at 1.30 p.m., McCannell's & Patterson's big four-horse tally-ho left the front of the Noted Tea Store (J. A. McCrea's) with as jolly a crowd as ever tally-hoed out of Guelph. After a delightful run to Elora, a sumptuous luncheon was enjoyed at the Rocks. Jos. Harris, on behalf of the staff, wished a good time to everybody, mentioned the liberality of the wholesalers, and on behalf of the staff presented R. McCrea with a stick pin. Mr. McCrea, in reply, said that the motto on the badge expressed his sentiments exactly: "Better business relations between employers and employees result in the prosperity of both."

The party then adjourned to the baseball grounds, where a delightful list of sports was run off, as follows:

Boys' 50 yard dash.—1. Stanley Vass. 2. Fred Hack. 3. R. Garrard.

Men's 50 yard dash.—1. Gus Murray. 2. Will Hooper. 3. Chas. Hack.

By unanimous vote a beautiful $5.00 pipe, donated by Nerlich & Co., was voted to Joseph Harris, the head clerk of The Noted Tea Store. Mr. Harris is deservedly a favorite with all the members of the staff, and no one begrudged him this mark of appreciation.

Ontario Wheat Drops In Price—Buyers Take Flour as They Need It—Oatmeal Shows Another Decline In Montréal—Hints For Keeping Confectionery Fresh.

The price of Ontario wheat since last week has declined from 10 to 15c a bushel, and is now bought at outside points at 95c. With a good crop in Ontario and prospects of an immense crop throughout the Northwest—and according to reports more than an average crop over the whole world—prices would be expected to be still lower. The crop in the Northwest is ripening rapidly and is becoming more secure each day. Oats are also dropping and are now about 40c a bushel.

Grocers should run their stocks low and only buy from hand to mouth for several reasons. With the reports before us, it is reasonable to suppose that not only flour, but all cereals will be cheaper, and it is also good policy to clean out all old summer heated stock before new stock is added to it. Very few articles in the grocery store require more careful attention than this class of goods. Nothing will hurt the reputation of a store more seriously than badly kept flour or cereals.

Hot weather makes it somewhat difficult to keep candies—and especially the high grades which grocers are handling more and more—to have them in good shape when asked for. It is to the seller's own interest to look carefully after his confectionery department. There is nothing so fatal to business possibilities in a candy shop as sticky stale-looking goods. For this reason cases are desirable and the open display of goods should be made in such a way as to be suggestive without exposing a large quantity of them to the effects of the atmosphere. Good window displays in confectionery have been made by showing a limited quantity of goods, the effect being brought about by the trimmings used.

MAKING PRICES UNIFORM.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—Several weeks ago an article appeared in The Canadian Grocer suggesting the idea of biscuit manufacturers invoicing their goods at retail prices with a certain discount off, which met with the approval of the grocers in general, but since then nothing has been done. It seems to me that this could be done without the least inconvenience to the manufacturer, and it would certainly be a great convenience to the retailer. As it is, each one takes a guess at what they should be sold and the result is that they are unintentionally sold at different prices.

By doing this it would not restrict retailers to sell at the invoice prices, but it would be a good guide as to what they should be sold, and would help to sell at uniform prices. All that the manufacturers would have to do, is to add 25c on the prices they are now charging, and then take 20 per cent. off the total amount with the regular discount for cash.

I would recommend that a deputation interview some of the manufacturers and and request them to consider this matter, and if they have no objections—which are not apparent to the retailer—to comply with the wishes so strongly expressed by grocers.

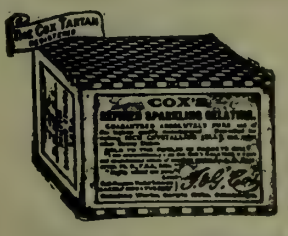
More Than Soda Crackers

There is something delightfully different in the taste of Mooney's Perfection Sodas which distinguishes them from common Soda Crackers.

The difference begins with better baking of best material in a large, up-to-date oven, built expressly to bake this buscuit.



The difference is protected and preserved for your customer by the package of the biscuit, which effectively retains the freshness, and excludes all dust and moisture.

Guelph Grocers are Having a Troublesome Task

The Handling of Raspberries Meeting With Obstacles — Farmers Peddling Wild Berries From House to House—Fruit Has Poor Keeping Qualities.

By Stanley Nicholson.

Guelph, Ont., August 17th.—The small fruit business at its best has many disadvantages, and it is doubtful if there are not a large number of men in the grocery trade who would gladly go out of the small fruit line altogether if they could afford to. This they cannot do, however, as the small fruits in their season are quite a prominent feature in every grocer's business. They have to be seriously considered, and every enterprising grocer tries many of them successfully—to make it not only a necessary but a profitable line as well.

Raspberries a Drawback.

It is the raspberries that have been the chief source of worry in the small fruit line this year, at least they have in the Guelph district.

How the berry trade has been in other parts of the province the writer does not know, but as far as Guelph is concerned he has the word of a number of the most influential grocers here for it that the raspberry trade for the past few weeks has been anything but satisfactory. Any Guelph grocers who have made money out of raspberries under the conditions that have prevailed here for the past few weeks certainly deserve all they have so made.

Right from the first the grocers have felt there was something radically wrong with the berry trade and they were not long in finding out that the trouble was caused partly by farmers coming into the city and peddling wild raspberries around from door to door. This, to begin with, was most annoying, and the wily farmer who would come first to the grocer with boxes of cultivated raspberries and sell these at a good price, and then go from door to door and load his customers' customers up with wild fruit of an inferior quality, at a much lower price, is, to say the least, no particular friend of the grocer he has thus treated.

Keeping Qualities Poor.

Berries never do keep well, and are a commodity that no grocer can well afford to stock. But this year they have been particularly deceiving and a number of the foremost dealers have been "stung."

"Why it's been fierce this year," said one grocer in Guelph who has had a bigger small fruit trade than most of them. "You have no idea," he went on, "We will buy berries in the morning, and buy them carefully too, and by night they will be in such a condition that we practically have to give them away."

These sentiments were common among many who the writer called on this afternoon. Still, the grocers for the most part took these as some of the natural troubles of the business, and one of them laughingly got off that old chestnut about letting all their troubles be little ones.

The Only Remedy Suggested.

About the best suggestion in the way of a remedy for these evils of the raspberry trade was given the writer in the pointed remark of the down town grocery firm of Jackson and Sons. "Buy berries to sell," he said. "Buy the kind that will sell and no more—and then sell them." And that's the only thing to do with raspberries in hot weather like this. The berries are nice enough to sell—but better far let the farmers do the keeping of them.

SEND IN INQUIRIES.

The Canadian Grocer every week is receiving a large number of inquiries. These are answered as fully and as well as possible. Any that are of such a nature that they may be published with their answers are treated so, while in other cases the inquirer is replied to directly. While we may not have the information at our finger's end in every case, we are in close touch with authorities who are always willing to supply it. Send along your inquiries by letter or postal card.

M. Wardell, of M. Wardell & Sons, Huntsville, Ont., says that the grocery business is better than it was last year. He expects the splendid tourist trade will help out matters considerably. Mr. Wardell makes a specialty of boots and shoes.

GREEN FRUITS—There is a good call all the way round. California pears are again firmer in price and are now selling round $3 to $3.75. Plums are unchanged, the demand being brisk. GREEN FRUITS—Fruit of almost every description is Canadian grown, and put up in all sorts of packages, which makes it difficult to give quotations that will be understood. Even the same size baskets do not, by any means, contain the same quantity of fruit. Some are heaped up and others scarcely even full. The qualities of the same fruit also vary in size. It is evident that our fruit growers have much to learn in doing up their fruit. It is all very well when these goods are sold to the party who sees them, but when they are sold to be shipped, they often meet with disappointment. Early peaches and plums have the upper hand on the market this week. All the varieties of peaches, of which the "Triumph" seems to get the preference are cling stone, and of course not desirable for preserving purposes. They are difficult to handle, as they begin to rot almost immediately when they are ripe and ready to eat. There is no end to the varieties of plums, but the best standard goods are not yet on the market. They are selling from 35c to 75c and even $1.00 a basket. California plums and peaches look homesick and have the appearance of not being wanted here any more this season.

VEGETABLES.—Old potatoes are all off the market and only small lots of American potatoes are left to be cleaned out. All the stock offered now is grown by gardeners in the vicinity of Toronto and vary much in size and quality. This is owing to the nature of the soil where they were grown. While some are scabby and small, others are excellent. The recent rains came in good time to help the potatoes which will likely be a good yield. Tomatoes are king this week on the vegetable market. The quantity is large, the quality is good, and the price is low. Only a short time ago they sold by the pound at the price they can now be bought by the basket. From 15 to 20c per basket is remarkable when compared with the prices only a few days ago. Among the endless varieties of vegetables, the beautiful purple colored egg plant shows up to good advantage. Canadian cantaloupes, green peppers and celery also add beauty to the picture.

The Duties of Retail Merchants to their Clerks

C. H. Crysdale, Oshawa, Ont., a Firm Believer in Educating and Encouraging Employes—Claims That Selfishness is Too Prevalent—Always Glad to Hear of Clerks Securing Better Positions.

There is an important question in the retail trade to which little consideration is given by many retail employers. It is their duty to their clerks. We often hear of the duty of the clerk to his employer, but seldom is the reverse problem elucidated.

These are questions which come within the curriculum of retailers' duties. Too often they forget that their clerks are human; they neglect to assist them to a higher standing because of their own selfishness and love for gain at the expense of others.

One man who has given this phase of the question some thought and who has arrived at definite, broad-minded conclusions is C. H. Crysdale, general merchant, Oshawa, Ont. Mr. Crysdale has had plenty of experience, having been in business thirty-two years of his life in Oshawa. He admits that at one time he was one of the "narrow" merchants, but a few moments' business conversation with him now, shows a retailer who has used his head to the best advantage and who has consideration for the success of others.

Mr. Crysdale's head clerk has just left the counter to become a traveling salesman for a produce and provision manufacturer. When he was leaving, his employer—like an employer should—told him he was glad to hear of the step up the ladder. He did not feel that he could increase his salary to make it profitable for him to remain, but he gave him a letter of recommendation which would help him along on his way.

"I do not believe in retarding the progress of any young man," he said, "and I would not think of attempting to persuade one to work for me if I knew he could better his condition elsewhere."

Selfishness Unwarranted.

He considers it the duty of every employer to act squarely with his clerks. The selfish man loses in the long run, and there are too many of this class.

Mr. Crysdale is the type of man who says: "Sorry to lose you; couldn't very well pay more, but glad to hear you have a better position."

This, he claims, gives encouragement to the young salesman and helps him bear up amid the adversities which usually attend a fresh start in life.

"I subscribe for The Canadian Grocer and have done so for years; when I read it and my son reads it, it is handed over to the head clerk. I believe that it is my duty to educate him as much as possible. In this way we get good service from clerks, for they are better informed about their duties and they appreciate our consideration."

These are among the sentiments of Mr. Crysdale, who has made a success in selling merchandise to the public. The trend of the times, he claims, is toward broader ideas in business—only the narrow-minded object to standing up for manly principles, and this sort is wearing few.

So far as attending to the business in the store is concerned, Mr. Crysdale's son, Frank, is now practically its head. He has been brought up in the footsteps of his father and is a progressive young merchant. Mr. Crysdale, Sr., however, still attends to the buying. He prides himself on being in business in Oshawa longer than any other merchant—it is probably another case of the survival of the fittest, because of modern and straightforward business principles.

BEAN HARVEST STARTS.

Chatham, Aug. 16.—Reports received from Blenheim and vicinity are to the effect that the bean harvest there has already been started, some extra early beans being pulled this week. This is an unprecedentedly early commencement for the harvest, and is largely due to the dry weather of the past month and the marked heat. Blenheim is the centre of a large bean-growing section. It will be some time before the crop is sufficient to affect prices to any marked extent.

LIVE QUESTIONS DISCUSSED.

Organizations In Different Cities Recommended As In The Interests Of The Grocers.

Albany, N.Y., Aug. 16.—Among the questions taken up at the annual convention of the New York State Grocers' Association was "The Protection of the Retail Selling Price," and a special fund was raised to further the organization of associations in different cities. President Rudolf of the Buffalo Association delivered an address on association work, referring especially to the passage of the Sunday closing bill and the keeping of the garnishee law intact.

George H. Bender, representing the Albany delegation, in an address said that the local association is making a special effort to have grocers' day observed as a general holiday throughout the state. He also desired that each one of the associations should obtain the services of an attorney to represent its interests. Mr. Bender also displayed a transfer credit card, which he desired the convention to adopt. A discussion on hucksters' and peddlers' license was led by Louis Hubner of Manhattan and the Bronx.

The programme also included a discussion on "The Benefits of the Garnishee Law."

HEAVY FIRE DAMAGES.

Need of More Careful Attention In Stores Becomes Apparent.

Fire broke out in the grocery store of R. S. Robertson, Little Britain, Ont., on Saturday last and before checked did damage estimated at $30,000. Mr. Robertson's loss, including his store, carriage factory and residence was $3,000. A. L. Kinniar's general store and residence were among the victims of the flames, the loss being $8,000. The origin of the blaze is unknown, but it serves to show that a merchant cannot be too careful in attending to his store and guarding against the fire fiend.

The general store of H. F. Judson, Frankville, Ont., near Brockville, was also destroyed by fire last Friday. A fine stock of goods valued at $4,000 was burned. Insurance carried was $2,000. The blaze originated, it is believed, in a stove in the rear of the store in which were a quantity of old papers.

The Oxford flour mills at Norwich, Ont., were completely destroyed by fire last week, nothing being saved. Isaac Rank, the proprietor, had taken stock during the day, and over 6,000 bushels of wheat were in the building and were totally consumed. Cause of fire is unknown, unless it was spontaneous combustion.

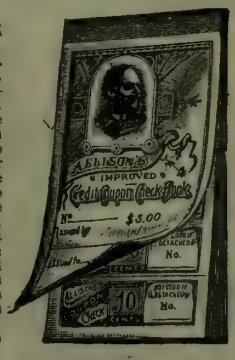
System is Everything



Modern business success is built upon System. The house that is ahead is the one that is best systematized in every detail—especially in the selling end.

THE Allison COUPON BOOK SYSTEM is the most important phase of selling system so far as the grocer is concerned. You can get along without them, but not nearly as well as you can WITH them.

How They Work

A man wants credit. You think he is good. Give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book. Have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10 — No trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on until the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes.

PRESIDENT TAFT'S GOOD EXAMPLE

By A. B. LEVER

PRESIDENT TAFT of the United States believes in trade newspapers. He is such a thorough believer that when he wanted to make an announcement of particular interest to business men of the United States he selected a business man's paper as his medium. It was one of the first acts of his administration.

This is the era of the trade newspaper. At any rate it is the dawn of the era.

Business men the world over are gradually coming to recognize the fact that if they want to reach firms in their own particular line of business the best and most direct method is through the columns of the trade newspaper devoted to their particular interests.

Manufacturers and wholesalers who do not recognize this fact are obviously behind the times. Those who do not catch up are likely to be overtaken and lapped by their more progressive competitors.

This is an age of progressive business methods and those who are not progressive in advertising are like those who prefer to travel by the old fashioned ox team instead of by the swiftly moving express.

Surely if Mr. Taft from his presidential chair is awake to the importance of addressing business men through the columns of a trade publication, manufacturers and wholesalers should not be less awake to their opportunities.

Just as a well aimed rifle carries the bullet to the bull's eye, so the trade newspaper carries the announcement of the manufacturer and wholesaler direct to the customer whom they desire to reach.

No manufacturer or wholesaler can carry on an effective advertising campaign that does not include the use of the trade newspaper.

2-in-1

On damp days, cold days, wet days and hot days this celebrated polish is all the same. It never soils the clothes, injures the leather or lessens the life of a shoe.

There are more persons to-day using 2-in-1 polish than there ever were before. Moral: if you are not handling it you are losing a good profit and a good trade as well.

FRESH HERRING

Of all that is said on the subject of canned fish; the essential point is—are the fish packed fresh?

Herring quickly show the effect of any deterioration, as the flesh loses its firmness and becomes dark in color.

Maconochie Bros. herring are distinguished for their firm, even texture and clear, white color. To accomplish this almost unlimited facilities are required ; but Maconochie Bros. method of handling fish is so complete that, in the first place, it insures absolutely fresh packing, and, in the second place, preserves the inimitable natural flavor.

Sell Maconochie Bros. Fresh Herring, Herring in Tomato Sauce, Kippered Herring--satisfy your customers and see your profits grow.

KOPS' ALE

NON-ALCOHOLIC

Last season was a very satisfactory period in Canada, KOPS' ALE being well taken up by both trade and public.

This year will witness a greater demand for this wholesome beverage and we are shipping to supply early orders.

KOPS' ALE is pure English brewed ale, made from finest Kentish hops and malt, containing all the tonic properties of alcoholic beer without the undesirable after effects. It is a money-maker in prohibition towns, as well as in unrestricted places.

Make yourselves familiar with KOPS' ALE.

A strong combination-

¶ An extensive garden of three thousand acres in the heart of Prince Edward County, Ontario; a canning factory without a peer in the completeness of its modern sanitary and mechanical equipment, and the cleanliness and skill of its employees; that is the combination which produces "Farmer Brand" Canned Fruits and Vegetables.

¶ Consequently every can of Farmer Brand is pure in quality and perfect in flavor. Farmer Brand brings and retains for you the quality customers —people who want the very best and are willing to pay a fair price to get it.

The Farmers' Canning Company

Bloomfield, - Ontario

QUALITY

If ESSEX CANNED GOODS were no better than the average, we would say less about them, but because they measure up to a higher standard we can afford to be very emphatic regarding QUALITY. Essex County is one of the very best agricultural sections in Canada, with advantages in growing such crops as Corn, Tomatoes and Fruits seldom equalled in this country. The Factory is thoroughly new and up-to-date, equipped with every facility for doing things right, and equal to an enormously big output of

Essex Tomatoes
Essex Corn
Essex Beans
Essex Peas
Essex Pumpkin
Essex Fruits
Essex Catsup
Essex Jams
Essex Pork and Beans
Essex Apple Butter

In the competition of the canned goods business, we cling tightly to the word "QUALITY", preferring to be always best, rather than second-rate, and in reaching out for a share of your trade, we offer such satisfaction as will give our goods a distinct preference with your customers. You run no possible risk in getting the best, particularly when they cost no more, and all we ask is that you give the "ESSEX BRAND" a trial.

Our Aims Are High

CANNED FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

The Way we Live up to These Aims

¶ Our methods of achieving such uniformly high quality will surely interest you. 1st. We are most particular in the selection of the raw fruit and vegetable—our inspectors throw out everything not absolutely fresh. 2nd. Long experience has taught us not only how to preserve the fruit from natural decay, but how to preserve the natural flavor also—a distinction with an ocean of difference. 3rd. The packing is done in an up-to-date factory that is a model of scientific sanitation—and bear in mind that NO preservatives or coloring matter are used.

Meyer's Currants

The Currant is a little grape. This little grape prospers in Greece and in Greece only, because in Greece only, kissed by a gorgeous sun, bathed by tepid rains and fanned by balmy ocean breezes, is found the soil peculiarly suited to the growth of the vines. Transplant the vines to foreign soil and the Currant becomes coarse, lacks flavor, loses its richness. But not everywhere even in Greece do the elements so happily combine as to produce the little grape at its best and to make, when dried, Currants rich in saccharine and flavor.

Not all Currants, therefore, are good currants, but Meyer's Currants are always good because they are carefully selected from the districts which produce the most luscious fruit, then with care —infinite care—the berries are cured and afterwards packed. Cleanliness, skill and care in the production of good Currants have combined to make Meyer's brands the first the world over.

If you sell Meyer's Currants, your customers will eat more and be happy to pay more, and in paying more, pay you a better profit. That is the business of it. Your gain is two-fold—more business—better business. Your safeguard is the name Meyer on the case. If you have never handled Meyer's Brands, you should buy a few of the many thousand cases being shipped to Canada this season ; importers whose interests lie in selling the best possible can supply you with them.

The Best Canned Goods

There are many kinds in the market all making claims of being the choicest and the highest in excellence, flavor and merit, but

The Queen Quality Leads

WHY?

Because our fruits and vegetables are fresh, palatable, and the finest specimens that can be secured in one of Canada's most fertile and progressive districts.

Because they are uniform in quality, as we supervise the growing of the raw products from seed time to harvest and our inspectors reject everything that is not strictly up to the highest standard.

Because we have the most sanitary and up-to-date process and machinery and no detail is overlooked. We attend to the practical side ourselves and make our own cans of the best tin plate that can be secured.

All progressive grocers stock them and all discriminating customers get in them

"Canada's Pride"

Canned Goods Still Leads

We would advise that we are now running heavy on Peas, packing a finer quality than we have ever turned out because of the excellent condition of the raw material, which with our careful handling, fine equipment and unequalled sanitary factory, enables us to far excel in quality any previous year.

These same conditions will apply to the full line of fruits and vegetables which we pack.

Don't be deceived by Brands and Trade Marks similar to ours which some packers are using, trying to place on the market inferior goods on our well-earned reputation.

Large Problems Under Eye of Maritime Board

Projects of Provinces Down by the Sea Foretell Trade Extensions and Aggressive Development of Natural Resources—Business Men of Eastern Canada Discuss Prominent Business Problems in a Business-like Manner—Prince Edward Island Tunnel and Maritime Union to the Fore—Railway and Steamship Matters Dealt With—To Convene Next Year at Chatham, N.B. — W. B. Snowball, the New President.

Staff Correspondence.

Charlottetown, Aug. 23.—The fifteenth annual meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade was held at Charlottetown, P. E.I., Aug. 18, 19 and 20. The local Board of Trade made elaborate arrangements and the handsome rooms of the Provincial Parliament were provided as the meeting place. There was a good attendance and many interesting questions were discussed.

At ten o'clock W. B. Snowball, vice-president, welcomed the delegates, and regretted the absence of Hon. G. E. Hughes, the president, who was unavoidably absent.

He read the following telegram from Mr. Hughes:—

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 17, '09.

"Regret being absent. Send best wishes for pleasant and profitable meeting.".

Premier Hazard, of Prince Edward Island, was then called upon to address the Board. On behalf of the Government of the Island, he welcomed the delegates. He knew every one of them was interested in the Maritime Provinces and the deliberations would be interesting. The subject of transportation would greatly interest the Island. He hoped the Board would pass a resolution dealing with difficulties of transportation and the remedies as regards the Island.

The one other subject of general interest was that of maritime union. It was a large subject and the Island would no doubt oppose it on the grounds of loss of identity and the smallness of members in the Island Province. He declined to express an opinion on the subject.

He hoped the subject of butter inspection, under the heading of Alberton, would receive due attention. Better inspection would help the butter industries.

Advocates Selling by Weight.

He thought of another subject which he had been asked to mention. He believed eggs and other products should be sold by weight, and he had been asked to bring it before the Board. All products should be included in this heading. He hoped a profitable meeting would be held.

His Worship, Mayor Prowse, of Charlottetown, followed in a short address of welcome. In the course of his speech he showed a leaning towards maritime union by mentioning that the three provinces would do more by concentrating on this subject and by combining for harmony of welfare.

James Paton, president of the Charlottetown Board of Trade, referred to the rainy weather; he jocularly mentioned that even though the whole Island was under prohibition law, the wet welcome was pronounced. He extended a special welcome on behalf of the Board of Trade, and hoped all the visitors and their lady friends would attend the Scottish gathering, to be held during the convention.

The roll was then called, showing that over a dozen different influential Boards were represented, and about fifty delegates. Others came the second day.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and accepted.

The Secretary's Report.

The secretary, Chas. M. Creed, looking younger and better than for years, was applauded warmly as he read his fifteenth annual report, as follows:—

To the president and members of the Maritime Board of Trade—

Gentlemen,—

Your secretary-treasurer begs herewith to hand you his report for the year.

All the recommendations and resolutions passed at the last annual meeting were forwarded to the Ministers of the various departments of the Federal Government, those concerning the Provincial Governments to the Premiers of same with copies of The Canadian Grocer containing report of proceedings of the annual meeting; all resolutions passed, with copies of The Canadian Grocer, were forwarded to all the Maritime Boards of Trade and copies of The Grocer were forwarded to all delegates to the annual meeting.

As customary, all resolutions with copies of The Grocer were forwarded to the following Maritime Province members in advance of the opening of the Federal Parliament. H. R. Emmerson and W. S. Loggie, New Brunswick; A. B. Warburton, P. E. Island and E. M. McDonald, A. K. McLean, Dr. J. B. Black, B. B. Law and A. B. Crosby, Nova Scotia, in order that they could become familar with them.

On January 23rd, shortly after the opening of the Federal Parliament copies of The Grocer, and all resolutions, were forwarded to all senators and members from the Maritime Provinces. After the opening of the Provincial Parliaments of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, copies of The Grocer and resolutions were forwarded to the members of same.

On April 16th, a copy of resolution on the Fisheries passed by the Prince Edward Island Legislature at the request of same was forwarded to the premiers of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Pursuant to the following resolution from the Annapolis Royal Board of Trade, "That the Maritime Board of Trade send out annually a printed list of all the officers and council of the Maritime Board of Trade," on January 21st, notices were sent to all the Boards requesting them to furnish me with same. This took some time to accomplish, as the Boards hold their annual meetings at various dates.

On April 5, a large majority of the Board having replied, the list was printed, and on April 9, was mailed to all Boards.

Annual Meeting at Halifax.

The annual meeting at Halifax in August was the largest since the formation of the Board, 109 delegates being present. The subjects were ably discussed, and many of them have had the consideration of both the Federal and Provincial Governments.

A Board has been formed at Mahone Bay. It has not yet affiliated, but we hope during the coming year to have it on the list of affiliated Boards.

The Boards not yet affiliated have had as usual every attention, and have been invited to be represented at the annual meeting.

Correspondence With Boards.

This has had the best of attention during the year. Some of the secretaries have promptly responded to letters and notices. Many of them have been very slow, which has been the means of delaying the work and makes quite a rush as the annual meeting approaches. It is to be hoped, however, the secretaries will take notice and be more prompt the coming year.

On August 5th, railway arrangements for delegates, place and date of meeting, were mailed to all Boards. On August 11th, the subjects for discussion were also mailed.

Obituary.

It is with feelings of deep sorrow I refer to the death of M. G. DeWolfe, Esq., our late esteemed auditor, whose absence we are called upon to mourn. From the inception of this Board, he took a deep interest in its advancement, attended every annual meeting and was once one of its presidents. He was an indefatigable worker, thorough in every particular, well informed in business subjects and an agreeable companion.

In conclusion, during the past year everything requisite for the improvement and enlargement of this Board has been done by me, at the same time doing all possible to assist your worthy president, in which I have had the valuable assistance of L. B. Miller, Esq., corresponding-secretary, of Charlottetown, P. E. I.

Accounts for the Year.

The accounts for the year are all prepared, and as several Boards will pay their per capita tax before the close of this day's meeting, they will be presented to-morrow for your approval and audit.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

CHARLES M. CREED.
Secretary-Treasurer.

Charlottetown, P.E.I. August 18th, 1909.

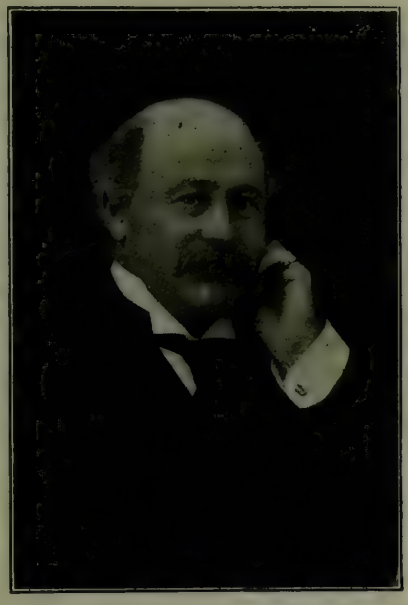
Regrets of Absent Ones.

Letters of regret at inattendance were read by the secretary from many prominent politicians and others all over the Dominion, including Boards of Trade, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Portland, Me., Quebec City, Hamilton, and others, also from the Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Premiers Hazen of New Brunswick. Murray of Nova Scotia, F. P. Brady of the I.C.R. Board; D. Pottinger, Robert Reford; Editor of Toronto Globe, and John Bayne MacLean, President of MacLean Pub. Co., Ltd.

The question of an auditor being appointed pro. tem. was then suggested and Mr. Saunders, secretary of Halifax City Board of Trade was chosen unanimously.

While waiting for the committee on procedure, Vice-President Snowball read some interesting letters from absent members.

Georgian Bay Canal.



The following letter of A. J. Forward, secretary Canadian Federation of Boards of Trade and Municipalities, Ottawa, explains itself:

President, Board of Trade,
Chatham, N.B.;

Dear Sir,—Recently, under instruction of the council of this Federation, I had the honor of transmitting letters asking the co-operation of your Board in securing the early commencement of the Georgian Bay canal. Since then a very important and exhaustive report of the surveys lately made by the Dominion Government has been issued, and entirely confirms the claims that have been put forward by the advocates of this great national work. Seeing that the deep waterway of the Great Lakes is of such vital importance to the Maritime Provinces, as well as to Ontario and Quebec, we trust that the matter will have your prompt consideration. and that your Board, if they have not already done so, will adopt a resolution affirming at least the general principle of the desirability of early commencement of the work.

Would you greatly oblige the officers and members of this federation by letting us know at an early date the nature of the action taken by your Board?

NEW PRESIDENT OF THE MARITIME BOARD OF TRADE

W. B. Snowball, president elect of the Maritime Board of Trade, is a man of considerable prominence in his own town. He was born January 12th, 1866; he was educated at Chatham, N.B., Grammar School, from which he graduated. Afterwards he attended in the years 1880, 1881, 1882, Upper Canada College, Toronto. He went into the lumber business with his father, on leaving college, and has been in the business ever since. In 1899 the company was incorporated as a joint stock company, as J. B. Snowball Co., Ltd., at which time he became the secretary-treasurer. On the death of his father in 1906, he became president of the company.

Mr. Snowball was an alderman for Chatham during the years 1898 and 1899, mayor for the two terms of 1901 and 1902, and again went back into the council as an alderman for the years 1903, 1904, 1905 and 1907, and did not after that offer for re-election.

He has been president for three terms of the Chatham Board of Trade and a Director of the Miramichi Steam Navigation Company, of the South West Boom Company, The North West Boom Company, and chairman of the School Board of Chatham. During the year 1908 he was president of the Canadian Forestry Association.

We would earnestly bespeak also your advocacy and support of the canal at the meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade next month.

Yours sincerely,
ARTHUR J. FORWARD,
Secretary.

Ottawa, July 20, '09.

Prof. Andrews, of Mount Allison College, Sackville, N. B., wrote:

Mr. W. Snowball,
Vice-President of Maritime Board of Trade.
Charlottetown, P. E. I.

My Dear Sir:—Your committee on the study of the effect of the traffic in intoxicating liquor on the commercial interests of the Maritime Provinces, beg leave to state that from some Boards very carefully prepared reports have been sent in. We have had no reports from Halifax and St. John, and as these are centres of the brewing business. we cannot make a fair report till these are received.

In Prince Edward Island, a very notable set of facts are coming to light, but as the farmers of the island have been favored with several very abundant harvests and there was more or less of Scott Act legislation before the Prohibition Act was passed, we shall have to wait longer before it can be shown what economic effect may fairly be credited to the prohibition legislation. All we can say at present is—no serious harm has resulted.

Your committee therefore ask to be reappointed and that this important matter be commended to the interest and cooperation of the various Boards.

Yours very truly,
W. W. ANDREWS,
Chairman.

This report was adopted on motion of A. M. Bell, seconded by Mr. Johnson, further adding that the committee be continued.

Plea For United Effort.

Mr Snowball then read the address of Hon. Mr. Hughes, the president.

Gentlemen of the Maritime Board of Trade:

It gives me great pleasure in extending to you a hearty welcome to our City and Province, to thank you sincerely for the honor conferred upon me and upon our Province in electing me to be president of the Maritime Board of Trade.

If we have a magnificent Western Canada, richly endowed by nature and destined to be in the front rank of the world's great producers, we also have a beautiful and fertile Eastern Canada, full of great possibilities, and in every way a worthy part of our vast Dominion, of which we are so proud.

This "Garden of the Gulf" of ours is agricultural in the truest sense of the word, and although we have no extensive timber limits or forest areas, still we fully appreciate the necessity of carefully and intelligently looking after our trees and of joining with the neighboring Provinces in devising ways and means for their preservation and the destruction of the country's great enemy—forest fires.

The fisheries of the Maritime Provinces have always been, and always will be, one of our greatest sources of profit, and we must put forth every effort to see that they are properly protected, and our interests and rights carefully guarded. The matter of the appointment of a Canadian Atlantic Fishery Board, which came before us two years ago and again last year at our meeting in Halifax, was brought before the members of our Local Parliament during its recent session and culminated in a resolution that the House suggests the appointment of a non-partisan Fisheries Board, composed of a fair representation from this Province, for the regulation and control of the Canadian Atlantic fisheries, and that steps be taken to have this important matter acted upon at the present session of the Dominion Parliament.

The latest agricultural reports tell us that Prince Edward Island produces more to the acre than any other Province of Canada, and our "million acre farm" is now being worked intelligently, so as to produce the best results. The Dominion Government is establishing an Experimental Farm in our midst, and the farmer is being educated and brought to the front to-day as never before. But we want help—men and women, to help us turn our fertility into cash. Immigrants with small capital will find cultivated lands with comfortable homes here, ready waiting for them. The Dominion Government is helping us along this line through their agents in the Old Country, but we need more assistance. Then, too, we in these Atlantic Provinces must do everything in our power to encourage the visit of the tourist. Our summer season is short, but unsurpassed while it lasts, and if the advantages of the Maritime Provinces as a summer resort were properly understood and fully illustrated in the larger cities, our tourist traffic would grow to be one of our greatest assets, and our natural beauty and ideal climate afford recreation and enjoyment to many.

But if we are to increase our productiveness, if we are to encourage immigration and tourist travel, we must look carefully to our transportation facilities, our freight and passenger accommodation and assure to our producers and business men freedom of access to the great markets of the world. How can we expect the farmer, the merchant, or the man of business, in any and all of its branches, to push forward, keeping abreast of the times, only to find his profits eaten up by excessive freight rates and inadequate transportation facilities. We must insist upon this handicap being removed and upon being placed upon an equal footing with the larger Provinces of Canada, and also upon just compensation for our share of the great public works now being constructed throughout Western Canada.

Wants Maritime Union.

We in the Maritime Provinces have united to guard our business interests and the Maritime Board of Trade has an ever-growing influence that no individual Board can ever attain. Let us have Maritime Union in pressing our claims against the Dominion Government, and work together for our mutual betterment. Our voice in the Dominion Parliament has been weakened, but that is no reason why it should remain weak. Let us stand as a man for our just rights. The advancement of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia means the advancement of Prince Edward Island, and the prosperity and progress of Prince Edward Island, small as she is, cannot help but have its effect upon her sister Provinces by the sea. "United, we stand; divided, we fall," Therefore, we must have the tunnel as a link in the chain to bind us together.

We have with us, I have no doubt, representatives of almost every branch of business and professional life, coming from different parts of the Provinces who are well able from personal experience to comprehensively discuss and deal with the different questions which will be brought before us.

GEORGE E. HUGHES,
President.

D. A. Morrison, of Amherst, moved the adoption of the address of the president and expressed regret at his absence.

Senator Ross seconded it and expressed regret that the value of our fisheries had not a place on the list of subjects. He felt that a Fishery Board, such as existed in Scotland, would be a blessing to the Provinces. This should be on the list of subjects.

D. F. McLean, Port Hood, explained that the reason of the fisheries not being on the list was because the Government had made enquiries and the report had not been brought in.

Mr. Snowball took advantage of the time to express on behalf of the Board regret at the coal strike of Glace Bay and Springhill. He thought that the Board should go on record in this question of the strikes. Mr. Bentley, of Truro, made a motion to that effect.

W. H. Edgett approved of Mr. Snowball's suggestion and seconded Mr. Bentley's resolution.

The subject was added by the Agenda Committee.

Mr. Bell, as chairman of the Agenda Committee, reported on a revised list of subjects. The committee included A. M. Bell, James Paton, W. F. Tidmarsh and R. Oak.

Coal Strike Alarming.

A. M. Bell then took up the question of strikes and how they are affecting industrial conditions in the Provinces. He submitted a resolution as follows:—

"That this gathering views with much concern and alarm the difficulties facing industrial enterprise in Canada as illustrated in the present condition of affairs in connection with the coal mining industry in these Maritime Provinces.

"They regret that in cases of disputes between labor and capital it is possible for either party to ignore the finding of a Board of Conciliation, and by strike or lockout to injure the business interests of a much larger constituency than is represented by the parties engaged in the dispute.

"In view of the present deplorable state of affairs in Cape Breton, at Springhill and in other parts of the Dominion, they call upon the Government to so amend the present law that all parties to an industrial dispute shall be bound by the decision of a regularly appointed Board of Arbitration and to provide adequate penalties for any violation of such verdict. They would further urge that the Government take such steps as may be necessary to protect Canada from the domination of alien organizations of either capital or labor."

Senator Ross spoke on this subject. He believed the Glace Bay strike would soon be over. He deplored especially the Springhill strike. He spoke of an interview he had with Premier Murray, of Nova Scotia, in connection with getting some legislation so that agitators of labor strikes should be punished. He hoped legislation would come up at the next session of the House.

Mr. Snowball read the resolution as presented by Mr. Bell.

Mr. McLean concurred in the resolution. Canada should either protect her own industries and labor unions, which had their uses, or hand everything over to the United States.

Mr. Oak, of Chatham, spoke on the subject of alien organization,—especially he said, as he had been reared in the United States. A large percentage of the members of United Mine Workers were Hungarians and Poles, and the United States would welcome a cure for these agitations as well as the Provinces. This U.M.W. organization has no treasury under the control of the law of any country, and it is well to get at the exact basis of the wrong and a substantial remedy established.

Mr. Williams, of Moncton, said that Mr. Oak touched a vital point. Strike organizations should be compelled to have a treasury attachable by law, for wrongs done or caused by them. In Moncton, a railway centre, the alien idea would be a delicate matter. A law compelling incorporation would be the desired cure.

Mr. Hawke, Moncton, opposed the last clause referring to alien labor. Labor knew no bounds, and it would be unfair to ask the Government to include that clause in a resolution which would place thousands of citizens in a delicate position. The foreign instigators would be powerless unless all the Canadian mine workers were members of the union. He praised many of the labor organizers who deprecated the strikes. He urged that the final clause referring to alienists should be erased.

The clause was read and Mr. Snowball explained that the clause referred to the domination of labor organization here by aliens.

Mr. Johnson, of Halifax, thought the clause should stay right there. To cripple a nation's industries was to cripple the country. No one could tell what might underlie this effort in the strikes which he thought was to cripple Canada. Foreign agitators should be treated with stringent measures. He thought it was a sad thing that the coal workers of Nova Scotia were so disloyal that they would not suffer a little before striking.

Mr. Snowball then vacated the chair, calling upon Mr. Paton to preside, and took a hand in the debate, as a delegate from Chatham, N.B. He could see danger in an organization waged by a larger and stronger body located in the United States. Canadian employers should insist on it, that their employes should be purely Canadian and should be so controlled by the Government that they would be under the direction of a Conciliatory Board. In Chatham they had no labor organizations. He agreed with Mr. Oak that the incorporation was the vital point. Mr. Snowball was heartily applauded.

He put the resolution, which was carried, with Mr. Hawke, of Moncton, the only "Nay."

Different Names Wanted.

Mr. McKinley, Bridgewater, moved and Mr. Anderson seconded the following resolution, which was carried:

Whereas, the practice of duplicating names of towns throughout the Dominion is very great, for example, in Nova Scotia there are three Brookfields, three Caledonias, two Miltons and numerous other duplications, and

Whereas, this state of affairs is of no end of trouble and inconveniences to merchants, post office officials and others, causing delay in the delivery of letters, billing of goods, etc., be it therefore

Resolved, that the Dominion Government be memorialized by the Maritime Board of Trade to exact such legislation as to reform the present situation by allowing only one name to appear in any one Province and to also prevent further duplicating in any one Province.

W. F. Tidmarsh, of Charlottetown, also spoke on the question and D. A. Morrison, of Amherst, said it was a subject of great interest to every Province.

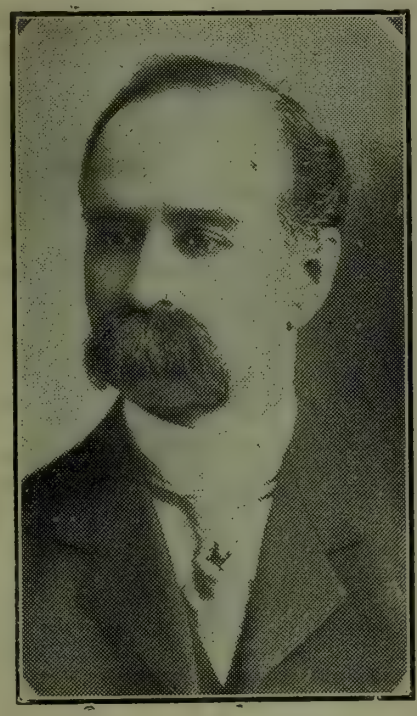
A. M. Bell referred to the matter, explaining some of the difficulties in town-naming which he had experienced. He thought the resolution would lead to conflict between local government and the post office department at Ottawa.

Mr. Tidmarsh said he believed that no government would change a name of a place unless the local people wished the change.

Senator Ross agreed, pointing out how last session it was proven by an attempt being made to change the name of Sydney Mines. The municipal government opposed it and so no change was effected.

Not Enough Railway Lines.

Mr. Johnson, of Halifax, spoke to the resolution re the acquiring of branch lines by the I. C. R. He took up the question of Halifax and Nova Scotia being connected with the outside world by only one railway, the I. C. R. He considered that road a millstone around the commercial neck of Nova Scotia. New Brunswick was blessed with other railways. They seemed to want to keep the millstone around Nova Scotia. He thought this was based on political reasons. The I.C.R. should own all the branch lines and make one grand system. At present the system of running the branch lines was very poor. He made the following resolution:—



"Whereas, there are a number of railroads connecting with the Intercolonial, giving as a rule an inferior service, on which a large amount of traffic originates, but in many instances not through routes over the Intercolonial and

"Whereas, the management of the said roads may be so influenced as to sell tickets via other lines, and

"Whereas, the business originating on branch lines of the country through which the Intercolonial passes is handicapped not only by having to pay two freights but from the fact that the Intercolonial being owned by the Government prevents other companies building roads to compete with it, and

"Whereas, the prosperity of any country depends in a large measure on its facilities for transportation;

"Therefore resolved, that this Maritime Board of Trade memorialize the Dominion Government to acquire such roads as may be feeders to the Intercolonial and that they use every endeavor not only to encourage existing industries but to promote new ones in a country which, from a railroad standpoint, they control.

Hon. GEO. E. HUGHES,

Of Charlottetown, P.E.I. the Retiring President of the Maritime Board.

The motion was seconded by D. F. McLean, of Port Hood, N.S.

Senator Ross did not believe that the Government would care to buy other railways. The present idea was to try to straighten the I.C.R. lines and to reduce the high grades, etc. The G.T.P. would come to Moncton and the railway facilities would be quite adequate.

A. Jno. McFadyen, of Alberton, P.E.I., said that the rates in P. E. I. were the highest known. A barrel of apples, for instance, from Annapolis, cost them ninety-five cents to get it. He believed the ownership of all the branches would benefit the Island

Mr. Hawke, of Moncton, thought Mr. Johnson's views were narrow. New Brunswick was quite as much interested in the resolution as Nova Scotia. He believed that Mr. Johnson was wrong in expressing such views as he had done. All the Provinces were interested in the I. C. R. absorbing all the branch lines. He named all the branches in New Brunswick which he believed had much more mileage than those in Nova Scotia. He believed through the efforts of Hon. H. R. Emmerson, the assent of the Government had been given to this purchasing of these branch lines. This resolution was on the right lines and would knock again at the doors of Parliament

The resolution was carried unanimously.

Want Ferry The Year Round.

After luncheon, promptly at 2 o'clock the Board sat again, passing the following resolution in connection with the subject of purchasing branch lines by the I.C.R.:

Moved by J. A. Johnson and seconded by Senator Ross and carried, that:

The Intercolonial for many years has had a deficit. The Government has appointed a Board of Managers to remedy this condition, and they are now endeavoring to cut down the usual deficit.

The Board of Managers should be reminded of the following, viz.:

The Intercolonial consists of two parts, the main line and the Prince Edward Island railroad.

The Government has erected expensive piers and warehouses at Point du Chene, Pictou, and other necessary points. They carry large numbers of passengers and assemble large quantities of freight at these terminal points, and hand them over to a private company to transfer over a few miles of water and then take charge of said traffic again much of which is shipped over their Prince Edward Island line. The Government also gives a subsidy to this line of $12,500 for carrying the mails.

As soon as the frosts of winter inconvenience this private line the government put on their expensive ice breakers, to carry on the business of their road.

The Government run their own ferry across the Strait of Canso the year round.

If the Government ran their own ferry across the Northumberland strait the year round it would help the farmers of Prince Edward Island and business generally, and a large amount of money would thus be saved.

Therefore on account of the above facts and many others which could be mentioned, the Maritime Board of Trade, memorialize the Dominion Government to run their own ferry across the Northumberland Straits the whole year instead of the winter months as at present.

To Encourage Exhibits.

A. M. Bell then dealt with the matter of exhibits of agricultural implements at Provincial exhibitions by the manufacturers or agents. He dwelt upon the importance of exhibiting agricultural implements, especially complimenting such large manufacturers of implements as Massey-Harris and others. Just how the Government could help in the matter would be worth considering. He found that some agricultural manufacturers had combined to stop exhibiting their products at exhibitions. Exhibitions he thought would cease to be if this sort of thing were allowed to continue.

Mr. Anderson seconded the following resolution, which carried:

"Whereas, the Federal Government and the Governments of the various Provinces have established a system of annual exhibitions to which they contribute liberally because of the educational value to the country;

"Whereas, the agricultural interests of the country are of the highest importance and it is desirable that the farmers of the Maritime Provinces should be able to benefit to the greatest possible extent by this system of education;

"Whereas, this annual meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade learns with much regret that some of the manufacturers in Canada have entered into an agreement not to exhibit their products at these exhibitions, thus depriving purchasers of the opportunity of learning of the latest improvements and setting themselves in opposition to the policy of the country;

"Therefore, be it resolved that this Board bring this matter to the attention of the Dominion Government and of the three Maritime Provinces, and ask that they take such steps as may be necessary to ensure to agriculturists and all others interested the benefit of the object lesson intended by such exhibitions and that a copy of this be sent to all manufacturers of implements."

Mr. Johnson suggested that a copy of the resolution should be sent to all the manufacturers of agricultural implements.

Senator Ross referred to the apathy of many people regarding these exhibitions.

D. A. Morrison felt that the resolution might have its merit, yet where were they going to end in making request to the Government? It seemed unfair to force manufacturers to do anything. He could not vote for the resolution.

J. A. Johnson spoke re the horse-racing side of exhibitions. The big pumpkins, the minerals and art gallery, had their devotees, but it was the mission of exhibitions to please as many people as possible. He believed manufacturers who were supported by tariff as the agricultural implements were, they should be brought to task when they "bucked up" against public opinion.

The resolution was adopted with a few dissenting voices.

Continuous Communication.

Fred. W. Hynman, a Charlottetown engineer, introduced a resolution as follows:

"Whereas, the terms of union made and entered into between Canada and the Province of Prince Edward Island in the year 1873, provided for continuous steam communication winter and summer, between the said Province and the mainland, and whereas the routes hitherto in use by the winter steamers have failed to fulfil that condition—resulting in serious loss and inconvenience to the people of the Province, and considerable loss to the Dominion by way of compensation for said non-fulfilment of the Terms of Union.

"This Board of Trade of the Maritime Provinces desires to express its opinion that in justice to the Province, as well as to the whole Dominion, an attempt should now be made by the new winter steamer "Earl Grey" to solve the question of continuous winter steam communication, and recommend to that end that a complete survey of the approaches and possible pier sites in the Bay of Tatamagouche be made by the Dominion Government without delay; and that if found feasible and practicable that route should be adopted hereafter, being considerably shorter in distance, and very much less liable to be packed with Gulf ice than in Pictou Harbor, as found by actual and long experience of over thirty-six years.

Mr. Hynman had some maps of the Island and surrounding points and pointed out how the Tatamagouche route could be made practicable and with some effort the new ice-breaker, "Earl Grey" could keep the communication open easily at all times during the winter. There was a direct line at Tatamagouche and only a half knot current, while at Cape Tormentine and Traverse there was a three knot current. The line from Charlottetown to Tatamagouche would be available in an hour and a half and mostly harbor ice which could be broken.

Mr. Tidmarsh seconded the motion. He said he put a great deal of faith in Mr. Hynman's judgment. Natural conditions all pointed out that Pictou pocketed all the ice from the gulf. The prevailing winds drove the ice on from the gulf. He favored the Tatamagouche route, and thought it was feasible in every way. He asked Mr. Warburton, member for Charlottetown in the Federal House, to speak. He said he brought up this matter in the House, last session. He dealt with all that Mr. Hynman had said, and supplemented what he had observed by dwelling on the various perils of ice during the winter, and the advantages as to suitability of the Tatamagouche route. He praised Georgetown as a harbor. There was, however, no corresponding harbor on the other shore. He had been on steamers caught in the ice so often that he was able to talk. He mentioned the experience of ice-breakers in different places in the world. He quoted Hansard on this subject and read various reports of engineers made to the Government. The ice at Pictou was just like the Baltic sea, running in places from land to land. Powerful vessels had broken ice fourteen feet thick when there was open water, in which to dispose of broken pieces. At Pictou the ice was a solid wall. He believed inside Cape John would be an ideal place for a pier. He had visited the Bay recently and believed Cape John would be the best place.

The steamer itself would cost six hundred thousand dollars and a good terminal accommodation would be necessary. He believed they were entitled to this expenditure provided it gave the much coveted continuous communication. Ice never rested on the harbor of Charlottetown. This was because of the swift currents in and out twice a day. St. Peter's Island was on one side, and Governor's Island on the other of the harbor. What would be needed would be a new lighthouse on one of these points with a steam whistle; also the pier and railway on the other side at Cape John. The pier should be six hundred yards in length.

There was a triple advantage in having complete Government control of this route, and the best possible advantages would be available.

He referred to the supervision of the Department of Marine and Fisheries and the control of the post office department. He had nothing against the tunnel but he had reasons for not dropping it as well as for not bringing it forward. The survey alone would cost $150,000 and he thought it best not to have harped too much on the tunnel last session. (Applause.)

Strong Advocate For a Tunnel.

Mr. Macdonald, of Georgetown, expressed surprise at some of the remarks regarding the winter navigation. It would be a hundred years before they would get a tunnel if they went on trying to solve the problem by ice-breakers. This agitation would never help the tunnel. Extraordinary storms arose that would hinder all steamship operation. A succession of mild winters had led to most of the talk. He was inclined to be sectional, but he would favor the Pictou and Georgetown as against Charlottetown men, who too, wanted everything at their very doors. He referred to the statement that ice pocketed in Pictou. In winter the wind was westerly and it made Pictou and Georgetown open harbor. He was strongly in favor of the tunnel and the people of the Island should set aside everything else and stick out for the tunnel as it was the only thing that would ever fill the bill. (Applause.)

Senator Ross said the tunnel was out of the question, and the generation would never see it. An expenditure of twenty millions would not be made while any of this generation lived. He believed in something praticable and the ice-breaking idea seemed to him sensible. Better to deal with something they could get, as the tunnel was only foolish nonsense.

James Paton told of his experiences by being stuck in ice. He said it was not a question of cost. In the western points millions were being spent. The eastern people should stand on their dignity and demand what had been solemnly promised.

John B. Macdonald, of Pictou, characterized many of the remarks regarding Pictou, as merely hearsay. Seamen who were on these winter boats had told him these much vaunted routes were impossible. He was broad enough to say nothing against the trying out of a possible route to Charlottetown.

The resolution as follows was adopted:

Telephone Rates Excessive.

A resolution regarding excessive telephone rates was brought in by J. B. Macdonald, on behalf of the Pictou Board.

"Resolved, that in the opinion of this Maritime Board of Trade the telephone rates in the Provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island are unreasonably high, and that in some sections it is believed that discrimination in rates exists; and that the secretary or executive of this Board be requested to ask that the Public Utilities Commission give early and exhaustive enquiry into the whole matter of telephone extensions and tolls in so far as the Maritime Provinces are concerned."

Mr. Johnson told of his experience in Halifax where similar difficulties in telephone charges had been encountered. He pointed out that the Government was now considering some redress with the companies. He believed passing the resolution would strengthen the hands of the Government.

Mr. Edgett, of Moncton, in seconding the resolution, mentioned similar troubles all over the Provinces.

Mr. Macdonald agreed to make it general. It was adopted.

Ice-Breakers for Winter.

A. Jno. McFayden, of Alberton, P.E.I. dealt with the question of ice-breakers for winter service and brought in a resolution.

Two boats were necessary for ice-breaking. Now a new route was suggested, while on the other hand there were reports that one of the ice-breaking steamers was to be withdrawn. He praised the local steamship service, but it was inadequate to carry produce quickly enough in the fall. There was great loss in the products which it was impossible to ship early.

He believed the Summerside winter service had been fairly successful and he did not see why more ice-breakers were not provided. He made a strong plea for at least two or three ice-breakers.

The tunnel was the only question upon which all could agree and he favored it above all others.

He believed they would get the tunnel and it would be found that the Government would find it to their profit to build this tunnel. Senator Ross had said that the Fathers of Confederation did not know what they were talking about.

CHAS. M. CREED,

Of Halifax, The Wide-Awake Permanent Secretary of The Board.

These men were all clever and he believed that when at a time when airships were a poet's dream, and ice-breakers were not heard of, the men who promised communication continuously did so because they believed a tunnel would be the only solution.

J. A. Johnson, of Halifax, seconded the resolution and spoke in favor of a tunnel. He said if he were a native of the Island, he would never let up until it were accomplished. Just think of the fine tunnels that were built in all parts of the world. Those who claimed the tunnel would never be built were living in the past. It was only nine miles to New Brunswick and a tunnel was quite a probability. A resolution was passed as follows:

"Whereas, the construction of a third steamer for the winter service in the straits of Northumberland was the result of long and energetic agitation for improvement in that service, wherein it was shown that two boats were absolutely necessary on the eastern route, and one on the western to do experimental and testing of new routes.

"Resolved, that the Dominion Government be requested to leave the three ice-breakers in comission in the above service until the several routes are thoroughly tested."

A Resolution Lost.

Mr. McFayden also brought on a resolution as follows, which was lost by a small vote:

"Whereas, the passing of vessels through the Intercolonial Railway bridge at Grand Narrows, Cape Breton, entails great risk, a number of disasters having already resulted;

"Resolved, that the Dominion Government be requested to provide such aid as will enable vessels to pass in safety."

Steamship Subsidies.

Mr. Tidmarsh brought up a resolution regarding new steamship subsidies as follows:

"Resolved, that the subsidy now granted to the Black Diamond Line be withdrawn therefrom and that the same be applied, together with such additional sum as may be necessary, to subsidize a steamer to ply between Chatham, New Brunswick; Summerside and Charlottetown, P.E.I.; Sydney, C. B. and Port au Basque, Newfoundland, and to increase the subsidy paid to the S.S. "Lady Sybil" for the service between Pictou, Souris and Magdalen Islands, so as to enable Charlottetown to be included as a port of call."

He made an able speech in defence of the motion. It was seconded by Donald Nicholson and carried.

For Harbor Improvement.

The Port Hood Board voiced by D. F. McLean brought up the question of harbor improvement. He moved the following resolution, seconded by Senator Ross:

"Resolution of the Maritime Board of Trade re closing of Northern entrance of Port Hood Harbor:

"Whereas, the Maritime Board of Trade now in annual session at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, have had under consideration a resolution of the Port Hood Board of Trade respecting the closing of the northern entrance of Port Hood harbor in the Province of Nova Scotia and a resolution of the Council of the Halifax Board of Trade endorsing the first named resolution, copies of which resolutions are herewith annexed.

"Therefore resolved that this Board concur in the resolutions named herein and view of the national character of the undertaking urge upon the Federal Government the desirability of completing the work with the utmost despatch and respectfully recommend that the remainder thereof be placed under contract in order to ensure its completion within a specified time.

The resolutions referred to in the body of the motion were passed by the Port Hood Board asking the Government to restore the harbor.

Want Reduction of Rates.

Mr. McLean also dealt with the transportation over the Inverness Railway and said a general reduction in rates was most desirable.

He suggested that the matter should be submitted to the Governor-in-Council of the Province of Nova Scotia and to have these lines adopt uniform freight rates as were in vogue elsewhere.

The president thought the subject local and could be dealt with by the Railway Commission.

Mr. McLean said he had tried that, but wished to submit this resolution which he thought would help. It was seconded by D. A. Morrison and adopted as follows:

"Resolved, that whereas the freight rates over the branch lines of the Intercolonial Railway have not been adjusted by the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada. And whereas the local rate added to freights over the I.C.R. makes cost of transportation excessive. Such local freight rates being out of all proportion as compared with charges for carriage elsewhere, so far as through rates are concerned. And whereas it is desirable that a through freight classification over said branch lines of railways be adopted by which a proportionate reduction of the cost of transportation in such cases be borne by said branch railways. Therefore resolved that the Maritime Board of Trade now in annual session urge upon the Board of Railway Commissioners aforesaid to take such steps as will lead to a readjustment of the freight tariff in this connection.

"Resolved, that certified copies of the resolution passed respecting the closing of the northern entrance to Port Hood harbor be sent by the secretary to Hon. Dr. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works, to Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, and to Dr. A. W. Chisholm, M.P. for Inverness at Margaree, C.B.

"Resolved, that a certified copy of the resolution respecting local freight rates on branch lines of the Intercolonial Railway be sent to the chairman of the Board of Railway Commissioners, Ottawa."

It was decided to revise the resolution and bring it on more generally.

Biggest of all Subjects.

Mr. Edgett then brought up on behalf of Moncton Board the subject of Maritime Union. He read his remarks and mentioned the reason that the subject was so large that he did not wish to wander. He cited many occasions where union had been advocated and supported strongly Maritime Union. He went into the resources of the Provinces, the extensive territory and the population. The population of 900,000 was not as great as it ought to be and as it would have been had young people not departed to various parts, including the west now, and formerly to the United States. He spoke of the decreasing representation in the Federal House. What would help the situation ,would be united effort in developing natural resources. The people of the respective Provinces were similar in origin, habit and education. They should be united.

He claimed that the Eastern Provinces were neglected by the Government at Ottawa. Political union would be a great promoter of dignity and strength. He thought the difficulties of union were not unsurmountable.

He introduced the following:

"Resolved, that the present time is opportune for the union of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island into one Province." This was seconded by D. A. Morrison.

The Pulp-Wood Problem.

The evening session was opened by A. M. Bell, proposing a reaffirmation of the resolution re the prohibition of exporting pulp-wood to United States. It was seconded by Mr. Ferguson and adopted.

Mr. Oak, of Chatham, was called upon by the president. He gave a very interesting and detailed description of how pulp was made, and ultimately how paper itself was produced. He pointed out that the great commercial product to-day was news paper, or as paper makers called it, just "news." He told the capacity of various paper mills and what machinery was necessary for manufacturing paper. He stated that he was connected with the International Paper Co. of United States and Canada. He wished to discuss the question as a native of New Brunswick, where his money and interests were involved. He mentioned that it was only about twenty years since pulp became so necessary. It was a simple wasp's nest that originated the idea that paper could be made from wood.

The art of making paper had so developed, and the demand had so increased that mills were constantly changing.

He gave an interesting resume of the history of paper making. He contrasted the work of the saw mill man and the pulp-maker.

Mr. Oak was heard with great interest and he showed a mastery of pulp-wood growing and cutting that was most inspiring to the delegates.

He showed a small strip of material which resembled silk, and he passed it around for the instruction of the audience. He said that every fibre of it was made from spruce. He went on to say that he had seen some of the finest tapestries he ever looked upon, made from spruce pulp. He admitted that in the States they had not enough spruce or other wood to keep their mills going. Therefore they had to come to Canada or other foreign countries in order to get pulp-wood. Almost any wood could be used to-day. He named over all the different woods, including bamboo, corn stalks, sugar cane, cotton stalk, etc. He felt that resolutions like the one reaffirmed would do more injury to the Province of New Brunswick or any other Province, than it would do good.

The coercion of American capital to Canada for pulp wood as he assumed the resolution meant, would only lead to retaliation on some vital material. He cited the new American tariff and warned the Board against injudicious motions. He pointed out that power for pulp mills was rare,—that water power was rarely strong enough to produce a thirty-six hundred horse power force which was the only strength that would run two grinders for grinding of wood.

About three million tons of paper of all kinds was produced yearly

To use flax there was a difficulty in eliminating the seed. Flax, if the elimination idea could be developed, could be used to make paper to a very large amount.

Forest products in the States were being wasted yearly to the amount equivalent to two million tons of paper.

The reason that bamboo, corn-stalk, sugar-cane, etc., were not used was because of the extra cost. The best pulp-wood must float. Hardwoods were difficult to mix with soft woods, but they always cost more. His mill was making about three million tons of paper. The theory now was to make the paper thinner and better. He believed it was better to make it thicker and cheaper as publishers liked it better.

He again warned them against encouraging rabid legislation, because it was sure to cause the American paper-makers to use other materials than New Brunswick pulp wood. Great applause greeted Mr. Oak.

From a Lumberman's Standpoint.

Mr. Snowball, who is a lumberman, again vacated the chair and again called upon Mr. Paton to preside.

He complimented Mr. Oak upon his eloquence and plausible argument. He could not help but think that he had defended his wish so well that it led to the thought that there was something glossed over that should be said in favor of the resolution.

He showed how much the big pulp mills and rossing mills were doing in Chatham. He admitted that there was a good deal in what he said in that millmen should be compelled to give more attention to their work. He believed the lumberman was paying more attention to his work from the standpoint of getting more out of logs. He described how their own mills saved a great deal more to-day on their sawing than formerly.

The International Paper Co. had about 30,000 miles of land. It seemed obvious to him that any company with such vast interests would be willing to come to their own rescue by making paper in Canada, provided the legislation regarding the export of pulp was made sufficiently drastic.

He believed that in the Province of Quebec there were good water powers and plenty of wood. We, therefore, in Canada should have all the industries we could possibly get. Unless legislation was enacted, we would never get the proper industries. Workmen would come where they could get yearly regular employment. The industries of the Province were wrapped up in iron, coal and wood and in a few years the Provinces would cease to be, if the natural resources were frittered away by big companies of United States and other countries.

In Gloucester County he believed they could have iron manufactories that would be important and useful. We should encourage all our young men to remain at home and manufacture for the needs of the people. The Maritime Provinces should take advantage of the new G.T.P. and start factories all along the line and supply the wants of the new peoples of the Northwest.

Referring to the paper question, he said we ought not to be afraid of threats to double tariff or any retaliatory measure. We should be able to make them and their industries Canadian, instead of them making us and our products, American. (Great applause.)

Mr. Oak replied briefly stating that from seventy to eighty million feet of lumber came from Maine to St. John, N.B., where it was manufactured and sent back free of duty.

Now in the case of the International Paper Co., they make large portions of their goods in Canada; the other portions were made in the States. When the tide turns a little why should exactions be placed upon them for the balance of a period of their lease, nine years as the resolution suggests. He pleaded for no new action until their tweny-five year leases had expired.

Mr. Johnson told of how the forests of Nova Scotia were being looked after. He would favor carrying out the resolution and the fact of the American threat would make him believe in giving them a taste of what we gave Germany. They were not nervous about any American capital being kept out of Canada. John Bull was still ready with plenty of money. Canada should look after her own interests.

Senator Ross said that the United States tariff showed they were extremely selfish. We were in the happy condition of not caring much about them. The Americans liked Canada partly because of the good laws as well as for the splendid chances.

Canada could live without them as well as they could live without us.

Government Fruit Farm.

A. S. Burgess submitted the following resolution which was seconded by Mr. Johnson and carried as follows:

"Whereas the Federal Government has approved the principle of establishing experimental fruit farm, and whereas it is in the interests of fruit-farming in the Maritime Provinces, therefore that such be established without delay. Resolved, that this Board press upon the Federal Government the importance of establishing such a farm as quickly as possible."

At Chatham, N.B., Next Year.

A resolution was then moved by D. F. McLean and seconded by Mr. Johnson that Chatham, N.B., be chosen as the next place of meeting. It was carried unanimously. Mr. Snowball thanked the Board on behalf of the Chatham Board of which he was the president. He promised a welcome in Chatham.

Maritime Union Debate Resumed.

The discussion upon Maritime Union was then taken up, the debate being led by Mr. Johnson, of Halifax. He pointed out that any man born and brought up in Nova Scotia, would be opposed to Maritime Union. Nova Scotia would have nothing to gain. She had more resources than the two other Provinces combined. She had made great strides. Her people were wealthy. They were getting more so all the time. In educational matters they had surpassed all other provinces and all modern advantages in technology, universities and agriculture were in vogue in Nova Scotia. Those who remembered Acadia would recall that New Brunswick was once included in Nova Scotia. Any Nova Scotian worthy of the name, would never dream of bartering away its name or its traditions.

D. F. McLEAN,

The Port Hood, N.S. Representative.

Nova Scotia was in his opinion the most intensely Canadian of all the Provinces. He believed when the nation became great the identity of the Provinces would be the strength of the whole country. This was one of the reasons why United States had succeeded as a nation.

He cited little Rhode Island as an example, where their representative swayed the United States Senate.

To combine the Provinces would weaken the whole.

All through history nations of any import had to have coast line. The Maritime Provinces were the best part of Canada. Halifax was the Imperial port of Canada. It was the only one open every day of the year. Where would Canada put her navy?

Not in St. John—too small—too much tide. Not at Quebec—because it was sealed up six months of the year.

Halifax was destined to be a great city. It would be the greatest port in Canada.

Talking of great men, Nova Scotia had produced them. Who was a greater man than Joe Howe? (Applause.) He foresaw the C.P.R. He was a prophet.

Sir Chas. Tupper was mentioned as another of the great men. Nova Scotians were all broad-minded and each individual was proud of the grandest Province in the Dominion. The only way amalgamation could be brought about would be by Nova Scotia absorbing the two other Provinces and retaining her name.

The Opposite Side.

Senator Ross spoke, differing with Mr. Johnson, using church unions as an illustration of strength. He thought committees should be appointed and these should work with their respective Provinces and report back. He favored Nova Scotia because she had representative government fifty years fully before the other Provinces. It would take years to accomplish the union and Nova Scotia was stronger than either of the other two.

D. A. Morrison referred to some remarks of Mr. Johnson. He felt that his references to St. John were not complimentary. He had lived for some years in Nova Scotia, but had been formerly in St. John. His loyalty was unquestioned. He believed no Province would object to the name mentioned—Acadia. As to our influence dwindling, he was sure that with the great west going ahead as it was, it was common sense to say that in a few years the Provinces united would not have three members in the Federal Cabinet.

In the Preliminary Stage.

Mr. Hawke pointed out that the question was as yet merely academic. The press of Ontario had frequently discussed Maritime union. There were many difficulties. He symphthized with some of these named by Mr. Johnson. Municipal conditions were all different in the east from those in the west, or at least in Ontario. He compared these two sections of the Dominion. He dealt with the financial side of the union. He believed there were no financial advantages. If the union had any merit it would be in its greater strength as compared with greater Canada. He was sure that if the provinces were united they would have great influence in the Dominion Parliament.

Nova Scotia should not under-estimate the lumber resources of New Brunswick. He referred to the immense iron ore resources. He had heard of some resources just discovered near Moncton in connection with natural gas, which would revolutionize all industries. Shale was discovered in New Brunswick. He compared the resources of Nova Scotia and those of New Brunswick.

He believed there was only one harbor in the world which surpassed that of Halifax, namely, that of Plymouth, England. If, however, Halifax had shown the pluck in expenditure that St. John had shown, she would be in a better position to-day. It was only union that would make them strong. The provinces, he believed, were coming into their own, and that new life was certainly beginning. They stood to profit more by the G.T.P. than even Ontario or western Quebec. (Applause.)

D. F. McLean spoke on the potentialities of the Provinces. It was all a question of "Would union pay?" A committee should be appointed to look into the matter. There was community of interest, and as to where the capital should be was not a part of this question. It should be discussed in its broadest sense.

Mr. Payzant, of Halifax, spoke in glowing terms of Nova Scotia. Yet he was broad enough to give credit to all others. It might be possible that benefit might be awaiting Nova Scotia if she joined with the other Provinces, just as there was benefit awaiting her when she joined Confederation. He would not vote against the resolution.

SECOND DAY SESSION.

Promptly at nine Thursday morning the convention resumed business. Before resuming the debate on Maritime Union, the president named the following committee to select officers for the ensuing year:—D. F. McLean, A. M. Bell, A. J. McFayden, W. F. Tidmarsh, J. Paton, A. Williams and J. L. Steward.

H. Logan, of Amherst, led the debate He did not like the idea of reflecting upon any of the other provinces by any one.

While sitting in parliament, he had seen the influence of the Maritime Provinces fading. He saw the Western Provinces dominating on representation. He contrasted the west with the east, and the peculiarities of each. There was no union of the members in the provinces. Their rooms are known in parliament as three distinct camps.

There was never any union on any subject. So much petty jealousy exists that the western people look upon the maritime differences as mostly petty port difficulties between St. John and Halifax.

He was not always in favor of Maritime Union, but he had become converted. He believed that Joseph Howe advocated union. He saw the petty jealousies that would arise. Forty-five years had passed since that big meeting was held in Charlottetown, when Joseph Howe spoke in favor of Maritime Union.

The provinces were now discussing the same thing.

Why should it be necessary to have three governments controlling the three small provinces? He felt union would mean larger men, larger issues, greater minds and an independent self reliance. He knew that great men had been sent to Ottawa from the east. These men held the key to the situation, which has now gone west. Union would give strength in the National Council. He did not believe union would reduce the cabinet representation.

The provinces need not worry over that anyway. Representatives would be strong anyway. He then read a few notes which he had prepared on the subject of union. It had been estimated that union would save at least one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. What would that amount mean in developing the various resources of the three provinces?

He believed New Brunswick would shortly run Nova Scotia a close race for supremacy in natural resources development. He felt that the provinces could stand with one Lieut-Governor. There were no differences of race or religion to any marked extent. Lawyers were not allowed to practise in one province who had graduated in another.

Doctors were similarly hampered. Union would bring about a common judiciary. Union would mean better credit in the money market. Public works would be undertaken that now could not be touched. Legislation would be better and everything would be better.

The people of Nova Scotia are about as familiar with members of Parliament in New Brunswick or the Island as they were with Manitoba or British Columbia members.

Interests of P. E. Island.

The feeling of unity and power would stimulate trade and prosperity.

He discussed the probabilities of a capital, but said that was not the question. Union was the dominant note. The Dominion was bound for instance to look after communication with the Island. Confederation must be rounded out. Prince Edward Island had been playing a lone hand. Only four members went to Ottawa. He believed Prince Edward could win her tunnel if Maritime Union were accomplished, when she would have the two big sister provinces at her back. (Applause.)

Maritime Union would be welcomed all over Canada. One of the first questions would be to have readjusted the subsidies to the provinces. Union would give occasion to make the demand that representation should never be decreased, no matter what the Dominion population might be. (Applause.)

Minor matters could be easily fixed. The local houses were over represented. The salaries now paid could be re-arranged and the objections submitted could be easily overcome.

He then referred to the great difficulties of confederation and felt that if our forefathers had overcome the mountains then surely our obstacles were merely mole-hills. We should not be prone to say, "It will never come." He believed it would come, and the east would stand out as an independent, relevant, powerful body. (Applause.)

The only single force that would bring him back to public life agair would be to work for this one ideal—the union of these three magnificient provinces. (Great applause.)

Senator Ross took the speaker to task for "sneezing" remarks made regarding the Legislative Council of Nova Scotia. He paid a great tribute to Joseph Howe.

He cited one of Joseph Howe's speeches, re the Legislative Council, which was opened by himself. Howe reformed matters by perpetuating the Legislative Council. He believed that the Province of Ontario admitted the mistake in abolishing the Legislative Council.

A. M. Bell referred to Newfoundland, and how that island failed to come into Confederation owing to a financial matter. He felt that the Maritimers should try to get Newfoundland to join with them in the union, and thus round out a perfect confederation.

Maritime Union Endorsed

Mr. Edgett's motion in favor of Maritime union was then put and carried by a fine majority. A resolution moved by Senator Ross, and seconded by Hance Logan, was carried as follows:—

"Wheras this Maritime Board of Trade has declared in favor of Maritime Union;

"Therefore, resolved, that the Government of each of these Provinces be requested to nominate a committee of three from P.E.I., five from New Brunswick and five from Nova Scotia, to consider the conditions on which said union could be consummated, and report to their respective Governments."

Mr. Wasburton announced that if any man seeking election were to go to his constituents on the platform of Maritime Union, he would not save his deposit He referred to the Island peculiarities, but would not oppose the resolutions.

He supported Mr. Bell's idea, re Newfoundland.

Mr. McFayden on behalf of the Island, said he would be inclined to vote for the resolution, re union.

J. Paton voted against the motion regarding union. Prince Edward Island was the richest Province in the Dominion in proportion to the population. There were ten millions of money in the banks. The people were the best. Their public men were all capable. The climate is unsurpassed. There were no people who got so little out of confederation as the Islanders. He believed they would be better off, if the Islanders had

Maritime Union: What its Effect Would be on Trade

Benefits That Should Accrue Were There a Common Parliament — Healthier Political Atmosphere Predicted and no Excessive Legislation—Would Forget Sectional Jealousies — Restoration of Confidence—Prince Edward Island's Relation to the Others—The Question of Terms.

By Reginald V. Harris.

During the last five years, the subject of the union of the three Maritime Provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, has been so frequently mentioned that it looks as if it had come to stay. Probably the beginning in recent years was the discussion of the matter by the Maritime Board of Trade at Charlottetown on August 20th, 1903, although no action was taken, and the subject was deferred for future consideration.

Probably the next discussion took place at Yarmouth in August, 1905, when the Maritime Board of Trade unanimously passed a resolution to the effect that the time had arrived for the union of the three provinces.

At the meeting of the board at Amherst in the following year the subject was again discussed and the resolution reaffirmed.

The question has been the subject of debate in the debating and literary societies of leading educational institutions of the province on at least two occasions in recent years, and prominent gentlemen from Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa, addressing the Canadian Clubs and educational societies in our principal towns, have repeatedly urged political union as an absolute necessity and their advocacy everywhere has met with general approval.

All these public references have resulted in journalistic comment, and, generally, in editorial commendation.

Probably the last public reference to the union was that of the Hon. J. Douglas Hazen, the Premier of New Brunswick. Speaking in August, 1908, at the ceremonies in connection with the celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of representative government in Nova Scotia, he said:

"In the march of progress, the Maritime Provinces must not stand still. Nearly a century and a quarter have passed since New Brunswick parted company from Nova Scotia and set up housekeeping for itself. It has advanced as Nova Scotia has, but would not the advance in both provinces be more rapid and the progress greater if, in the councils of the Dominion, the Lower Provinces could speak as one province and with one united voice? With the rapidly increasing population of the western provinces, the representations of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island in the Federal Parliament will be reduced to an extent that we cannot at present estimate and we will not be worthy of those who have gone before us and who have laid broad and deep the foundations of Canada's greatness unless we sink all our political differences and demand with one voice that a limit shall be fixed beyond which there shall be no further decrease in our representation. Would not that demand be more powerful and attract more attention if made by a United Acadia?"—a statement which was received with significant applause.

The Situation Explained.

What is the situation in the Maritime Provinces? Here are the facts: The area is 50,000 square miles—an area which cannot be increased by extension of boundaries as in the case of every other province of Canada, and which is only two-thirds of the present area of Manitoba, the next smallest province in the Dominion.

The resources of the provinces are the shipping, fisheries, lumbering, mining, and agriculture, and all are capable of extensive development. Our mercantile marine of forty and fifty years ago is only a memory.

Turning to the population, the situation may be indicated by stating that it has been estimated, and I believe accurately, that if the population of the Maritime Provinces had increased since 1881 at the same rate as the rest of Canada has increased, we would now have a population in these provinces of about 1,200,000, instead of say 900,000; that is, we have lost 300,000 people or one-quarter of our population. At first this exodus was to the New England States; now it is principally to the Canadian west.

Think what 300,000 people would mean to these provinces; imagine a city the size of Toronto in our midst; or imagine six centres the size of St. John or Halifax; 300,000 is three times the present population of Prince Edward Island. What a market there would be for our farmers right here in these provinces!

Throughout the Maritime Provinces the inroad on our young manhood made by the harvest excursions advertised and carried out on behalf of western Canada, is a reason for meditation. The very flower of our people, attracted by the cheap fares, go west for the harvest and not half of them come back when it is over. Their going is just that much loss to these provinces and the development of these provinces.

Our representation depends on the number of our people; to-day the number of representatives from these provinces in the House of Commons is 35; the number of representatives from the west (British Columbia and Yukon, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba) is 35; in 1895, the representation was 39 for these provinces and 15 for the west. If in the short space of thirteen years the Maritime Provinces have lost four members, and the west has gained twenty, what may we expect at the end of the next thirteen years, if a united effort is not made?

Value of United Effort.

Now what would keep our population in these provinces? Development of our resources. What would bring back our wandering sons? Development of our resources. What would bring immigration to these provinces? Development of our resources. "In the march of progress, the Maritime Provinces must not stand still." Our resources need development and need it badly—development of our fields, forests and mines; agriculture, manufactures, industries, commerce. A united effort would stimulate development and such an effort cannot be made while separated. I believe that political union would greatly stimulate the development of all the resources of these provinces.

Let us examine the proposal a little further. Our interests, it is unnecessary to say, are identical. We have no diversity of nationality. No marked peculiarities or differences in our institutions and laws. No recognition of particular religious institutions. The laws of all and the institutions of all are English and very similar; our interests

A TIGHT LITTLE ISLAND.

Prince Edward Island is the smallest and most densely populated of all the provinces of Canada. Its area is only 2,184 square miles, while its population, in 1901, amounted to 103,250.

It is supposed to have been sighted by Sebastian Cabot in 1497. Later it was included in the territory of New France, and finally annexed to Great Britain in 1763. In 1873 it was admitted into the Dominion.

The unusual fertility of the soil has rendered agriculture the chief industry. After the field crops, dairy products yield the largest income, and next, the fisheries. Manufactures also are gaining a headway.

The leading city is Charlottetown, the capital. Compulsory education has created a high standard of intelligence on the island.

lie in our maritime commerce, our mines, our manufacturing, our fisheries, and in our agriculture. And it seems to me that these interests are sufficiently identical to justify the taking of some steps towards union. Union would mean better provincial credit in the money markets of the world; it would mean that our public revenues would go farther and do more than at present; it would mean that public works of importance could be undertaken which cannot now be considered; the substitution of one legislature for the three existing legislatures alone would result in an annual saving to the people of these provinces of about $150,000; the Governmental methods and administrative systems and policies throughout the new province would become uniform, particularly with regard to the judiciary, agriculture, immigration, education, railways, taxation, crown lands, mining and other matters. All general legislation would be uniform; excessive legislation would not occur; the policy of the party in power would have better criticism because it would have the criticism of the legislators of three provinces; the legislation would be better legislation; the political atmosphere would be healthier; we should all know the public men of one section of the province in every other section; the Maritime Provinces need the advantage of a larger field. The thoughts of our public men would be larger thoughts. With the union would come the obliteration of local and sectional jealousies and the elimination of petty discords and the weakening of irritating influences.

This is merely a recital or enumeration of several arguments, each of which might be elaborated, but let us turn for a moment to the first argument advanced —that union of the three provinces would result in their further development.

Future Development.

The people of these provinces, it is said, lack "commercial courage." The feeling of unity should assist in restoring "commercial confidence." A united effort would stimulate development and such an effort cannot be made while separated. The Dominion Government almost ignores these provinces, the west gets whatever it asks for; no portion whatever of the immense immigration into Canada finds its resting place within the Maritime Provinces.

A considerable portion of the revenue contributed by the provinces is expended in bonusing and advertising the western end of the Dominion, which constantly drains the Maritime Provinces of many of their best people—thus with the expenditure of their own money, the younger generation on whom the development of these provinces must depend, is induced to follow the immigrants westward.

I believe that political union would greatly stimulate the development of the resources of the province. I believe that thereby their commercial status would be elevated. Being more prosperous as a community, they would attract more settlers, retain their population and hold their own. They would become of more importance in the eyes of the nation; they would not be ignored; their resources would be investigated and developed and that is what they need.

Union, I believe, would bring this about. It certainly could not result in anything else but a united effort towards greater development.

Union would give each province an interest in the resources, development and prosperity of the other two. Prince Edward Island would benefit by its joint interest with the other two provinces, in the mineral wealth of Nova Scotia and the forest wealth of New Brunswick. Similarly the agricultural possibilities and development of Prince Edward Island would be shared by the people of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick to the mutual advantage and bentfit of all. The development of export shipping, or shipbuilding, or fisheries, or other maritime industries by any section of the three provinces would undoubtedly benefit other sections of the provinces. And so, with immigration, manufacturing and other matters. It would be one for all, and all for one.

The External Influence.

Turning from the arguments in favor of union from the standpoint of internal affairs to those from the standpoint of external relations, the chief argument which will occur to the reader is the larger influence which we would exercise in federal affairs as a result of consolidation. Increased power and might would be given to the Maraitime Provinces; their position would be elevated; their influence would be felt because they would be united. They should exert a larger influence upon national life. They would be of more bulk and importance, able to vie with their inland sister provinces. Looking at this from the point of view of a citizen of eastern Canada, this would counterbalance to some extent the preponderant increasing influence of other provinces.

Then there is to be considered the practical result of such a change. I mean the strengthening of the present bond of feeling and interest between eastern Canada and the rest of the provinces. A great and powerful community, self reliant, independent, progressive, established in this part of the Dominion would be a means of strengthening and perpetuating the bonds of national interest. There would be a fuller national life, a widening of national thought, a reciprocity of rights and obligations and a feeling of increased national strength.

The Question of Terms.

An examination of the arguments against the union, advanced by opponents, when examined, will be found to be derived from anxiety over possible terms of union. Where will the capital be? How many representatives will Prince Edward Island have in the new Legislature? How many will Nova Scotia have? How many will New Brnnswick have? What will the sessional indemnity be? And perhaps many other details.

This problem of "terms" can and will be solved. If the discordant interests of the old American colonies could be harmonized into a united nation, if the states of the German Empire, with all their divergent interests and discordant sentiments could be welded into a united power and become so strong as in the opinion of many to be a menace to the ascendancy of Great Britain, if these Canadian provinces from Atlantic to Pacific can be made one united nation, why do you say that the union of the Maritime Provinces is impossible and impracticable?

In conclusion, I ask, why should we remain separated? Is this policy of separation in the best interests of these provinces? There is a vast difference between the separation that is weakness and the union that is strength. These provinces have problems of their own, and they need not look for counsel or assistance in solving them to their inland sister provinces. They must solve them themselves, and they can do that best united. If not union, what? It is time to forget all sectional jealousies and petty discords and get into line; unite and work.

POTATOES FROM NOVA SCOTIA.

They Find Favor in the Eyes of Cuba Importers.

"Canadian grown potatoes are in high favor in Cuba and command a steady market," says E. S. Kirkpatrick, Canadian trade commissioner at Havana.

"The bulk of Canadian potatoes come from Nova Scotia, chiefly by steamer, although a few schooners bring cargoes here in the fall. During the fall months double the quantity of potatoes are imported than at other times, as this is the planting season and all seed is imported. The island is said to grow 150,000 barrels a year and would grow many more but for the fact that other crops yield better returns. The native grown potato, while of a good quality, is quite small. As it is new in the spring their is a good demand at home for it and practically none are exported. As the new potatoes mature, beginning in the Southern States and working north, they are shipped here until the maritime provinces are reached and from that time for the rest of the season Canadian potatoes control the market.

"The standard net weight of a barrel of potatoes in this market is 165 lbs. and all shipments must be made in good barrels to be acceptable. It is of the utmost importance that a good quality of potatoes be shipped, for poor potatoes will not be accepted excepting at a big discount.

"It must be understood that any inferior products or manufactures shipped to any country affect the whole home market in that country, while on the other hand any class of goods exceptionally good. benefits, indirectly, all."

Victoria Grocers Honor the Goddess of Pleasure

Lay Aside Their Business Cares to Enjoy a Picnic Day at Sidney — Wholesalers, Retailers and Travelers Join in the Fun—Skillful Baseball Games and Fast Bicycle Races—Members of the Trade Can Run the Turf as Well as Grocery Stores.

Victoria, Aug. 23.—When a committee of wholesale and retail grocers met and arranged to organize for a big picnic, they knew the work before them and the need of plenty of energy, for there was not much more than two weeks before the selected day for the picnic—August 12th.

Suffice it to say, one and all did stick to it, with the result that a splendid programme of sports was arranged, and through the hearty response of the merchants approached, a grand list of prizes was awaiting the winners.

The Town of Sidney, B.C., was selected as the most suitable resort—about twenty miles by rail or road from Victoria. It was a pleasant jaunt by rail through pretty country, past numerous fruit orchards and comfortable-looking residences; then by Elk and Beaver lakes and on through the rich ranching country around a peninsula on to the sea shore.

As informed by megaphone by friend Devine, the picnic grounds were some 300 yards back and alongside the railway track, to which the majority at once proceeded, especially those with baskets.

Many feasted their eyes on the view from the wharf, of bits of islands scattered about the gulf, the Olympic range of snow-crested mountains limiting the scene to the right, and in the far front the colossal cone of solid snow of Mount Baker. This wharf is where on three days of the week, and on Sundays in the summer months, a small steamer makes a trip among our "Thousand Islands."

Among the visitors to the picnic were the mayor of Victoria and party, almost all the grocers, several of the wholesalers, and many traveling representatives of several leading manufacturing houses of Canada and the United States. Over 1,500 attended, and all enjoyed themselves immensely.

The sports were adjourned soon after mid-day for refreshments and then many returned to the terminus of the road from Victoria, near by the railway depot to await the arrival of the competitors in the bicycle race from Victoria to Sidney.

Gradually a big crowd collected and the committee had their work cut out to keep the centre of the roadway clear. The handicap event went to T. Peden, who covered the course in the fast time of 58 minutes; although Peden finished second to McKenzie, he made the best time over the course, as the latter had a two-minute handicap. B. Hancock, who was also a scratch man, finished a good third. The open bicycle race had a field of 14 starters, and was won by Sewell. Bob Peden was second, closely followed by Leo Sweeney. The open one mile foot race was won easily by Jack Sweeney, the J.B.A.A. runner, with Bendrodt, also a J.B.A.A. man, a good second, and Ira Brethour third.

After this race the crowd returned to the picnic grounds, and the rest of the programme of sports took place. The baseball game between the wholesale and retail grocers was played in the morning. The wholesalers tallied up a big score in the first few innings, but when White was put in the box for the retailers they could not locate the ball, and fanned wildly the air. The retailers began to crawl up in the last two innings. Had the game gone on longer they might have won out, but, it being a six-innings affair the wholesalers won with a score of 8 runs to 4.

A team from Weilers Bros. was listed to play against the Cloverdales, but did not appear. The Cloverdales then issued a challenge to play a picked team. The picked team was made up and gave them a good trimming by 15 runs to 3.

Another match was gotten up and played in the evening—North Ward intermediates against the local Sidney team. The Wards pounded the ball all over the lot, and the Sidney pitcher could not serve up the stuff to fool the Wards. He had a good wind-up, but pitched poor balls. The Wards were victorious by 16 runs to 3.

The voting contest for the most popular lady on the grounds was won by Miss Georgie Cavin.

Some fun was caused by the search for the mysterious Mr. Raffles. A local soap powder manufacturer advertised that Mr. Raffles would be present, and offered to give a ten dollar bill to whoever first discovered and challenged him, at the same time producing a wrapper off a packet of the soap powder. Near the conclusion of the races Mr. Keiths caught the mysterious man, and got the ten dollars.

The sports were concluded about 5.30, when the first return train left for Victoria. Those who remained had supper, watched the baseball game, and otherwise enjoyed themselves until 8 p.m., when some took train and the others put in a good time in the hall at Sidney at the dance

Nothing but favorable remarks were heard of the train service. and the excellent way President H. Kirkham and the committee had handled the business details of the picnic and brought it to so great a success. The list of races, etc., with the winners, follows:

Some Proud Winners.

The race for grocers of over 200 lbs. created no small amount of amusement and many of the heavies were forced to weigh in on different occasions. This race was won by J. J. Jeffries—not the real Jim—with Bill Smith second and T. E. Plummer third.

Thousands Attend the Sarnia Grocers' Picnic

Lake Huron Park Attracts Large Throngs—Travelers Defeat Grocers in Ball Contest and Clerks are Winners in Tug of War —Fancy Races Run.

Sarnia, Aug. 24.—Grocers in the Huron capital are not averse to forsaking and forgetting their scales and counters and order-books for a day in the year, and hence when they hied themselves to Lake Huron Park last Wednesday, their pleasure was unrestrained. The day opened rather unfavorably, but after a few hours the rain disappeared and Providence during the remainder of the day smiled on the merry picnickers.

Some four thousand people were in attendance, which serves to illustrate the reputation of the Sarnia grocers.

As early as ten o'clock the people began crowding the street cars for the park, and from that hour almost incessantly throughout the day every car for the beach was crowded to its fullest capacity. Tallyhos and automobiles were also brought into commission to help convey the crowds, and the picnic was without doubt the best ever held under the auspices of the Sarnia grocers. Nearly one hundred commercial travelers were present, and helped to make the outing a success. The Sarnia Citizens' band and three Scotch pipers furnished music during the afternoon. In the evening the Alexandra orchestra supplied the music for dancing at the pavilion.

Among the prize winners were.—

Fowler's Canadian race—1, Mrs. A. Danby; 2, Mrs. I. Ellinor; 3, Mrs. O. Millikin; 4, Mrs. J. Winn.

Fat men's race—1, H. Lawson; 2, Baird and Campbell; 3, Hillier and Danby; 4, Horning and McAlpine.

Ladies' relay race—1, Lila Hayes, Ada McLellan; 2, Julia Hillier, Reta Hillier; 3, Maud Wise; Tena Buckle; 4, Minnie Graham, Arvilla Lusk.

Human wheelborrow race—1, O. Horning and McAlpine; 2, F. Swafford and Pearson; 3, Claxton and Foster; 4, Zinc and Baird.

Arm over shoulder race — 1, Lila Hayes, Ada McLellan; 2, Jennie Watson, Mrs. Jos. Wood; 3, Julia Hillier, Mrs. D. Dandy; 4, Maud Wise, Tena Buckle.

50 yard hop—1, C. Hoskins; 2, W. Baird; 3, H. Carleton; 4, S. Williams.

Red Rose Tea and Canada Spice Co.—1, Retta Hillier; 2, Stella Foster; 3, Ada McLellan; 4, Minnie Graham; 5, Lila Hayes; 6, Tena Buckle.

Oldest couple on grounds—1, James Cushen and wife, 160 years; 2, M. M. W. Proctor and wife, 149 years; 3, Thos. S. Smith and wife, 139 years.

They Played Ball Too.

No grocers' picnic would be a grocers' picnic without a baseball game, and the knights of the grip are usually the enemy. The Sarnia outing was no exception, and the brand of ball handed out to the crowd was certainly inspiring. In fact, some of the Detroit American leaguers were seen hovering around for pointers, and as for base running, they got the worth of their trip to Canada. The score was 27 to 20, on the right side of the fence, for the travelers. The line ups were:—

Grocers—McKeever, Zinc, Clark, Cornell, Galbraith, Mills, Williams, Winters and Campubell.

Travelers — Woods, Cowley, Pearson, Robinson, Lawson, Webb, Crawford, Horner, Markle.

Umpire—J. Williams.

The tug of war called forth some more fun and especially when the clerks trimmed the grocers. The teams were:—

Grocers—Jas Fraser, captain; W. C. Palmer, P. Clark, S. E. Cornell, J. Galbraith, J. D. Mills, M. Swafford, S. C. Williams, W. J. McIntyre and J. Ennis.

Clerks—F. Fessant, captain; J. Winters, Alf. Baxter, Roy Mills, Jas. Wilkinson, O. Jacklin, A. Turnbull, John Allen, Harry Coe, H. Doucher.

The Blue Ribbon Tea race was captured by Lila Hayes, Mrs. Ironside, Mrs. Hopkinson, Minnie Graham, Edna Millikin, and Mary Carter.

CALIFORNIA OLIVE ORCHARD.

It is said that the largest olive ranch in the world is located within twenty-five miles of Los Angeles, Cal. This orchard, situated at Sylmar, is ten times larger than the biggest olive ranch in Spain. There are over 120,000 olive-bearing trees, and they average fifty pounds of olives to the tree. The Sylmar ranch consists of 12,000 acres, and each acre contains 110 trees, which produce 2,000 gallons of olives each season. This quantity of fruit makes 250 gallons of pure olive oil—valued at $2 per gallon—thus equaling $500 per acre profit.

The olive wood is highly prized by cabinet makers, as it is very hard and takes a high polish. The Italians consider an olive orchard as a perpetual source of wealth, as the older it grows the more valuable it becomes. The trees are supposed to live about 4,000 years, under favorable conditions. There are some olive trees now on the Mount of Olives, in Palestine, which are computed to be not less than 3,000 years old.

The olive industry has been growing steadily in California since its first introduction by the early Spanish mission fathers.

CANADIAN MARKET FEATURES.

Disappointment has come to British Columbia canners along with the salmon run. The catch is smaller than was anticipated and the probability is that sockeye salmon will be dearer than at first expected. The run was so short that the canners requested an extension of the close season from the government, which, it is reported, has not been granted. Packers and brokers seem to be at a loss just now to comprehend the exact situation and in some cases prices are withdrawn.

The egg market throughout the Dominion is high, due to scarcity of the fresh article. In Vancouver local fresh eggs have been selling wholesale at 41 cents with easterns up to 28 and 30 cents per dozen. Other places reflect similar conditions.

The flour market shows considerable change since the last report on account of the new wheat coming on. Declines are noticeable in Ontarios and an easier feeling pervades the whole Canadian market. In Winnipeg rolled oats have declined as well.

Since September is one of the big sugar months, the brisk demand anticipated together with the firmness in raws will have a tendency to keep prices firm, if not cause an actual advance.

A GREAT EASTERN PROBLEM.

Maritime Union was one of the vital questions that came before the annual convention of the Maritime Boards of Trade, held on Wednesday and Thursday of last week at Charlottetown, P.E.I., an entire report of which appears e'sewhere in this issue.

That the question was ably and intelligently debated is unquestionable, since the delegates to the convention comprised some of the best, broad-minded business men in the provinces bordering on the sea. Maritime Union has been before this body on previous occasions. It is a big problem and one that cannot be settled in a day. While some opposed any steps towards union, others were enthusiastic over the possible advantages that in their opinions would be derived if Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island were as one. The majority favored the project and a resolution passed requesting the governments of each province to appoint a delegation to go into the matter with a view to considering terms upon which union could be consummated.

The question, however, is a large one and we may not expect to hear of its disposal for some time to come.

The new president of the Maritime Board is W. B. Snowball, lumberman of Chatham, N.B., where next year the convention will be held.

DO ALL PAY DIVIDENDS?

As will be observed from the Brantford correspondence in this week's issue, the Co-operative News of that city—the organ of the Brantford Co-operative Society—takes The Canadian Grocer to task for referring to these societies and the dividends they are paying. The "News" points out that with the exception of Brantford, "every society in the co-operative union of Canada is paying a dividend on its members' purchases."

It might have appropriately added, "with the exception of those which have failed during the past six months."

The Grocer has before had occasion to point out some of these failures. We might call to mind the demises of the Dominion Co-operative Association, Toronto; the Toronto Co-operative Equitable Society; the Duck Lake Co-operative Association; the Workman's Co-operative Association, Sydney, C.B.; and a similar society at Hochelaga, Que.

Have these paid dividends, and if so who got the money? Undoubtedly it was not the purchasing members. Considering the comparatively small number of co-operative societies or associations in Canada, the failure of so many is significant.

Retail merchants are the back-bone of a community. It evolves on them to be among the first to set up a building in a new district, and they are there to the finish, if there should be one. They become necessities to the existence of the settler. In villages, towns and cities, the growth of the surrounding communities depends largely on the retail merchants. Their stores, including appearance, equipment, and operation methods, become the life of the place. If they are progressive, purchasing is done at home and the community is built up by the retention of its own money.

These merchants have always helped their own towns and people; and is it fair that any society or association should, by previously presenting alluring statements about dividends, lower prices, etc., seek to obtain stock-holders in order to undermine the stapleness of any community?

At any rate is not the Co-operative News, of Brantford, rather misleading, when it says that every society in Canada under the union is paying a dividend?

SYSTEM IN THE STORE.

There was never a business that amounted to anything that was not operated on the basis of system. System is the helm by which the course of every man's business is steered and the better the system the farther away the barque keeps from the storm-zone. It is just as necessary to the success of the small merchant as the large one. And yet how often does the former excuse his lack of system in organization on the ground that his trade is not extensive enough to warrant exacting business methods, says the Michigan Tradesman.

This brings to mind the old story of the merchant who, although possessing two windows to his store, neglected to use one as a means of display on the ground that the extent of his trade did not demand it. Needless to say, his trade never did.

Carelessness is an insidious foe that is always threatening a business man. It creeps into his books, into the disposal of his stock, into his salesmanship, into the very heart of his business, until one day he finds that the vitality of his enterprise has been sapped, his possibilities of growth ruined and his very existence threatened.

In this gradual way the introduction of system as applied to the whole organization can be brought about with the least amount of trouble, while the process will not appear half so complicated an ordeal. Once some degree of order has been evolved out of chaos, the merchant will preceive the undisguised blessing of system, and will not rest content until he has established a complete method. The great thing is to make a start, and the rest is not only easy, but a pleasure. No merchant should be deterred by the apparent difficulties of introducing system. It is never too late, never too early, for a merchant to set his house in order, for he is face to face with the inevitable fact that a business nowadays, to be successful, must be conducted with system.

Notes from the Maritime Provinces and Quebec

Shortage in Pork Supplies in the East—Flour Prices Decline —An Excellent Crop of Potatoes—Attempted Burglary of a Moncton Grocery Store.

ST. JOHN.

August 24.—The price of Manitoba flour dropped last week 40c a barrel. This, after the flour had reached the highest mark attained in years, is looked upon as a sudden and substantial drop. The general expectation had been that no change would probably take place till next month, when the fiscal year of the Manitoba milling companies closes. Some of the dealers say, however, that in view of the fact that Ontario flour has fallen off in price $1.05 within two or three weeks, the matter did not come as a complete sruprise. They are inclined to think that further reductions in price may be expected soon.

The latest reports from the country districts are that all crops, with the exception of hay, are in good condition. Hay this year is very light, being only about two-thirds of the average. The harvesting of barley, oats and wheat has been begun, but there has been little threshing done yet. Potatoes will be an abundant crop. Last week a carload of this year's crop was shipped from Fort Fairfield, Maine, just across the border from Carleton county. They were sent in crates, and the farmers received $2.75 per bushel for them.

Blueberries have been especially plentiful this season. There does not seem to be any great movement for exporting them this year, and they have been selling for 30c for a 12-quart pail. William C. Cross, of Hall & Fairweather, who returned last week from a business trip through the province, reported crops fine and the outlook for the coming winter looks good.

Contrary to the expectations of many of the shippers, the new United States tariff makes no change in the duty on potatoes. The rate remains at 25c a bushel.

Several meetings have been held lately to dicuss trade with Cuban ports, and it is probable that two steamship lines will provide a service from this port to Havana, cammencing about September 15th.

Pearl W. Jordan, J. E. Cowan, W. H. Turner, F. W. Parker and W. A. Ewing, of this city, have been incorporated as Coll's Soap, Limited, with a capital of $10,000, to carry on the business of manufacturing soap, soap powder and perfumery.

Leonard B. Knight, L. C. Prime. F. R. Taylor, St. John; Henry H. McCoin and Andrew D. McCoin, of Florenceville, have been incorporated as the McCoin, Prime Company, Limited, with a capital of $24,000, to carry on a general wholesale and retail trading business at Florenceville.

Great quantities of sardine herring have been caught lately in the harbor, and, owing to the warm weather, they could not be shipped to the canning factories, and were sold to the fertilizer factory, being taken away in scowload lots of about ten tons each.

An attempt was made to enter the grocery store of Kenneth Steeves, at Moncton, one night last week. It happened that Mr. Steeves had been working late that night and determined to sleep in the store. He was awakened by a noise at the front door and saw a man trying to chop his way into the shop. He made a dash for the door, but the would-be burglar escaped.

HALIFAX.

August 24.—Wholesale grocers report business fully up to the average for the season of the year. Collections in the western part of the province are good, and in the east they are fairly good. Most of the travelers now on the road are booking orders for the autumn trade in dried fruits, canned goods, etc.

There was an advance this week of ⅜c per pound in the price of lard. The stock of pork held in Halifax is low, and the dealers are not making any purchases at the present high prices. While sugar has advanced ten cents per hundred pounds in New York, the refinery here has not made any change in the price.

The first Nova Scotia apples of this season's crop are now on the market. They are Astrachans and are small, the quality being poor. They are selling at $2 and $2.50 per barrel. The commission men are preparing for a busy season, as from now on it is expected that the shipments will continue to increase largely.

Nova Scotia tomatoes are now coming on the market in large quantities, and the price during the past week showed a marked decline, There was a drop of four cents per pound. They are now selling at 60c for a 12-pound basket. The big drop in the price will have the effect of forcing the "American" tomatoes off the market.

Ontario fruit is now arriving in small quantities. The plums are small and of rather poor quality. The Nova Scotia crop of plums this year is expected to be good, and they will soon be on the market. Native cucumbers have arrived and they are selling at 30c per dozen.

High prices for pork and pork products continue, and a general shortage is reported all round. Newfoundland is a large consumer of pork and there is a marked falling off in the receipts this season. The imports at St. John's this year are about 4,000 barrels less than they were at this date last year. The reason for the decline is that the wholesale dealers are putting off purchasing as long as possible, expecting a drop in prices. The near approach of the fall trade will compel buying shortly. The stocks held in St. John at the present time are smaller than for many years. Many of the firms that were carrying hundreds of barrels last year at this season have not now a single barrel in stock. It is estimated that the purchases made for arrival are short about 4,000 barrels. The total shortage of stocks on hand and to arrive is about 1,000 barrels.

Brantford Co-operative News Talks About The Canadian Grocer—Travelers Welcomed Back to Bracebridge — President of London R. G. A. Favors Big Jo...s Picnic — Peterboro Grocers Display Fruit Jars.

BRANTFORD.

August 25.—There was a splendid market here on Saturday. The prices ranged as follows: Butter, 25c; eggs, 21c to 23c; chickens, 75c to $1; lamb, 13c to 15c per lb.; veal, 8c to 10c; ducks, $1 to $1.10 per pair; potatoes. 25c peck; cabbages, 40c per dozen; corn, 8c to 10c per dozen; tomatoes, 15c to 20c a basket; onions, beets and carrots, 2 for 5c; apples, 25c per basket.

Local merchants are troubled with spurious coins, particularly 25-cent pieces, which are in circulation here. The imitations are good, but are readily detected on account of their smoothness.

The grocers and butchers of the city held a picnic Wednesday afternoon, at Burt's grove, near Paris, where a fine programme of sports was indulged in, followed by the usual lunch.

G. N. Willits, the collector of the Merchants' Protective Association, is doing excellent service in his efforts thus far. Practically all of the retail merchants of the city are enlisted in the association, there being 120 members. The merchants thus represented have outstanding accounts to the amount of $15,000, which have been placed in Mr. Willits' hands for collection. Since June, when the system was inaugurated here, he has succeeded in getting in $1,000 of these debts. The merchants are highly satisfied with the work which has been done and the prospects which the association offers. Moreover, Mr. Willits likes the outdoor work and is quite enthusiastic as regards the possibilities.

Lorne Willits has severed his connection with the Thomas Thompson & Co. grocery, Colborne Street, and has accepted a position as traveler with the E. W. Gillett Company, Ltd., Toronto.

The Brantford Co-operative News this month pays some attention to a recent editorial in The Canadian Grocer, on the co-operative question. The editorial in question referred to the failure of the local association to pay its first year's dividend. The News contends that with the exception of Brantford, "every society in the co-operative union of Canada is paying a dividend on its members' purchases." It points to this as an evidence that co-operation is succeeding in Canada, and concludes that Brantford must "wake up." Whatever may be the condition elsewhere, it cannot be denied that the local association did not pay its first year's dividend and has created no particular stir in local grocery circles. The trouble appears to be that the members are not loyal to the association. The News in its last issue thus lectures them: "Are you bringing in your friends as members or customers to the store? If not, why not? Why should you expect the board to do for you what you will not do for yourself? The success of the movement in Brantford depends upon your efforts. Don't forget. When we say you, we mean you, not the other fellow."

This is the holiday season for local grocers. Many are away from the city and consequently the trade is rather dull.

A society for the prevention of cruelty to animals has been organized here, in which connection some attention is to be paid to delivery horses. We are glad to say that few offenders will be found among the grocers, all of whom are most considerate in their treatment of their horses.

BRACEBRIDGE.

August 25.—The week just ended was a heavy one with fruit. Some lines were profitable, while others again brought a loss to the merchant, especially the early peaches, which arrived in bad condition.

We welcome the knights of the grip back again with their hearty hand-shake and familiar greeting. "Hello, Tom!" or "Hello, Bill!" is music to our ears. Some merchants, of course, would rather not have the travelers calling on them, but up north we are favored with the best men possible and are always glad to see them.

The Tatie and Herring Club gave a banquet on Wednesday last to W. S. Ferguson, C.A., on the eve of his approaching marriage. Mr. Ferguson until lately was bookkeeper for Hutchison Bros.

Hutchison Bros. are having the front of the store repainted. When done, the appearance will certainly be a credit to our busy Front Street.

Much regret is heard among the merchants on the sudden death of W. A. Gill, a hardware prince, of Pittsburg. His loss will be keenly felt among our own business men on account of the interest he took with us while at Muskoka Lakes.

Labor day is approaching and our grocers predict a heavy Saturday business. Large consignments of fruit will be received and sold that day and there will also be some pretty window displays.

ST. CATHARINES.

Aug. 25.—Early potatoes are almost a failure in this district, and high prices are ruling in consequence. The grocers are paying 90c per bushel and retailing at 30c per peck. The potatoes are small and the growers are complaining that at even this price the early potato crop is not a paying one.

Dairy butter sold as high as 30c per pound on Saturday's market, and new laid eggs at 25c per dozen. The supply of butter offering was small.

Tomatoes were too plentiful last week, the low price being 3 baskets for 25c. The canning factories accept tomatoes this week, and it is expected the price will stiffen up somewhat.

Geo. B. Darker, who recently opened a new grocery on St. Paul Street, and later purchased the grocery business of E. Gander, has decided that it would be better to have one store than two. He is closing the St. Paul Street store, and will devote his time and energy to building up a business in the Gander store at the corner of King and Queen Streets.

LONDON.

August 25.—With the return of the travelers to the road there was naturally a substantial revival in business last week, and the outlook is considered bright. Locally, trade has been fair.

Brokers report teas of all kinds high. Quotations for low-priced Japans are not coming in as briskly as desired. There is no change in domestic sugars and raws are firm in price. Imported sugars are about sixpence per cwt. higher. New Valencia raisins are offering, prices being a little below last year's opening. Rains in Greece have caused a jump in currants, and a good many packers have withdrawn prices until the full extent of the damage done is known. Spices of all kinds are steady in price. New Orleans molasses is advancing, although this is the season of the year when not much is done in that line.

President E. J. Ryan, of the Retail Grocers' Association, is heartily in accord with the Hamilton suggestion, that a union picnic of Ontario grocers be held. The idea is not a new one, having been advanced here over a year ago. Of course, local dealers believe there is no place so well suited for such a gathering as London.

T. B. Escott and wife have returned from a month's visit with friends in Winnipeg.

McKinley Millmann, city traveler for Elliott, Marr & Co., has taken a position in the office, and Fred Brown, the shipper, has taken Mr. Millman's trip. The grocers miss "Mac's" pleasant smile.

Earl Insley, for many years city traveler for T. B. Escott & Co., has gone with Gorman, Eckert & Co., taking Mr. Gorman's trip. Mr. Gorman is going inside.

Marr Bros., grocers, corner of Grey and Clarence Sts., have sold to Mr. Larkin.

Thos. Black, corner of William and Pall Mall Streets, has sold to Wm. McClure.

Clem Garvey, of John Garvey & Sons, had another exciting runaway last Monday. Clem luckily escaped, but the buggy was somewhat damaged.

TORONTO.

A. G. T. Robinson, who carried on a successful grocery business at 800 Queen St. East, has now moved into his new store at 889 Queen St. East, of which he is the proud owner, and which is one of the best equipped stores in the east end. The fixtures are all new and up-to-date. With his attractive new store, his eight years' acquaintance in the neighborhood, and his natural tact and ability, he will certainly do a booming business.

Gibbons Bros., 742 Queen St. East, is another Queen St. firm who are conducting their business on the idea of good service. They have worked up a reputation, and a large trade for a special brand of butter. The best is not too good for them.

Charles Harlock, 716 Queen St. East, is one of the happy grocers of the east end, who prefers to be called "Charlie" and nothing else. He always carries a cheerfulness about him which brings a brightness to the whole place. His business is always good, or rather as he himself puts it, "very, very good." Some of those fellows who always feel blue and sour should ask "Charlie" how he rises above those petty troubles.

A. E. Goggins, 337 Broadview Ave., has the knack of making everybody feel perfectly at home in his store. This is one of the most valuable advertisements a man can have, and it costs nothing. Cultivate it.

W. G. Robinson, 351 Broadview Ave., is making extensive alterations in his store and will be fitted up in good shape to do business on improved methods.

E. E. Martin, 650 College St., believes in learning the best possible methods to serve his customers, and make them see that he appreciates their trade. His business is naturally increasing.

J. L. Casey, 638 College St., is rapidly gaining favor in his new place of business and is bound to do a large share of the trade. Good service is the key of success all over. To build up a business on price-cutting and trying to injure one's competitor does not belong to now-a-days storekeeping.

George Rogers, 830 College St., always has his store in first-class trim and the work goes on with a system and order that reflects credit on the management.

Furniss Bros., 747 Broadview Ave., opened their new store only a short time ago. Being in a new, clean place of business, with every article perfectly fresh, and with just the right kind of a "know how," they have already reached a point in their business altogether beyond their brightest expectations, and are naturally just in the right kind of humor to make the best possible impression on their many new customers.

B. E. Bell and J. H. Cardy, both grocers and neighbors on Broadview Ave., and who are up-to-date retailers, were disappointed by not getting The Canadian Grocer at the usual time last week. They read their trade paper carefully and benefit by it and cannot afford to miss it.

CHATHAM.

August 25.—High butter prices have been the rule throughout the entire summer, butter retailing at the present moment at 25c a pound. This is for good dairy product. Until this summer there was a difference of 2c between dairy and creamery, but this year the farmers seem able to demand and secure the same price as for the regular creamery product. This situation seems to be purely local. It is according to well posted authorities, due to the scarcity of ice throughout the country, as a result of which farmers, instead of making butter, have been compelled to sell their milk and cream to the creameries, with the result that the major part of the butter manufactured is exported. In Thamesville, a short distance east, butter was quoted last week at 18c. This doesn't indicate a superabundant supply, however, but merely a local condition. Grocers who have sought in the past to take advantage of these low prices in outlying points have found butter as scarce as in Chatham.

On Saturday the police made a raid on the market, and confiscated 30 pounds of short weight butter. The trouble was confined to four vendors, and seems to have been due to carelessness in putting up the product. Much butter was 2 ounces overweight.

Eggs are scarce throughout the country, the retail price remaining steady at 20c. The egg situation seems more serious than the butter situation, though there is a possibility that, with a plentiful supply of grain for feed this fall, the hens will return to their neglected duties.

Richard Reaume, who has for some years past conducted a grocery at the corner of St. Clair St. and Grand Ave., is offering his business for sale. It is understood Mr. Reaume intends returning to his old home at Pain Court, which, with the advent of the electric railway, promises to boom.

J. H. Bogart, the Queen St. grocer, and party, have returned from a trip up the lakes as far as Duluth.

D. F. Bezaire, Amherstburg, has closed out his grocery business, corner Gore and George Sts., and turned over the stock en bloc to grocer Geo. Jamieson.

Walker Law and T. E. L. Talbot, the two storekeepers at Rutherford, announce that on and after Sept. 1 they will discontinue the giving of premiums and the issuing of cash coupons. "We feel," they say, "by doing so we can give our customers a better service and the same quality of goods at a lower price."

Lawrence Campbell has relinquished his situation at E. H. Ruttan's grocery, Wallaceburg. Stanley Clancy has resumed his position at Ernest McDougall's grocery after a two weeks' holiday. Harry McDougall is taking Geo. Moniger's place at Taylor's grocery while the latter is camping.

PETERBORO.

Aug. 25.—Apples are the latest arrivals on the market, several varieties having been received recently. The farmers on Saturday were fairly well supplied and the grocers are carrying suitable stocks. They have not, however, made any special effort as yet through their advertisements to announce this new line, which is always a favorite in every household.

As stated on a former occasion the present year has introduced to a greater extent than ever before new varieties of fruit jars. The mouths are now very wide aiming at receiving the fruit whole from berries to peaches. Another feature is a change in the method of sealing, an automatic top being used and as is noticed in a local grocer's window, the motto is "Easy to Seal, Easy to Open." The jars are after the design of those used by preserving companies and have been sold in large numbers this summer. The season for preserving is approaching its zenith and there is likely to be even a greater demand than has yet been experienced.

From the fact that the grocer can handle everything connected with preserving—one of the most important annual duties in every household—it would seem enterprising if an effort were made to increase this end of the business while it lasts. He has for sale the necessary fruit, sugar, sealers, spices and other requisites, often even selling preserving kettles. Sugar must be purchased from the grocer and likewise the sealers but the fruit dealer presents an opposition in regard to the fruit. As a general rule his prices are no lower than those the grocer offers and there should be no reason why a live grocer should not secure the entire trade of some of his customers in these lines. Ways and means should suggest themselves differently to different grocers.

The small fruit season, according to Geoffrey O'Brien, Charlotte St., has been one of the most satisfactory in recent years. From the time of the entrance of strawberries until the present, when thimble berries seem to be the latest arrivals, the business has been brisk and well up to other years in the quantity of fruit handled. The berries have arrived in good condition invariably, and no trouble was experienced in this regard. There has also been no loss on account of having to hold them, as the demand was always heavy and the city grocers disposed of the stock they had ordered without any difficulty. Mr. O'Brien has been much pleased with the season which as far as actual profits are concerned is as good as former years. Early peaches have given a little trouble but he states that they are seldom entirely satisfactory.

Some of the grocers were slightly "stung" on tomatoes. They should have known better than to buy too heavily when the price was high. The slump occurred only a short time ago and until then, 75 cents a basket was the best price that was obtainable. Then, all of a sudden, it fell to 35c and caught several who had not been expecting the change so soon. No man was heavily stocked but there were a few who certainly would gain nothing on the baskets of former tomatoes they were then carrying.

Peaches are selling at 60 and 65 cents a basket. Plums at 40 cents and gages at 75 cents. They have practically just arrived and the business has not opened up to its best form yet.

HAMILTON.

Aug. 25—There is a movement on foot here to have a joint picnic of Hamilton, London and Brantford grocers held alternately at these three places. The idea is credited to John Hoodless, president of Greater Hamilton Association. The Retail Grocers' Association picnic so far as Hamilton is concerned is the big one of the year. It goes to Niagara Falls, and this year about 6,000 from this city alone were in attendance. President Hoodless' suggestion is that the picnic be held in each of the three cities alternately—one year in Brantford, one year in London and one year in Hamilton. By this arrangement he figures that the large amount of money which now goes outside of the district, would be spent near home, and every third year at home. Mr. Hoodless intends to confer with the Grocers' Association in this as well as in other matters pertaining to the welfare of the city in the near future.

GALT.

August 25.—Wm. Mullett has opened a grocery store in the stand formerly occupied by Chapple, stationer. He is doing a large business at both his stores, the other being situated on Cambridge Street. "I am sorry I did not open up on Main Street years ago," said Mr. Mullett to your correspondent.

W. Gerbracht, formerly of Deans & Walker, can now be found at Sloan's grocery.

Miss Isobel Anderson of the Sloan grocery store is spending her holidays at Lake Chemong, near Peterboro.

Ripe apples are being offered at the various grocery stores. The price is rather high as yet, 25c per basket.

All the Galt grocers are offering quantities of green vegetables. There is an immense demand for green corn and as yet there is not sufficient to supply the demand.

The Galt market is growing by leaps and bounds owing to the energetic advertising methods of the market committee. The attendance on Saturdays has become so large that the present facilities are taxed to the utmost to accommodate the crowd, and provision must shortly be made for more room. The effect of the growing market is particularly noticeable in the stores, and dry goods and other merchants are warm in their praises of the efforts of the committee. They readily recognize that any increase in the attendance at the market is certain to be beneficial to them.

Butter is worth 23 cents per pound and eggs 22 cents per dozen in Galt. New potatoes are 75 cents a bushel: tomatoes 25 cents a basket, green corn 10 cents per dozen.

The Dietrich Block on South Water Street has been completed. The first floor will be occupied as a store, and it will be the second largest in Galt. The new tenant is not known, but it is understood that a Toronto firm is looking over the location.

Pat Ireland of Sloan's grocery is back at work again after being laid up for a week as the result of injuries received in an accident. "Pat" was thrown from a buggy and badly bruised.

GUELPH.

Aug. 25.—The price of butter soared higher on the Guelph market on Saturday than at any time during the past four or five months, as high as 25c a pound being asked, whilst 22 cents had been the ruling figure for a long time previously. Tomatoes also took a decided jump. They were selling last week for 22 cents a basket, and the dealers were glad to get that for them, but this week they want 30 and 35 cents a basket. Peaches and plums were pretty plentiful in Guelph last Saturday, that being practically the beginning of them here. Peaches sold for 35 cents for a small basket and 75 cents for a large one. Plums were 35 cents per basket.

W. H. Lillie, of A. J. Groom's store staff has returned to the city, after a very pleasant summer vacation spent in the vicinity of Fergus, Ont.

Lloyd Taylor, late of Benson Bros'. store, is now holding down a position on the pay roll of W. E. Fielding, in the Elora Road grocery.

Ernie Tovell, one of the clerks in Groom's down town grocery, left yesterday for his summer holidays.

Miss Gertie Hicks, of The Paisley Street Grocery (C. T. Hicks), is at present visiting friends on Major Street, Toronto.

Walter Scriven is back behind the counter in P. Anderson's Marvellous Tea Store, after an absence of a week, spent pleasantly with friends in Woodstock. He also took in the Ingersoll Old Boys' reunion.

Miss Tunks is selling crockery again for Benson Bros., having returned yesterday morning from her summer holidays. Miss Taylor, the bookkeeper in the same store, left on Saturday evening for Grimsby, where she will spend the next week or ten days with friends.

"Bob. Robinson," of J. C. Hadden's Quebec Street grocery, the energetic secretary of the Clerks' and Salesmen's Association, is endeavoring to secure something exciting for the big field day on Thursday, at the Exhibition Park here. He is trying to get an automobile race on between two or three local autoists. They also want to have a City League baseball game, and have as well arranged for the usual athletic events.

POINTERS—

Sugar—Market strong.

Evaporated apples—Demand for futures.

Currants—Weaker market.

Teas—Firm.

Montreal, Aug. 26, 1909.

The business situation in general as reported by wholesale houses is satisfactory, and a substantial autumn trade is expected. In fact, the autumn trade is opening up well, although a good deal of caution is being exhibited in placing orders. Retailers do not seem anxious to fill out large orders at one time, but are rather buying as necessity demands.

Collections are reported as fair so far as country places are concerned with city remittances on the slow side.

SUGAR—September is a month during which there is a heavy consuming demand for sugar, and there is no doubt that supplies in the hands of the trade are less than they were a year ago. Considering these two features together with the firmness of raws, advances in refined would be no surprise. The market this week is steady with a fair trade.

TORONTO—There is a good deal of sharp thinking going on in connection with the canned goods trade, with an excited speculative feeling. The market is very unsettled, to say the least. The season opened with low prices, but packers are not anxious to sell, and in some cases refuse to fill the orders. Peas, which are all done up, have advanced considerably above their value if the prices of other goods are right. Whether the crop of corn will be large or small, the same difference between corn and peas cannot last because they are considered of equal value by the consumers. As peas cannot come down on account of their scarcity, it is reasonable to suppose that corn will go up, and therefore would be good buying at present quotations. Tomatoes in bulk which sold a week ago as low as 15c a basket, sell to-day at 40c. This also affords ground for speculation. On the whole, the canned goods situation is somewhat obscure, and each one has his own opinion about it, and acts accordingly. The catch of Fraser River salmon was far below the expectations and prices for these goods are higher. This very naturally will affect the price of other brands.

Beans	$ .75	.80
Corn	.75	.80
Peas	.80	1.40
Tomatoes, 3's	.77½	.80
Strawberries, 2's	1.32½	1.37½
Raspberries, 2's	1.60	1.65
Peaches	..	1.55
Lawtonberries	..	1.50
Red pitted cherries, 2's	1.60	1.65
Gallon apples	2.35	2.40
Bartlett pears, 2's	1.45	1.50
Lombard plums, 2's	.85	.90

Clover Leaf and Horseshoe Brands, Salmon:

1 lb. talls per doz.	1.72½
½ lb. flats per doz.	1.15
1 lb. flats per doz.	1.87½

Other salmon prices are:

Humpbacks, per doz.	95	1.00
Cohoes, per doz.	1.35	1.40
Red Spring, per doz.	1.50	1.55
Red Sockeye, per doz.	1.55	1.65

It will be interesting to compare the above first prices on fruits with the following which prevailed last year:

Raspberries, group 2	$1.90
Peaches, group 2	1.65
Lawtonberries, group 2	1.90
Red pitted cherries, gp. 2	1.90
Gallon apples, std., group 2	2.50
Bartlett pears, group 2	1.85
Lombard plums, group 2	.95

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Teas—Firm in prices.

Dried Fruit—Old stocks decreasing.

Beans—Good demand.

Toronto, Aug. 26, '09.

The wholesale trade is all that is expected at this time of the year. Employees are not all through with their holidays, and the business can fairly well be handled by those who are on the job. Things are moving along quietly with little change in any values.

SUGAR—On account of the strong feeling in the sugar market for several weeks, it was expected that it would make a move upward, but it has not yet done so, and now the season is so far on that it is not looked for in some quarters. One wholesaler reported that lump sugar had declined 10c per 100 lbs. but this was not supported by any of the others.

TEA—Ceylon teas are higher and all teas are firm with advances looked for in every line. Canada boasts of being the second country in the world as a tea drinking people. Think of it! We average six lbs. of tea for every man, woman and child in this country. This shows how the people will follow and use superior goods, such as the tea men of Canada have succeeded in preparing.

Current Business Happenings in Western Canada

Eggs Going up in the Pacific Province—Rapid Advances Made in Fernie Since the Big Fire a Year ago — Harvesters in Demand in the West.

VANCOUVER.

Aug. 24.—Eggs are starting on their upward career a little earlier this year Generally it is about the first of September when the prices begin to move toward their winter quarters in the high altitudes, but this season the ascent has already been commenced. Local eggs, that is the best kind no matter what may be the name they travel under, are now 41 cents wholesale, while easterns have advanced from 28 to 30 cents, and are very firm at that. Orders are now being taken at 30 days' delivery, with the price guaranteed at 30c, so as to get in the business. There are no stocks on hand.

Ontario cheese has also climbed a notch, being now quoted at 15½c wholesale.

Local apples have put in an appearance on the market, but are as yet suitable only for cooking purposes.

Wenatchee peaches have been somewhat backward, and have not come to hand yet. Many grocers do not think they are equal to the different varieties of Crawfords that come from California. The prices this year have been higher than usual, which has made a difference in the quantity of preserving done. It is the Okanagon peach that is the general favorite in British Columbia, not because it is a home variety particularly, but because of its excellence. It is September, however, before they are received.

The Vancouver Produce and Meat Co., of Vancouver, contemplates the establishment of a meat packing plant at Sapperton, close to New Westminster. P. J. Russell, representing the concern, went over to New Westminster on Monday last and interviewed the city council in respect to certain privileges. The industry, which would be a local institution, since the stockholders are largely ranchers in the vicinity, would mean an expenditure of $50,000 in plant, and an annual payroll of $60,000.

On the 2nd August, Fernie, B.C., celebrated its first birthday since it started to rebuild after the disastrous fire of August 1st, 1908. That a city could make so much progress in a year is remarkable, and shows what sources of prosperity there are in the district. One of the features of Fernie's success is that it is a distributing centre, and seven large wholesale houses are located there. It has quite an extensive district in the Crow's Nest Pass, of which it is the centre—a district that is daily increasing in poulation and industries. An active board of trade does effective work in looking after general commercial interests.

REGINA.

August 24.—This week the whirr of the binder was heard throughout the country generally and quite a few farmers were seen driving their newly-purchased binders along the streets of Regina, so that they would be in a position to cut as soon as the grain was in shape. The main trouble just now seems to be the difficulty in procuring harvesters. In conversation with a couple of farmers living in the vicinity of Regina, they stated that it was absolutely impossible to get men to go out at all until the excursionists from the east arrived. One man stated that he had one hundred acres all cut and could do nothing towards getting it in, as he could not procure enough men to help him stook it.

Among the grocerymen noticed in the city this week was F. M. Morris, of Belle Plaine, who came down to see if he could procure a couple of harvesters to do some work for him.

Mr. Logan, of Davidson & Hay, wholesale grocers, was in the city last week.

H. E. Ford, representing the Imperial Tobacco Co., has just returned from a trip up the Canadian Northern north line, where he reports the crops as looking fine and business excellent.

G. C. Brereton, of Hamblin & Brereton, Winnipeg, spent a few days in the city this week along with Mr. Fraser, of the Sunlight Soap Co.

There are no changes to note in the grocery business and the retailers all report a good business being done and are making ready for the fall rush.

CALGARY.

August 24.—Another week of fine, warm weather has had a wonderful effect upon the rapidly maturing crops. Barley, oats and some wheat have been cut, but, generally, harvesting will not be in full swing in Alberta for a week to ten days. Grain crops of all kinds will be average or better. Sample will be No. 1, and if favored with good weather for a month longer, Alberta farmers will garner one of the most profitable crops in the history of grain-growing in the province.

Business is somewhat slack here, which is usual during August, many being out of town holidaying. The farmers, too, are busy on the farm.

Building operations go on unabated. J. T. Macdonald, the cash grocer, has doubled the capacity of his already large premises by adding some 70 feet at the rear of his store. This new addition is being fitted up with shelves, bins, and counters. The orders will now be put up here and all deliveries made from the rear of the store. The shipping department is also situated in the new addition and will afford accommodation for the more expeditious handling of the mail order department, which is growing to large proportions.

Grocery prices are practically unchanged. California dried fruits of the new pack are being quoted at slightly higher prices than last year. This is not unexpected, however, as it is freely admitted that growers lost money last year. Fresh fruits are in moderate supply, and dealers report that they could dispose of more goods if they could procure them, Alberta-grown vegetables are plentiful and of fine quality. Usually Alberta potatoes are not of the best quality, but this year's crop promises well, the warm, dry weather of the past few weeks being most favorable to the growing crop.

MANITOBA MARKETS

Winnipeg, Aug. 26, 1909.

The excitement in the west is very keen this week. It would be difficult to meet any business man just now whose mind is not filled with harvest gossip. Strange to say, the great harvest in Western Canada seems to directly effect every employe in the wholesale houses from the office boy to the general manager. Wholesalers are not thinking or talking of anything but business and prospects for more. It would be presumptuous to attempt to add anything to what has been published regarding the crop outlook, the newspapers have been full of it for a number of days, and now everybody is full—yes, intoxicated—with the spirit of enthusiasm which pervades the times. Wholesalers are evidently anxious to get their share of the money that is bound to be floating in the west this fall. And they will get it; short-handed as they are just now, they are being rushed with orders. Thousands of men are coming from Ontario and the United States to help the farmers and these men must be fed. The merchants throughout the country are also reaping their harvest now, but they with the wholesalers will be obliged to wait for a good deal of their money until the wheat is paid for. They are all used to that and are willing if they can only get the orders, that's all.

There is a general firmness in the market prices this week. Sugar, currants and California raisins are all enjoying a stronger market. Rolled oats

SUGAR—The market is continually growing stronger. The following quotations are nominal only, since the market is on the rise. The market in New York has advanced 10 cents and it is expected that the Montreal and western market will fall in line although the preferential trade may tend to give Canada an independent market in this commodity. At any rate as a result of the New York advance wholesalers are buying heavily at the present time.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—All the lines quoted below have a good market just now. Currants are strong owing to the heavy rains in Greece, which will injure a part of the crop at least. BUTTER—Creamery to-day is selling to the grocers at 24c per lb. and dairy is jobbing from 15c to 19c per pound. The market has been weaker for a few weeks, but September always sees a revival in the butter market.

EGGS—Grocers are paying about 21 cents for eggs just now. In the hot weather the trade went down considerably. It has been cooler for some days now and a revival in the market is reported.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Information supplied by sellers but for which the editors of The Grocer do not necessarily hold themselves responsible.

On another page of this issue there appears the advertisement of W. Meyer & Co., Patras, Greece, currant exporters. This advertisement contains considerable educative matter which no person interested in the sale of currants can afford to miss. Among other things it is pointed out why Greece is the great home of the currant, and buyers and salesmen will find some valuable information in its perusal. C. L. Marshall & Co., Toronto, are the agents.

Attention is called to the list, published in this number, of the firms in the wine, liquor and grocery trade, which Laporte, Martin & Co., Montreal, represent in Canada. The names of these different firms will no doubt bring to mind certain choice brands of goods which grocers have tasted and which are highly prized by the consumer on account of their quality. It is always good policy to sell goods which have an established reputation, and Laporte, Martin & Co. represents only firms of first-class order.

The "Salada" Tea Co. made another shipment of "Salada" tea to Nassau, B. W.I., last week. This is a continuation of business opened up in the Bahamas some time ago—the quality of "Salada" tea meeting the demands of our friends in the Bahamas which promises to develop somewhat extensively in the future, thus bringing the trade relations of that country into closer touch with the Dominion. It is a noteworthy fact that in the seventeen years "Salada" has been before the public that they have built up a market in almost every part of the North American continent, and have had the most enormous increases in sales year after year until over 20-000,000 packets was the immense output for 1908, they taking credit to themselves for having brought about the demand for Ceylon and India tea in the Dominion. The opening up of the trade of the Bahamas by this Toronto firm completes another link in the chain of "Salada" branches that almost encircles the continent.

The Canadian Grocer has been requested to state that in the Red Rose Tea advertisement, which appeared in last week's issue the figures for increased sales were intended to apply to Ontario, but the name of the province was inadvertently omitted. The increase in the sales of Red Rose Tea in Ontario during the first half of this year over the same months of 1907, was 19 2-5 per cent. as stated. And the increase in sales of Red Rose Tea, in the whole of Canada, during the first half of this year over the same period of 1907, was 15 per cent., which in view of the fact that 1907 was the high water mark in Canadian business, evidences a very satisfactory growth.

VALENCIA RAISIN SHIPMENTS.

An authentic report on the shipment of Valencia raisins and the prospects for the new crop is provided by a Toronto broker, who, this week, received the information from headquarters. During 1908 the total shipments amounted to 489,600 cwt., as compared with 519,885 cwt, of 1907. In 1908 the shipments to Canada were 74,935 cwt., while in 1907 they were 69,606. London, Eng., is the most important market, taking 140,916 cwt. in 1908, and 128,494 cwt. in 1907.

The crop this year promises about the same as last, although in Gandia and Valencia districts it is very small. From Ondara to Benisa it seems larger.

The crop of almonds, as reported from Valencia, will be about one-third less than last season.

Tactful Salesmanship for Holding the Trade

Feminine Shopper Voices Her Aversion to Obstrusively Persistent Sales Person—Clerks Must be Diplomatic in their Dealings—Inclination of the Customer to be Studied.

It is sometimes a difficult matter for the merchant or salesman to view, through the eyes of the customer, the store in which they are most directly interested. It is equally difficult to have customers express opinions upon the conduct of the store as a whole. Their patronage may, very often, be considered sufficiently indicative, but unless something unusual occurs, affecting their comfort or unless their purses are directly concerned, customers seldom give a merchant an opportunity to see himself as others see him, and then it is likely to be discouraging.

The Grocer has endeavored to secure an expression of outside opinion on this phase of the situation and, in reply to a query, "What do you consider the most agreeable form of salesmanship that you have experienced among the stores of your city," a lady residing in one of the larger cities, writes:

Bored by the Clerk.

"It is quite natural for a woman shopper, with plenty of time on her hands, to examine what is in sight in the department she visits before ca ling upon the salesman. She will find, however, that it is a difficult matter to conduct such a tour of inspection without being interfered with by a salesman. She cannot very well object to this when he proposes to ascertain her desires, or when she wishes to make an enquiry about goods, but when she has not made up her mind to buy it makes her uncomfortable to be bored by the persistent "butting-in" of a salesman anxious to make a sale whether she wishes to or not. This is excusable in a small store where space is valuable, but in a large departmental store it is nothing short of a nuisance.

"When a shopper has her mind fully made up before entering a store, she is not confronted by the same irritating process; she buys what she wants and departs. It is, I maintain, quite pardonable for a salesman to introduce new goods which he may think will appeal to the customer should she appear inclined to further examine articles at hand on the counter, but the salesman should be a close student of the disposition of his people. An obtrusive persistency may make a sale, but it will not make a regular customer. The shopper likes to exercise her own judgment up to that point where the knowledge of the salesman is essential to further enlightenments.

Ascertain Shoppers' Needs.

"I do not wish to be understood as stating that a salesman should not endeavor to ascertain a shopper's requirements as soon as she appears. He would be negligent in his business if he did not. His first duty is to ascertain whether he can be of any service. In the mojority of cases he will find that the shopper has something on her mind and that, without proving obnoxious, but, courteously attentive and agreeable, he will finally obtain results. She may wish to see goods, but does not wish to buy immediately. An obliging attendance on such an occasion will give the shopper a favorable impression and she will not forget it. But no shopper likes to be made to feel that she has to buy in order to escape from the salesman.

"I would say, therefore, that the most agreeable form of salesmanship, and also the most effective, so far as my experience goes, is that which has been courteous under all circumstances. It must be trying for a salesman sometimes to preserve his equanimity. His whole attitude will suggest, however, that it is a pleasure to show goods, but not to get on the nerves of his customers. The tactful salesman must necessarily be a close student of human nature, with the ability to draw therefrom those deductions which will prove an asset in making and holding, rather than marring and losing, a customer. He will know when his suggestions are wanted, and will offer them in such a way that his customer will feel that she still knows what she wants.

Counts for Store and Clerk.

"I have endeavored to give you a description of the most agreeable form of salesmanship I have met with in the stores of this city. It is the salesmanship that counts, both for the store and the clerk, because once she has come in contact with it, the shopper makes note of it and she will return to do business there later on."

The above letter was handed to the head of a department in a large Toronto store, and he immediately declared that it voiced his sentiments on the question of salesmanship.

A Case in Point.

"Let me tell you of an incident which occurred in our store some time ago," said he. "A lady, apparently a stranger, entered and asked to be shown a certain line of goods. She was somewhat diffident about it, as she stated that she was not prepared to purchase at the time; just wanted to see the goods. The saleslady obligingly went through the stock for the shopper's benefit. When she was satisfied, she departed. We thought no more about it until, a couple of days later, the lady called and gave an order for $40 worth of goods. Now, it would have been an easy matter to have spoiled any inclination she may have had to enter this store again. She is now a good customer, and another thing about it, she always asks for that particular clerk when she comes to this department.

"We have always made it a rule of the store that salespeople must display as great enthusiasm in showing goods to a doubtful customer as to one who unmistakably comes to buy. When a person enters the store with the expressed purpose of merely looking through, he or she is never pestered out of their good nature by the obnoxious attention of clerks. A shopper may very often form a decision more satisfactory to herself if she is left alone than when a salesman interferes with her train of thought, so to speak. On the other hand, there are people who request suggestions, and then it is up to the salesman. If he is tactful, he will be all thigs to both kinds."

LIVE WINDOWS NEEDED.

There is a vast difference in the amount of good which different people get out of their window displays.

A great many grocery stores, we are obliged to admit, don't "work" their windows as they should, and as a natural result the windows do not work for them.

The windows must be kept alive. They must be made to tell a distinct, emphatic story to the people who pass by and look in.

You can't make a lively window without putting things there which will attract attention, and cause people to keep watch of the windows for interesting things.

One grocer we know of adopted a simple little plan for a lively window attraction which brought him good results. About Thursday of each week he put a big placard in his window saying:

"Watch this window after 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Don't miss it."

Then at 5 o'clock Saturday the curtains of the window are drawn, and the merchant puts into the window some especially attractive bargains. It may be a choice line of sundries, at ten cents each; it may be a display of bananas at a low price, or in the berry season, of berries at a low figure. It is bound to be something which will move fast, and attract instant attention. People have learned to watch for this Saturday night window, for it always holds something especially attractive.

Tom Murray, the famous Chicago clothier, makes his windows shout for him all the time simply by his ingeniously worded and always convincing placards, written with a blue pencil on big sheets of paper, and fastened to the glass.

About the most discouraging looking thing about a store can be its window. A stale window, which has a tired, fly-specked look, indicates the same sort of a store back of the window, and repels, rather than attracts trade.

Keep the window fresh and lively. Keep the glass clean, and the woodwork freshly painted and gleaming. Keep the display constantly changing. One week is long enough for even the best window display under ordinary conditions.

The merchant who can't find fifty good window decorations a year in his establishment is certainly too slow to be in business in these hustling days.—Merchants' Journal.

Prominent Expert's Advice:

Keep Your Teas Uniform

Mr. Joseph M. Walsh, a well-known authority and writer on tea, in a second article on "The Art of Selecting and Testing Teas," in the August number of the Tea and Coffee Trade Journal, says:—

The importance of retaining the quality and flavor of the tea to which his customers are accustomed cannot be over-estimated by the dealer, as no dealer can afford to jeopardize his business or can expect success if his teas should one month consist of heavy-bodied, fine-flavored teas and the next of a thin, dull and watery liquor, and the third of a sharp, pungent and rasping kind. To maintain this essential regularity and uniformity is difficult, it must be admitted, as no two consecutive importations of tea will be found exactly alike, even though selected from the same picking or selected from those grown in the same district; the variations may still be so wide as to cause dissatisfaction among his patrons. Therefore, it becomes essential to the permanent success of the dealer to pay particular attention to the quality and uniformity of his tea, there being no article he handles which will attract or retain trade longer than good tea. A fine tea at a legitimate profit will create more comment in a neighborhood than any other commodity used at table, and, again, if customers should once lose confidence in the honesty or ability of the dealer to please them they will be repelled rather than attracted, it being almost impossible to get them back again. This is so important that it will not pay the dealer to make any mistake in the selection of his teas, as such mistakes will prove fatal to the holding of trade. Again, poor or inferior teas will drive away more customers in a week than can otherwise be made in a year. It will be found, therefore, much better and more profitable in the long run to sell only good teas at a smaller margin than to sell inferior teas at a larger one.

The remarkable success of RED ROSE TEA is due, first, to its high quality, and then to the fact that the quality is kept absolutely uniform. Every merchant and every user of RED ROSE knows that the next package will be as good as the last.

In bulk tea it is impossible for the retail grocer, especially under present trade conditions, to secure uniformity of straight tea. ESTABROOKS' BLENDED TEAS in bulk are, like Red Rose, guaranteed always uniform in quality. Besides, the expert blending of teas from different gardens makes them much better value than straight teas at the same prices; they have more body, richer aroma, more delicious flavor than straight teas.

Write for samples of Red Rose and Estabrooks' Blended teas. They will interest you. Packed in black, green, mixed, in both lines.

MARITIME BOARD REPORT

been left alone. Prince Edward Island should get what she deserves before any union was thought about.

New Men at the Helm.

The nominating committee under the chairmanship of W. F. Tidmarsh, reported as follows:—

President—W. B. Snowball, Chatham, N.B.

1st Vice-president — D. F. McLean, Port Hood, N.S.

2nd Vice-president — James Paton, Charlottetown, P.E.I.

Secretary-treasurer—C. M. Creed, Halifax, N.S.

Corresponding Secretary — W. L. T, Weldon, Chatham, N.B.

Auditor — E. A. Saunders, Halifax, N.S.

Mr. Snowball, the president elect, thanked the members for choosing him for the position. He hoped they would all come to Chatham, where the beauties of the Miramichi would attract and hold. Perhaps they would like the place so well that it might be selected as the site of the union parliament buildings. The other officers spoke, showing their appreciation of the honor conferred upon them.

Decision on Withdrawal.

It was announced that the St. John delegates had arrived and the left-over matters were discussed. Mr. Harvey, of St. John, announced that St. John had decided to withdraw from the Maritime Board of Trade. He spoke of contentious subjects which had dominated the Board. The St. John Board would cease to have any connection with the Maritime Board, with this meeting. He regretted that he had not any chance to say this before the officers were elected.

Mr. Paton said it was remarkable that delegates would come to advocate union and at the same time announce their withdrawal from the Board.

H. Logan could hardly believe St. John meant what the delegates had said about withdrawal. He would like to ask if the St. John Board had passed a resolution to that effect.

Mr. Bentley stated that the Maritime Board had accomplished great things. He regretted the action.

Senator Ross also regretted the action of St. John delegates. It was the first step towards weakness.

Mr. Edgett also regretted this bitterness of St. John. The Board should be broader and bigger, and surely St. John could reconsider their decision. It did not seem fair to throw this shock into the Board at its last call.

Mr. Snowball felt it was a disgrace to hear these things from St. John. He would not have accepted the presidency had he known the action of St. John. He had for years benefited by the meetings of the Maritime Board. He hoped St. John would stand by Chatham now, as Chatham had stood by St. John.

A. M. Bell referred to last year's meeting in Halifax, when he was president, and also to the year before at Amherst. He noted that St. John referred to the meeting of last year, and he felt it particularly keenly.

He went over the differences of opinion which had existed between St. John and Halifax. St. John has had the wrong end of the argument all along, and because they could not be reconciled they had decided to quit. Because they could not carry against the wishes of the meeting a local issue, should they withdraw? D. F. McLean regretted the bickerings. He would like to see more patriotism. St. John was not New Brunswick, nor Halifax all of Nova Scotia : The Board was dealing with larger issues and not with whimsical matters.

D. A. Morrison said as a member of the St. John Board that he was astonished at the action. He had always looked up to St. John business men as leaders, and it was a surprise to him. Their idea is that the Board had not been a success. Time had been wasted, etc. Whatever they thought, the action was not manly; it was not the nice way, not the usual St. John way. He believed St. John should come up with greater strength, instead of giving up. He believed the Maritime Board had done a great work and their voice had been a power. If St. John persisted in withdrawing, it would be met with general regret and the most influential Board of New Brunswick would be lost.

An Answer From St. John.

Mr. Harvey's mission to carry out the mandate of St. John Board was unpleasant. He referred to Mr. Bell's remarks and pointed out that the St. John Board had gone into history fully, before they came to the decision to withdraw. He knew that the delegates had received courtesy, but they wanted more than courtesy. They wanted action.

He regretted that theoretically the Maritime Board was a great institution. but practically it was of no great value. It was principally resoluting. He referred to the Amherst meeting, when he claimed that St. John offered to withdraw their resolution if Halifax would withdraw theirs.

"Yes," said Mr. Bell.

Mr. Logan offered a suggestion that there "were other places on the map besides St. John and Halifax." He believed Mr. Harvey was largely right regarding the discussion of too many petty matters.

He referred to the House of Commons where all kinds of trifling matters were discussed, and it was necessary to have a revision of subjects.

Then there was an old jealousy between St. John and Halifax, and that was one of the rocks on which the Board would be wrecked. The action of St. John was unfortunate. The Maritime Board met all day and all evening and another morning, and then when the paper containing the list of subjects was swept and when the officers were elected, the St. John Board stepped up and offered a resignation from the Board.

If he were president he would not accept the position. Some notification should have been sent to the Maritime Board beforehand. If the metropolitan city of St. John withdraws it means death to the Maritime Board.

He suggested that the St. John Board reconsider and give notice that next year they would resign. He implored the St. John Board to remain in the Maritime Board.

Mr. Hawke was another in accord with Mr. Logan, but he would recommend that the president should not resign, but should stick to his guns and they would all unite to live even if St. John did pull out. Even if St. John deserted, the Board would not die. He likened the situation to political resignations. He knew St. John was a great city, but the Provinces were greater. St. John City had, he believed, acted against their own interests. He thought there was room for improvement in the Maritime Board as to subjects for discussion. He recommended some changes in arrangement and advised cutting out the petty slurs and the personal pettiness. He appealed to St. John delegates to go back with a decision to reconsider. Political parties had all these troubles. Great bodies of men had to make sacrifices. Surely St. John could change its decision. He believed there would be a remedy. Instead of separating, they should unite. It was a grave matter to break up now.

J. L. Stewart, of Chatham, warned the chairman that discussion was taking place which had no application to the subject in hand. If St. John wished to resign they had a perfect right to do so and perhaps they might have the same right to return next year.

Mr. Harvey replied briefly, saying it was impossible to reconsider their decision, if the Maritime Board existed as it did to-day. When the Maritime Board came back to the lines for which its constitution aimed, St. John might be able to reconsider. Slurs and personal remarks had tended to kill the Maritime Board, and he was sorry.

To Work for Closer Union.

W. N. Edgett believed that notice must be given and he offered a resolution with the assumption that St. John had struck the key-note of saving, rather than killing the Board. The resolution was seconded by Mr. MacLean, and is as follows:

"That a special committee be appointed from this Board to change the method made in the arrangement and adoption of subject papers for discussion before the coming conference, and for providing ways to elevate this Board to a higher standard of discussion, and binding this Board closer together."

Mr. Snowball, the president, said he was not going to resign, and he intended to make this year one to be long remembered and by all odds the best in its history. He hoped St. John would give the Board one more chance.

Audited and found correct,
E. A. SAUNDERS, Auditor.

Just at the close of the Board, Wm. Stewart, of Summerside, arrived, explaining that owing to a local election in that town on Wednesday, he had been unable to attend. He dealt with the question of the inspection of all farm products, reading a short article from the Halifax Chronicle, speaking of the need of inspection.

Mr. Edgett spoke on this subject, supporting it, and Mr. Stewart's resolution in this connection was adopted.

Senator Ross then paid a compliment to the chairman.

Votes of thanks were passed to Premier Hazard for his kindness in permitting the assembly hall of the Government for the meetings; to the Charlottetown Board of Trade for various courtesies; also to the press and others, including the officers of the Board.

Geo. E. Calkin brought in a resolution as follows, which was left over until next year:

"Resolved, That in the opinion of this Board, the enacting of eight hours as a legal day's work would not be to the best interests of the agricultural districts of the country."

Approve of Dairy Inspection.

A letter was submitted during the discussion of the Summerside resolution, from Theodore Ross, of the Department of Agriculture, which showed that the Georgetown Board of Trade had passed a resolution approving of Government inspection of all dairy and other farm products. This was placed in the hands of the meeting by Mr. McFayden. The meeting then adjourned, after singing "God Save the King."

Post-Convention Events.

At noon the delegates were the guests of the Charlottetown Board of Trade, at an excursion to Vernon, where, at the Hillsborough consolidated school, a lunch was served. Speeches were given by President Snowball, H. Logan, Senator Ross and J. Paton.

After a delightful inspection of the college, the party was taken by special train to the Riverside Driving Park grounds, where the Caledonian Club of the Island were holding their annual Scottish gathering. The event was under the patronage of His Honor Lieut.-Gov. McKinnon, and His Worship the Mayor. The skirl of the pipes and the good dancing, coupled with a fine, real amateur athletic programme, delighted the visitors. The Scotch dress was in evidence everywhere and as Senator Ross said: "We had a good time, though whisky was scarce."

The delegates returned to Charlottetown in the early evening, happy and tired.

Notes.

Men like Secretary Miller, of Charlottetown, are hard to find. He proved an open-handed entertainer, and he and his Board were much praised.

Charles Creed was still showing his appreciation of the beautiful ladies. Charlottetown is blessed with nice women and agreeable men.

W. B. Snowball made an ideal chairman. His pleasing diplomacy threw oil on troubled waters quite often.

Mr. Tidmarsh is a valuable man to have in a city, as he is big, generous, thoughtful and clever.

Hance Logan, the former M. P., is a fine singer and in the special train, he and his bevy of ladies made the echo ring with splendid songs.

St. John men were all good-humored over the action, and considering this, it is likely if St. John and Halifax will bury the hatchet, things will be all right yet.

Chatham next. Mr. Snowball promises some good things and he is the man to carry out his word.

There is a fine river and harbor at Chatham, where fine steamboat excursions are available. Then, too, don't forget that Chatham has a fine, modern hotel with best of accommodation.

Advantages of Capital of the Garden Province

Charlottetown, Conspicuous for its Beauty — An Attractive Centre for Manufacturers and Tourists — Systematic Lay-out of the Streets—Some of the Manufactured Products.

Staff Correspondence.

Charlottetown, Aug. 23. — Charlottetown, where the conference of the Maritime Board of Trade met this year, is known for its beauty all over the world It is the third in size of the cities in the lower provinces. It was founded by Morris & Deschamps in 1768, and was incorporated in 1855. It possesses one of the finest harbors in the world; not only is it open to the ocean, but it is located at the confluence of three rivers —York, Elliot and Hillsborough. It is the capital of the Garden Province, and it is the principal city, where a thriving trade is carried on during the summer months. It has a splendid steamship service, and is the headquarters for the Charlottetown Steam Navigation Co., whose boats ply between the Island and the mainland.

A Mecca for Tourists.

For nearly half a century it has been known as one of the healthiest spots in the Dominion, and every year tourists flock to the island in increased numbers. The city is like a garden, the trees having been planted on all the streets; and being so fully surrounded by water it is never hot, even on the hottest days. The streets are regularly laid out, and are very attractive.

Beautiful public gardens adorn the heart of the city. It has a good lighting system, the best of water, and a modern system of sanitation. One of the most beautiful spots in the neighborhood of the city is Warren's Farm, at Rocky Point, nearly opposite the city, and within a few minutes trip by ferry. This was formerly Port La Joie, the former capital and residence of distinguished French officers under the French Regime. This fort was first settled by the French in 1720, but afterwards allowed to decay, but, in 1749 the Fort was resuscitated, and new buildings erected. The principal fort designed and laid out by the French, and afterwards laid out by the English, was called Fort Amherst.

The Victoria Park is one of the finest to be seen anywhere; it has an area of sixty acres. At Fort Edward located in the park may be obtained a fine view of the harbor and the rivers. Beautiful drives wind through it, and it would be a splendid place for automobiles, which are unhappily or otherwise forbidden on the whole Island. The golf links of Charlottetown are second to none in the world. They are said to even surpass links at St. Andrews.

Centre for Manufacturers.

Charlottetown contains some important factories. The principal ones are the Charlottetown Condensed Milk Factory, Bruce Stewart's Foundry, The Charlottetown Foundry and Machine Co., a boot and shoe factory, a flour mill, pork factory and several minor industries.

The island is easily reached by excellent steamship service, which, rather than being a toil to the tourist, is a real pleasure furnished by a beautiful sea voyage, which will long be remembered by the traveler.

T. B. and D. J. Riley.

One of the oldest manufacturing tobacco establishments in the east, is that of T. B. & D. J. Riley, of Charlottetown. The business was established in 1860, and from a small beginning has developed into a large and important industry thoroughly representative in every way. They manufacture and deal in all kinds of smoking and chewing tobaccos, and make a specialty of the following brands:—American Leaf twist, combination leaf twist, Turkish Navy smoking and John Bull chewing.

A specialty is also made of quality and the demand that is steadily increasing for the Riley goods is the best testimony to their quality. They sell all over the Island, and do some jobbing trade in other parts, always backing their goods by a guarantee that they are just as they represent them to be. The firm have a handsome building, largely occupied in carrying on their business and which is known as the Riley Building.

The individual members of the firm are keen, progressive men who have always taken an interest in the welfare of the city.

Carvell Bros.

One of the oldest established and thoroughly representative grocery houses in Charlottetown is that of Carvell Bros., whose place of business is located on Queen Street, This business has been established for many years, and has a steadily increasing patronage from retail merchants all over the Island. A specialty is made of select goods at reasonable prices, and further, a guarantee is given of prompt delivery. A staff of travelers is kept on the road, and a full range of staple and fancy groceries is always carried.

W. H. Aitken is head of the firm today, and is actively interested in the city at all times. He is on the council of the Board of Trade, and took an interest in the deliberations of the Maritime Board of Trade.

N. Rattenbury, Limited.

One of the best known wholesale grocery houses in the Island is that of N. Rattenbury, Ltd. They have been established under this firm name for 15 years, and have steadily grown in public favor.

They keep a staff of travelers busy all over the Island, and their trade is among the best class of retailers. A specialty is made of Dominion Blend tea, which is said to be among the finest Ceylon tea sold.

Mr. Rattenbury is a member of the council of the Board of Trade, and is a thoroughly representative citizen and merchant.

Mr. Grant the president of the company is a keen, capable business man, and has been an alderman for some time, as well as a member of the Board of Trade.

Outstanding Features of Canada's Harbor City

Wonderful Business Development in Recent Times—Facilities for Shipping Unsurpassed in the Dominion — The Home of a Champion Sculler—Possesses a Board of Trade Full of Activity.

Staff Correspondence.

Halifax, Aug. 23.—The city of Halifax is known far and wide as a military city. Its past is steeped in heroic doings, and its traditions are interesting to all who enjoy the militia. This is still fascinating, but modern people are developing a belief in the business side of the city. The majority of business men are wealthy, they take life rather easy and devote some time to the enjoyment of life.

GENERAL VIEW OF HALIFAX, N.S.

Everywhere are unmistakable signs of business developments and activity. The Street Railway is one of the best to be found anywhere. Shipping facilities are unequaled, and the local council offers encouragement to new industries. The Sillikar Car Company has had its most successful year since its foundation, and there are other industries of equal importance that are a credit to the city. The educational system finds its headquarters for the provinces in Halifax. There are splendid schools all equipped for the military training, Training Schools for refractory boys, Business Colleges, Medical Schools, two Theological Schools, Art Schools, two Conservatories of Music, Ladies' College, several Convents, and a University for higher education.

Commercial Facilities.

As a winter port Halifax has been well recognized lately by the fact that all the mail goes to this port during the winter. At the Maritime Board meeting the old question of running rights of the C.P.R. over the I.C.R. was again taken up. The city is fortunate in having good local railroad facilities, including those furnished by the I.C.R., the D.A.R. and the I.C.R. No guide book or railroad literature could be published without extended reference being made to Halifax harbor and city. The harbor is scarcely equalled in the world. The public gardens are magnificent and are said to be unequalled anywhere. These cover seventeen acres, and the foliage and flowers are of the rarest variety. Water fowl, real swans and ducks, etc., exist in the natural lakes, and all the beauties are natural ones.

During the first week in August, MacNeill, who won the single scull championship of the continent, was given a welcome in Halifax, which for loyalty and enthusiasm could not be surpassed anywhere. MacNeill is a native and has done a great deal to advertise the city.

The Northwest arm is one of the most delightful spots in the world for water sports and sea bathing. Here the Wagwoltic Club have a well equipped club house, and the guests at the Halifax Hotel have every privilege of this club. It is suitably named, being an arm of the sea stretching northward three miles until it reaches a point half a mile from Bedford,

Good behaviour is noticed on all sides, laws are well kept ; churches are well attended and strength of character and dignity are to be met with always.

The Board of Trade.

The Halifax Board of Trade is one of the most active in Canada ; its strength may well be measured by the fact that it is a city of 50,000 of a population and the members of the board number 600. This is the fifth year of the Board's new life of activity. They have recently been given notice to leave their very attractive rooms on account of some changes that are to take place in the building.

Moirs Limited.

Moirs Limited is one of the largest wholesale confectionery houses in the Maritime provinces. They also manufacture biscuits of first-class quality which they guarantee to be pure. Thev have a modern plant equipped with all the latest machinery. Their greatly increased trade goes to testify to the good work done by the house, and their management are clean, progressive business men, who are developing an industry which in every sense of the word is a credit to the city.

The I.C.R.'s Halifax Men.

J. B. Lambkin, assistant general passenger agent, is looking younger every day. "Jim," as he is known, has developed a very large number of friends all over Canada, and especially in Halifax and the province where he is "making good" in everv particular. The I.C.R.'s offices are handsomely fitted up, and it is one of the most popular spots in Halifax. The staff are all courteous and attentive to the public, and it is no trouble to get information here. Thousands of travelers call if only to shake hands with "Jim," and many of them are grateful to him for untiring attention to parties and individual persons on behalf of the I. C. R. How he keeps up his perennial youth is a secret that a great many people would like to discover. It is generally hoped that he will keep it for years to come.

Industrial Qualifications of the City of St. John

Its Admirable Location Gives It a National Prominence—Terminus of Two Railways—Harbor Facilities Play Important Part in its Industrial Life—Centre for Good Business Firms.

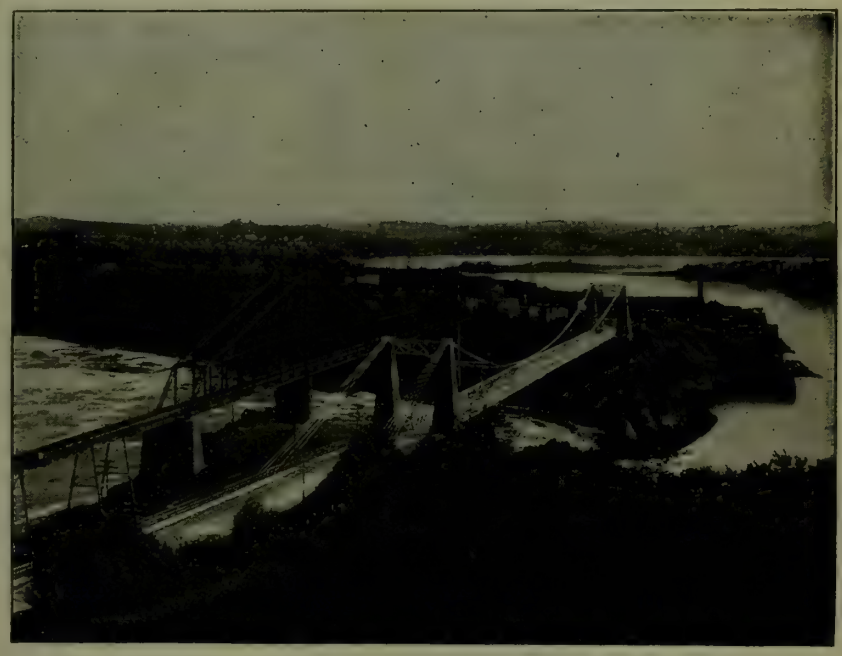
Staff Correspondence.

St. John, Aug. 25.—No city in the Maritime Provinces has won a better name for itself than St. John. Admirably located where the summers are cool and long and the winters are moderate and not too long, the city has won especial favor with tourists.

It is as a business city that St. John is best known. Her healthy climate seems to have created a mental and a physical equipment for her citizens that has meant enterprise and success in business.

The local Board of Trade has always invited industries to locate here and the council seems to have had that foresight which has attracted by careful attention several of the finest manufacturing establishments to be found anywhere.

The city is the terminus of two great railways, the C.P.R. and the I. C. R., and it is the winter port to Canada. Thus it connects the Dominion with Europe during the winter months and the shipping facilities are unexcelled.



Other industries which have to do with the advancement of the city are the manufacturing of cotton, the pulp industry, lime quarries, fruit and produce trade and the fishing industry. All varieties of wholesale business is carried on in St. John, the grocery and hardware lines being the dominant factors.

Charles H. McDonald.

Red Clover tea is identified with the name of "Charlie" McDonald, as this well-known manufacturers' agent is familiarly called. Mr. McDonald has had a wonderful success during the last three years, due almost entirely to his own untiring energy, the quality of the Red Clover brand of teas and his ability par excellence as a salesman. St. John is a tea centre and it is well known that there is greater competition in this city than in any other city in the Dominion. Despite all this, Charles McDonald has made his way and today enjoys a fine trade all over the Maritime Provinces. He has studied the tea business from the plantation up and it is not surprising that he has won confidence and trade everywhere.

G. E. Barbour & Co.

No wholesale grocer in the Maritime Provinces enjoys a better all-round reputation for fair dealing than does G. E. Barbour & Co. They enjoy more, namely : every customer considers it a pleasure to do business with them. Prompt, polite and expeditious in all matters, the best of staff and the best of goods in all lines of groceries give them an advantage over almost any establishment lacking such qualifications. No matter who the caller is at the Barbour place of business he may be positive of a nice reception, and even if no business is done, it is one of the characteristics of the house to treat everyone well. Certainly G. E. Barbour & Co. have a great future before them.

Reversing Falls, St. John, N.B.

Thos. McCready & Sons, Ltd.

The fine plant of Thos. McCready & Sons has been much enlarged during the past year and they have now one of the finest vinegar factories to be found anywhere. They manufacture pickles and spices and have a specialty of the purest of cider vinegar, guaranteed the best available. It is now a quarter of a century since this business was established and it ranks in the forefront of the eastern industries. They make Worcester sauce, fruit syrups and mustard, all of which have a steadily increasing sale all over the Dominion. J. T. McCready is general manager and secretary of the company and to his ability is largely due the modern plant and recent improvements. Prompt shipments are always assured.

The White Candy Co., Limited.

The White Candy Co. seems to survive all the competitors in the candy business and they hold their trade stronger as years go by. This can be largely attributed to the sterling quality of the goods and the excellent management and practical knowledge of the candy business possessed by Thos. White, the founder and owner to-day. They make a rare variety from the cheapest penny goods to the more expensive box and finest holiday goods. Purity is the watchword, and fair dealing is a characteristic at all times. Mr. White has an ambitious scheme on now for the enlargement of his business and his many friends wish him success.

Buildings of R. T. Holman, Limited, Proprietors of "Prince Edward Island's Biggest Store."

Welcome Soap Co.

Naptha soap has become a household word all over the Maritime Provinces and elsewhere in the Dominion. The Welcome Soap Co. have every reason to be proud of their soap as it is a powerful cleanser and will hold its merit in competition against any soap made today. They have made a specialty of a soap for cleansing clothes, and this Naptha has made satisfied customers wherever used. A specially popular scheme will be explained to grocers who will drop a line to the head offices at St. John.

Puddington, Wetmore & Morrison.

Puddington, Wetmore & Morrison is a comparatively new firm of wholesale grocers in St. John. The individual members are all favorably known in the Provinces. Mr. Puddington was for years a traveler for an influential house and Mr. Morrison has had a business of his own in Amherst—which he still retains—for years. Mr. Wetmore is known in St. John and other points and the combination can scarcely fail to be a strong and successful one. They carry a full and complete line of staple and fancy groceries and cover the entire field of the Provinces most aggressively. A specialty is made of promptness in delivery and they guarantee satisfactory service all along the line.

Mr. Morrison was an active participant in the Maritime Board of Trade meeting where he has for years been a conspicuous debater. He is a general favorite—and he has one friend in the Halifax Board at whom he pokes some fun occasionally.

Building Up Business in the Island's Biggest Store

How R. T. Holman, Limited, Have Secured High Reputation for Service in Prince Edward Island — Give Best Possible Value for the Money and Treat Customers According to Their Stations in Life—"Follow Up" Methods Used Effectively—Business Men at the Helm.

Staff Correspondence.

Summerside, Aug. 25.—No reference could well be made to Prince Edward Island without mentioning the biggest store, which is owned by R. T. Holman, Ltd., wholesale and retail merchants, at Summerside. It is two years over half a century since this business was founded by the late R. T. Holman. The growth of the Island and this firm began almost together, and they have kept pace ever since. What Whiteley's did for England many years ago, Holman's have done for Prince Edward Island. There is no reasonable want known to man that connot be supplied at Holman's, Ltd. In fact it was the genius for supplying all the wants of the people, and purchasing all farm and fish products that the people had to sell, which developed this business in the first place.

Summerside, now a thriving town of over 3,000 population, was scarcely worthy of the name of hamlet in 1857. It was merely a calling place for sailing ships, and the whole population of the Island was not large. However, this was soon remedied, and as the population increased it was only natural as a sequence that the business of R. T. Holman increased accordingly. It was the old story of necessity being the mother of invention, and the late Mr. Holman not only supplied the needs of the farmers and others, but he accommodated them in many ways, and made friends all over the Island. That life is a cumulative consequence in business, as in any other walk, is evidenced by the business of to-day, which has evolved into the corporation of "R. T. Holman, Ltd," dealing wholesale and retail in dry goods, groceries, hardware, boots and shoes, millinery, coal, wood, lumber, wool, hides, raw furs, farm products, etc., and in almost every imaginable line from the proverbial needle to the anchor.

From the crude beginnings of years ago magnificent premises have been erected, including in addition to a splendid solid brick store, with frontage of about 390 feet, and several large warehouses, all fitted up throughout with everything modern and useful for carrying on the large departmental store.

The incorporation took place in 1906, a few months previous to the death of R. T. Holman, Mrs. Holman being still a member of the firm. The directors include Harry T. Holman, president; J. S. Hinton, vice-president and secretary, upon whom the active management of the business devolves; J. LeRoy Holman, treasurer; Geo. P. Walker and Mrs. Holman are the other directors. A glance at the store itself would be an eye-opener to many of the western people, who have a hearsay notion that people on the Island are "slow."

Timely Window Displays.

The windows of any of Montreal or Toronto's biggest stores are not as a rule more attractive than those of Holman's Ltd. They make a specialty of decorating the departments and windows so that visitors to the town—especially their own customers—are sure to see something they need, which promptly whets the buying appetite. A large staff is constanly employed, including travelers in different parts of the Island, who look after the jobbing side of the business especially, which is growing rapidly from year to year. In fact it is a slogan on the Island, not only in the retail stores but in the homes, that when they think of anything they want they think of Holman's. This has been brought about by two forces, one is the basic principle of the business by the founder, namely, to give the best possible value for the money, and to give your customer terms in keeping with his walk of life. The other has been judicious advertising. Coupled with the use of the daily and weekly papers, this firm has a system of circularizing which is entirely their own. It has "follow up" methods and "reminder elements," which in some respects would give the Sheldon school of salesmanship some pointers. It is only natural that the individual members of the firm would be keenly interested in the welfare of Summerside—in fact, the whole Island.

Mr. Hinton, the vice-president, was one of the Water Commissioners, who installed the present system in Summerside. It is a credit to the town that it has one of the finest water and sewerage systems in Canada. The water is brought from two artesian wells. A. McGill, chief analyst of the Dominion Government, pronounced these waters "of the highest degree of organic purity." This is mentioned in passing in order to show the enterprise and progress which exist in the town.

Harry T. Holman, the president, is a young man of marked business capacity, and that he has been honored by the position of president is evidence of the confidence which the other members of the firm have in him. Mr. Holman is a wide-awake business man, and is known everywhere. A similar statement might be made of the other directors of the firm who are closely identified with the best interests of Summerside. The company is in every way a credit to the town and to the Island.

Some idea of the premises may be gathered from the accompanying cut, showing the exterior of the immense buildings.

HAVE TO SHOP EARLY.

Customers of Tilbury Grocers Must Change Their Customs—A Commendable Step.

The merchants of Tilbury, Ont., have come to an agreement among themselves to ask their customers to leave orders for groceries before 9.30, as no order taken after half past nine will be delivered. This is an action the grocerymen there think should have been taken long ago, since there is no reason why the townspeople can not get their orders in by that time. Sometimes on Saturday evenings, or more correctly speaking Sunday mornings, the delivery men from the different stores are on the street with parcels at 1.30 o'clock. Tilbury merchants are taking the proper method when they accomplish anything that will tend to eliminate late deliveries. Habits of customers have to change when everybody opposed stick together.

Store Equipment and Service are Responsible

Grocer Down by the Sea Has Splendidly Furnished Store—Carries Expensive Line of Crockery — Drawing Showing Conveniences, Including Fruit Stand, Show-cases, Self-Measuring Coal Oil Tank and Storehouse Elevator.

Yarmouth, N.S., Aug. 24.—Merchants now-a-days are recognizing more and more the value of a store that is serviceable to them. In former times any corner room in a residence was suitable for a grocery. It served the purpose of office, store-room, unpacking room, as well as a place from where to make sales to customers.

What has brought about this change? The answer is plain. Consumers want to purchase where service is efficient and where things are attractive, and only efficient service can be rendered where equipment is efficient.

Therefore when a merchant is contemplating the erection of a new store he should take into consideration the equipment which will best serve the interests of his customers.

One man in this town who made a study of his requirements before he built was W. P. Crosby. He now has the pleasure of giving to his patrons a service that they appreciate and he has been rewarded by a steadily growing business and a large clientele.

Mr. Crosby carries both crockery and groceries, but, while he does a substantial business in the former, the greater part of his time and attention is naturally given to the grocery department. The accompanying cut shows the proprietor at the crockery counter, on and behind which are displayed some handsome goods.

The drawing illustrating the layout of the business floor of the Crosby store shows the convenient equipment. The store was planned by the owner and built for him three years ago, which was one year after he had launched out into business for himself. His connection with the trade, however, extends over a period of 14 years.

Interior Arrangement.

The store-front, an important feature in the business of any store, is an attractive one, showing two large show windows on either side of a seven-foot entrace with double-doors each 2½ feet wide. The store is 26 feet wide, leaving 19 feet of display window to the view of the passer-by. The building is 44 feet in length, divided into two sections—28 feet given up to the store proper and 16 feet to storeroom.

Reproduction From a Photograph Showing Crockery Shelves and Counter in W. P. Crosby's Store, Yarmouth, Nova Scotia.

The interior is painted in natural wood with white enamel shelving, which presents an attractive appearance. Modern ideas in shelving have been used, making the sides inviting to the eye. Show-cases are arranged on the grocery counter for confectionery, all of which has a background of canned and bottled goods. A large fruit stand and show-table are located in the centre of the store with a counter to the rear.

The drawing will also show the location of the office including desks and safe. As cleanliness is an important attribute to the carrying on of the grocery business, a sink and water-tap are among the fixtures.

This is more important than it may seem. No grocer can afford to sell foodstuffs after he has just handled coal-oil, without washing his hands. Particular customers will not stand for that, and although it looks a small matter, counts up big when a good-will to a business is considered important.

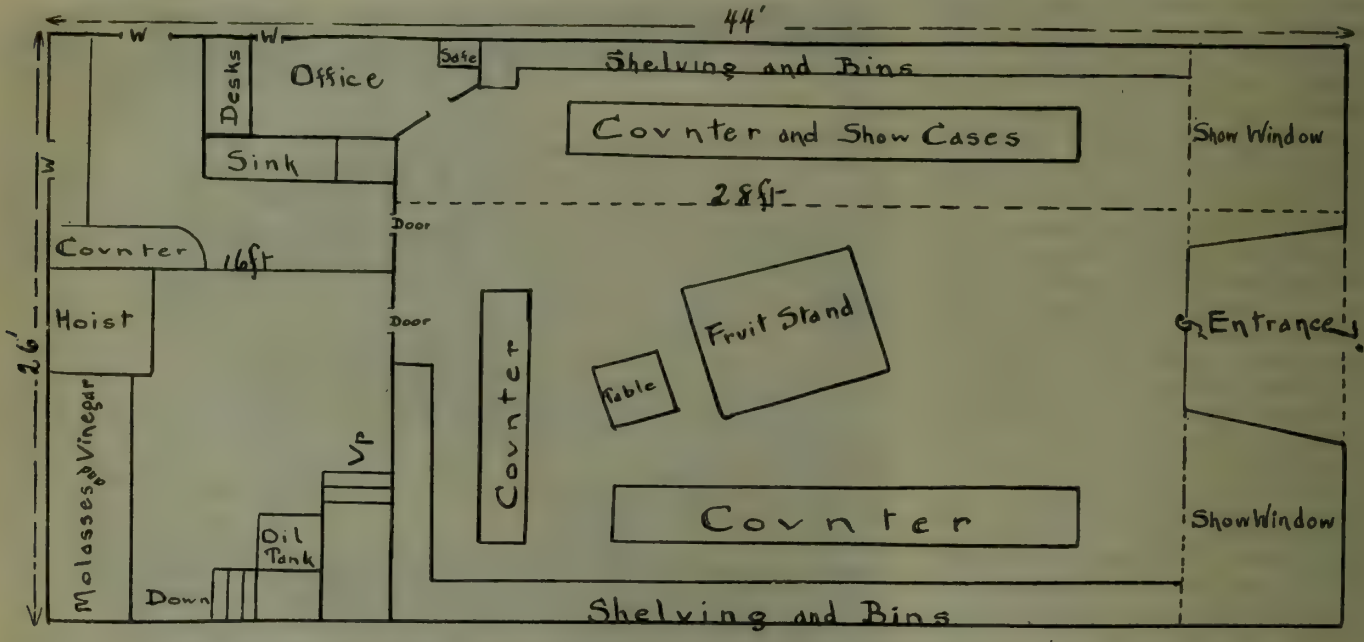
The Crosby store is fitted with one of the latest self-measuring oil tanks located in the store-room at the rear. This is kept separate from all other commodities.



The basement is the same length and width as the building and a store-room of similar size is located on the second storey. An elevator at the rear plies from basement to the floor above and saves all heavy lifting so common to many grocery businesses.

The Crosby store uses a team in its delivery waggon.

The trade being done justified the expenditure of three years ago in the erection and fitting up of the store.

Mr. Crosby says: "We have a good business and it is steadily growing."

Modern business methods, efficient service and convenient equipment tell why he is increasing his trade.

HOGGING THE SALMON.

Accusation Against United States Fishermen—B. C. Catch Not up to Expectations.

Staff Correspondence.

Vancouver, Aug. 24.—Provincial fisheries' inspectors have obtained direct evidence that the United States trap owners are observing no close season whatever in regard to salmon fishing. They are supposed to close the traps for 36 hours each week, from Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock to Sunday morning at 4 o'clock, but last Saturday when officials went to Point Roberts, they found the traps full of fish. The entrance to the traps can be blocked by unrolling a net, but this is unrolled only to the surface of the water.

Prof. Prince also reports that he found the traps full of fish during the close season on Saturday. Not only that but the Washington law says that gasoline boats must not be used to haul purse seines, yet not a rowboat can be found in use, everybody using gasolines.

Those are two of the reasons that few fish are getting past. It is all the more irritating to the Canadians, since the fish are propagated in the Fraser River, and are bound back there to spawn, and yet Canada gets little benefit. The United States fishermen are hogging the fishing, evidently little caring if it is exterminated, as long as they make gain in the present.

The season closes on the 25th, and the British Columbia canners expect to have put up 400,000 cases, or just half what was expected, and for which preparations were made. The pack to date on Puget Sound is 650,000 cases. Word comes to hand from the Sound that the end of the run is in sight. A request is being made to Ottawa to extend the open season, since none at all is observed on the other side of the line.

Four old Scotchmen, the remnant of a club formed some fifty years ago, were seated around the table in the club room. It was 5 a.m., and Dougal looked across at Donald and said in a thick sleepy voice:

"Donald, d'ye notice what an awfu' peculiar expression there is on Jock's face?"

"Aye," says Donald. "I notice that, he's deead! He's been deead these four hours."

"What? Dead! Why did ye no tell me?"

"Ah, no—no—no," said Donald, "A'm no that kind o' man to disturb a convivial evening.'

HOW TO COLLECT ACCOUNTS.

Difficulty Usually Experienced When They are Not Colected at Time Agreed Upon.

It is said that when the average account is ninety days past due, it is not worth more money than two-thirds of its original amount; that at six months it is worth about fifty per cent. and that when one year over due it is practically worthless. This does not mean that no account which is a year old can be collected, but the majority of them, if they are collected, cost the creditor about as much as he receives from them.

The time to collect an account is when it is contracted. The man who extends his credits should have a definite understanding when he does so as to the exact date upon which the settlement will be made, and he should permit nothing to interfere with his bringing the matter to the attention of the debtor at the time agreed upon.

There is not a shadow of a doubt but what hundreds of thousands of dollars are lost in poor accounts which could have been collected had the merchant used only ordinary business caution and demanded payment when the account was first due.

Many customers living well up to their income hate to pay for dead horses, and after they find that their creditors do not push them too strenuously for the amount of their indebtedness they naturally are inclined to become careless about the matter and neglect to pay what they owe, unless closely followed up and compelled to do so.

The merchant who watches his collections closely and never permits the account of a customer to run unnoticed beyond the date agreed upon for settlement is the one who will succeed in keeping control of his capital for use in his business, instead of having it tied up in slow and poor book accounts.—Trade.

BACON IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

That from Canada said to be Too High in Price—United States Produce Accepted.

J. E. Ray, Canadian trade commissioner at St. John's, Newfoundland, in reporting to the government at Ottawa makes the claim that Canadian produce to the country is so high in price that the trade is necessarily restricted. He says:

"Bacon and hams from the United States are readily saleable in Newfoundland not so much on account of quality as price, for it is realized that the pea and hard grain fed hogs of Canada are infinitely preferable to the corn-fed hogs of the United States. The purchasers, however, are inclined to consult their pockets as well as their taste, except in a limited number of cases.

"One of the largest packers and exporters in Canada writes: 'We are inclined to think that the majority of the trade in Newfoundland would not be disposed to pay the advanced value, and in consequence we have not made any effort to market our products on your island.' Another firm writes: 'At the present time we would not be able to compete with United States firms in shipping hams and bacon to Newfoundland; but if the buyers would be willing to pay the same difference on account of the quality as we get in England, there is no doubt that arrangements could be made to have shipments made to them.' A third firm writes: 'We have had the satisfaction of supplying one or two houses with select brand of breakfast bacon at intervals, and we are assured by them that the product is purchased because it suits a particular trade that they cater to. While the trade at present is not large, we see every reason why it should be augmented.'

Canadian Bacon Superior.

"The following extract from the letter of a Newfoundland firm probably states the position exactly. 'We handle considerable quantities of green (boraxed) hams and bacon and import the former exclusively from the United States. We might say also that we import bacon exclusively from Canada. The reason we do not handle Canadian hams is because Canadian packers cannot compete with Americans. We usually find American 1c and sometimes as much as 2c a lb. lower than the Canadian packer. On this account we have never in our experience handled any Canadian hams. We find Canadian bacon very much superior to American. We attribute this to the fact that most Canadian hogs are fed on peas, whilst American hogs are fed on corn, the latter feed giving the American meat a greasy and oily nature. At present we are getting satisfaction from an exporter in Canada.'"

LONG-LIVED MARITIMERS.

A Peculiarity of the Men and Women Down by the Atlantic.

The finest product of the Maritime Provinces is not their superior potatoes, or the Malpeque oyster, or their brainy politicians, says a writer. It is green old age. Travelers from Canada—the old people of Acadia still apply that name only to Ontario and Quebec—wonder if they ever die down by the sea, and certainly no one outside ever lives long enough to find out. Every now and then Sir Charles Tupper is pointed to as a mervellous example of active old age. He is eighty-eight, and every year he crosses the Atlantic and the continent, submits to interviews, and writes for the magazines. But the old Cumberland war-horse is just ordinary for a Nova Scotian. He is not really very old, and he is not active. It is rather a shame for him to have retired. Now there is Pilot Lahey, eighty-six last September, and bringing the C.P.R. Empress steamers into St. John harbor all winter, just as he did the clipper ships of sixty years ago.

"How old are you, Lahey?" asked an old Glasgow captain, as the old pilot brought his vessel up the narrow channel past McAvity's dredge one evening last autumn.

"I'm sixty," was the gruff reply.

"Well, you don't look it," rejoined the Scotchman.

My Christmas pudding last year, writes a correspondent, was made by a New Brunswick woman of eigthy-five, who thinks her daughters too inexperienced for such special cooking, and who occupies her leisure with books and needlework, announcing that she will not take up bridge until she is an old woman. I have before me a small flimsy handkerchief, hem-stitched and trimmed with English thread lace. There is nothing remarkable about its appearance, but my wife tells me it was made by another New Brunswicker, a lady of ninety-eight; that she used No. 200 thread and took up every hole, and that she doesn't wear glasses.

Of course, death does overtake some of them. Senator Wark, for instance, of Fredericton, and Mrs. Blizzard, of Grand Lake, were just over one hundred, and Joseph Wade, of Annapolis Royal, was unfortunate enough to catch a bad cold at one hundred and two, which proved fatal. On his hundredth birthday, his family unto the fourth and fifth generation greeted him at breakfast, and one rather bumptious nephew, a lad of sixty, asked him:

"Uncle Josie, how do you feel upon commencing your second century?"

"Well, my boy," said the hero of the occasion, "I think I feel a good deal stronger than when I began my first."

Produce and Provision Situation of the World

Canada Exporting Little Hog Products to the Old World—Home Trade Attracting Attention—Farmers Not Going Into Hog-Raising Extensively—Not Much Movement in Butter While Cheese is Firm.

So far as Canada is concerned, conditions seem to be changing and instead of looking to England to regulate our bacon market, we have all we can do to supply our home markets. It was thought that the high prices for hogs would induce farmers to raise more, but as one packer said this morning, "Farmers are getting too well eff to be feeders of swine, and are living on better things." Hogs are still far below the capacities of the packing houses, and stocks on hand are diminishing. This week the receipts are very small, but this generally happens when farmers are busy with their harvesting. This is a condition not only local but extends beyond our own market.

Enquiries from England about creamery butter caused a little movement, but it proved that there are more sellers of butter than buyers. The exports of butter so far this year are far below last year. This shows that an unusually large quantity must either be in the hands of creameries or in cold storage, held by dealers. With much lighter supplies from Siberia and Denmark, England may wake up to the fact that she requires our butter and relieve the situation here.

The cheese market is firm, which is caused more through the keenness of buyers to do business, than on account of its value. The prices which are paid afford very small margins and although with nothing in sight on which to expect a rise, dealers have a hope that it might come their way.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—Pork is easier this week, prices having shaded about 50 cents. Dressed hogs are quoted a little less than a week ago with Windsor bacon down a cent also.

PROVISIONS.—The supply of hogs this week is unusually short. This is likely owing to the busy harvesting time. The demand for all cured meats, is active and the stocks are rapidly diminishing. CHEESE is kept at the highest limit through the keen competition of buyers, although considered too high for safe handling. The local demand is good, with a noticeable increase in consumption. This is largely owing to the fact that the best is not any too good for our own people, and instead of sending all the good cheese to England, a home trade is cultivated by putting better goods on our home market. Good trade will always respond to good goods, and if this rule is carefully followed we may look for an extensive increase in our home market.

EGGS—Eggs are firm, that is, the price; the quality is weak. There are so many things wrong in our practice of handling eggs that it should attract the attention of our legislators, and institute a system by which the large percentage of eggs could be saved from spoiling. If a correct estimate could be made of the loss sustained through the careless handling of eggs it would be amazing. To save all this immense loss it would not cost the country, or any individual anything, but better habits and methods in doing the work.

DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR.

Finding the life of a groceryman too arduous, and having other business interests which return more dividends than his store, William Sheehan, of Sprinfield, Ill., has leased his store, and will go to Pueblo, Col., there to look after these other interests. The Sprinfield Register sings the praises of Mr. Sheehan in the following strain:

"Mr. Sheehan has been one among the few successful grocery merchants who began at the bottom and climbed to the top round of the substantial business ladder of fame, not a plunger, but a careful, enterprising, pains-taking merchant, who advertised his business by always giving one dollar's worth of groceries for every dollar received."

NOTES.

E. H. Ruttan, Wallaceburg, is enlarging his grocery by extending it several feet at the back. He intends to add a stock of boots and shoes.

Ridgetown will have a canning factory in full operation this year, the St. Thomas Canning Co. having overhauled the Harrison building and installed machinery for canning tomatoes. Some 40 hands will be employed. Machinery for handling all lines of fruit and vegetables will be installed next year.

The way of the transgressor is hard, but it isn't lonesome.

It takes a certain amount of blow and bluster to raise the dust.

The world cares little for what you believe—it's what you do that counts.

Fun Waxes High at the Winnipeg Caterers' Picnic

Grocers, Butchers and Bakers ofthe Western Metropolis Take a Day off — Ball Games, Fat Men's Races and the Greasy Pole Among the Features—Sensations Served up in the Baseball Contest—The Prime Happenings of the Day.

Staff Correspondence.

Winnipeg, Aug. 24.—Grocers, butchers and bakers, with their wives and children to the number of about twenty-five hundred, spent a gala-day at Winnipeg Beach on Wednesday, August 18. Many were weary from the previous day's extra trade, but as the day broke clear and bright and all plans had been elaborately prepared for the greatest caterers' picnic, there were few who did not pack their baskets and hustle for the trains, leaving behind all business cares for the few foreigners in the fruit business to worry with. That day there was not a wholesale grocery house or a retail grocery store or a butcher shop or a modern confectionery store open to the public. The caterers did not care for the public—it was their day off, and they made good use of their opportunity. Three trains averaging twelve coaches each carried the jolly multitude to the greatest summer resort in Western Canada.

E. V. BATTLEY,

Secretary of The Caterers' Association, Who Was Greatly Responsible for Picnic's Success.

We will say little of the journey of fifty miles. It may be said, however, that the C.P.R. were not particularly courteous in lining up an inferior grade of rolling stock. Next year the caterers will be assured of better accommodation or the C.P.R. will lose a valuable customer.

And the Band Played.

Upon the arrival at the beach, however, the frowns quickly changed to pictures of merriment. Everybody was happy, and Winnipeg's city band under the direction of Mr. Barrowclough, which was engaged to accompany the pleasure-seekers, added materially to the fun of the day. The band consisted of about thirty instruments and they played almost ceaselessly from the time they left the city until they arrived again at midnight.

The management of the excursion is to be congratulated upon securing the services of such a "lusty bunch of tooters" as one peculiarly eloquent grocery clerk was heard to remark.

President Milton of the Caterers' Association met the trains at the depot and acted as master of ceremonies in carrying out the long programme of sports.

It Was 'Some' Ball Game

A baseball game between the grocers and butchers vs. travelers and bakers was called first and proved one of the most excitable and interesting features of the day. It was a ball match that would make a league team sit up and take notice. Jack Conglaton and Jimmie Spiers, the batteries for the travelers and bakers, and Chum Neville and Thor. Thorenson, two young grocery clerks, the batteries for the grocers and butchers, knew how to play ball. Chum Neville was a wonder at the game. They could not hit his twisters, and he could steel bases like Jack Thoney in his palmy days. The rooters manifested lots of spirit and had there been a grand stand around, a big league game in Chicago would have had nothing on the caterers. The score ended at 5 to 2 in favor of the travelers and bakers.

After the ball game an interesting line of sports were run off. They consistel chiefly in running and swimming races. The boys' and girls' races were keenly contested. It became quite evident on more than one occasion tbat the merchants of the future will not be satisfied with anything but first place. The merchants' wives also meant business when the married ladies' race was run. It became evident that if the merchants' wives were behind the counter, there would be a serious attempt to win out in a record breaking business.

Fleet Footed Grocers.

Alderman Gowler, a grocer, won the old men's race and thereby received an order for a new hat which was the first prize donated. Gowler can run, and there is little doubt that he will win out in the next election when he runs again for alderman. Billy Boyd reduced his weight three pounds by winning out in the fat men's race. Oh! how he did puff, and his legs are still sore. His prize was five dollars' worth of goods donated by a wine merchant. No one knows what he took.

The first prize championship caterers' race of 220 yards was won by H. Marples, a young provision merchant, who has already won fame for himself in other circles as a harrier.

The weather and water were quite conducive to a splendid exhibition in the aquatic sports, swimming, walking the greasy pole and long diving were the features. The greasy pole contest taxed the equilibrium of a few of the level-headed boys. Only one boy walked to the end of the twenty-foot pole as it overhung the water.

An hour's dancing in the evening brought the great day to a close. It was then that the brave and the fair met to softly congratulate one another on the triumphs of the day.

The twenty-third annual excursion of the caterers was the greatest in the history of the association. Much credit is due the management for the pains that were taken to prepare and execute the programme in its entirety.

U. S. GROCERS' ASSOCIATIONS.

The Little Rock, Ark., U.S.A., retail merchants will again promote and manage their own food show, to be held October 20 to 30. They recently voted to decline the offers of several pure food show promoters.

From Decatur, Ill., comes the news that some of the grocers did not attend the annual picnic of the grocers, but remained at home and sold groceries. These stay-at-homes, however, are not members of the association.

September 1 is the day on which the Wichita, Kan., grocers will hold their fifth annual picnic. The grocers will not open their stores at all on that day. Employes of the city departments of the local produce houses, mills and packing-houses will be asked to join the grocers in making merry.

State Manager, J. E. Foster, of Arkansas, is still busy organizing local associations of retail merchants in that state . The latest report from him shows that Walnut Ridge, Pocahontas, Mammoth Springs, Harrisburg, Black Rock, Vandale, Conway and Morrilton, are the last towns to get organizations.

N. D. Hooper, a native of Fredericton, N.B., died recently at Portland, Me. Some years ago he was a member of Whittier & Hooper, wholesale grocers, at Fredericton. Later he removed to St. John, where he was connected with Geo. S. de Forest & Sons, afterwards becoming a commercial traveler and residing at Hampton. Six years ago he removed to Portland, Me., representing a firm in that city on the road up to the time of his death.

SOME EFFECTIVE WORK.

A splendid example of the effectiveness of retail organizations is provided by the work accomplished by traders' associations in the Old Country as regards the keeping up of retail prices. So effective have their operations been that the Civil Service Supply Association—established since 1866—has had to conform to manufacturers' ultimatums so far as fixed minimum prices to consumers are concerned. The following advertisement from a London paper explains the situation tersely:

"The Civil Service Supply Association, Limited, established in 1866 not to make profits, but to supply the best goods at the lowest possible prices for cash, now finds that pressure from traders combined in an association for the purpose of keeping up the retail prices of proprietary articles has caused certain manufacturers to fix minimum prices below which their articles must not be sold. To meet this action the Civil Service Supply Association has decided that the extra profits derived from the sale of those articles shall be utilized in reducing the prices of the great variety of other goods in which there is and can be no limitation of price."

World's Wheat Market Declines—Canadian Flour Market Follows Suit—Tendency Towards Lower Cereal Prices—Good Demand for Feed.

A general drop in wheat was reported last week in Ontario, but this week a decided decline has taken place almost all over the world. The immense crop in the great Northwest, under favorable weather conditions has a depressing effect on the wheat markets in general. The present is supposed to be the largest crop of wheat ever produced in the Northwest. While France was supposed to be short, it is now reported that she has much in excess of last year. According to all this, perhaps our bakers will be good enough to give us a loaf of bread again in place of a decent sized cake.

The Canadian Grocer has been pointing out for some time to grocers, the advisability of reducing their stocks of flour and cereals, which, if they have done so it should provide them a little money in buying now at reduced prices.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—A decline of 40c a barrel occured in flour this week, following the sharp drop in wheat. The lower prices have not stimulated buying to any extent. Millers all report only a fair amount of business passing.

PEACH CROP IN ESSEX.

Estimate Places it at a Larger Quantity Than Last Season.

Kingsville, Aug. 25.—Fruit growers around Kingsville, Leamington and Olinda, which section constitutes the peach belt of Essex, are congratulating themselves on the promising outlook for the peach crop this year, which, they predict, will be unusually large.

Early in the spring considerable anxiety was felt over the rapid spread of curl leaf among the different orchards. While curl leaf has been attacking the trees for several years, the spread this year seemed much larger than usual. The trees were not affected by it as much as usual, which is accounted for among the growers by the fact that the trees came through the winter in much better condition than they generally do.

It is estimated among the fruit growers that the yield of peaches this year will be half as much again as last year, and the crop last year was considered fair.

While the crop will be much larger this year, the indications are that the fruit will be smaller in size on account of the drouth, which causes a shrinkage in the fruit.

Many of the fruit growers have been at work during the past month thinning out the peaches on the trees, as the trees are bearing so heavily that thinning is imperative.

J. C. Duke, who owns a fruit farm near Olinda, is the largest grower in the peach belt, and is considered the most reliable authority on fruit raising in the county. Mr. Duke has about thirty-five acres of peach trees, and estimates that they will yield him this year about ten thousand baskets of peaches.

"I wish to complain," said the new bride, haughtily, "about that flour you sold me. It was tough." "Tough, ma'am?" stammered the grocer. "Yes, tough. I made a pie of it and my husband could hardly cut it."—"Chicago Chronicle."

THE LAND OF THE FUTURE.

The financial editor of The New York American recently traveled through the Canadian West, and he assures the world that the land of the future is north of the international boundary line. In The American he says:

"I have never seen such wheat. For days we traveled through magnificent agricultural country where money was growing so fast that the general prosperity to ensue is almost incalculable. Alberta is a vast coal field and granary. The Canadian Pacific traverses a territory of boundless possibilities; the Canadian Northern is reaching out to the north and west, and every foot of the 'Soo' country is productive. I must say that the millions of unoccupied Canadian lands offer the strongest and safest attractions; that the railroads and business interests generally have all certainties contained in the rapid development, and more to follow."

BEAN CROP IN KENT.

Chatham, Aug. 25.—Some of the bean growers in this section are inclined to think that the assertion made by President M. H. Stevens of the Canada Flour Mills Co. that there would be 900,000 bushels of beans in Kent and adjoining bean territory this year, is wide of the mark. "Too optimistic," is the way they put it.

H. D. Reynolds of New Scotland, one of the best posted men in the county on this and kindred subjects, has gone so far as to offer $25 to the Ridgetown public library if there are over 700,000 bushels, provided Mr. Stevens will give that or any similar county institution a like sum if the crop falls under the 700,000 mark.

The crop is, however, reported from other sources to be coming on excellently, the beans so far harvested being well podded and of good quality.

He was telling the young woman about his fine cows and called her attention to a calf grazing not far away. "That calf is only six weeks old." he said. "Isn't he a beauty?"

"Only six weeks old!" questioned the young lady in amazement, "and walking so soon?"

Operation of Wallaceberg's Collection System

How a Town of About 3,000 Population Gets After The Delinquents—A "Debtors' Day" Appointed by Collector—Methods Vary Somewhat From Larger Cities—Half a Thousand Dollars in One Month.

By Victor Lauriston.

Chatham, Ont., Aug. 25.—In the course of the last Merchants' Association meeting, E. Askunas, secretary and official collector of the Wallaceburg Association, gave an interesting talk on the work accomplished by the collection department of that body.

The collection department has been in working order for a little more than a month, having been organized shortly after the Chatham system was instituted. There are 34 members in the department. The collector receives a salary at the rate of $600 per annum for the first six months, and $650 per annum for the second six months—which would figure out a net salary of $625 for the first year. In return for this he devotes his entire time to the work of collector and secretary.

Unlike Chatham, where a flat rate of $10 per member prevails, membership in the Wallaceburg Association is graded according to the size of the business.

Old Accounts are Settled.

During the month of July the Wallaceburg merchants received through the agency of the collection system the sum of $505.80 paid on accounts, some of which had been given up as bad, and quite a few of them outlawed. A curious fact, however, is that the larger part of this amount was paid direct. "Our people are suspicious," remarked Mr. Askunas with a smile, "and they prefer to deal with the merchants direct." When a debtor expresses a preference for dealing direct with his creditor, he is told to do so. If he doesn't, the collector is speedily on his heels again.

A Day for Debtors.

Mr. Askunas spends all day Saturday at his office. This is avowedly for the purpose of seeing people who dislike to have the collector call on them at their homes, and express a preference for calling on him instead.

"Do you like collections that way?" Mr. Askunas was asked, with something like incredulity.

"I do," he rejoined, emphatically.

Quite a few collections have been made in this manner by setting aside a day when the debtors can come to the collector instead of the collector coming to the debtors. The idea saves much footwork on the collector's part; and is appreciated by lots of people. If, however, a debtor promises to call and does not, Monday morning Mr. Askunas is at the door. Monday, as the first available day, is particularly utilized for the benefit of such delinquents, of whom, however, there have been few.

Barely, if ever, does Mr. Askunas make a collection involving less than a dollar. "If they can't pay that much, I take less," he says, "but I always try to get a dollar anyway." When there are half a dozen accounts against a debtor, his dollar is not divided among the various creditors pro rata, as in Chatham. Instead, it is credited on the first account sent in. The next payment will be credited to the next account; and so on. "It saves bookkeeping," remarked Mr. Askunas, naively.

Foreigner by Birth.

The Wallaceburg official collector is pretty nearly a newcomer to the Sugar City. He is a foreigner by birth, of Greek descent it is understood, and even now after a few years residence here still talks with a marked foreign accent. But he has done inspiring work in his quiet, determined, businesslike way. In his bookkeeping Mr. Askunas is assisted largely by his wife.

His visit to Chatham was chiefly to discuss a scheme of co-operation between the collection systems of the two towns, which will be taken up at next month's meeting of the Chatham association.

Wallaceburg is a thriving town with a population of from 2,500 to 3,500—perhaps more in the busy factory season. It is therefore in a different category from Chatham, Brantford and Guelph, where collection systems have been instituted; and its experience will be watched with interest.

Canadian Early Apples, Peaches, Plums and Pears on the Market in Quantities—Better Apple Crop Than Last Year—New Potatoes of Good Quality Arriving — Cantaloupes are Good Sellers—Noticeable Scarcity of Fish.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—Canadian peaches, plums and pears are now offering, while the first grapes of the season, from California, are now on sale. These are the features of the week. Canadian fruits are being offered at reasonable figures, considering that this is the beginning of their season. Demand is reported as being good. Malaga and Tokay grapes are being received from the coast, daily. Montreal melons are coming in more freely, though the recent rather cool spell has not been instrumental in aiding their growth. The price this week is lower. A few early apples and some lots of crab apples are offering, but are not quick sellers. Raspberries are finishing, while blueberries are very plentiful and reasonable in price.

VEGETABLES —Potatoes, Montreal, are arriving freely. Receipts this year have been most satisfactory, being much above those of last year. The quality of the potatoes coming in, too, has been excellent. New Brunswick, new crop, will begin to come in about September 1. Reports from the east are good. The price of potatoes, and mostly all root vegetables, will be determined within the next couple of weeks. Beets are easier this week, as are cucumbers. Celery is a little lower, too. Canadian spinach is down to 75c. Vegetable marrows are quoted this week, 75c a dozen being asked. Business on the whole is satisfactory, though if we were experiencing the usual August weather it would be of larger volume.

FISH—Salmon is coming in freely and demand for it is reported as being good, considering the warm weather. Lobsters are scarce and bring high prices, as will be noted from quotations. Haddock and cod are not in good supply and prices show an upward tendency. Market cod and sea trout are new lines quoted this week in fresh. In frozen fish there is some interest displayed, but not a great deal. Green cod is being quoted, supplies just beginning to arrive. Dealers are asking 3c per lb.

TORONTO.

GREEN FRUITS—Numerous varieties of early apples are in abundance, and sell for 25c to 35c a basket, or $3.00 per barrel. The estimated apple crop in Canada and the United States this year is said to be about 12 million barrels in excess of last year. In view of this we have some reason to hope that we will not have to pay $8.00 a barrel this year. Even with ripe apples, peaches, plums, pears, etc., on the market, oranges are daily in demand all the year round. The California late Valentia oranges are just now at their best, and in great demand. The only imported fruit on the market, with the exception of oranges and lemons, is a small lot of California peaches, and these have to take a back seat. Canadian fruit is now in full possession of our market, and the quantity that is sold is surprising. Early varieties of plums are in abundance, but the better kinds for preserving have not yet appeared. While the market has been loaded up with early cling stone peaches, the later and better varieties are just beginning to come in. A few red raspberries are still seen, and in a few days the Lawton will wind up the berries for the season.

VEGETABLES—New potatoes, of exceptionally good quality, are in evidence everywhere, and are selling from 80c to 90c a bushel. Tomatoes are very plentiful and cheap. Cantaloupes or musk melons are the strongest vegetable in the market this week. They are arriving in car lots from the neighborhood of Leamington, where they are cultivated on a large scale, and are sold in baskets and crates. Cucumbers are also claiming a good deal of attention, as well as corn and cabbage.

FISH—Fish are very scarce, not enough to meet the demand. This is owing to the great heat and also to high winds. On account of the heat the fish will go farther out into deeper water, which makes it more risky and difficult to catch them. It is reported that fishermen lost heavily in nets through unfavorable weather.

Oysters are now Fattening Up for the "R" Months

September, the First Month of the Coming Season—Enemies That Prey Upon Them in Their Peaceful Homes Beneath the Wave—Oyster-Farming Becomes a Science.

This is a busy time for oysters if not for oystermen. The bivalves are getting fattened up for September, the first of the "r" months, when they become good eating. In this respect oysters are similar to the fur-bearing animals—they begin to carry a sleek fur during the initial "r" month, which gradually becomes smoother and better as the cold weather advances.

Therefore such oysters as have escaped the sea-spider, the drill and other water foes, are engaged in "fattening up."

The workings of the new steam oyster-dredges which are used in some Atlantic coast waters, afford some interesting information. These dredges are iron clamps, terminating in heavy rope bags. As soon as they strike bottom they are hauled in, and the great masses of shells dumped on the deck. These look inert for a moment, and then each mass begins tossing about. The top shells bounce and roll away, disclosing a waving claw or two. A yank by one of the dredgers often produces a sea-spider, which is promptly stamped on and tossed overboard.

Visitors Shown Sea Creatures.

The oystermen rake over the shells in order to show any visitors the sort of things that live on the bottom of the sea. They are not attractive: "horses' feet," jelly fish, different types of sea-spiders, midget crabs, starfish, all of these things waggle futile protests at having been torn from their peaceful homes beneath the wave. The oysters themselves, in their rough brick and iron-rust colored shells, do not appear more attractive. However, as the fisheries men swallow the juicy interiors without pepper, salt or vinegar, they make no complaint about the exterior of their luncheon.

Starfish and drill operate differently on their oyster food, but both are equally destructive. The former closes about the oyster and suffocates it, while the drill with its sharp little cone of shell bores through the shell of the oyster and sucks it hollow. If no attempt is made each season to clean out the oyster beds, these two creatures are capable of destroying from one-fourth to one-half of the product.

Making An Oyster Bed.

When the oysterman plants a bed, he weeds out the ground, just as a farmer does, freeing it as far as possible from the lurking enemy. Then he puts in some good shells, and some sturdy, big oysters as breeders. His crop is like a farmers's crop, depending largely on the season and affected in a considerable degree by luck. Although the oystermen who rent or own their beds get spawn from other places, they have had little trouble in past years in keeping down the starfish, sea-spiders, and drills.

It was the practical oysterman who found out nearly a decade ago that oyster beds which were getting exhausted could be replenished by spawn taken from other waters. The spawn, after transportation and re-bedding, develop into the firm, small, slightly coppery flavored Blue Point.

Why it is so the lay mind cannot tell. To him mud is mud and salt water is salt water. But the "eel-skin" fisherman who saw his livelihood departing made experiments and saved his oyster beds. Now when the men appointed by governments tell him to keep on renewing his beds, as he has been doing for ten years, he listens respectfully, but it may be with his tongue coiled up in his mouth.

Scientific visitors tell the oystermen that they should occasionally vary the position of the beds, in order to obtain the best results. In fact, without action on the oystermen's part the beds usually shift. The oyster isn't a great traveler, but he does move now and then. In some beds the spawn will not flourish. Some of the oystermen who have just had the advantage of contact with real scientists asked why this was so, but the question "stumped" the instructors.

ters were discoursing learnedly on the habits of the oyster, the captain of a dredge boat pointed to an oyster shell which detached itself from the mass and was quietly moving away toward the briny deep.

"How do you 'count for that?" asked he.

"I—I don't know," stammered the scientist, "unless it has taken too much sea air."

When the oyster shell was opened carefully, a little crab was found inside—it was this creature which furnished the means of locomotion.

"I never saw anything like that," admitted the awe-struck scientist, "in the Aquariums."

Canadian Bivalves' Superiority.

The oyster peculiar to Canadian waters, and known far and wide as the Malpecque, has attained a unique reputation. Connoisseurs who have sampled the oysters of the world declare that nowhere else are oysters produced which will compare for a moment in delicacy of flavor with the Canadian product, not excepting even the famous "natives" produced in such large quantities at Colchester and Whitstable in England, or the "Blue Points" and other varieties produced in the warmer waters along the United States Atlantic coast line. The reason for this superiority of flavor is thought to be largely owing to the much greater coldness of the waters in which the Canadian oysters are bred.

Old Canadians can remember the time when every autumn the oyster boats used to come up from Prince Edward Island to Montreal laden almost to bursting point with barrels of these mollusks, which were retailed at a as low a figure even as a dollar a barrel. It used to be the custom in all the larger settlements along the river bank to look out for these oyster boats, and it not infrequently happened in later years that all the oysters were sold out before the boats reached Montreal. For some years past no oyster boats have come to Montreal at all, owing to most of the beds having been fished out, and also to the local demand having increased.

SHOW-WINDOW POINTERS.

Many attractive show windows are now being constructed with the base made of tiling. A window with this kind of a floor is not only very attractive in appearance, but can also be very easily kept in a clean, sanitary condition. Carpeting also makes an excellent covering for the base of a window. Several strips of carpet, made to fit the window, could be kept on hand at a small expense, and changed as often as is necessary to harmonize with the different displays which are to be made.

The grocer's boy was lumbering up the kitchen stairway with his arms full of packages. "Boy," said the mistress of the house, somewhat sharply, "are your feet clean?" "Yes'm," he answered, still climbing the stairs, "it's only me shoes that's dirty."

How They Work

A man wants credit. You think he is good. Give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book. Have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10—No trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on until the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes.

A strong combination-

¶ An extensive garden of three thousand acres in the heart of Prince Edward County, Ontario; a canning factory without a peer in the completeness of its modern sanitary and mechanical equipment, and the cleanliness and skill of its employees; that is the combination which produces "Farmer Brand" Canned Fruits and Vegetables.

¶ Consequently every can of Farmer Brand is pure in quality and perfect in flavor. Farmer Brand brings and retains for you the quality customers —people who want the very best and are willing to pay a fair price to get it.

CANNED FRUITS and VEGETABLES

Use a Little Gumption

The exercise of a little of this most valuable business quality is a necessity to you, Mr. Grocer, in the selection, from among the large number of lines now on the market, of your brands of Canned Fruit and Vegetables. And there are one or two points in favor of the Old Homestead Brand, which should make them first favorites in your selection. We handle nothing but the finest fresh fruit and vegetables ---everything else is rejected, and we put our goods up in a large, modern and sanitary factory. In our process of canning no preservatives or coloring matter are either needed or used by us.

We have a long standing reputation for purity and quality to maintain, and you may be sure that we shall not, in our own interests, allow this reputation to become tarnished by any carelessness or near-sightedness on our part.

Recommend the satisfaction-giving brand---"OLD HOMESTEAD."

This Is Worth Thinking About

IN these days of agitation for pure, clean, absolutely reliable goods of uniform quality it is refreshing to know that "SALADA" Tea has for SEVENTEEN YEARS steadfastly maintained its high standard of uniform excellence.

"SALADA"

is a standard article and advertised in a broad national way. "SALADA" sells quickly. Every pound sold is the result of a deliberate desire in the mind of the purchaser—a desire that he knows will be fulfilled. Every customer pays his money to you, not to the peddler, hawker or transient merchant. It yields a real profit. It acts as a magnet to draw into your store consumers of whom permanent customers in all lines may easily be made. "SALADA" therefore is an article of real importance possessing a value that extends far beyond the mere profit realized from its sale. "SALADA" is a business getter, a business holder and a business builder. A tea that does credit to your recommendation.

Good Coffee

Coffee better than the average.
Coffee superior to others.
Coffee so exquisite in flavor.

That people want it again—and again. That's what is. The best money can buy. It retails at 40 cents and leaves you a margin for yourself that is worth while—something to justify your buying the brand and introducing it to your customers. Don't lose this chance.

Aurora Coffee

The Best Canned Goods

There are many kinds in the market all making claims of being the choicest and the highest in excellence, flavor and merit, but

The Queen Quality Leads

WHY?

Because our fruits and vegetables are fresh, palatable, and the finest specimens that can be secured in one of Canada's most fertile and progressive districts.

Because they are uniform in quality, as we supervise the growing of the raw products from seed time to harvest and our inspectors reject everything that is not strictly up to the highest standard.

Because we have the most sanitary and up-to-date process and machinery and no detail is overlooked. We attend to the practical side ourselves and make our own cans of the best tin plate that can be secured.

All progressive grocers stock them and all discriminating customers get in them

These same conditions will apply to the full line of fruits and vegetables which we pack.

Don't be deceived by Brands and Trade Marks similar to ours which some packers are using, trying to place on the market inferior goods on our well-earned reputation.

Just how heavily these count is attested by the fact that the best merchants always give the preference to Borden's Brands, and by the further fact that the great majority of consumers will consider no others.

Value of Memory as an Asset in the Retail Business

What the Cultivation of the Habit of Retentiveness of Names and Addresses Often Means in Pleasing and Keeping Customers—Employees who are able to Greet Callers Politely by Name Appeal to their Vanity—Establish a Personal Connection that the Forgetful Assistant or Indifferent Head of a Department Can Never Hope to Attain —How Small Things Count in Influencing Trade.

By G. B. VanBlaricom.

Presupposing that you pay cash for what you buy, there are many little things—small wants—which you procure week in and week out just where you please. You go to this shop or to that—to no regular one in particular. Why do you pass one place and travel a few steps further to another? Is there any particular reason? There is a certain indefinable something that influences you. It may be the promptness of delivery of what you order; an effective store front; agreeable service; a little better value; a wider selection; the personality of the proprietor; a better street crossing; an attractive window display or personal vanity. You will, perhaps, not admit the latter element. Any self-respecting man has a little esteem for himself. That is, if he wants to get on in this world he must take himself more or less seriously. Life is not a funeral procession says an optimist, but, on the other hand, it is well to remember that it is not a joke or a farce.

You pick up a daily newspaper and there find some reference to what you have done or said. If your name is incorrectly spelled or your initials are wrong you are disgusted. If you spell your cognomen "Reid" and your initials are "J. W.," there is nothing more annoying than to find that the local journal has made reference to you as "S. P. Read." If your letters are not addressed correctly you often treat them with indifference. The head of a large business firm, who has a rather difficult name to spell but who, in the course of a year, engages many persons, told me that he received numerous applications for positions but that he never paid any attention to communications which did not have his firm name right, or had his own initials or surname wrongly spelled. He said there was no excuse for such errors especially as his house and he were so well known in the business world and the name was at the head of all their letter paper and also in the newspapers in connection with their advertising campaign. I asked him why he adopted this attitude and he told me that a clerk who would not take the trouble to get or spell correctly the name of the establishment or proprietor to whom he was looking for employment, would in nine cases out of ten be inaccurate or indolent in his work, his bookkeeping, his checking methods or his correspondence, and he could not afford to have that kind of young man or young women about the place.

The reason that most persons are displeased when they see their names erroneously spelled is that it can be said without flattery, every man feels that he is or should be well enough known by those with whom he does business for the parties interested to have at least an acquaintance with his name. It is the same way with customers—regular ones at any store. A lady, who is in the habit of trading at a grocery month in and month out, does not like to tell a clerk her name and address every time that she enters.

There is a grocer in an Ontario town, who, although a customer who had been long patronizing him and would give orders two or three times a week, would always ask her street and number. It seemed impossible for him to remember. He would blandly excuse himself on the ground that he had so many customers and was so busy that he really had not time to memorize or rather call to mind the street on which his customers resided. She finally got tired of this excuse and left him for no other reason than that she grew weary of the eternal query.

How often one hears a business man exclaim that he can remember faces but not names. He should cultivate the latter habit, as it is often a strong factor in business success. The clerk, who can tell who people are the moment they enter the store and greet them by name is a much more valuable assistant than the one who never tries to remember at all. Of course, a good memory is a gift but it can be cultivated the same as the quality of politeness, foresight, promptness and a ready anticipation of the wants of the customer.

The Price of Forgetfulness.

In the Old Country if you are an articled law clerk and your employer gives you something to do and you fail to do it, offering as an excuse that you forgot, you will probably be asked to send in your resignation. Forgetfulness is looked upon in an English attorney's office as a grievous shortcoming, an unpardonable fault. It means that if you forgot you really did not intend to perform the task assigned or else did not deem it of sufficient importance to keep in mind. Where system and method play so important a part in present day business progress there is no room for the man who forgets, or is mentally indifferent. True, many memories are treacherous. One way to overcome this handicap is to jot down what you feel that you are likely to forget.

How often one hears the remark "I would like to call on him but his street and number have escaped my memory although he told me his address." You probably thought that you would remember it all right but in a few minutes you find the information has vanished. Far better to take a second or two and write down figures and proper names. Then slips are guarded against.

Cultivation of the Memory.

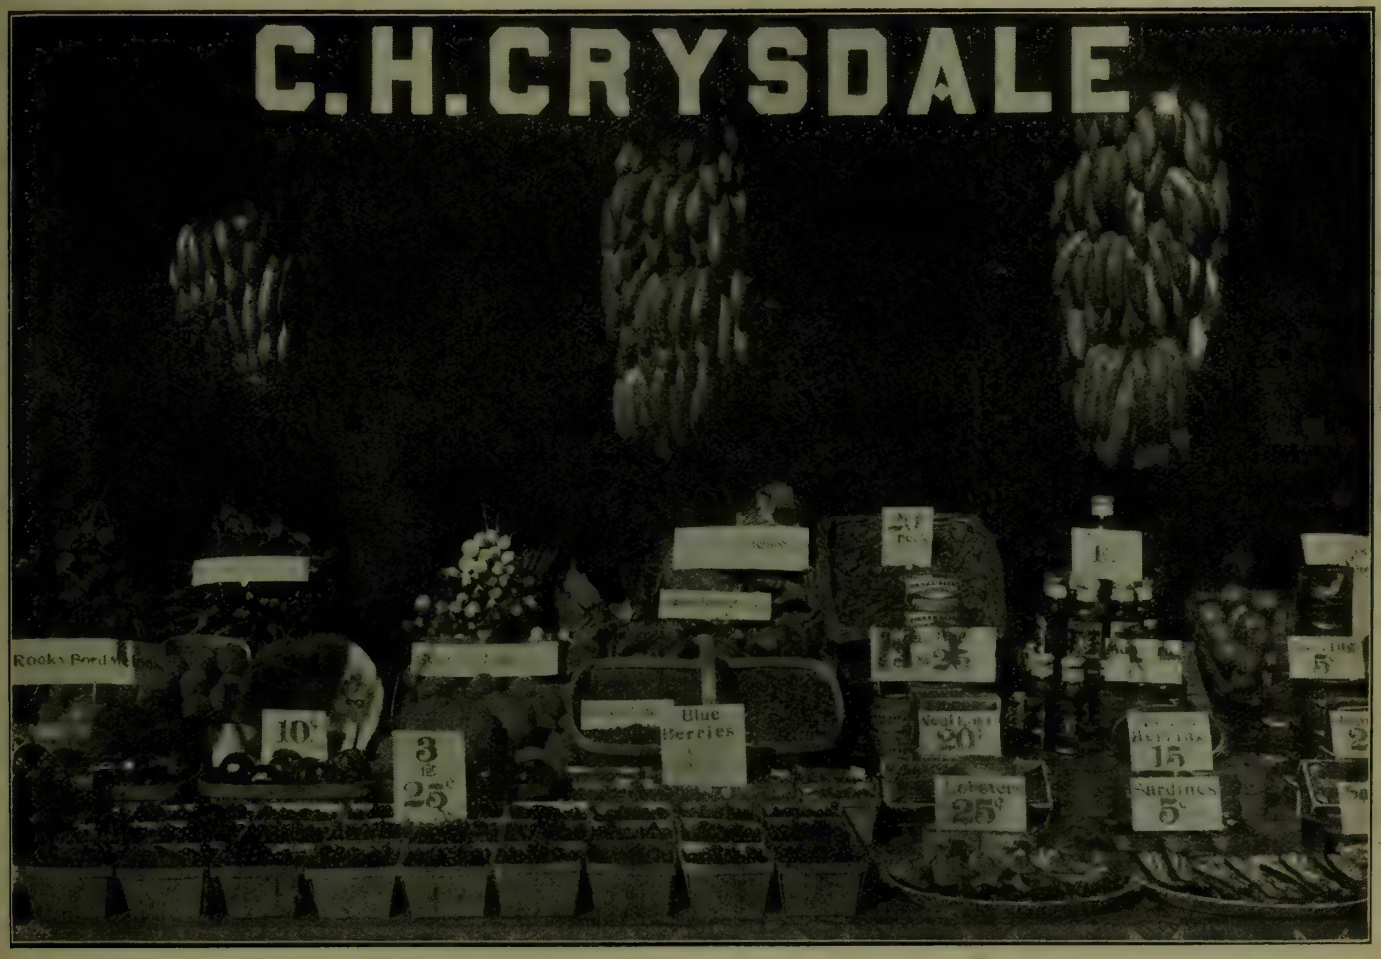
"Do you see that clerk over there, asked a friend the other day." He knows every one who comes in and is invaluable in many respects. He greets callers politely by name, and that pleases the great majority who like to have him wait on them, and then he knows their particular tastes and desires because he studies the wants, the inclination and the ideas of those who come in. He does not have to waste valuable time on busy days asking questions of where people live, their names, etc. He knows it beforehand. I asked him how he was able to remember so many addresses and he said that he had a poor memory at first but that he learned the addresses of his customers by spending a few hours of his leisure time on the subject and he soon mastered the list."

The traveler who makes acquaintances that he is able to respectfully call by name, or the clerk in the retail store, who learns to remember names as well as faces, strengthens his hold on the public and builds up a wider connection, as people say "I always like that young man to wait on me. He takes a personal interest in serving and knows pretty nearly what I want, I find his suggestions and advice, which are given in a kindly, polite spirit, very helpful."

The personal element to-day plays a larger part in business supremacy than perhaps the ordinary man thinks it does. A thorough acquaintance with those whom you meet in a business way from day to day, like the current of a mighty river, grows stronger as it flows, and enhances your prestige as a salesman. As the years glide by the tie becomes so intimate that it is not lightly severed, and this is one of the reasons that many a young man, going into business for himself, carries with him the well wishes, the confidence and the esteem—and often the patronage—of those whom he served in the days of his apprenticeship. A good memory, like courtesy, is a great factor in enlarging one's influence and business connection.

Price Tickets in the Windows are Money Getters

Crysdale and Son, Oshawa, Ont., Make Liberal Use of Them With Profit—A Display of Fruit and Vegetables With Selling Qualities—How Clerks Can Command Better Salaries.



Oshawa, Sept. 1.—There are some grocers who place little dependency upon price tickets. But C. H. Crysdale and Son, Oshawa, Ont., are not among these as may be easily observed from the reproduction on this page of a recent window display of fruits and vegetables. The display was arranged by Frank Crysdale, son of the original proprietor. Mr. Crysdale, Jr., practically attends to the entire business in the store, his father doing the major portion of the buying.

The display attracted a great deal of attention and chiefly because the price cards were used so profusely. Even if passers-by do not buy at the time, it makes them stop. They run their eyes over the list and compare the prices with those they paid at another store. They, of course, take into consideration the quality, and the chances are the next time they pass, they do some purchasing. Price cards, Crysdale and Son believe, are money getters particularly in a fruit display.

Another item to be taken into consideration when using these tickets, is their attractiveness. Carelessly written and covered with dust and dirt, they become repulsive and rather than be a help, they become a hindrance to sales.

The art of lettering cards can be learned by anyone who puts his mind to the work. Any clerk who has the ambition to advance might apply himself to this work with profit. What the merchants of to-day are after is wide-awake counter salesmen who can extend the business. Show-card and price-ticket writing has already become a hobby with many and it's always the accomplished who can command the best salaries.

So far as selling properties and attractiveness are concerned the Crysdale window is a splendid one. Originality is another of the important features and wherever possible it is better to work it in—but not at the expense of the other two.

TEA AND SUGAR WINDOW.

J. J. McDonald, who has opened a new grocery store in Goderich, Ont., has been showing a unique tea and sugar window. At the sides of the window are drapings of the Bagdad stripe, and the rich colors in the Chinese lanterns give a pretty effect for the display, in the back of the window, the foreground being taken up with a pretty little table set with a Japanese tea-set.

A YOUNG WINDOW DRESSER.

Youth of Fifteen Years Making Some Attractive and Selling Displays in Montreal.

Montreal, Sept. 1.—The Co-operative Grocery Company's store is situated at the corner of St. Antoine and Guy Sts, Montreal, which is a peculiarly windy one. On this account great inconvenience has been experienced owing to dust accumulating on the articles displayed in the windows. A. Girard was bothered about how to best overcome this difficulty during the hot, dusty, summer months. Working for Mr. Girard is young Jack Patterson, who is 15 years old. He said he would stop the trouble, and was told to go ahead.

He chose as his first display a particular brand of soap. He adopted the device of building up against the window pane an edifice of these soap boxes to resemble a church window with an attention-attracting card in the centre setting forth the price. The result is a clean display free from dust and flies.

The trouble is not only solved, but the idea proved a good one and the soap has gone well since the display was made. When a representative of The Canadian Grocer called, young Patterson was busily engaged making up another window, displaying wines. The labels of the bottles were being generously used to create a border and a heavy arch over the goods, being of course, stuck to the window glass. Jack, who attends to all the window dressing of the store, works on his own initiative and is given carte blanche to work out his own original ideas.

Some Advice on the Handling of Crockery, Etc.

A. L. Campbell, a Lindsay Grocer, Makes it a Profitable Line —Has Separate Store and Windows for Display—Care Exercised in Unpacking Adds to the Profit—Proprietor Has Special Saleslady to Look After the Department.

Lindsay, Sept. 1.—Ancient methods of doing business are no longer adhered to by any progressive business man. Grocers who neglect to carefully look after any single department in the store are spoiling their profit opportunities on the general business done. If it is possible to increase the annual profits by one, two or three thousand dollars, why not do so? What is required is a good selling line and energy and push to make it go right.

Interior of the Crockery Department of A. L. Campbell's Grocery Store, Lindsay, Ont.

In Lindsay there is a grocer who pays particular attention to chinaware, glassware, crockery, etc. He is A. L. Campbell and he finds it a profitable department.

Mr. Campbell has a large grocery store with a flour and feed department at the rear and a crockery store separate from the store proper. Taking the grocery and crockery departments together, they form an "L" shaped store around a corner and open on two streets. The accompanying cut shows the handsome interior of the latter with a door opening to the rear of the grocery store.

Mr. Campbell carries high-class goods. His assortment is one that pleases all purchasers and by representing the goods to be exactly what they are he finds no trouble following his guarantee. He has a saleslady to especially look after the china and crockeryware and has always two windows to be devoted solely to the display of these goods.

The shelving is attractive and shows the contents to the best advantage. Tables are also used as may be observed from the photograph here reproduced.

Breakages in Unpacking.

The reason why Mr. Campbell finds crockery and chinaware profitable is because he gives the department due attention. No merchant is doing his best who is too indifferent or careless to educate himself on the best methods for selling goods and the merits of the things he sells.

Another important detail in handling crockery, etc., is the unpacking of it. A great deal is broken by carelessness. Too often the cheapest help about the store is assigned to open the crate and fragile goods left to be handled by men or boys who would be more sympathetically employed handling potatoes. If proper care is taken in these details of unpacking, the retail merchant who handles crockery and glassware will find it one of the most delightful and profitable lines of merchandise.

BEAN CROP FIGURES.

Better Yield Than Last Year Expected—Effects of the Rain.

Chatham, Sept. 1.—The official statistics of the Ontario Bureau of Industries place the Ontario bean crop within 50,000 bushels of the 900,000 bushel estimate by N. H. Stevens some months ago.

The official estimate shows an acreage of 45,029, which is expected to yield 857,663 bushels. This is at the rate of 19 bushels to the acre. Last year there were 46,477 acres with a yield of 783,757 bushels, or 16.9 bushels per acre.

Varying reports have been received. John Lee, of Highgate, says:—

"There is going to be a big bean crop out along the Lake Shore this year. I never saw the beans looking better."

From Rodney come the following report: "The bean crop is almost ready to harvest, and the growers are hoping for fine weather next week. The early beans are rather light in yield, but those that were sown late are an extra good crop."

The effect of Saturday night's heavy rain storm upon the bean crop is uncertain. While it will undoubtedly benefit potatoes, corn and sugar beets, reports from Blenheim are to the effect that the beans already pulled were fairly soaked with mud and water. As the harvest started a couple of weeks ago, a fair proportion of the beans will by this time be pulled. A single rain storm would, however, do little real damage, the beans being largely affected only by protracted wet weather. The rain will probably help those late beans which have not yet ripened.

TAKE THE HINT.

When grit and industry make an alliance something must come of it.

The man who knows his own business is generally a man who "minds" it.

One of the biggest mistakes in salesmanship is that we annoy our patrons with argument instead of pacifying them with persuasion.

Almost any man can do business fairly well. A few men can do business superbly well. But the man who not only does his work superbly well, but adds to it a touch of personality through great enthusiasism, honesty of purpose, zeal, patience and persistence, making it peculiar, individual and distinct, is an artist in the broad sense of that term.

Merchants in Costume Lead Picnic with Parade

Their Representations are Irresistible and Crowds Follow Them to Picnic Beach—Chatham Streets Deserted For an Afternoon—Baseball and Broomball Among the Sports Witnessed—Funny Happenings Not Seen Every Day.

Special correspondence

Chatham, Ont., Aug. 31.—The Second Annual Chatham Merchants' Picnic, to give it all the capitals to which it is entitled, will go vamoosing down the draughty corridors of time as a hummer from Humville.

In fact, it was several hummers from the locality in question. There was hum enough about it to have kept things buzzing along the Erie shore through an entire summer, and crowds to equip half a dozen ordinary picnics and leave a good tentful to spare.

Erie Beach was the scene. Thursday, August 26, 1909, was the date. The C. W. & L. E. electric line supplied the transportation facilities. Chatham and surrounding country—including Blenheim, and adjacent district, supplied the crowd. The merchants of Chatham, under the inspiring guidance of President A. D. Westman, Picnic Chairman "Bill" Potter, and "High-Muck-a-Muck" Eddie Dore, G.O.C., supplied an enthusiasm that was contagious.

Last year the first annual merchants' picnic made a hit, the noise of which spread far and wide. This year the second annual merchants' picnic proved many times better than the first.

So much for the preliminaries of an event whose triumph must lead to any little bits of pessimism that were lurking about being taken out and planted for all time to come.

Though it was 12 o'clock ere the merchants got into action on the eventful day, big crowds had already heeded the warning of the picnic committee, "Go early and avoid the rush," and had hied them to the Beach. All morning the electric cars were well filled. Nevertheless, hosts of people waited for the big parade at noon, with the result that the morning cars weren't a patch on the afternoon cars in point of crowdedness.

In all, some 2,500 people holidayed in company with the "backbone" of Chatham. The official score has not yet been announced; but the foregoing is the estimate of an estimator who frankly avows his allegiance to conservative traditions.

Parade Starts Things Going.

The Big Parade—two miles long and funnier than Barnum's circus—started things humming in earnest. The stores closed at twelve. The parade was scheduled to leave Hotel Sanita, opposite Tecumseh Park, at 12.30.

It didn't. It was an hour late. But that was the only fault that anyone could find with the parade. When it came, it proved eminently worth sweltering under 92 degrees of radiance for.

Picnic Chairman "Bill" Potter led off. He was announced to appear on horseback, and a great sigh of disappointment went up when it was discovered that he was several yards behind the horse, comfortably and safely ensconced in a handsome rig in company with a gentleman to whom the picnic owes much, but who at this juncture shall be nameless.

Then came the 24th Regiment band in scarlet uniforms, pouring forth sweet harmony. And then—

But really, the parade is indescribable. There were all sorts of floats, rough riders, Navajoes, Pottawattomies, Mexicans, clowns, imps, rustics, and local take-offs. Chief of Police John Holmes was there in caricature. So was the fire department. Here was a patrol wagon with one wheel which refused to grow as big as the other. There was a glorious take-off on the circus tiger in his cage. The Hadley Lumber Co. put on a series of floats; the McGeachy milk wagons, a long line, shone resplendent; the real Chatham fire department was there in all its glory.

The parade wound its gaudy way from Hotel Sanita down King Street to the C.W. & L.E. power house. And there embarkation took place. Cars, trailers, flat cars with improvised seats—everything, in fact, that could be impressed into service was required to take the crowd to Erie Beach.

Despite rumors of more or less open hostility on the part of a number of merchants, the fraternity closed in fine style. Even some of the dry goods merchants, notably the Northway Co., closed store for the afternoon. The consensus of opinion is that the few—a very few—who stayed open gained nothing thereby. Chatham looked, felt, sounded and transacted business as though it was Sunday. There was nothing doing on King Street after the parade went by. All the doings were at the beach.

The closing honors certainly go to the grocery and hardware trades, both of which were practically unanimous. But other lines did splendidly.

Doings at the Beach.

The afternoon at Erie Beach was a glorious one. From the parade at noon till the last strains of "Home Sweet Home" died away in the precincts of the park pavilion at midnight, everything ran as smoothly as though it had been greased.

In the city the heat was intense. The mercury soared to 92. But by the shores of Lake Erie the breezes were blowing gloriously, and the air was cool and refreshing. The day was ideal for an outing.

During the day many took advantage of the fine bathing. 'Tis said that people bathed at this year's merchants' picnic who never bathed before, and that they intend henceforth to make it an annual event. Boating was also popular, but no one was drowned, nor had any of the gallant clerks who hovered about in momentary expectancy the opportunity to win Carnegie hero medals by rescuing people—particularly maidens—as they were going down the third and last time.

During the afternoon the 24th Regiment band dished out the music in generous fashion, while in the evening Phelps' orchestra put up an excellent brand of harmony for the benefit of the patrons of the Erie Beach dancing pavilion—and these were many.

The list of sports was a long one. In fact, it was a bit too long; and a few of the concluding events had to be lopped off for lack of time. But even at that there was plenty and to spare, and a goodly amount of amusement was derived alike by spectators and participants.

A burst of excitement marked the termination of the fat man's race. The heavyweights, once started, were unable to put on the brakes. They kept going, going, going, till they plunged full tilt into the net at the end of the course.

A crowd of people, gathered behind the net, went sprawling in all directions, amid much hilarity from spectators at a distance. No one was hurt.

Broomball and Baseball.

The ball game between the grocery clerks and bankers on the one hand, and a number of assorted clerks on the other, was the big feature of the day.

Or, rather, it was the second biggest feature. The way the clerks pitched in, worked, enthused, hustled and in dozens of other ways, helped to make the merchants' picnic a triumphant success was, really, the one commanding feature of the whole affair.

The clerks went into the ball game with the same variety of hustle. The prize was 100 cigars, which means a pretty good lot of smokes; but that was the least incentive.

The game started at 5.30 and lasted seven innings. The two nines were pretty evenly matched. What they lacked in science they made up in ginger. The grocers and bankers took their runs in a bunch, scoring six in the first round and the seventh came in the fifth. For the clerks, Johns was the slab artist. It was his day off. Gemmill and Dennis hurled for the opposing team, Gemmill having five innings and Dennis two.

In the ultimate result, victory perched on the grocer-banker banners, the score being 7 to 5. Here is the line-up:

Grocery and bank clerks—Matthews, c.; Gemmill, p.; Johnson, 1b.; Burnie, 2b.; Dennis, ss. and p.; Dyer, 3b.; Gillies, lf.; Rogers, cf.; Jos. Taylor, rf.

Other clerks—P. Taylor, c.; Johns, p.; Kimmerly, 1b.; Glassford, 2b.; Dagneau, ss.; Montgomery, 3b.; Walker, lf.; Cunningham, cf.; Reid, rf.

The broomball game made a hit. It was interesting from start to finish. A picked team from other merchants defeated the grocers by the score of 4—0. The following was the line-up:

Picked team—H. G. Hodges, capt.; Side and A. D. Westman; forwards, C. Masonville, Ed. Wanless, W. Mounteer, A. Welsh and E. Brisco.

Grocers' team—Wm. Anderson, captain; G. Garen, goal; defence, H. S. Northwood and Harry A. Andrew; forwards, A. Patterson, H. Gerber, Wm. Murdock, W. E. Parrott and Cecil Moore.

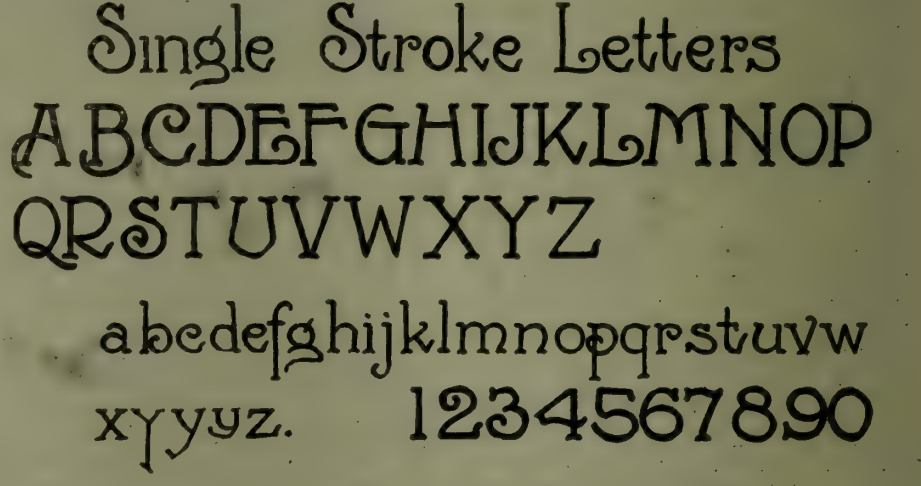
Pointers for the Novice in Writing Show Cards

Arrangements a Beginner in the Art Should Make — Brushes and Paint That Give Good Results—Use Uniform Cards and Uniform Lettering in Planning Window Displays.



By J. L. Wyckoff, manager of T. A. Rowat & Co.'s Branch Store, London, Ont.

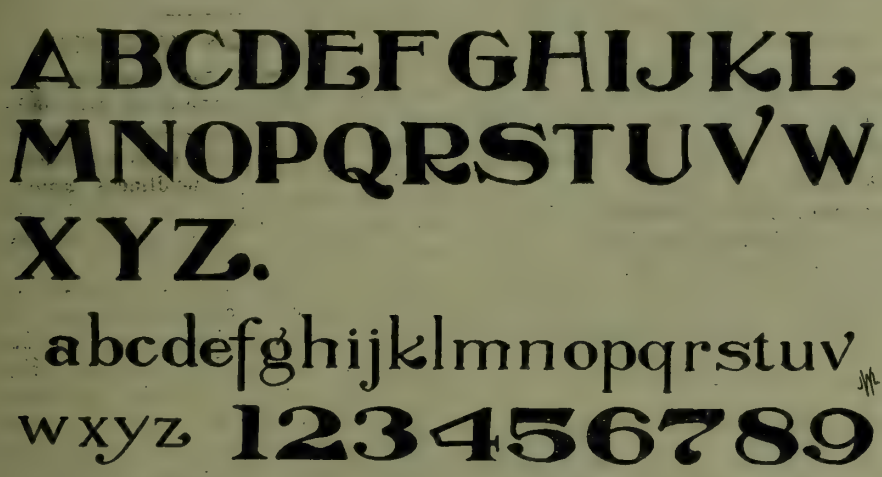
The beginner, in choosing his outfit for learning show-card writing, should buy only what is absolutely necessary, but of the very best quality. There is no economy in buying poor tools. A good sable brush will outlast three of the cheaper kind, besides doing sharper and cleaner work. Buy three red sable brushes (called riggers), Nos. 7, 9 and 12. These brushes have handles from eight to ten inches long, but it is better to cut them off to about six inches in length. The brushes can be brought to a fine point or can be manipulated to do all kinds of flat lettering. One flat sable brush about half an inch in width will be found very useful for writing large letters or figures.

Watch Brushes Carefully.

The paint should never be allowed to harden on the brushes; rinse them out thoroughly in clean water after each time they have been used and lay them flat on the table or stand them up in a tumbler with the brush end up.

If at all possible have a separate room to work in—no matter how small the room, you will find it very convenient to be able to drop your work at a moment's notice and find it just as you left it when you return. Have your work-table of sufficient size so that you will not need to cramp yourself—you

An Alphabet Made Easily by Single Strokes of the Brush.



The writer prefers a paint with a dull surface. This is very easily mixed by taking a small quantity of dry color on a piece of glass; moisten with alcohol and grind with a palate knife and then add mucilage until it forms a thick paste. When this is thoroughly mixed, put it into a saucer and thin with water until it is about as thin as table cream.

The writer uses an adjustable drawing table with an extra large drawing board and a small table to hold the brushes, paint, etc. A good plan is to take an ordinary kitchen table, cut off about three inches off the front legs and cannot do good work in a cramped position.

you will then have a table with a sufficient slant and plenty of space to work on.

The First Lesson.

Select an alphabet with a plain type of letter and one which can be made with single strokes of the brush. This style of letter can be made very rapidly. The alphabet illustrated with this article is a good one and was made by the writer on a half-sheet of cardboard with a No. 9 sable brush, in fifteen minutes. If the alphabet is examined closely a good many imperfections will appear, but when a card is written and if properly spaced, these faults will not be noticed. It is not necessary that the letters be accurately drawn, as this would take up too much time, but it is necessary to have the card properly arranged and the letters and words spaced correctly.

Use ten-ply white cardboard, and for convenience have it cut into half-sheets, quarter-sheets, eighth and sixteenth-sheets; these are standard sizes and when the cardboard is cut into these sizes there is no waste.

In planning a window display, have the cards all the same size and shape; also use the same style and color of letter throughout the series. The display will look more uniform than if the cards were of all shapes and sizes.

The Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association held their third annual "Hump" on Wednesday afternoon to Oakland. This is always one of the funny events of the season and next week's Grocer will contain an account of the 'doings.'

The Grocer's Encyclopedia From Week to Week

The Growth of the Ginger Plant and the Various Kinds Used in the Trade—Where Chief Portion of the Canadian Supply Comes From—The Uses of Ginger.

GINGER.—One of the chief condiments sold from the counters of the retail grocery stores is ginger. This familiar spice is obtained from the knotty, fibrous roots of the ginger plant, a native of India, but now cultivated more or less extensively in all tropical countries.

Ginger is known in commerce under two large divisions, coated and uncoated or scraped. The latter is deprived of its coat when in the green state and sold as white ginger.

The sort most generally met with in Canada is that from Jamaica. Gingers are purchased in various conditions—whole, ground, washed, unwashed, spent, scraped and cut.

In Jamaica ginger is planted in March or April and soon the ground is covered with long green leaves. In Septmeber, little flowers slightly tinged with green appear when the stems are from three to four feet high.

When the flowers wither and go to seed, the roots are dug up. This is about the end of January. Should the roots be left too long in the ground, stems grow from them. If taken up earlier, they are only about five to six inches in length, succulent and suitable for preserving. The real roots of the plant are the thin fibres given off from the knotty tubers. The yield per acre is placed at 4,000 lbs.

After the ginger reaches the first markets, they are sometimes bleached or coated. This is done by burning sulphur or chlorinated lime and covering with the sulphate or carbonate of calcium as a protection against insect pests.

Manufacture of Gingers.

In Law's Grocers' Manual the various sorts of gingers are described separately.

Black or stone-brown whole ginger of commerce usually consists of the older tough roots and have been simply discolored by scalding. They are of inferior strength and flavor.

Whole white ginger is usually of a superior quality, prepared by scraping off the outer dark-colored part and then carefully drying without scalding.

Whole ginger is largely employed in making ginger beer, ginger essences, etc.

Washed ginger is ginger cleansed in acidulated water to protect it from worms.

Green ginger is usually imported in casks and in this state is used by wine makers and for preserves.

Leaf ginger is that which has been sliced up into thin flakes.

Spent ginger, often sold to grocers as "washed," consists of whole ginger which has been boiled or steamed or otherwise exhausted in making ginger beer or other cordials.

The common adulterants to be expected in ground ginger are tumeric, wheat flour, husk of mustard seed, arrowroot, sago, etc.

Besides being used as a condiment, ginger is also used as an aromatic and stomachic medicine. Externally applied, it has been known to remove headache and toothache.

The root-stocks collected in a young green state, washed, scraped and preserved in syrup form a delicious preserve.

TWO LONDON DIAMOND ADMIRERS.

The charm of the Canadian National Exhibition was instrumental in attracting at least two London retail grocers to Toronto this week. To be more explicit, "Ed." Ryan and "Tom" Shaw are the individuals in question. They drifted in from the Forest City on Tuesday and "took in" things on the grounds with pleasure that would rival even that of the proverbial school-boy. Diamonds have also charms for the president and ex-president from "Thamesville." To be more explicit again, baseball diamonds are here referred to. Followers of the Maple Leafs easily recognised the addition to the fans on Wednesday afternoon, as both are expert rooters, as well as expert grocery salesmen. To question their knowledge of "fouls" and "wings" and "plates" and things would only be a display of ignorance on the part of the dubious. Both learned the a b c of the ball game at London Grocers' picnic, years ago, for London is a city where they have a picnic every little while. At any rate, their spirit of pleasure-seeking is commendable. They believe in the old proverb: "Have a good time while you're alive, for you'll be a long time dead"—and there will be no harm done if many more follow their example.

DRY SEASON FOR HONEY.

Honey prices are high this year on account of the scarcity of the production and the increased demand from the Canadian Northwest. Up to the present time, little or no honey has been produced out west, and as honey is a valuable food to the farmers, the prairie provinces are taking larger quantities year by year from Ontario.

The cause of the comparitively small production of clover honey in Ontario was due to the surplus of dry weather during the producing season which this year only lasted about ten days. Ordinarily two to three weeks is the length of the season.

The dry weather hardens the nectar and makes the work of the bee more difficult. On the other hand wet weather is just as bad, as the bee has then to carry considerable water to the hive where time is taken up in evaporating it. A happy medium is required which was not exactly the case this year. The shortage, however, is not very great.

WEEKLY MARKET FEATURES.

The canned goods market has again developed some interesting features, and it is difficult for jobbers to predict what is to happen.

Correspondence from Western Canada shows that the sockeye salmon run was not up to anticipations and prices are stiffening up. In Montreal and Toronto the situation is about the same. Prices are almost sure to be higher and jobbers and retailers who bought their requirements at first figures have evidently been fortunate.

Canned peas' prices have been withdrawn from the market in Montreal by some dealers, while others are quoting them at ten cents per dozen higher than last week.

The Canadian bacon market also shows a firmer tone. Prices in England have advanced on account of small supplies.

Although no change in the prices of granulated sugar has occurred, lump sugars this week have declined. This, however, is no indication of what will happen to the rest as lump sugars are remotely connected, so far as purpose is concerned, from the ordinary preserving granulated variety.

The market all over Canada shows a scarcity of fresh eggs and prices are on the upward incline. In Vancouver they are selling retail at 50 cents.

The flour and cereal markets are easier, due to the expectant arrival of the new grains. Oatmeal has dropped 40 cents per barrel in St. John, N.B., during the last week and on the Winnipeg market, rolled oats are not so firm.

SATURDAY NIGHT DELIVERY.

Bracebridge, Ont., grocers are wrestling with the Saturday night delivery problem. They want to do away with it.

Their proposal is certainly a drastic one. Message boys and delivery wagons in cities, towns and villages all over the country are wending their way far into the night through streets and byways delivering merchandise to customers.

Customers as well as grocers recognize that it is an evil, but it has become a custom and a deep-seated one. To overcome it is no easy task.

When you once get into a habit it is one of the most difficult things to get out of it. The grocers have formed the habit and the question is how can they get out of it? If, however, they make up their minds—to do so they can, for will-power is more powerful than habit when once it gets going. The hardest thing is to get it going.

The large department stores don't deliver into the midnight hour on Saturday. They made up their minds not to let it become a habit. They smothered it before it was born.

Keeping stores and delivery staffs going till the midnight hour is a habit that ought to be broken. It is unreasonable and saps the energy of all concerned.

Talk about "Blue Monday," but it is "Blue Sunday" with most people engaged in the grocery business. Beelzebub probably set the late delivery habit going, for it is certainly more helpful to his business than to that of the retail grocer.

Success to the grocers of Bracebridge and to those of any other town who have the courage to take the matter up and solve it! Six or eight o'clock is late enough to deliver goods on Saturday night and it should not be an impossible task to educate customers to see it in that way too.

THE EXCURSION CONTAGION.

During the past two months The Grocer has had occasion to give publicity to many retail grocers' picnics. This has been a pleasure for the reason that it indicates a friendliness among the members of the trade which has only been much in evidence during recent years.

These outings are to be commended. They are bound to promote harmony and a better feeling among the trade, and to raise it to a higher standard than it heretofore has been.

Since the beginning of summer The Grocer has recorded among others the picnics or excursions of the London, Toronto, Brantford, Hamilton, Montreal, Kingston, Victoria and Sarnia Retail Grocers' Associations. In addition to these there have appeared the outings of Galt, Chatham, Toronto, and other Merchants' Associations.

To a Rip Van Winkle who has just awakened after a sleep of twenty or more years, these excursions of competitors would be surprising. But with the advance that has been made in recent years in business methods and better relations towards one another, former bitter feelings have vanished and men are now anxious to meet their trade competitors on a fairer basis and on a higher plane.

There were never so many of these friendly outings as during this summer and we venture to predict that next year will witness even a larger number. Grocers are uniting together wherever possible to form unions and they are enjoying their businesses as a result. Two splendid illustrations are the London and Hamilton Retail Grocers' Associations. The former is credited with no less than three large outings during the summer. The members of the Hamilton association are this week enjoying the annual "Grocers' Hump."

All these serve to bring the men of the grocery trade on more friendly terms and when the time comes to settle down to work and discuss trade questions, they do so energetically and without fear of offending their fellow-members. So let us hope that the picnic contagion will spread in future years. It means a greater enjoyment of the work, better business relations and a step towards Utopia in the grocery trade.

BRITISH PREJUDICE AGAINST CHINESE PIGS

Celestial pork is at the present time causing considerable comment in Great Britain. A recent issue of The Grocer told of the circumstances of Chinese hogs being brought into London—some 8,500 carcases in two shipments—and touched upon the probability of China becoming another strong competitor to Canada in that market.

The question of importing these Oriental hogs has been introduced into the British Parliament and several of the London newspapers have been publishing letters from correspondents who scorn the idea of Britishers consuming pork raised in the densely populated country in the far east. One letter, characteristic of them all, reads :

> The idea of Chinese pork makes me sick. If the British consumer only saw porkers in China, trained as they are to forage for cheap food, acting as scavengers, he would quickly forego that sort of breakfast bacon.

Other letters written by men who have been in the east tell of unsanitary conditions under which hog raising is conducted as well as other slipshod methods of the people in that country. Hogs, according to these, live in a semi-wild state, eating from the dirty streets and of the rotten sea-weed and even the bodies of animals which are frequently to be seen floating down the rivers. One writer said the same about human beings. He claims that the poorer Chinese throw their dead into the rivers, both to save expense and as a quick means of eluding the devil, who they believe cannot walk on the water.

At any rate there has recently been worked up many antagonistic feelings towards the importation of the celestial hog into Britain, on account of the alleged impurities of the products. Only one writer in eight championed Chinese bacon in this respect. He, however, was surprised that Great Britain should be dependent upon China for her bacon and advised Englishmen to raise their own pigs. Then, he argues, providing tariff revision could be arranged in this particular trade, Great Britain could supply her own demands and bring down the price of bacon.

While the shipments of hogs already made from the east to London have been admittedly of good quality, nevertheless there seems to be a prejudice against them which will tend to damage trade prospects of the promoters. Those that have arrived were raised under particularly good sanitary conditions but, as one of the English writers points out, this is not any indication of what will subsequently happen.

The fact that there is a prejudice against the Chinese hog, should be an incentive to boom the industry in Canada. The probability is that if Canadian farmers had kept up their reputation on the British market by continuing to raise quantities of hogs, we would not have had all this discussion over the merits and demerits of the new eastern competitive article. Farmers in this country can raise quality hogs and our pork-packers have the reputation of manufacturing quality products, so that our bacon so far as quality is concerned is unquestioned on the British market. The whole trouble lies in the quantity produced.

As has been previously pointed out by The Canadian Grocer, Canada is by nature an agricultural and a hog-producing country and the high standing of our trade with the Old Country should never have been allowed to deteriorate. As it is, so few hogs have been raised during the past few years, the remaining producers have put prices up so abnormally high, that product-prices on the British market are getting beyond reach of all but the wealthy classes.

The key to the solution of the difficulty seems to lie with Canada. If our farmers again begin the raising of hogs and if packers continue to manufacture the kind of products they are now doing, we should in a few years' time regain our former envious position in the eyes of the Old World bacon consumers.

VALUE OF THE RETAILER.

The Retailer's Journal.

It has cost some manufacturers many thousands of dollars to discover that the retailer stands mighty close to the public.

Trade does not "belong" to anybody.

The man who gets it, owns it until some one else takes it away from him.

The man who doesn't get it at any time hasn't been robbed of anything which at any time rightfully was his.

If people could be bought and sold their trade might be a part of the deal, but things aren't arranged that way in this country.

Mr. Retail Grocer gets closer to the consuming trade than Mr. Manufacturer.

Mr. Retail Grocer trusts his customers and they trust him.

He knows that to get trade and hold it he must play the game fair.

His trade meets him face to face and he is the receiver general for all kicks.

His opinion about the relative merits of different goods have weight and he can neutralize the effect of the efforts of the manufacturers' thousand-dollar-a-minute advertising writer with perfect ease—if he is so minded.

These statements are facts—let manufacturers theorize as they will.

Substitution is fraud—if a retailer tries to make a customer believe that a "just as good" article is the genuine.

But retail grocers don't practice this kind of "substitution."

And when he makes no pretense that the article offered is the genuine, but advises his customers to buy the substitute because it is better, or as good, at the same or a lower price, he is exercising his judgment and prerogative as a dealer.

He deals in goods which, on the whole pay him the biggest profit and do him the most good. Being honest, he will not misrepresent. But his honesty is not a bar against pushing goods on which he secures the most profit, or goods which experience has taught him give the greatest satisfaction.

As a rule the retail grocer will not substitute for a small difference in profit.

It's up to the manufacturer to teach him, and do it right, that he can turn over advertised goods more readily and reduce the chance of having his shelves filled with dead stock, if in doing so he also secures him a fair profit.

The consuming public are willing to pay something additional for security—to be sure that an article is right in quality.

It is this fact which makes the real value of any particular brand of goods.

It's the manufacturer's business to explain these points to the retailer.

No theoretical argument can overcome the fact that in reality the manufacturer and retailer are partners.

One needs the other—neither can profitably exist without the other. Pulling against each other they both lose—working they both win.

Some manufacturers have learned this and their business success is evidence in favor of the value of knowing the retailer—of recognizing the part he plays in the general plan of distribution.

Those manufacturers who have not yet the good will of the retailer can go far in securing it by paying a little more attention to him—and a little less, if necessary, to the consumer.

Large Crop of Nova Scotia Apples for Shipment This Year—Cranberries on the St. John Market—Maritime Grocers' Guild Meeting—Large Supply of New Brunswick Potatoes.

ST. JOHN.

Aug. 24.—The St. John market conditions on the whole are satisfactory. The produce and fish markets are well supplied. There are some interesting changes in prices in grocery lines and the flour and meal situation shows continued unsettled conditions. Grain and root crops are reported from up river districts as most promising and farmers are looking for an unusually large yield. The hay crop is poor, as the result of the very dry weather in the early part of the season, but this will be more than offset by the satisfactory grain crop.

Lamb is higher than last year, being quoted at 11 and 12 cents a pound. Beef is selling from 7 to 9 cents a pound and veal, at 7 to 8 cents a pound. Pork is unchanged at 10 cents. Chicken are selling from 55 cents to $1.15 and fowl at 50 to 90 cents a pair. Bacon is selling for 14 to 14½ cents a pound.

The supply of new potatoes is abundant, being sold at 50 cents a bushel. New turnips are quoted at 40 to 50 cents a bushel, beets are selling at 60 cents a bushel, cabbages at 45 to 50 cents a dozen; cauliflower, 75 to $1 a dozen; beans, 75 cents and peas 60 cents a bushel; squash, 1 to 1½ cents a pound; cucumbers, $1.25 a barrel; native tomatoes, $1 to $1.25 per box of 25 pounds; celery, 80 cents a bunch; parsnips, 50 cents a dozen bunches and carrots, 35 cents a dozen bunches. New corn is bringing 10 to 12 cents a dozen.

Rock cranberries are now in and sell at $8 to $10 per barrel; blueberries are plentiful at 4 or 5 cents a box or 50 cents a water pail and blackberries are bringing 10 to 12 cents a box.

Butter and eggs are scarce, eggs especially. The latter sell at from 23 to 24 cents a dozen. Dairy butter is quoted at from 20 to 22 cents a pound, creamery, 24 cents.

Fresh fish is rather scarce. The salmon season is over and haddock is selling from 2½ to 3 cents a pound and cod, the same. Dried cod, large, are worth $3.90 to $4 per hundred, medium, 3.75 to $3.85 and small $2.75 to $3. Pickled herring are selling at $4.75 a barrel and $2.50 a half-barrel and smoked herring, 10 to 12 cents a box. Finnan haddies are 5 to 6 cents a pound, kippers are 60 cents a box, pollock $1.75 a hundred pounds and halibut, 10 to 15 cents a pound.

The price of flour is unchanged. Oatmeal dropped 40 cents a barrel last week and is now selling at $5.60 and corn meal is quoted at $1.75 in bags and $3.70 in barrels.

The retail grocers report that with the re-opening of the public schools last week, families are moving in from suburban cottages and business has shown some improvement. This will doubtless be reflected in the wholesale houses before long for farmers will be down after getting in their crops, to commence laying in their supplies.

The annual meeting of the Maritime Grocers' Guild was held here on Wednesday, August 25. Members present from outside the city included: D. A. Morrison, Amherst; W. H. Aitken, Charlottetown; A. W. Eakins, Yarmouth; H. G. Bauld, A. C. Pyke and L. M. Smith, Halifax. Only routine business was transacted, and nothing of special interest transpired. The following officers were elected: L. M. Smith, Halifax, N.S., president; Geo. E. Barbour, St. John, vice-president for New Brunswick and W. H. Aitken, Charlottetown, vice-president for Prince Edward Island. In the evening a pleasant informal dinner was tendered the visitors at the Union Club, covers being laid for twenty. S. A. Jones, president, after an excellent menu had been discussed, proposed the toast to the King which was honored in the usual way. The next toast was the visitors and responses were made made by Messrs. Bauld, Aitken, Eakins, Pyke, Smith and Morrison. Clarence W. de Forest entertained the gathering in his inimitable fashion and the singing of Auld Lang Syne brought a pleasant function to a close.

Miss Janet Mullin, who has carried on a successful fruit and confectionery business at Hartland has disposed of her stock in-trade to Reed Chase, Mrs. T. G. Simms and Estey & Curtis, all doing business in Hartland.

John McCarroll, a retail grocer of Milltown, took a novel way of entertaining his patrons one day last week. He invited his customers to go with him to the blueberry plains and spend the day picking blueberries. A large number responded and were given transportation in several hayracks. All reported a pleasant time and lots of berries. Mr. McCarrol is now planning another surprise party for his customers.

Edward Kiersteod, who has solicited business among the Milltown and St. Stephen trade for Ganong Bros. for the past few years, has accepted a position with T. H. Estabrooks and will assist in selling Red Rose Tea.

HALIFAX.

Aug. 31.—Business continues to improve in most lines of the grocery trade, and the outlook is favorable. Collections on the whole are favorable and the jobbers are satisfied with the conditions except in the colliery districts where strikes are on. Prices are pretty steady at present and no marked changes are anticipated. The receipts of butter are falling off some but this is attributed to the farmers being busy with their crops. The supply is ample for the local trade, but very little butter is being placed in storage at present. Creamery is quoted at 25c and dairy from 20 to 22 cents.

There has been an advance of three cents in the price of fresh laid eggs. The demand is quiet, both for fresh laid stock and for case eggs.

The market is practically bare of hams and bacon, both of which are in good demand. Very few hogs are arriving at present as the weather is too warm for killing, and until cooler conditions prevail there will not likely be any improvement. There is also a marked scarcity of barrelled pork. All the dealers are complaining of the shortage and the high prices. The season is near at hand when large quantities will be required for shipment to the outports.

The commission men report business very brisk at present and a large quantity of stock is being turned over. The sales of tomatoes and corn are heavy. California Bartlett pears are scarce and the price has taken a big jump. Pears that sold last week for 30 cents per dozen are now selling at fifty cents retail.

H. G. Bauld, A. C. Pyke, and L. M. Smith were the Halifax grocers who attended the meeting of the Maritime Grocers' Guild, which met in St. John this week. They all made speeches in response to the toast "to the visitors."

It is expected that the first shipment of Nova Scotia apples to the British market will be made from Halifax on Sept 8th. Last year 510,088 barrels were shipped from this port chiefly to London, Liverpool and Glasgow. This year it is expected that the shipments will reach six hundred thousand barrels. The Furness line steamers carry the most of the fruit and this year the company will put on a weekly service.

Large quantities of the early varieties of Nova Scotia fruit are now coming on the market, and the quality is excellent. The crop of peaches is large, but the demand so far is light. They are selling at 60 cents per six quart basket.

Frederick W. Hodgson, who has had several years' experience in the business, has opened an up-to-date grocery store at the corner of Windsor and North Streets. The building which has just been completed, is arranged most conveniently for this class of business. One at 60 cents per six-quart basket.

WHO WILL ANSWER THIS?

W. J. McCart, general merchant, of Avonmore, Ont., writes The Canadian Grocer, as follows:

> "I would be pleased to hear from anyone, through your trade paper, who is running a general store in departments—by this I mean where goods are charged to each department and where each clerk stays in his own department."

The Grocer will be pleased to receive for publication articles on this question.

Vancouver Grocers' Picnic Postponed on Account of Rain—Lucky Calgary Jobbers Buy Salmon Early—An Upward Tendency in Canned Goods—Regina Wants Better Shipping Facilities.

VANCOUVER.

Aug. 29.—Eggs are a feature in the market here. Good fresh locals are hard to get, and at times it is impossible to secure them. They retail at 50 cents a dozen. There are many egg and chicken raisers on the outskirts of Vancouver, and these have found that by distributing their own eggs they can get much better prices and have a steady market. They have their line of customers who pay the standard retail price, and in some cases, five cents a dozen more, since they are assured of getting eggs that are at the most but a day or two old, instead of having been in the commission house for a time and then in the grocer's store. If a good high-class selected stock could be placed in Vancouver, the trade would welcome it. If it gave satisfaction, and the price was not so far up as what it will be here for fresh eggs, the demand would be good. But they would have to be good, not in a condition that they would be returned by the buyer, for that is the one thing the retail dealer does not want. Eggs will not be below 50c a dozen retail until early next summer, and will climb to the usual price of 65c and 70c and even 75c during the coming winter.

The grocers of Vancouver were to have held their annual picnic on the 25th, but it rained all day. Postponement was made until Labor Day, when it will be pulled off at Central Park.

Arthur Jaynes, who is with his father in the grocery business in Greenwood, B.C., was married to Miss Annie Prout.

Both building and stock of Struthers' grocery store, Fernie, were destroyed by fire. Loss is fairly well covered by insurance.

William Robinson, of Chicago, seeing the possibilities of the market for squabs in Vancouver and surrounding places, has purchased 400 acres on Lulu Island, where he will raise pigeons. He now has a business of that kind at San Jose, Cal., where he keeps 10,000 birds.

REGINA.

August 31—The C.P.R. is being generally criticized for the lack of accommodation they have provided here to handle business. The matter has reached such an acute stage that a general meeting of all the shippers was held recently here to meet Mr. Taylor, the superintendent of this division and the members of the city council, to see if some agreement could not be reached between these parties, so that an improved accommodation by the railway company could be provided. The meeting was largely attended by all interested or affected, but the net result seemed to be that Mr. Taylor, on the part of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, laid the blame on the city for not allowing them to build their sheds where they wished and the city council in turn blamed the railway company, claiming they had not tried to provide accommodation and had not shown a disposition to arrange matters between the city and the railway company. This apparently was the outcome of the meeting, but this by no means satisfied the shippers and a later meeting was held at the Board of Trade office, at which a committee was appointed to investigate matters at the freight sheds and take up all cases of delay. Although the city has doubled itself several times within the past five years and the amount of shipping done from here has enormously increased, the C.P.R. have not increased their shipping accommodation in any way and they are at present unable to handle the business without a very great deal of delay in unloading the teams.

George Pepper, who has been conducting a fruit and grocery business under the style of the Regina Fruit & Produce Co. made an assignment this week to Mr. Wessel, the official assignee. It is understood his affairs are in bad shape and that his creditors will lose heavily. Probably the heaviest loser will be T. A. Hatfield, who is connected with Cloy & Simmons. Neil McKelvie was here several days this week in connection with this matter, representing Cloy & Simmons, of Calgary.

A. Pym who was lately connected with the Regina Fruit & Produce Co., has opened a fruit and grocery store on South Railway Street.

L. Addington, of the staff of Cameron & Heap, spent a week's holidays at Long Lake, the coming summer resort of Regina. J. T. Andrews, also of this firm has just returned from a business trip down the Soo Line.

The Regina Trading Co. have made quite an improvement in their store, having shifted the hardware department to the position lately occupied by the groceries, the grocery department having been moved to the rear of the store.

CALGARY.

Aug 31.—Late advices from the Pacific Coast confirm the reports that have ben published that the pack of sockeye salmon on the Fraser river is a decided disappointment to the canners and dealers alike. Preparations had been made for a large pack, which is usual every four years. However, the salmon did not run, and instead of there being 800,000 cases of sockeye packed on the Fraser, there are only 420,000 cases. Jobbers who placed orders early are fortunate, as the opening prices were low. Those who had neglected to place advance orders will have to pay higher prices, as it is stated the canners instead of making money this season stand to lose heavily on account of the extensive preparations made early in the season.

Grocery markets are firm with an upward tendency on canned goods of all kinds. California dried fruits are moving slowly, but new crop fruits are firm, as growers are marketing the fresh fruit at better figures than can be obtained from the packers. Calgary wholesale grocery prices are unchanged.

MANITOBA MARKETS

Winnipeg, Sept. 2, 1909.

Wholesalers report the trade quite heavy considering that present shipments are for immediate consumption. Merchants throughout the west find it difficult to provide goods to the multitude of hungry harvesters and as a consequence only a hand-to-mouth business is being done. In the course of a few weeks merchants will be beginning to stock goods and it is for this that the wholesalers are prepared and waiting. There is a weak tendency in the cereal market and also the syrup—owing to the new crops in these lines. Canned fruits are moving well as expected at this season when handy commodities are in order, and when fresh fruits are not available. The decline in brooms of 25 cents is the first break in price for some months. The market has been high and few merchants have been buying.

Word comes to the city that B. C. canners have withdrawn their prices on sockeye and cohoe salmon. Every four years they expect a good harvest of fish and this was the season upon which they were building their hopes. The American canners however, somehow got the crop and the stock of the B. C. Association is already depleted. The independent packer in B. C. has raised his price 50c per case.

Review of Ontario Grocery Trade Happenings

A Guelph Merchant's Method for Boosting Autumn Trade—Oats Sold in Bracebridge for Cream of Tartar—Price-cutting in Hamilton Due to Inexperience—Perth Has Produced Largest Known Cheese—Retail Grocers of London Hold Another Picnic—Brantford Grocers and Butchers on Annual Outing.

BRACEBRIDGE.

September 1.—A good joke comes from one of our large stores. In the spring of the year nearly every available empty can is brought into use to show samples of seed grain, etc., and among the lot in this particular store were used some ½-pound tins of cream of tartar for fancy oats. For some unaccountable reasons, one can was placed on the shelf with other goods and later sold for cream of tartar. On Friday last the farmer who bought the goods returned the can with this remark: "That's the darndest cream of tartar we ever had in our house."

Trade last week just about held its own, there being no big rush on. People are preparing for the annual rush to Toronto Exhibition, and, consequently, hanging on to the money.

On Saturday some pretty windows were shown and all seemed to please the many people on the streets. Kirk Bros. had an attractive window of fruit; Hutchison Bros, a tasty window of spices and vinegar, suggesting the arrival of the pickling season. Joe G. Meyers, of the Wm. Ross Co., and Lacey, had up-to-date grocery windows, while Armstrong & Gillespie's windows were filled to overflowing with fruits and vegetables.

R. A. Lawson this week is unloading a 1,200-bushel car of oats.

Peter Hutchison, of Hutchison Bros., Andrew Gillespie, of Armstrong & Gillespie, and Wm. Kirk, of Kirk Bros., attended the wedding of W. S. Ferguson at Parry Sound last Wednesday.

W. J. Reed, of Hutchison Bros., spent several days in Midland last week at the bedside of his brother, who was badly mangled on the Saturday previous in the Midland freight yards.

The new Sibbett block is about completed and is certainly a credit to our town. By degrees the ruins of our late fire will soon pass from view and in its place good, substantial stores will have been erected.

PERTH.

September 1.—In a recent issue of The Grocer was a note to the effect that a cheese weighing almost a ton, and which was claimed by the manufacturer to be the largest ever made, had been shipped from a New York State town to Chicago. Canadians surpassed this record years ago, so it may not be out of place to correct the claim. In 1893 a cheese weighing over 22,000 lbs. (more than eleven times the weight of the New York State cheese) was manufactured in Perth and sent to the World's Fair at Chicago, where it was one of the most interesting exhibits. A special wagon was manufactured on which to place it, and the cheese and wagon were given a flat car to carry them to the fair. The cheese was afterwards shipped to England, where most of it was consumed.

Fred Free, one of Perth's young men, has entered the grocery circle. He purchased the business of Mrs. J. M. Ready (now Mrs. Geo. Hogg), taking possession last Monday morning.

Potatoes have dropped another 10c. Farmers are now receiving 40c per bus. What the fall price will be is uncertain. Some people think potatoes will drop to 25c per bus.

A number of early apples are being marketed. In too many cases these are brought in in bags and so bruised that much of their value is lost. Prices vary from 40c to 60c a bus.

Plums hold first place in basket fruits this week. Lombards are bringing about 55c per basket, and fancy plums 70c.

Fire recently visited at two eastern Ontario business places. That of E. M. Sexsmith, Tweed, was one. This fire started in the cellar, but worked up into his store. The stock was damaged with smoke and water. The large general store of H. F. Judson & Son, Frankville, was recently destroyed by fire. The fire started from a stove in which papers had been burned, and spread with great rapidity. The loss was about $4,000, with insurance $2,000.

Eggs have again advanced. On Saturday they reached "paying 20c." Retailing 22c. Butter is somewhat scarce and farmers have little difficulty in getting 22c from grocers.

H. M. Shaw has one of the neatest grocery departments in town. He carries a number of high-grade special lines and enjoys a large trade. His grocery manager, "Mel" Kennedy, is a hustler for business.

South Lanark fair is being held in Perth Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. This means a busy week for grocery clerks, as a crowd is sure to attend "Perth's big fair."

All the interesting picnic reports in The Grocer make one wonder why we could not have one. If Perth and Smith's Falls grocers would work together next year, perhaps a splendid one could be arranged for, say up the Rideau. It's worth thinking about anyway.

GUELPH.

Sept. 1.—Tomatoes sold in Guelph on Saturday in fairly large quantities at 30 cents a basket, though some of the merchants lost money in selling them at that price. The reason of this was that the local supply was unsatisfactory and slow. Early in the morning tomatoes sold by the wagon load at 25 cents a basket, but in the course of an hour the wholesale price had shot up to 30 cents, so that merchants who were not among the first to buy either sold them at 35 cents or lost money on them at 30 cents.

Black raspberries are unsatisfactory as far as Guelph merchants are concerned this year. They are small in size and inferior in quality.

W. C. Benson, of Benson Brothers, is back from Ottawa.

Robert Millar, of the grocery department of George Williams' store is delighted this week with the supply of melons he is getting in. They are the Bow Park brand and he claims that their flavor is exceptionally good and that they come neatly packed with excelsior, in large willow baskets. "We have no kicks on these," he said.

Ald. J. A. McCrea and Mrs. McCrea have returned from a pleasant vacation in Muskoka.

Many Guelph merchants, particularly grocers who display their wares on the streets in front of their stores, feel grateful to the police and civic authorities for their vigilance in stamping out the dog nuisance in Guelph. A great deal has been done in this respect since the new dog by-law came into force. The merchants are not troubled nearly so much now with stray dogs. They sincerely hope the authorities will continue in the good work.

A line of wine vinegar made from straight grape juice has been advertised during the past week by the grocery department of George Williams' store. Your correspondent upon making enquiries learned that the new article was taking hold well and gives promise of becoming popular. "How is it?" the writer asked of the manager. "What do they seem to like about it?" "Smell it," was the reply, and then the writer understood. The new vinegar has a smell very much like—strong sherry.

Archie Benallick, of Peter Anderson's grocery store, left yesterday morning for Shelburne and Orangeville where he will spend two weeks holidays with friends.

Miss Gertie Hicks, of the staff of Hicks' Paisley Street grocery, is back again from her vacation.

Early apples are scarce in Guelph as yet, and the quality is none too good, although apple dealers in this district have told their Guelph customers that the season promises to be a good one for the later fruit.

There is not a grocer in Guelph who has been able this season to get a supply of huckleberries equal to the demand. Every day for the past week or two they have been repeatedly asked by their customers for huckleberries and could have sold them at a good price had they been able to get any for sale. A. J. Groom, an Upper Wyndham street grocer, in speaking to your correspondent on the scarcity of this line of fruit, said it has been the poorest season for them for years. "We simply can't get them at any price," he said. "Hugh Walker & Son got a small shipment in a short time ago and divided them up amongst us giving us two baskets each, and that is about all we have been able to get.

Ernie Tovell, of the staff of A. J. Groom's grocery has returned from his holidays.

Your correspondent on making his rounds this week asked a number of local grocers what lines of advertising they were intending to take up to boost their fall trade. Several were of the opinion that they would merely use the newspapers, but some others said they believed strongly in the effectiveness of the circular letters. A typewritten personal letter,—a circular, and yet not a printed one—was, they thought, one of the most effective means of getting the attention of the public. One of the merchants just recently sent out to every woman in Guelph a typewritten letter with her name and address at the head of the letter as well as on the envelope. He showed your correspondent one of the letters and he was surprised to see that though they were turned out on a machine a thousand at a time they looked exactly like first copies of letters written specially to the person addressed. The merchant in question stated that while he had not the time to do this work himself, he thought it was about the most effective line of advertising he could get and did not in the least begrudge the expense entailed in having it properly executed at a typewriting establishment where he was also given the use of carefully revised lists of first-class customers in Guelph and vicinity.

supply. One of them stated that last week he had to go to Toronto and buy 50 lbs. of fish at an exceptionally high price in order to be in a position to accommodate his regular customers. The scarcity of the supply, it was explained, is due to the great demand that there is for fish in Toronto at present on account of the many Exhibition visitors.

One Guelph grocer at least, interested in a news item in The Canadian Grocer, to the effect that Tilbury merchants had made an agreement among themselves to ask their customers to leave orders for groceries before 9.30 at night on Saturdays and to deliver no orders that were taken after that hour. "You might suggest in your letter that we make a similar move here, for there are many of us, I am sure, who are none too anxious to keep our delivery men at work all Saturday night and part of Sunday morning."

BRANTFORD.

September 1.—The first annual picnic of the Grocers' and Butchers' Association was held at Burt's grove, near Paris, on Wednesday afternoon, when nearly 150, representing the association members and their clerks, boarded the Grand Valley cars and were conveyed to the beautiful picnic grounds. The features of the afternoon were a number of baseball games, the most important of which was between the grocers and butchers. Although there were many errors, the game was enlivened by terrific slugging. In the end the grocers won out by 25—24. After this match the winners went up against Pettit's lightweights, whom they defeated by 23—22. In the evening the dough-punchers trimmed the sugar-sifters 24—14. The grocers were in fine form, also carrying off the tug-of-war contest. At the close of the sports a dainty lunch was served. All voted the event a great success, and it is likely it will be made an annual feature in the future. The sports in detail were: Ball game—Grocers (25) Art Harp, B. Burns, N. Walsh, W. Greenside, George McCann, E. Felton, G. Fowler, P. Greenside. Butchers (24) J. Cammel, Pilfer H. Burns, Kew, Cradock, Needham, Wilton, Thornton, Welsh. Sack race—C. Thornton, E. Martin; three-legged race—Pfilton and Culver; Greensides and Thornton; boys' race—McKinnon and Howarth; 50 yards race—M. Knowles. Culver, W. Adams; boys' 50 yards race—T. McKinnon, G. Howarth, W. Mulcap.

The local merchants are making a fall display of fruit jars. The sales have been good as fruit has been plentiful here, and the featuring of the jars has served as a reminder to customers. The local market affords excellent opportunity of purchasing all lines of fruits at the lowest rates.

The merchants along Colborne Street, including several grocers, have approached Mayor Wood to use his influence in having the work of paving the street rushed with all possible speed. The street has now been torn up for a couple of months, with the result that it is not open to traffic. In consequence the merchants are losing trade. The mayor promised to do his best to have additional gangs put on the work so that it may be completed at the earliest possible date.

Brantford is soon to vote on a big question, which is of particular interest and importance to the grocers of the city. It is whether or not the location of the present market shall be changed. The Dominion Government has intimated that it will spend $150,000 on a new building for the local postal, customs and inland revenue services, if the city deeds a part of the present market square as a site, in exchange for which the Government is willing to give the city the present post office building. No doubt the business men, including the grocers, will be heard from on the question, as opinion is pretty evenly divided on the issue. In Brantford trade has centred around the market square and its removal must mean serious damage to vested interests. The Grocers' and Butchers' Association will probably take a stand on the issue.

TOMATOES AND CORN DAMAGED.

Toronto, Sept. 2.—The William Davies Co. received telephone messages this morning from St. Catharines and St. Thomas, saying that heavy frosts the previous night had damaged corn and tomatoes.

TORONTO.

Sept. 1.—H. Ashcroft, 1592 Queen St. West, is rapidly increasing his business through his two hustling clerks, R. D. Patchett and G. W. Warren, who are bound to get their full share of the business. They are after the best methods and appreciate the value in this respect of The Canadian Grocer.

Dunlop & Kitchen, 1254 Bloor St. West, recently came to the city, full of life and ambition and are in the keen race to get a good hold in that part of the growing city.

Grocers are getting so numerous on Bloor St., west, that one of them suggests the idea that the street should be called "Grocery Ave."

W. J. Jones, 1204 Bloor St., West, is getting a strong hold in this busy part of the city and is doing a good business. He builds on the solid foundation of cleanliness and courteous service.

B. L. Dunn, 992 Bloor St. West, is well satisfied with his summer's business. Fruit trade was good. He gets many pointers he says from The Canadian Grocer. If a grocer does not take his trade paper there is something wrong with him.

Lewis & Stevenson, 935 Bloor St. West, are bright and up-to-date grocers. Their stock is well kept and is in good conditions. They wear that happy "something" about them which is sure to bring people back as permanent customers.

C. E. Hubbs has bought out D. McEachren, 934 Bloor St., West, and has taken possession. Mr. Hubbs comes from Brule Lake Station, where he has been conducting business for a strong lumbering concern, and therefore comes with a valuable experience. The next best thing, after securing this favorable spot, was to subscribe for The Canadian Grocer, which is certainly an evidence of good business tact and judgment.

M. Hollingshead, 896 Bloor St. West, is one of the old trade journal readers and is therefore up-to-date in every respect. His wonderful experience all over the world is very valuable in conducting his business. It is remarkable how much valuable information is hidden among grocers, which would be intensely interesting and valuable to others, if they would occasionally write a letter to their trade paper. A subscriber to a paper is valuable, but one who takes enough interest in it to criticize the editor's work, or occasionally write a letter, is worth a great deal more.

B. L. Hill, 668 Bloor St. West, enjoyed a good regular business all summer. He is strongly supporting the idea of biscuit manufacturers invoicing their goods at retail prices, with a fair discount off.

I. B. Hagan, 638 Bloor St., West, never had a better summer's business and he attributes a good deal of it to the stand the wholesale men took in demanding prompt payment in full each week. He claims that prevented careless buyers from buying larger quantities than they could handle, and then either slaughter them or throw them out. While he claims that this step on the part of the wholesale men did good in some respects, he is, however, decidedly opposed to this manner of treating good paying grocers in the way they do.

R. S. Moore has bought out Clancy & Co., 628 Bloor St., West. He is a young man full of ambition and determination to win. With the help of his wife he should soon have a busy place in that hustling part of the city.

W. J. Sawyer, Yonge St., has an attractive display of a breakfast food cartons. The arrangement is new and is certainly an attention-drawer.

A. J. McPherson, 1078 Queen Street West, has a good front in his store, which he is going to turn to good advantage. Along with his groceries he has a neat ice cream parlor, as well as a soda fountain. With the new improvement and extra efforts, he expects to have the best store in that part of Queen Street.

LONDON.

Sept. 1.—Trade in both wholesale and retail circles is fair. Brokers report prices of all staples firm. Price shows an advance, and samples coming are darker in color than usual. Prices of California seeded raisins and prunes are at present in buyers' favor, but an advance is looked for. The damage to currants is not so great as feared, and grocers, who advanced prices 3c per cwt., have got them down to the old figure again. Buyers are holding off for lower prices for Valencia raisins. The crop of both currants and raisins is expected to be good. Brokers are daily looking for quotations for sockeye salmon.

Last week saw the last of the Wednesday half-holidays for the summer, and grocers and other business men, who have taken advantage of it, regret it at all over. Almost all are satisfied with the way the arrangement works, and no one believes any loss is suffered from closing up shop half a day each week.

The Retail Grocers' Association celebrated the last of the half-holidays on Wednesday last with a big picnic at Springbank. Fully 5,000 people were on the ground, and there was an abundance of fun. The programme of sport contained many amusing features, chief among which was the three-legged race for mixed couples. Fancy slim, symmetrical President E. J. Ryan, tied at the ankle to a buxom lady of 210 lbs. avoirdupois, and you have an idea of what the race was like. Yet the same couple managed to run at dead heat for first place with a pair of pretty smart sprinters. There was a bun-eating contest, boxing in barrels, a pillow fight, etc., all of which served to amuse the great crowd. Not the least interesting item on the program was the baseball match—North v. South—for the Lea Pickling Co.'s trophy. The following are some of the prize winners in the various events:—

150 yards dash, open—1, O. Falconer; 2, W. Hamilton; 3, R. Hill.

100 yards, members of the Retail Grocers' Association—1, T. Vincent; 2, A. Young; 3, T. Janes.

Grocers' wives, fifty yards—1, Mrs. W. Richards; 2, Mrs. Cahoon; 3, Mrs. Traver.

Lady grocery clerks, fifty yards—1, M. Johnston; 2, O. Falconer; 3, A. Kidner.

Grocery clerks, 100 yards—1, O. Falconer; 2, R. Hill; 3, B. Wood.

Grocer drivers, 100 yards—1, W. Hamilton; 2, W. Davis; 3, E. Worwald.

Sack race, open—1, J. Goodran; 2, B. Wood; 3, G. Mitchell.

Red Rose tea race, married ladies—1, Mrs. Brown 2, Mrs. Webb; 3, Mrs. Steinhoff; 4, Mrs. Tallant.

Travelers calling on grocery trade, 100 yards—1, H. Wilkie; 2, F. Brown; 3, H. Langford.

Human wheelbarrow race, 50 yards—1, Simpson and Summers; 2, Mitchell and Wood; 3, Gibson and Bodine.

Bun-eating contest — G. Bindner, C. Roulston, H. O'Rourke.

Pillow fight, open—1, D. Carter; 2, B. Wood; 3, C. Sumner.

Three-legged race, lady and gent, lady must weigh 200 pounds or over—1, E. Ryan and Mrs. Sadlier 2, Ed. McCormick and Mrs. Richards.

Committee race, open to officers of Retail Grocers' Association—1, C. Hayes; 2, Ed. Reid; 3, H. Ranahan.

Presidents, ex-president, vice-presidents and ex-vice-president of R. G. A.—1, H. Ranahan; 2, W. Mullins; 3, E. Ryan. Special prize, N. McLeod.

Grocers' wives' race—Mrs. Richards, Mrs. Spaan, Mrs. Travor, Mrs. Fonger.

There was also a contest for the prettiest girl on the grounds. The judges did their work while the sports were going on, and as a result, Miss Marjorie Dodd, of 477 Queen's Avenue, was awarded the prize, a platinum photo. There was a ken contest for the most popular lady on the grounds, four being nominated: Miss Falconer, Mrs. W. Smith, Mrs. Thomas Shaw and Mrs. Ed. McCormick. The voting was keen, but Miss Falconer won. She was awarded the prize, a ticket to Toronto and 6 admissions to the Industrial Exposition.

HAMILTON.

September 1.—Bumper markets are a common sight just now, all kinds of fruits and vegetables coming in profusion and selling at reasonable prices. For one or two days there was a glut of tomatoes and they sold at 10c. for 12 qt. baskets. Prospects are good for a heavy crop, and the local canneries will be able to get all their requirements. Peaches of the clingstone variety have been a drug on the market. Last week they came in by the thousand with prices all the way from 15c. to 40c. each for small baskets. The only thing to do is to stew them for pies. It is a question with a great many farmers whether it would not be better to cut them out altogether and grow only the better grade of peaches.

The grocers think that if blueberries were shipped down here to some commission man who was not too greedy that a good deal more business might be done with them.

Butter, eggs and poultry are high. When it comes to spring chicken or duck it is only the man with the big roll that can get away with them. Hamilton market at this season is a whole show and is well worth a visit.

The travelers are all looking fine after their rest and report excellent business. Wholesale grocers here are pressed to fill orders and are working their staffs up to the limit.

Factories are all running full time and prospects look bright for a good season's business. Here as in a great many other places the retail grocery trade is overdone but as long as jobbers will take a few dollars from inexperienced men and give them a stock of goods, we will have cutting and failing and all their disagreeable attributes to put up with.

CHATHAM.

Sept. 1.—Following several rather quiet weeks in the grocery business, things are commencing to liven up. The fall preserving season is commencing, peaches, plums and pears coming in freely. This is expected to stimulate business in sugar, jars and preserving accessories. The picking season will also open shortly, with a consequent demand for spices.

Herbert Malcolmson, of the H. Malcolmson grocery, has arrived home from a business and pleasure trip to various points in Quebec.

Harry Andrew is spending a couple of days this week fishing at St. Luke's Club on Lake St. Clair.

Varying reports have been received regarding the tomato crop. In some sections of Essex it is reported excellent. In Kent and Elgin, however, indications are for a short crop, which will affect the canning industry.

Miss Winnie Savage, of the Craig Co., Limited, staff, Ridgetown, has been taking her summer holidays.

A unique complaint comes from Kingsville, in the heart of the Essex melon belt. It is to the effect that growers unload upon the local merchants and through them on local customers the culls of their stock, which retail at the same price as first class melons. Incidentally, this looks like a good melon year.

Chatham was on Aug. 24 and 25 the scene of an important gathering, the I.O.F. High Court, of Western Ontario. Nearly 500 Foresters and companions were in attendance. Quite a few merchants decorated for the occasion.

BUSINESS IN WESTPORT.

Merchants are Finding Trade in the Grocery Line Better Than a Year Ago.

Westport, Ont., Sept. 1.—Westport has as pretty a situation as any Ontario village. It is situated right on the shore of Rideau lake, has a good farming district around it, and so enjoys a good farm and campers' business. The tourist business should greatly increase, as the lake fills up with cottages and campers. Almost all the stores are general stores, only one or two being straight groceries.

J. R. Breckenridge has one of the neatest stores in town. He gives most of his attention to groceries and this summer has enjoyed the best business which ever came his way.

McDonald & Erwin do quite a business and have found this year's trade ahead of last year's.

M. E. Mulville has groceries well to the front of his large general store, opposite the Wardrobe House. He carries a large stock and business is brisk.

J. H. Arnold, in his general store, gives a front position to his well-selected stock of groceries. His stock is neatly kept and "Arnold's" on Main St. is well thought of by the buying public.

Potatoes are bringing 50c per bushel here. Grocers are paying 20c for eggs. They find dairy butter scarce and are stocking creamery.

Retailer Charges Wholesalers With Unfair Methods

Claims That Some Distributers Sell Direct to Consumers Whenever They Find it Convenient—Large Trade of This Nature Done During the Summer With Muskoka Tourist Houses—"Lover of Fair Play" Makes Strong Plea for a Provincial Retail Grocers' Association—Gives Some Facts About Orders Taken.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—The writer has been wondering of late where some of the wholesalers are going to land.

The Wholesale Grocers' Guild says that the manufacturer who sells direct to the retailer, must discontinue to do so, or that body will refuse to handle their goods. The above was shown clearly to be the case during the late enquiry made in Toronto.

Years ago, in the Muskoka Lakes district where I do business, the retailers did a large business in the way of supplying tourist summer resorts, and with the settlers generally on the Muskoka Lakes. A few years ago some wholesalers, looking to extend their business, decided to do a retail trade by way of supplying these resort keepers and settlers, and before the lakes are clear of ice each year, travelers representing different wholesale grocers are to be found soliciting orders for groceries, meats, biscuits, confectionary, and, in fact, almost every thing that a retail grocer would stock.

I have in my possession a copy of an order taken by a traveler representing a wholesale grocer, doing business on Front Street, Toronto, from a tourist house, which I would imagine from the size of the house, would accomodate from fifteen to eighteen guests. It reads as follows: 6 boxes Royal Yeast; 6 pkgs. corn starch; 6 tins sardines; 6 pkgs Pearline, 3 pkgs Sapolio, 12 lbs. pot barley, 6 lbs. split peas and several other items of this character.

Several of these resort keepers' orders would amount to several hundred dollars each, during the season. Practically the only business that the retailer here gets from this district is orders for hay, oats, flour, and perishable fruits, which the wholesalers do not supply. The wholesalers get the grocery orders, to which I think the retailer here is entitled.

Some time ago I saw, on a wharf on one of the Muskoka Lakes, a consignment of groceries from a wholesale house on Front Street, Toronto, amounting, I would suppose to about $125. This was addressed to a gentleman, who is not even a summer resort keeper, but a settler. On the following day I met a brother retailer, who showed me a letter, from the same settler to whom the grocery order was addressed, asking to be supplied with seed, grain, etc., on credit —his money having all gone to pay the wholesaler who supplied the groceries. I have it from good authority that one of the wholesale houses in Toronto does a retail business in this section of about $10,000.

Why should the Wholesale Grocers' Guild allow this wholesale house to do a retail trade, and yet prevent a retailer from buying direct from the manufacturer? After taking the cream of the business during the summer months from the retailer here, who should have it, the wholesaler will expect the retailer to patronize him during the remaining months of the year.

One of the owners of a large summer resort told me that he had, for some years, been buying his goods from a wholesale house in Toronto, because the wholesaler's family always stayed with him during the summer months, and, I suppose, traded the bill out.

The time is ripe for all retail grocers in Ontario to stand firm and have a Provincial Association to deal with matters of this kind. The Retail Merchants' Association has done a good work in the past in bringing about good legislation, but there are many things, pertaining expressly to the retail grocery trade, regarding which some understanding should be arrived at.

I would like to hear the expressions of the views of other retailers who may be suffering from this same cause.

"LOVER OF FAIR PLAY."

PRODUCES BAD EFFECT.

Cussing Clerks is not Conducive to Building up a Business.

We know a merchant who swears at his clerks.

This man not only swears at his men clerks, but he does it in the presence of the women clerks and he has even been known to swear at the women clerks.

One would suppose that it would be hard for such a man to get clerks to work for him. But clerks will sometimes put up with a good deal to hold their jobs. And possibly the clerks take into consideration the fact that it is just a bad habit the man has, and that he does not really mean anything. In other ways the merchant is a very nice sort of a chap, and is good to his assistants.

But the cussing habit doesn't help any. It makes some of the clerks mad, to be sure, and now and then one of them will quit in a huff and go somewhere else. And these clerks who quit generally take pains to inform all their friends about their reason for quitting.

That is what really hurts the merchant. Most people—and women especially—will be prejudiced against a merchant who uses violent language in calling down his clerks. "I don't like to trade at Mr. So-and-So's," they say, "because they say he swears at his clerks just awfully." The stories about the way the man swears are probably not allowed to grow any less pictureque than they really are by being told around, you know.

This swearing business is going out of fashion. Men who are naturally inclined to swear are finding out that it is better policy not to do it. It generally hurts the man who swears a good deal worse than anyone else. It is, as a matter of fact, against the law to swear, and further than that, it is contrary to good sense and good breeding. — Merchants' Journal.

HIS TEN COMMANDMENTS.

A Chicago man who has a large number of employes under him, has posted up in various departments of his establishment cards which bear the above caption and the following terse rules. These make it very plain what he expects, and what he does not expect, of those who draw salaries from him:

Rule I.—Don't lie—it wastes my time and yours. I'm sure to catch you in the end and that's the wrong end.

Rule II.—Watch your work, not the clock. A long day's work makes a long day short and a day's short work makes my face long.

Rule III.—Give me more than I expect and I'll pay you more than you expect. I can afford to increase your pay if you increase my profits.

Rule IV.—You owe so much to yourself that you can't afford to owe anybody else. Keep out of debt or keep out of my shops.

Rule V.—Dishonesty is never an accident. Good men, like good women, can't see temptation when they meet it.

Rule VI.—Mind your own business and in time you'll have a business of your own to mind.

Rule VII.—Don't do anything here which hurts your self-respect. The employe who is willing to steal for me is capable of stealing from me.

Rule VIII.—It's none of my business what you do at night, but if dissipation affects what you do next day, and you do half as much as I demand, you'll last half as long as you hoped.

Rule IX.—Don't tell me what I'd like to hear, but what I ought to hear. I don't want a valet to my vanity, but I need one for my dollars.

Rule X.—Don't kick if I kick—if you're worth while correcting, you're worth while keeping. I don't waste time cutting specks out of rotten apples.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Canned Peas—Prices withdrawn.
Lump Sugar—Lower.
Canned Salmon—Advanced.
Molasses—Good demand.

Montreal, Sept. 2, 1909.

Interest this week centres in the canned goods situation, as it has for weeks past. Peas and salmon are higher, with the former no longer offering, by the large packers, and the latter about as scarce as it has been for a decade. Talk of pro rata deliveries of tomatoes is heard in some quarters, owing to the cool weather we are at present having, and which prevents the tomatoes on the vines ripening. Lump sugar is lower. Syrups are beginning to sell freely. Peas are high, as they have been for the last few months. Californian dried fruits are firm, with an advancing tendency noticeable in apricots and peaches. New crop beans and peas are being quoted in some quarters. Spot stock prices, for beans, are lower as a result.

Business, on the whole, is showing some slight improvement, orders being received for shipment prior to the close of navigation.

SUGAR—Lump sugar, with the exception of cartons, is lower this week. Demand for all varieties refined sugar is still very good, though the fact that the preserving season is drawing to a close is resulting in a noticeable falling-off in the size and frequency of orders.

DRIED FRUITS—A slight easing-off in Valencia prices has not brought figures down to as interesting a basis, from the buyers' standpoint, as could be desired. No further advices of especial interest have come to hand from Spain. Californian dried fruits are firm. Apricots and peaches have advanced ¼c on the coast. Prunes are steady, being firmly held. Wholesalers are not keen buyers, even at the low prices quoted. The outlook for prunes has not changed much during the past few weeks. It still appears as if the smaller sizes, 80-90's, would be quite scarce. Raisins are unchanged. There is more or less fluctuation in prices of all lines of dried fruits, but, as buyers will understand, these variations are due to the quality and the quantity of the goods put into packages, rather than to market conditions, or the state of the crops. The old, reliable, standard brands are steady, prices being well maintained by the old established houses who are putting up their goods in the same old way.

BEANS AND PEAS—Both beans and peas, new, to arrive, are being quoted daily, and prices are considerably under those asked for spot stock. Quotations for spot goods, however, are much easier, in the case of beans, as the result of the new crop offers having been made. It will be some time yet until either beans or peas are obtainable—the new crop—so that present prices will be maintained, with a weakening tendency noticeable, for several days yet. On beans new prices will be in the neighborhood of the $2 mark, while peas will hover around $1.35 and $1.50.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL.—With peas withdrawn by the larger packers, tomatoes strong and corn firming up, to say nothing of the salmon situation, the condition of the canned goods market is interesting. Peas are worth 10c dozen more than they were last week. Their extreme scarcity and the large demand for the line are responsible for the higher figures being asked,—92½c to $1.57½. Salmon is up 15c dozen for Clover Leaf, Horseshoe and Sockeye. Recent cool weather has been most discouraging to packers of tomatoes, and there is talk of pro rata deliveries unless we have immediate warm weather. These cool days, coming inopportunely, when the tomatoes on the vines should be ripening, make it certain that the crop will be short of requirements. Orders booked already are very large, and any scarcity would be most unwelcome, yet a pronounced falling off in the yield cannot be helped unless there is a change in the weather at once. One large order for gallon tomatoes was turned down by one packer, who was booked beyond his capacity already. It is hardly necessary to say anything further about the situation in salmon beyond the fact that the pack is proving disappointing. The run is much smaller than anticipated, everywhere, as evidenced by the strong market and advancing prices. Corn is none too plentiful, and, in some quarters doubt is expressed as to whether there will be sufficient to take care of requirements. No prices have yet been made on gallon fruits.

TORONTO.

TORONTO.—The canned goods market is very excited. Dealers scarcely know how to move. Even fruit canners are buying goods on speculation from wholesale men, if they can get hold of them at a price on which they feel they can make another profit. Sales are made, and afterwards the seller will take them back again at a small advance. The general feling is that tomatoes, corn and peas will materially advance before settled figures will be reached. Canned salmon are also in an unsettled condition, but it is safe in stating that salmon are up at least 15c a dozen. The catch this year was disappointing and only about one-half of what was expected.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Lump Sugar—Decline of 10 cents.

Canned Goods—Higher prices expected.

Molasses—Market firm.

Toronto, Sept. 2, 1909.

The wholesale trade is brisk. Orders are satisfactory, and with the "Exhibition" in full swing a good many of the country merchants are expected to show up at the different houses, if for no other purpose than a friendly chat. But incidentally orders will receive prompt and careful attention. The unsettled condition of the market in so many lines at present, causes an anxiety and restlessness among wholesale men which is common to this time of the year. The disappointment in the salmon supply is causing some changes in the calculations of meeting the demand.

SUGAR—All that can be said of the sugar market is that it is very firm, but no advance. Lump sugar has dropped 10c per 100 lbs. This, however, has nothing to do with the price of the regular brands. It no more comes in competition with granulated sugar, than tea does with coffee. It is used entirely for different purposes and prices are governed by its own supply and demand. The demand for all kinds of preserving sugar continues active.

SMALL STORE SERVICE.

The extent to which small suburban retail stores will go to vie with their larger down town competitors is sometimes quite marked. There seems to be a greater desire than ever to please the casual buyer, who cannot find time to go downtown.

The woman proprietor of a little notion shop in the suburb of a large city furnishes a good example of this kind of enterprise. Her stock is rather limited so that her customers are sometimes unable to get what they desire. In a case of this kind the proprietor lends her personal services to the shopper by leaving the store in charge of a clerk and going downtown in person after the desired goods. This service she gives free of charge, adding to the price of the article only the actual carfare spent for the trip.

Where a shopper is unable to go down town on account of children or lack of time, this kind of service is of great value. The woman proprietor has in this way built up a permanent trade among a large portion of the women in the suburb and her sales are constantly increasing. J. S. B. in System.

A little extra window or counter display just now, or personal recommendation of Red Rose Tea, will be much appreciated, and will help make the plan more effective, besides increasing your sales.

If you come to the Toronto Exhibition this year, there is no place you will be more welcome than at the Red Rose Tea room in the Manufacturers' Building or at the downtown warehouse at 3 Wellington Street East.

If you go first to the Exhibition tea-room kindly make yourself known to whoever is in charge. If you don't tell him who you are he may borrow five cents from you.

A Winnipeg Grocer's Seven Year Climb to Success

R. L. Waugh Started in as a Clerk in England — Made the Best of Every Opportunity—A Cash Business, Attractive Interior and Window Displays as Means to Larger Custom—A Careful Buyer of Choice Goods—Makes Friends With Competitors.

Staff Correspondence.

Winnipeg, Aug. 31.—We hear much in these days about taking advantage of opportuities. It may be sometimes overemphasized, since the general tendency of the business world verifies that the doctrine is practised as well as taught. There are few live business men who would not take opportunities if they clearly saw the accompanying advantage. It is certainly a part of a man's business ability to be able to see future advantages in present opportunities. And he who turns away from such opportunities leaves behind him rich fields unharvested, of luxuriant fruit unplucked. and treasure mines unexplored. The wings of time are burdened with treasures as it flies by, and he who fails to grasp at opportunities thus afforded is doing himself, and the commercial life of the world, an injustice.

We all naturally like to see men "getting on." It not only reflects credit upon the individuals, but also aids general business conditions of that part of the world with which they have to do. Things in general are in a healthy condition when individuals are showing evidences of prosperity, and the pessimist who looks upon the whole commercial system as something detrimental to some more true order which he may fancy, would do well to stop at concrete cases to feel the strong pulse of the throbbing world of commerce which is woven all about us.

A Clerk in England.

A concrete case worthy of mention is that of the short business career of a Winnipeg grocer. It is possibly more worthy because it is short. Seven years ago R. L. Waugh came to this country from England, where he had served his apprenticeship as a grocery clerk in the store of John Devereux, of Lowestoft. Mr. Waugh clerked for one year after his arrival in Canada in the Hudson Bay store, Winnipeg. At the end of that time, gathering together what little money he saved, he opened a store in the northwest part of the city. That section of the city was growing rapidly at the time, and he was not compelled, as many are when opening in a new quarter, to wait for business. Two years later, he was compelled to move to another part of the city, on account of a net-work of railways that was then planned, and since constructed, near his store site. Mr. Waugh next opened in a splendid residential section, in a small store previously used as a dwelling house. He was not long in this location before he began to concern himself with several important phases of the grocery business to which he had heretofore not given great thought. His business had grown so rapidly that he was justified in assuring himself that there were larger things before him. And he must only reach out. Those features of the business of which he now began to take thought were chiefly, first, a cash trade; second, more spacious and attractive store interior; third, facilities for window display; fourth, a larger custom.

R. L. WAUGH,
Winnipeg, Grocer, Whose Methods have Won Him Rapid Success.

New Store on English Plan.

It was not long before he had designs on the future, when once he caught a vision of a business which was characterized by these features. To carry out his plan he moved one block east and built a frame store 60x40 feet, fronting on Sherbrooke Street, where the street traffic is greater than in his former quarter, and where a street car stops every four minutes in the day. The new store is only one storey in height, and the owner of the property expects to erect a five-storey apartment block over the present building in the near future.

The store was fashioned after the old store in Lowestoft, England, where the boy Waugh was a clerk, and of which place he retains pleasant memories. The windows of the new store are wide and present ample room for a good array of goods, which is always taken advantage of. The interior of the store is conspicuously spacious and beautifully furnished with modern bin fixtures. A marble-topped refrigerator meat counter stands in the centre of the floor, and around a supporting pillar are placed in pyramid form the delicious fruits in season.

As may be seen from the accompanying picture, the left side of the store is exclusively groceries, and the right side is reserved for confectioneries. The rear of the building is used as a stock room and office, the stock room being 40x20 feet in dimensions.

Mr. Waugh believes in buying carefully, shelving choice goods, giving clerks a holiday,' beautiful window displays, making friends with competitors, organizing a grocers' association, and reading The Canadian Grocer.

Home Grown Vegetables Profitable to Grocers

Horticultural Exhibit in Winnipeg Beneficial to Merchants in the West—Producers Encouraged to Give More Space to Fruit and Vegetable Growing—Possible Results if Advance Goes on.

Staff Correspondence.

Winnipeg, Aug 31.—The retail vegetable trade this season in Winnipeg has far excelled the trade of previous years. Just why it has multiplied in one year is difficult to ascertain. It is known, however, that last year was the first in the history of the city when the Horticultural Society of Manitoba held a show for the special display of fruits and vegetables. That exhibition was such a success that much comment was made upon it, not only in local circles, but a large party of Scottish farmers and United States editors, who were in the city at the time, carried the news to all parts of the world, that Manitoba possessed wonderful posibilities for fruit and vegetable production.

As a result producers within the province were encouraged, and began to look to other places of cultivation besides that of wheat growing. Not only were producers interested, but merchants, for the cities and towns of the province began to recognize the value of patronizing home industry.

That this is true is certainly verified by the wonderful display of the Horticultural Society this year in the spacious amphitheatre of the Horse Show Association. Producers from every corner of the province responded to the call of the association to make a display of vegetables, fruit and flowers on August 25, 26 and 27. As a matter of fact, no better vegetables are grown in the world than on the rich Manitoba loam. Manitoba potatoes are unequalled. Beans, peas, carrots, beets and every vegetable which can be grown in Ontario, can be grown with equal success in the west. Even corn, which just now may be seen in the grocers' windows, can be raised in Manitoba, and hardy varieties are being developed, which will give this province and Winnipeg as fine corn as can be imported.

Vegetables Shipped in.

Despite the ability of the soil of Manitoba to raise the best vegetables in the world, carloads are being shipped in yearly, particularly from Wisconsin. Although it is true that Manitoba cannot produce vegetables as early in the season as some of the States to the south, owing to climatic conditions, and consumers are compelled to import, yet it is also true that merchants continue to import even after the desired goods are available from the local grower. This is unfortunate for both the producer and the merchants. The producer is endeavoring to raise the vegetables which are in demand, and by so doing developing a phase of agriculture which is beneficial to the mercantile life of the country. And if the retailers ignore his goods by going across the boundry for the same lines, vegetable production becomes unprofitable and agricultural and horticultural production is curtailed.

After such an exhibition as the one held this year, it must be expected that there will be an increased supply of local grown vegetables on the market. And as years go on the season for home grown vegetables will be lengthened, owing to the fast advancing science of developing hardy varieties. As this comes about the merchants will year by year be obliged to reduce the quantity of vegetable importations.

As a Fruit Producer.

That which is true of vegetables is not true of fruit in Manitoba. The grocer has not the option of handling Manitoba or imported fruit. Fruit, however, can be grown in the province, as was illustrated at the horticultural exhibition. It is, however, largely a matter of experiment, as perhaps there were not more than fifty barrels of apples grown in Manitoba, put upon the market last year. The fruit market in the city at present is being discussed widely in other circles, on account of the high price at which it retails, and the consensus of opinion seems to be that the middleman or importer is making the undue profit. It must be admitted, however, that all fruit will be high at all seasons, owing to freight rates and the shrinkage that always takes place. At the exhibition, both the Okanagan fruit district in B. C., and the Niagara fruit district were represented, and won the admiration of the many visitors. A. P. Stephenson, of Morden, Man., and D. W. Buchanan, of St. Charles, Man., are to be commended for the display of the luscious fruit produced in Manitoba.

In looking over the Manitoba fruit in company with a local grocer, the merchant remarked that it no doubt would be some years before Manitoba could support the retail fruit trade, but the merchants should do all they can in encouraging the local fruit growers by buying their products whenever they are available. If Manitoba could adequately supply the fruit market, the agitation for cheaper fruit would be dispensed with.

MEASURED BY CAMEL LOADS.

Smyrna Fig Crop Estimated to be About Same as Last Year—Quality as Good.

Ernest L. Harris writes, under date of July 26, as follows, regarding the fig crop of the Smyrna district of Asiatic Turkey:—The crop of figs for 1909 is estimated at 110,000 camel loads, weighing about 4½ cwt. each. Producers first complained of a disease on the tree, which made the new fruit fall, but at present indications are good, and the quality is expected to be at least the same as that of last year. The yield in camel loads for previous years was as follows: 112,700 in 1908; 117,950 in 1907; 114,775 in 1906; 101,025 in 1905, and 82,730 in 1904.

The fig-packing industry of Asia Minor has hitherto been carried on in the City of Smyrna, despite the fact that the long haul from the producing district, by camel and train, often lasts ten days, during which time the half-dried fruit always blackens and deteriorates to a certain extent. In order to obviate the necessity of using fruit of this kind, and also to avoid the middleman's profits, a United States company has just established a large packing house at Nazli, the chief producing centre of Asia Minor, about 120 miles from Smyrna. The sea water necesary to moisten the fruit in packing is to be sent in barrels by train daily from Smyrna.

When the train stopped at the little southern station the northern tourist sauntered out on the platform. Under a scrub oak stood a lean animal with scraggy bristles. The tourist was interested.

"What do you call that?" he queried of a lanky native.

"Razorback hawg."

"Well, what is he doing rubbing against that tree?"

"He's stropping himself, mister, jest stropping himself."

Produce and Provision Situation of the World

Bacon Market in Firmer Condition—Less Butter Being Exported to England Than Last Year—Eggs Improving Somewhat in Quality—Much Higher Than Last Year.

Although very little of Canadian bacon goes to England now, the advance of 1s. there in bacon last week adds firmness to the market here. The packers of Canada are anxiously waiting to hear from the Government commission whether they will bring home some plan by which they can expect to get sufficient supplies to keep their packing houses in operation. Hogs are scarce and deliveries are unusually light, and prices firm at $8.00 for live hogs at country points. The advent of Chinese pork product in the English market is causing comment from various sources. Perhaps if another commission of farmers were delegated to go to China at an expense of $10,000, we might learn from the Chinaman, how to raise hogs without feeding them expensive grain, and yet get $8.00 live weight for them.

There is no apparent change in the butter market. Quiet feeling prevails all over, with various opinions as to the turn the market might take. There is, however, nothing in sight that might cause any stir in the market. The exports of butter are far below last year. This would indicate that a large surplus of butter must be on our hands.

Cheese also is quiet with scarcely a change in price from week to week, although the feeling in England leans towards better prices.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS.—Pork is much firmer this week, and prices have advanced, as will be seen from quotations. Present high fiugres curtail the demand to a certain extent, but there appears to be some business, even at the abnormal prices ruling. Bacon is higher, too.

BUTTER—Butter is plentiful and a good deal of it arrives in bad condition, owing to the hot weather and careless packing. Merchants are again drifting into habits of "it will do," instead of "it must be the best." Large quantities of butter come in, packed in all sorts of old boxes, without ice. CHEESE—The cheese situation all summer has been somewhat dull and stubborn. Prices have ruled too high for safe buying, and every effort to make a break has resulted in disappointment. EGGS—Eggs are firm and some are asking 1c a dozen more. This brings them to 24c and 25c a dozen. This is unusually high for the first of September and is 4c a dozen higher than last year at the same date. The shrinkage on account of bad eggs is growing less, but there is still altogether too much, especially at these high figures. SOMETHING NEW IN CREAM.

A new proposition to Canadian consumers is being promoted by the Canadian Farm Produce Company, Montreal, who are responsible for the appearance on this market of pasteurized and homogenised cream. The product is the ordinary cream from the dairy scientifically treated, so as to accentuate the nourishing elements which make it so valuable. The cream is being sold in bulk, only, at present. Deliveries are made to grocers daily. Later on the firm anticipates selling the product in sterilized bottles, when they will develop domestic and foreign trade on a large scale. The pasteurising and homogenising are done with French machines.

WEATHER AFFECTS WALNUTS.

One of the largest shippers of walnuts in the Limoges district, France, gives the following information about the walnut crop: After visiting the different localities I can say that the crop in the department of the Isere will be satisfactory. An average crop may be expected from the department of the Lot, less than the average in the department of the Dordogne, middling in the departments of the Charente and the Poitou, and much damaged in the other regions of central France. On the whole, there will be a very considerable decrease as compared with the preceding crop.

GRAPES PROMISE WELL.

Crops in the Vicinity of Grimsby Expected to be Record-Breaker.

Grimsby, Sept. 1—Growers here are satisfied with the grape crop. Last week they were hoping for rain and the showers that fell on Saturday night were welcomed and will do a great deal of good. There is no evidence of insect pests or rot over the area from Jordan to Winona. The average will be slightly larger than former seasons, as many young vineyards are now for the first time coming into bearing.

Plums, say the largest growers, will be middling to light in all localities. Peaches are a good average crop and seem to be a little heavier in the eastern sections.

The pear outlook is good, but the Bartletts and some earlier varieties are shrunken from the heat of the last few weeks.

Where apple orchards were vigorously sprayed three times the owners will reap the benefit, otherwise the coddling moth and caterpillar have done destructive work. In fully three-quarters of the apple orchards the fruit is small and there are evidence of wormy apples.

A fair comparison with last year regarding the whole outlook, speaks favorably for a generous remuneration to the district.

READ YOUR OWN TRADE JOURNAL.

From Bowmanville State man.

We have always strongly advocated taking one's own trade journals. The fellow who knows it all or fancies he does, cannot be taught anything new, so need not read any publication, but the business man with an open mind never fails to find something instructive and helpful in a trade publication. This thought came to the surface at this time through opening The Canadian Grocer. The first sentence to catch our eye was this: "It pays to learn every detail of the business," and then to emphasize the same idea the next sentence read: "Make yourself thoroughly familiar with every detail no matter how insignificant, for the young man who hopes to have charge of a business some day will find all such lessons helpful in overcoming difficulties when the time comes." After reading this sage counsel we sat back in our chair and thought over the advice and concluded that the young man in business training who acts on this advice is on the surest road to ultimate success in the occupation in which he is engaged. Our sincere advice then is, take your trade journal and read it as regularly, faithfully and thoughtfully as you read anything in which you are deeply interested.

AN HOTEL WORTH VISITING.

Since the new Hotel Cecil has been opened in Ottawa, under the management of Walter B. Walby, there has been a steady growth in the number of patrons year by year. Any hotel which becomes more popular each succeeding year must give a service which is quite unsurpassed. This is the secret of the Cecil. The service is always of the very best. Commercial men say that they can always depend upon getting there the finest meals, the most comfortable rooms, and the most courteous treatment. Mr. Walby has had many years' experience in the management of hotels, and he knows just what the traveling public desire. And the knight of the grip he knows thoroughly, and, appreciating the fact that the traveler wants all the comforts of the home, and a little more, but with no frills attached, he caters especially to this class. And he is succeeding most admirably. Those who have not stopped at the Cecil, when in Ottawa, will find it well worthy of a visit.—Advt.

Sometimes a customer will ask a question that is really laughable, but that is where the clerk should be careful. Don't say anything or do anything to even intimate that a customer is ignorant. Always remember that they are not as well posted on the business as you are. Always remember, too, that there are subjects on which they could show up your ignorance.

World's Wheat Market Weaker In Tone—North-West Crop Promises To Be Good—Comparison With a Year Ago—Rolled Wheat Shows a Change.

The general tone of the world's wheat market is weak, with a correspondingly decline in the prices. The crop of the great Canadian North-west has been watched with great interest, and as it is now almost entirely beyond all danger, and its safe harvesting is assured, it has the effect of settling the markets at a lower price, and the speculative forces will asume more definite positions. It is the settled opinion that both Canada and the United States will have much larger crops than were expected, which all leads to lower prices. Wheat in Chicago is now within two cents as low as last year at the same date. In view of the fact that wheat is a large crop, it must, however, be remembered that all other eatables are high, and wheat must find its level with them in the basis of food value.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—Little activity in flour is noticeable. Everyone is awaiting the new crop, so that business is practically at a standstill. Orders are small, of a hand-to-mouth character.

FEED.—Present prices are quite likely to be maintained indefinitely, as supplies are very short, and the usual accumulation, looked for in the month of August, has not materialized this year, owing to the continued heavy demand experienced for some weeks past. When September-October demand set in —it is always heavy—advances may be expected without fear of disappointment.

ROLLED OATS—The rather weak feeling in rolled oats, in sympathy with the oats situation, continues to be noticeable. A decline in prices may be expected, as supplies of oats are heavy. The breaking of the corner in oats means that all the supplies which have been held back will find an outlet, and this, with a heavy new crop in anticipation, cannot help but weaken the market.

KEEP FREE FROM THE AIR.

Ed. W. Pyke, a Chocolate Traveler, Gives Advice on Handling and Displaying Sweets.

"Handlers of chocolates have to be very careful to keep them from the air," says Ed. W. Pyke, a Toronto traveler, who has studied this end of the grocery trade for some years. "If that is done the older these are up to a certain period the better."

To demonstrate his point he shows chocolates one and two years old which have been wrapped carefully in tin-foil and kept in boxes free from the air. They taste as if they had been made but yesterday.

"It's the same way with tea," he claims; "the quality becomes deteriorated if air is allowed to come in contact with it."

Mr. Pyke, who, by the way has recently been appointed manager of the Toronto office of Frank Magor & Co., is a firm believer in displaying confectionery to the best advantage. This is shown by his own at the office of the company he represents. Chocolate manufacturers now-a-days turn out some handsome boxes, particularly for Christmas trade, and these can be utilized to form attractive displays as well as serve to keep the goods free from dirt and the air. Mr. Pyke has a splendid example of what can be accomplished with assorted confectionery boxes. The remainder of the office is arranged in accordance with the confectionery display. The front is made attractive by cases of pretty flowers planted from seed. Flowers constitute one of the manager's hobbies, and with a little attention each day they can be made a valuable asset in any grocery store.

A little energy put into the handling and displaying of chocolates will, in Mr. Pyke's opinion, be rewarded by good results, for the profits of the retailer are large.

Races and games were put on in the afternoon and a band concert and lucky ticket drawing contest in the evening, many valuable prizes, donated by Guelph merchants and some wholesale houses, were presented to the winners.

Clerks Win Ball Game.

The ball game between the Bankers' team and the Clerks' and Salesmen's team was won by the Clerks by a score of 9 to 3. The teams were as follows:

Clerks.—Emslie, Barber, Miller, McTague, Shields, Freeland, Greenway, Smith and Stewart.

Bankers.—Otto, Mitchell, Dunbar, Saxby, Fair, Heffernan, Lyons, Dickson and Lynch.

Umpire—"Baldy" Johnson.

James McDonald was announcer for the different events in the afternoon.

The judges were: Messrs. R. H. Brydon, R. S. Cull and Dr. Coghlan; starter, Mr. C. W. Peer.

A number of the local merchants turned out and patronized the clerks and their annual outing, and in other ways lent much valuable assistance.

The clerks were indebted to a large number of wholesale houses for many handsome prizes that were donated.

The prizes were on exhibition in the window of a Wyndham street store with the names of the donators attached.

The lucky ticket holders in the drawing contest at the band concert were. Miss Mary Leadstone, gold watch; Mr. Barber, cut glass berry bowl; Miss Williams, lawn mower, and Miss Nellie Williams, table.

Salmon Season Concluded and the Run is Short

Pack Not Nearly Up to the Expectations of the Canners — United States Fishermen Accused of Illegal Trapping—Inspection is Loosely Attended to—An Estimate of the Total Sockeye Salmon Pack.

Staff Correspondence.

Vancouver, August 28.—The sockeye salmon season closed on the 25th with a pack on the Fraser river that was disappointing to the canners. As pointed out in these columns previously, the canners in Canadian waters had little chance of securing fish, since few are allowed to pass the traps which block their trip to the Fraser river. Those traps are in United States waters and have been operated day and night since the beginning of the season, without any observance whatever of a close season of 36 hours in each week. Canadian inspectors secured undoubted evidence of this utter disregard of laws, and further substantiation is given by the declaration of O. E. Hough, of Port Madison, Wash., who charges straight that no inspection whatever was made by the proper officials of the fishing in the waters of Puget Sound, and that the trap men operated without any fear of prosecution. Under such circumstances as these, it is little wonder that few fish were obtained in the Fraser river and the Gulf of Georgia.

The pack on the Fraser is placed at 420,000 cases by W. H. Barker, general manager of the B.C. Packers, or about half of what was expected and for which preparation had been made. The total pack in Washington was between 850,000 and 900,000 cases, or more than double. "It is unreasonable to the extreme," Mr. Barker remarked to The Grocer, "that we should have to provide the fish for the American traps and get no benefit. The season is late by two weeks this year, and if we could have got the extension of two weeks that was asked, our pack would have been much better. I do not think it would have made a great deal of difference in the number of fish in the spawning reaches of the river, and even if so, who will get the fish in another four years? The traps on the other side."

An Estimate of The Pack.

The fish came along almost on schedule time, as prophesied by the manager of one of the Fraser river canneries to your representative, but reports from the north would indicate that there is some contention in the statement of Mr. Barker that the season is backward. More fish are reported in the Skeena at this time of year than ever before. The canners in that district have had a poor pack, and with the old regulations would have done well.

The total pack for British Columbia is computed at 625,000 cases, as follows: Fraser river, 420,000; River Inlet, 85,000; Skeena river, 65,000; Naas river, 30,000; Lowe Inlet, 14,000; others 11,000.

The Columbia Cold Storage Company, of New Westminster, is preparing to open camps in the north to handle cohoe salmon. One will be at Bute Inlet and the other at Toby Inlet. The cohoes will be placed in ice as soon as caught, sent to New Westminster, where they will be packed and shipped. The cohoe season lasts about six weeks. The experiment of shipping sockeye salmon in ice to the eastern market, made by a Vancouver firm, proved a distinct failure.

CHATHAM MERCHANTS' DECALOGUE.

Agreement Strictly Kept Referring to Tickets, Calendars, Advertising. and Delinquents.

Chatham, Sept. 1—The following agreement, recently, adopted by the Merchants' Association of Chatham, has been called "The Merchants Decalogue," though only five clauses are embodied in place of the necessary ten. It is printed in card form and as a prominent feature of every merchant's office equipment, occupying a conspicuous place where it can be quickly called to the attention of any delinquent or ticket salesman:

NOTICE.

We are members of the Retail Merchants' Association and we have agreed:

1. Not to buy tickets for concerts, excursions or games of any kind in our places of business.
2. Not to advertise on programmes, hotel blotters or any other promiscuous advertising schemes.
3. To discontinue the giving of prizes to picnics, societies, games, etc.
4. To discontinue the giving of calendars to customers after Dec. 31st, 1909.
5. Not to give credit accommodation to persons whose names are on the delinquent list of the association until their names are removed by meeting their obligations.

Clauses one and two have been in force for several years; the others are of comparatively recent date. The agreement is being pretty strictly lived up to on the part of the merchants.

ANSWERS TO ENQUIRIES.

Questions on trade subjects are solicited for this department. Letters from retailers, clerks, travelers, jobbers and manufacturers will be welcomed, as well as suggestions for trade improvement.

A Woodstock grocer asks: "We are buying sugars locally in bags at prices quoted in Toronto for barrels. That is to say, when granulated is quoted at $4.75 in bbls. in Toronto, we get it here for the same price in bags, plus cartage, etc. The last lot we were charged $4.80, the seller claiming that sugars had advanced. I drew his attention to your quotations in Grocer of Aug. 20th, but he says that they are not correct. To settle the matter we would ask you to give us correct quotations. We feel sure that the quotations in Grocer are correct."

Answer.—The quotations which appeared in The Canadian Grocer of Aug. 20th are absolutely correct so far as the Toronto market is concerned. The enquirer has not, however, taken into consideration the equalized rate from Montreal to Woodstock, which is 26c, and when this is done it will be found that the seller was correct in his prices but wrong in saying The Canadian Grocer was incorrect in its quotations. Sugar has not advanced since July 28th. At that time it went up 5c. To day's Montreal basis is, and in fact the basis since July 28th, has been $4.65 (bbls.) and $4.60 (bags), f.o.b. Montreal. When the equalized rate of 26 cents from Montreal to Woodstock is added then you have the price delivered in Woodstock. This would equal $4.86 per bag of 100 lbs. Subtracting 1 per cent. cash discount, it will equal $4.80 net per bag or $4.85 per bbl. Toronto prices are always 10 cents above Montreal.

Some clerks make friends, and therefore customers, by anticipating little attentions, trifles in themselves, but thought much of by customers. Most people like attention, and, in business, the fostering of this human weakness is a most valuable asset.

Canadian Fruit, Vegetable and Fish Markets

Canadian Grown Fruits Supplant the Californian Variety—The Toronto Fruit Market a Wonderful Sight this Week—Vegetables Plentiful and Prices Reasonable—Fish Supply Strengthening Up.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—The California season is rapidly drawing to a close. Bartlett pears are nearly finished. A number of cars of this fruit are expected from Oregon, while a moderate supply from Colorado will come forward later on. While several varieties of fruits are finishing, it does not mean exactly that the Californian season is absolutely over, as there is a large grape crop to be accounted for. All the grapes will not be marketed before November. Canadian plums are arriving freely and are being quickly resold, demand being satisfactory. Peaches, pears and grapes will be coming in shortly, too. California Tokay grapes are slightly easier this week. Otherwise quotations are practically unchanged. Delaware grapes are now quoted, $3 a crate being asked.

VEGETABLES—All vegetables are in large supply, and prices are reasonable. A short spell of rather cool weather curtailed demand slightly, but not to an appreciable extent. Cucumbers are cheaper, supplies being large. Quite a basket business is being done, the cucumbers in this convenient form moving freely at 25c per. Cabbage is steady at figures quoted with supplies increasing weekly. Green pepers are easier. Potatoes are steady with a slight upward tendency at present. Tomatoes are quick sellers at old prices. Corn is in fair demand.

FISH—Reductions on several lines of fresh fish are noticeable this week. Supplies have been somewhat larger. Cooler weather has resulted in more frequent and larger orders, and the beginning of the always heavy fall demand is already making itself felt. Among the lines which have dropped from ½c to 1c are bluefish, halibut, haddock, mackerel, market cod and steak cod. Fresh barbotte are now quoted, supplies being satisfactory. New green cod is arriving freely and is in good demand. Lobsters are in fair demand at 30c.

GREEN FRUITS—The fruit market at this time of the year is at its height, and is a wonder to see. Talk about California with its oranges, apricots, etc., but when the Niagara district is at its best, there is nothing in the world to compare with it. Early in the season this garden of fruits, starts with strawberries, and from one fruit to the other, it keeps the markets supplied until the end when the snow begins to fall with the latest varieties of grapes.. Just now, after the early peaches are over, the first of its choice varieties are coming in. The "St. John" variety comes first which is in abundance, and the quality and appearance has never been better. They are simply lovely to behold and still more so to eat. Plums also are here in endless varieties and beauties beyond description. Pears are rapidly pushing to the front, and claim attention. The first grapes have made their appearance. The market on the whole is a busy hustling hive, and yet among all this immense quantity of fruit, which is coming and going, all of which is carefully booked and charged to the hundreds of buyers, everything goes on as regularly and orderly as clockwork. It is really a magnificent sight, and reflects credit on the whole combination of fruit growers, wholesale dealers, and retailers.

But still such as tomatoes, egg plants, cucumbers, peppers, etc., form a large part of the market. White Ohio potato is a very choice variety and in good demand.

The Policy of Retailers Going Out for Orders

Change From Conditions of Forty Years Ago—Business Done on a Cheaper Scale in Those Times—Were Men More Honest Then?—Better Methods Are Now Being Applied to get Trade.

By M. Moyer.

It is interesting to retail merchants to take a glance over the past, and note the changes which have taken place in the methods and modes of doing business during the last 40 years. At that time there was very little delivering to do, and to go out and solicit for orders was never dreamed of.

Whether the change is for the better or not, one thing is quite clear and that is all this extra expense has added to the cost of retailing. Together with all this, we must add much higher rents, higher wages for help and many other expenses not known of in years gone by. At the same time—and this is particularly remarkable—there is the fact that profits are to-day not as good as they were then.

Under these circumstances one naturally comes to the conclusion that in those days, store keeping must have been an easy way to make money and get rich. However, the struggle then was very much the same as it is now. Some made money, others did not, and failures frequently occurred. The old heads whose experience extends back to those good days, tell us that business men were more honest, clerks were more faithful and did more work and things in general were better. Then package goods were unknown, and everything had to be weighed and parcelled. Bags were even not in use, and it required training and practice to do up parcels, especially sugar with square pieces of wrapping paper. In view of this the contention may be right that clerks did more work, but still with the higher expenses in every department and the extra cost of delivering the goods, it must prove that a successful grocer to-day must know how to manage his business to better advantage than they did in those less expensive days.

On a Higher Business Plane.

It may be some satisfaction to some to talk about the good old days and that everything is going to the dogs now, but in all fairness they cannot hide the fact that we are making progress and that business is being done on a higher plane, with a great deal more accuracy and care. While there are still some stores which are not up to the standard in many respects, it must be apparent that a great deal more attention is given to cleanliness and good goods than in years gone by. Even in the last 12 months the changes from my observation have been remarkable. The stores are kept cleaner, the goods in better condition and the general appearance is improved. The rivalry which knew of nothing except cutting prices and general hatred is rapidly changing into a rivalry of better service and more cheerful and more friendly methods.

Merchants are not studying how to put one another out of business through mere selfishness, but are looking at trade as an important part of the industries of our own country. They are learning that they are deriving benefit in proportion as their services meet the convenience and wants of the people, and that nothing but scientific accuracy in every respect will meet with success. Instead of scales being clumsy, slow, and inaccurate, and in the hands of careless weighers, they have now not only finer scales, but the automatic computing shows the value to the fraction of an ounce.

Going Out for Orders.

While we appreciate the valuable contributions to the machinery and methods of storekeeping, there is much still in an unsettled condition. For instance some grocers confine themselves strictly to storekeeping while others are drifting away into a sort of semi-peddling storekeeping. Some of the most successful grocers put all their time in making their stores attractive and in waiting on their customers when they call, while others are spending most of their time on the road in chasing after orders, and to some extent, at least, neglecting their stores, and the chances of doing business with their nearest neighbors. This practice is expensive and can hardly be called good storekeeping, and if it could be discontinued, it would be a great saving to the retailers and would give a fair show to both merchants and customers.

If all would go out for orders they would stand no better chance to get trade than if they all stayed at home. But from the fact that some of the most successful merchants do not go after orders, and hold their trade, is good evidence that a good many people, if not all, would prefer to call at the store for their goods instead of being called upon, very often when nothing is wanted.

If the extra expenses were taken into consideration and the loss through absense from the store, it is a question whether soliciting orders is good store management. It is certainly poor policy for the proprietor to be out chasing after orders and leaving the store in the hands of employees. No person continues to deal at any store very long, if her trade is not appreciated. If the proprietor is never to be seen, her visits will soon be a thing of the past.

FROM A CONSUMER'S STANDPOINT.

"In my judgment there is no limit to the possibilities of a grocer's business and sales," said a consumer recently while talking on the subject of extra sales. "The more he sells, the greater his chance to increase.

"I know of a store which will sell to the patron just what she asks for, and labor under the impression that should the customer desire an additional article she will inquire for it. This surely is a grave error. Oftentimes, in cases where I am the purchaser, my reason for not asking for an article is due to the fact that I had not seen it in that particular store, that I had not had a desire created for it, or that I hesitated to ask for it for some unexplainable reason. But if the particular goods in question are placed before me in an attractive manner, the chances for a sale are, of course, much better.

"How on earth am I to know what a grocer has in his store unless he adopts some means of telling me? Of course, I know that he handles sugar, coffee, butter, etc., but there are many other things on his shelves which I sometimes want but do not always think of asking for when at the store.

"I know of another grocery store which has a novel method of introducing its goods. When a customer buys a pound of coffee, the merits of a certain brand of condensed milk are expounded to her. Coffee and milk is, of course, a natural combination. When she purchases canned meats a certain brand of catsup is brought to her attention. If she speaks about going to a picnic, the grocer immediately sees a chance of selling her something for her picnic basket and brings his picnic specialty line to her attention.n This grocer is also very polite and accommodating. If he hears that there is a new baby at one's house, a neat but inexpensive present is immeriately sent to the house for the little one, together with congratulations. This is always greatly appreciated."

A Great Selling Team

¶ Buyers must be moved through several steps to be brought to the buying point.

¶ They must have their attention attracted to the article. They must have their interest in it awakened. They must be informed as to its nature, utility and merits. They must be convinced of its value. They must be moved to action—to closing.

¶ Good salesmen and good trade-paper advertising make a great team to carry the buyer through these several stages to the buying point. Alone, the salesman is at a disadvantage.

You can talk to 7,000 of Canada's Best Grocers every week at a cost of $\frac{1}{90}$ to $\frac{1}{5}$ of a cent apiece

Nothing extravagant about advertising of that sort, is there?

THE GROCER'S circulation is 7,000, and a full page space for 52 weeks costs $800. This means that for every cent of expenditure an advertiser can talk to 5 good buyers.

The advertiser who uses a half page space every week, at a cost of $425, talks to 10 good buyers for every cent of expenditure.

Let us carry the calculation through all the different spaces into which THE GROCER divides its advertising pages:

One Column	—15	buyers for every cent expended

Half Column	—25	" " " " "
Eighth Page	—30	" " " " "
Quarter Column	—40	" " " " "

The economy of advertising in THE CANADIAN GROCER is thus made strongly apparent.

We believe that the real, live grocer wants to push the goods that please his customers, and that is why we have the hearty co-operation of thousands upon thousands of grocers everywhere. SHOE POLISH

Damp, cold and heat alike have no effect on this polish. It does not clog the brush nor soil the clothes, but it lengthens the life of the shoe, and produces a quick, lasting POLISH.

There is more demand for it now than ever before. You are losing a profitable trade if you have been so short-sighted as not to stock it hitherto.

Crescent BM&Co. TRADE MARK. Brand

SODA-CRYSTALS (WASHING SODA)

Foreign Soda Crystals—and some of English manufacture—are being extensively offered for sale in this country which are grossly adulterated with Glauber-Salts (Sulphate of Soda), a cheap product which is not only entirely useless for washing purposes, but is even likely to injure the fabrics with which it comes in contact. The Adulterated Soda-Crystals, although nominally lower in price than BRUNNER MOND'S PURE SODA CRYSTALS, are in reality much dearer owing to the large quantity of useless and injurious matter which they contain.

President Roosevelt

Prof. F. E. Jaffa, of the California University, writes:

Ten cents worth of peanuts contains more than twice the protein and six times the amount of energy contained in a porterhouse steak.

The German Emperor

declares as a result of extensive experimentation, that as an army food peanuts are far superior to beans, being more sustaining and richer in oil fat.

Hermann Senn

the great European authority on the art of cooking, declares that the trend of modern cookery of the highest class is in the direction of simple and natural food, and proceeds to say: "For men and women following sedentary occupations or who do manual labor, nut foods deserve first place in the list of desirable, palatable, nutritious fare." Here is where IMPERIAL PEANUT BUTTER scores.

John D. Rockefeller

says:—"Do you know that I recently read an article by a well-known scientific man to the effect that Cheese is an excellent article of diet. I wish I had read that article a long time ago. I had been afraid that Cheese had a tendency to produce indigestion and for that reason I never touched it. Now I find its effects are directly contrary and I eat a great deal of it and find it agrees with me. Take my advice, eat Cheese, eat slowly, and have out-door exercise, and you will enjoy good health."

MacLaren's Imperial Cheese

is a perfect cheese and a perfect food.

Imperial Dessert Jelly

due to its absolute purity, can be eaten and enjoyed by invalids and children, while common Jelly Powders and Gelatines are condemned by the Medical Profession, and Imperial Dessert Jelly because it is pure and wholesome, is in constant use in many of the large hospitals throughout the country. The leading Hotels and high-class Restaurants serve Imperial Dessert Jelly because no chef can make a better jelly.

The Best Canned Goods

There are many kinds in the market all making claims of being the choicest and the highest in excellence, flavor and merit, but

The Queen Quality Leads

WHY?

Because our fruits and vegetables are fresh, palatable, and the finest specimens that can be secured in one of Canada's most fertile and progressive districts.

Because they are uniform in quality, as we supervise the growing of the raw products from seed time to harvest and our inspectors reject everything that is not strictly up to the highest standard.

Because we have the most sanitary and up-to-date process and machinery and no detail is overlooked. We attend to the practical side ourselves and make our own cans of the best tin plate that can be secured.

All progressive grocers stock them and all discriminating customers get in them

A Great Selling Team

¶ Buyers must be moved through several steps to be brought to the buying point.

¶ They must have their attention attracted to the article. They must have their interest in it awakened. They must be informed as to its nature, utility and merits. They must be convinced of its value. They must be moved to action—to closing.

¶ Good salesmen and good trade-paper advertising make a great team to carry the buyer through these several stages to the buying point. Alone, the salesman is at a disadvantage.

Manitoba Business Men Up in Arms Against New Act

Outside Corporations Doing Business in Winnipeg Withdrawing From the Field on Account of License to be Enforced on November 1st—Board of Trade, Grain Exchange, Manufacturer's Association and Brokers' Association Vigorously Opposing Act as it Now Stands—Effort Being Made to Have it Amended.

By L. C. Harkness.

Winnipeg, Sept. 7—A contagious form of indignation is spreading rapidly in the province of Manitoba on the event of it becoming known that on November 1st, an act licensing all extra-provincial corporations goes into effect. Those who represent outside firms in this city and throughout the province are the ones who are chiefly concerned, and since the act referred to was assented to on March 10 last, and only a comparatively short time remains to offer any resistance, it cannot be wondered that the feeling against it is keen. To a casual observer the introduction of this act would be a direct blow to the resident agent or broker doing business for an extra-provincial firm. Upon inquiry, however, it is learned that the sole purpose is to increase the revenue of the province. The purpose is quite legitimate should it be executed in such a way as not to be detrimental to other interests. No citizen of this province is going to complain about the government endeavoring to collect revenue, provided it is justly exacted, since increased revenue means general material progress. This act as it is outlined, however, may and will undoubtedly increase the revenue, but that which the province will gain thereby, it will lose perhaps tenfold.

It is impossible to definitely ascertain what the direct effect will be should it be enforced in its present reading. But anyone, who is in any degree familiar with the business situation in this province, must surely know that those who will be effected most, are men whose commercial interests in this province are widespread, and further that they are the men who form the major part of the industrial and commercial life of the province. If there is any province that contains and maintains by means of its peculiar commercial situation, resident brokers and commission representatives whose principals are incorporated in perhaps every country in the world, it is the province of Manitoba. And for any government to pass such an act as the "Extra-Provincial Corporations Act" in this province is to strike a death blow at the heart of the commercial life upon which the existence of this province most largely depends.

Chief Terms of the Act.

It has been stated that this act, which by the way was introduced by Provincial Secretary, Hon. J. H. Howden, is a copy of the act which is in force in the other provinces, and why should Manitoba be immune from such an enactment? In the first place every business man in this province and everyone who has business interests here (and this includes many from Ontario) should be interested in knowing whether the act is an exact copy of the similar enactment in Ontario. The writer is not familar with the Ontario enactment but it is learned from several sources that the Manitoba act is much more drastic and far-reaching. The following is the pith of the enactment although only the first eight articles are mentioned out of a total of twenty-seven:

1. In this act the expression "extra-provincial corporation" means a corporation created otherwise than by or under the authority of an act of the legislature of Manitoba.

2. Extra-provincial corporations of the classes mentioned in this section are not required to take out a license under this act, viz.:

Class I. Corporations which have before the commencement of this act, received from the government of Manitoba a license to carry on business in Manitoba, or which have been authorized by act of the legislature of Manitoba to carry on business in Manitoba, provided that such license or act is in force at the date of the commencement of this act:

Class II. Corporations now or hereafter licensed or registered under the provisions of "The Manitoba Insurance Act:"

Class III. Corporations liable to payment of taxes imposed by "The Corporations Taxation Act" or "The Railway Taxation Act;"

Class IV. Corporations not having gain for any of their objects.

3. Extra-provincial corporations of the classes mentioned in this section are required to take out a license under this act, viz., corporations (other than those mentioned in section 2) created by or under the authority of—

Class V. An act of the Dominion of Canada, and authorized to carry on business in Manitoba;

Class VI. Corporations not coming within any of the foregoing classes.

4. A corporation coming within class V. shall, upon complying with the provisions of this act and the regulations made hereunder, receive a license to carry on its business and exercise its powers in Manitoba.

5. A corporation coming within class VI. may, upon complying with the provisions of this act and the regulations made hereunder, receive a license to carry on the whole or such parts of its business and exercise the whole of such parts of its powers in Manitoba as may be embraced in the license; subject, however, to such limitations and conditions as may be specified therein.

6. No extra-provincial corporation coming within class V. or VI. shall carry on within Manitoba any of its business unless and until a license under this act so to do has been granted to it, and unless such license is in force; and no company, firm, broker, agent or other person shall, as the representative or agent of or acting in any other capacity for any such extra-provincial corporation, carry on any of its business in Manitoba unless and until such corporation has received such license and unless such license is in force; provided that taking orders for or buying or selling goods, wares and merchandise by travelers or by correspondence, if the corporation has no resident agent or representative and no office or place of business in Manitoba, shall not be deemed a carrying on of business within the meaning of this act; provided further that this section shall not apply until the first day of November, A. D. 1909, to any such corporation which at the date of the commencement of this act is carrying on business in Manitoba; provided also that the onus of proving that a corporation has no resident agent or representative and no office or place of business in Manitoba, or that it was at the date of the commencement of this act carrying on business in Manitoba, shall, in any prosecution for an offence against this section, rest upon the accused.

7. An extra-provincial corporation coming within class V. or VI. may apply to the lieutenant-governor-in-council for a license to carry on its business or part thereof, and exercise its powers or part thereof, in Manitoba, and upon the granting of such license such corporation may thereafter while such license is in force carry on in Manitoba the whole or such parts of its business and exercise in Manitoba the whole or such parts of its powers as may be embraced in the license subject however, to the provisions of this act and to such limitations and conditions as may be specified in the license.

Formalities.

8. Any such company, institution or corporation applying for such license shall file in the office of the provincial secretary of Manitoba a certified copy of the charter, act of incorporation, or articles or memorandum or association of such company, institution or corporation, with a declaration or proof that said company, institution or corporation is still in existence, and legally authorized to transact business under its said charter or act of incorporation or articles or memorandum, and a copy of the last auditor's report; and shall also file, as aforesaid, a power of attorney to the principal agent or the intended manager of said company, institution or coporation in this province, signed by the president or vice-president or managing director or two directors and by the secretary thereof, sealed with the corporate seal (if any) of the said company, institution or corporation, and verified as to its authenticity by the statutory declaration of the principal agent or manager of such company, institution or corporation, or of any person cognizant of the facts necessary for such verification; which power of attorney must expressly authorize such agent or manager within the said province to accept process in all suits and proceedings against such company, institution or corporation within the province, and must declare that service of process on such agent or manager in respect of such suits or proceedings shall be legal and binding on such company, institution or corporation, to all intents and purposes whatever, and waiving all claims of error by reason of such service; and such company, institution or corporation may from time to time, by a new or other power or attorney, verified as aforesaid and accompanied by similar declaration as aforesaid, appoint another agent or manager within the province for the purposes aforesaid to replace the agent or manager formerly appointed.

(a) After such certified copy of the charter and such power of attorney in this province are filed as aforesaid, any process in any suit or proceeding against such company, institution or corporation, for any liability, may be served upon such manager or agent, until he be so replaced as aforesaid, and thereafter upon his successor from time to time duly appointed hereunder, in the same manner as process may be served upon the proper officer of any company incorporated in the province; and all proceedings may be had thereupon to judgment and execution in the same manner as in any civil suit in the province.

(b) The provisions hereof, so far as they relate to the giving of a power of attorney to the principal agent or intended manager of the company, institution or corporation in this province, and the filing of such power of attorney with the provincial secretary, shall not apply to any company, institution or corporation having its head office within the province of Manitoba.

Unfairness is Charged.

From the above it will be seen that all extra-provincial corporations not already chartered to do business in this province will be compelled to pay a license, which will be levied according to its capital stock, or discontinue its business with the resident agent or broker under a penalty which is specified later in the act—a fine of fifty dollars a day. Whether this is the act in force in Ontario or not, for Manitoba at any rate, it is manifestly unjust and unfair.

The resident representatives are already paying their business tax which in itself should be sufficient to enable them to carry on their business irrespective of the firms they represent. And for a further tax to be levied upon the firms outside looks like a double tax. And again, is every firm which is represented here by a broker going to submit—according to the formalities of the act—a copy of its financial statement annually which may or may not become public property? And this is only one of the many ridiculous requests. What will be the result? Corporations hitherto represented by a commission merchant will either withdraw altogether or have themselves represented by travelers. Can the province afford to have any one corporation leave the field? The answer is emphatically NO, from wholesalers and retailers alike, and apparently from every sane business man who believes in competition and in having as many manufactured articles as possible in the trade in this province.

It may be argued that there is no danger of any corporation leaving the field because it will be licensed and compelled to submit its financial statement. But it is stated in the act that a corporation with the small capital stock of $500,000 will be licensed $200 annually, and a license imposed upon the many companies which are capitalized high into the millions will be considerable.

Withdrawing From the Field.

One Winnipeg broker who has become prominent in the business life of this province, has been recently notified by three large corporations, whom he has been serving for years, that after November 1, 1909, they proposed to withdraw altogether from Manitoba. A prominent corporation in London, England, capitalized at $18,000,000 which is being represented here by a commission agent, emphatically states that by no means will it comply with this act as assented to by the government of Manitoba. It is obvious that the loss to this country and to this province will be great. There may be other corporations who could not afford, owing to the volume of their business and their limited capitalization, to leave the field. Their first step would be to introduce travelers and dispense at once with their commission agent. This is a particularly ridiculous feature of the act.

Altogether the act is quite contrary to the best interests of the country. A prominent wholesale hardware merchant in Winnipeg who has done more to develop Manitoba and Western Canada than perhaps any other merchant in the country said that the act showed signs of manifest stupidity on the part of its promotors, as it would jeopardize the commercial status which we have struggled to build up and maintain.

If it is proven that the act is identical with that of Ontario, it is surely manifest that there is enough difference in the two provinces to warrant a change in legislation. Winnipeg, the capital city of the province, is the gateway to the whole west, and through this city must come the major portion of the merchandize in use in the Dominion. This vast country with its rapidly growing population must receive its supplies from eastern Canada, and in over-sea dominions as well as from foreign countries, and because of this Winnipeg by its very nature must be a city of commission and brokerage houses. And therefore, if it is necessary, should not Manitoba receive legislation such as will meet the conditions of this province?

At the present time the Manitoba Board of Trade, the Manufacturers' Association, and the Grain Exchange are working in harmony with the Brokers' Association, in the preparation of a concrete statement which will show the peculiar injustices of the act in the hope that with the aid of the attorney-general, the date of the enforcement might be postponed in order to make the necessary amendments to suit requirements. The attorney-general has already expressed himself as opposed to the measure.

Mayor Evans, of Winnipeg, is taking the part of the brokers, and it is expected that the city generally will oppose in every way possible the passing of such a measure as will be fatal to the commercial life of the province and country.

LONG TRIP TO EXHIBITION.

John Forsyth, of Forsyth Jr., grocer, Dartmouth, N.S., is east on a pleasure and educational trip to the Niagara district and Canadian National Exhibition. While in Toronto on Wednesday he called at the office of The Canadian Grocer where he was a welcome visitor. Mr. Forsyth, it will be recalled, is the grocer who won first prize in the ad. contest of The Grocer last Christmas. He is a consistent advertiser, uses a large newspaper space and more important than that, he writes splendid ads. He is a thorough business man who has studied the various phases of retail merchandising and he has met with good success.

O. S. Matchett, city traveler for Chas. Rishor, wholesale grocer, Peterborough, Ont., visited friends in Toronto and Hamilton over the holiday.

Hamilton Grocers' Hump an Event That Will Live for Years to Come—City Fathers Join in and a Rare Time is the Result—All Feminine Beings Barred From the Fun—A Grocer, Like a Camel, Can go Eight Days Without a Drink—But Not Without His Hump.

Hamilton, Sept. 7.—Wives are not wanted at the annual Hamilton Grocers' Humps. In fact, they are given an invitation to stay away and the hint is offered so bluntly that they actually take notice and stay at home. The third annual "Hump" of the Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association took place to Oaklands on Sept. 1st, and while the air was chilly, the grocers and their guests were not.

Oaklands is a pretty spot reached by boat. The boat that was honored by the grocers was H. M. Happy Home Destroyer "Jealousy 1st."

Did the 200 on board have a good time? How could they help it when the author of the following invitation was on board:

> Dear Sir,—Kindly inform your good wife and any other female attachments that are dependent on you for their daily bread, you are about to leave them for a few hours on Wednesday, September first, 1909 for the purpose of having a little relief from the constant nagging and increasing worries of a married man, to attend the Celebrated Annual Grocers' Hump. We are perfectly aware of what all men are up against at home. While you are away all day, struggling to get the wherewithal to support and keep them, they will leave the house any afternoon for a pink tea or game of bridge, or more especially for a trip on the Macassa or Modjeska to bombard Eaton's Bargain Counter, and come home smiling with a pair of buttoned kid gloves clean to their elbows, whilst us poor mortals go around with our suspenders done up with shingle nails (and then we wonder at crime). So don't bring her with you as she is not invited. This is a Grocers' Hump—not a pink tea—so this is your one and only chance when you can stand on the bridge at midnight when the clock is striking the hour and join in the chorus of

Humpty, dumpty, dudlam da,
The Grocers are out for their Hump to-day.
Humpty, dumpty, dudlam da.

Dangerous to Borrow Money.

Following this invitation some facts regarding the voyage and restrictions upon the passengers were announced thus:

"Woodenhead Bros. have kindly promised to have staterooms open the night before to accommodate guests from a distance. As the Government will not allow them out on the lake they have promised to break all records on the bay—having already broken nearly every wharf at which they call. This elegantly fitted up scow has been re-modeled especially for the Hump and all the decks having been removed (also the life preservers) so no one need be afraid. Row boats will follow in the rear to pick up any one who should happen to be thrown overboard for butting in or trying to borrow money. The purser will be on hand to take care of any valuables such as false teeth, wooden legs or crutches. A stop will be made at Oaklands, providing the captain has the boat under control, otherwise we will drift with the wind while Rottan music will be handed out by a Rotten band, a pipe organ and other instrumetns of torture. Two ring-tailed monkeys have been engaged to mingle with the other monkeys on board. Speaking of rings—a woman with a ring in her nose is a savage, but a Hamilton lady with a pearl screwed to her ear is civilized."

The officers in charge of the cruise were:

Commodore—J. O. Carpenter.
Vice-Commodore—John Forth.
Midshipmen—A. J. Bain and W. Smye.
Gunners—J. Clendenning, A. Lavis, J. M. Semmens and George Cann.
Deck Hands—B. Crysler, J. L. Brown, J. Knox and J. A. McIntosh.
Cabin Boys—J. A. Kirkpatrick, Chas. Peebles, Sam Hilton, George Hunt, Ed. Hazell, E. H. Young and M. Burkholder.

Fun on the Grounds.

When the stout ship landed at Oaklands, the merriment began in real earnest. Jack Forth led a skirmishing party of twenty up the hill, armed them with pea blowers and ammunition, secreted them behind tree stumps and hedges and then signalled the advance. It was a carefully prepared ambush, and the unsuspected walked into the trap like sheep to the slaughter. The hail of bullets caused them to beat a hot retreat until they captured one of the ammunition wagons and stormed the heights. A royal salute was fired when the entire party was accounted for, and the hump was off to a great start. The gunners who fired the salute were careless enough to set a tree on fire and a bucket brigade extinguished it.

Grand Baseball Game.

The baseball game between the grocers and the aldermen was supposed to be a feature of the outing, but it's a shame to relate what happened. The score was 32-17, the grocers in an outbreak of generosity permitting the civic Solons to score 14 runs in the last half of the ninth. Any hope Capt. Sweeney's pets had of winning were abandoned when Dr. Hopkins tried to emulate Ty Cobb, with disastrous results. His 300 pounds hit the ground with t terrific smack, and when the rest of the team rushed to his assistance it was found that he had slashed his hand, decorating his spotless white vest with blood and dust. It was a sad jolt for the aldermanic bunch, because the portly doctor a few minutes before swatted out a home run and romped home amid the plaudits of the spectators. Ald. Norman Clark and Ald. Alf. Wright played behind the bat. Cann and Hobson were the battery for the grocers. The teams were:

Grocers—Cann, Williamson, Semmens, Lavis, Knox, Cummings, Hobson, Smith, and Clendenning.

Aldermen—Clark, Sweeney, Wright, Hopkins, Gardner, Forth, Ellis, McKenty and Lawlor.

Dr. Thompson and J. Currie were the umpires, and they escaped serious injury. The game had to be stopped several times, because the spectators persisted in peppering Ald. Wright with peas at very critical moments.

An Aldermanic Concert.

After being photographed, the party embarked again on the Jealousy 1st, where refreshments were served. Later in the evening a display of fireworks was given at the piers. The members of the city councinl were under promise to render the following programme, but there is no guarantee that they did:

Song—Let Me Like a Soldier Fall.. ..... Kipling
His Excellency the Mayor.

Recitation—Papa Wouldn't Buy Me a Bow-wow ..... J. Brick
Ald. J. Forth.

Song—Where Did You Get That Hat? ..... Fitwell
Ald. Applegath.

Recitation—Over the Hills to the Poorhouse ..... W. C. Rea.
Ald. Anderson.

Song—If My Pills Don't Fix You the Street Cars Will. ..... J. Patterson.
Ald. Hopkins.

Song—Comin' Thro' the Rye..Say Corby
Ald. T. S. Morris.

Recitation—For Me, Little Drops of Water, For the Grocers, Little Grains of Sand ..... Ali Baba
Ald. N. Clark.

Recitation (by request)—Imitating Jos. Murphy in his celebrated song entitled, "A Wagon Load of Earth From the Land of My Birth.".. ..... Foreman
Fore. A. Church.

The entire city council, in a farce-comedy, entitled, "Exit 1910."

Programme Sunbeams.

Some women are lazy, lots of them are stupid, most of them are ugly, all of them are conceited, but, nevertheless, they are as indispensable as bread.

Married men who are allowed one afternoon a year to attend the Grocers' Hump, are like old horses turned into a pasture, they want to cut up, but have forgotten how.

Nice little drug store, don't you cry,
You'll be a bar-room, bye-and-bye.

There is a man who never drinks,
Nor smokes, nor chews, nor swears,
Who never gambles, never flirts,
And shuns all sinful snares—
He's paralyzed.

There is a man who never does
Anything that is not right.
His wife can tell just where he is
At morning, noon and night—
He's dead.

MARKET CHANGES OF THE WEEK.

The long anticipated advance in sugars occurred on Tuesday of this week. The advance was 10 cents per hundred pounds, due no doubt to the recent upward tendency in the raw sugar market.

Canned salmon prices are inclined to advance. Packers on the Pacific coast declare that the pack this year did not nearly meet with their estimates. Already the Calgary markets show an advance and the tendency in the east is to similar circumstances. Canned tomatoes are firm and if the scarcity in tomatoes as reported materializes, the chances are the first prices will have to be raised. Montreal markets show that some wholesalers have slightly reduced prices on canned vegetables for the reason that sales were so meagre. The whole canned goods situation, however, is yet not at all well defined, each jobber having his own opinion of what the outcome will be.

The butter market in all parts of Canada shows high prices for this time of year. This in the face of the fact that butter is not being so extensively exported as last year seems peculiar. The apparent reason is that the surplus butter is being stored away in cold storage and this has the effect of keeping prices fairly high.

Egg prices are also well maintained and in some cases advances are recorded. In Montreal there is a difference of a cent since a week ago.

The Halifax market shows pork and bacon higher, canned peas scarce and rolled oats lower. There is also an advance in pork registered in Montreal. Flour has declined in Vancouver but the only place where bread is recorded cheaper is in Guelph.

The tea market is exceedingly firm. This is due to strong advances from primary markets.

Advices from Spain indicate a stronger market in Valencia raisins with an advancing tendency. Currants continue steady and offers under current quotations have been refused.

CREAM EXPORTATION.

Considerable quantities of cream are now being exported from the eastern provinces to the United States, where it is being turned into butter at a saving of 4c per pound duty.

The duty on exported butter is 6c per lb., and on cream is only 6c per gallon. Thus, by exporting the cream and making the butter in the States, the duty on the butter is reduced to 2c per lb. In increasing numbers, dairymen and local commission men near the border are finding this out, and using it to obtain United States prices for their butter.

Of course, if carried out to any large extent it will have an appreciable effect on the price of butter in the eastern provinces. It would, however have at the same time the effect of raising the home prices so that there would be less object in such exportation.

UNFAIR METHODS OF JOBBERS.

The letter from a "Lover of Fair Play" which appeared in last week's issue of The Grocer is attracting considerable attention. The writer of it pointed out that wholesalers in some cases were taking unfair advantage of their retail friends by selling to the legitimate customers of the latter.

The situation as it exists in the Muskoka district was dealt with by the retailer. But it is a well known fact that similar conditions exist elsewhere, as may be seen from the St. Catharines correspondence in this week's paper. There it is shown that wholesalers have been selling to the boats on the Welland Canal, and to this retailers are objecting.

This principle of jobber selling to the consuming public is one that cannot be very highly commended. The jobber knows that he must depend upon the retailer in the long run to distribute his goods to consumers and from the standpoint of simple fair play he should refrain from cutting in on the trade of the retailer whenever an opportunity arises.

In the Muskoka district jobbers sell to the settlers there, thereby taking away business from the retail grocers who do their purchasing from these jobbers. The latter expect the merchants' trade and yet for a small consideration they accept and even cater to the business of consumers.

Of course, it is generally known that all jobbers are not alike in this respect but yet the custom is too general.

Not long ago, the members of the Toronto Fruit and Produce Association agreed to cut out entirely selling to the public. This was done at the request of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association, and now in the establishments of every fruit distributor, who is a member of the association, may be seen a card tacked upon the wall to the effect that only the retail trade will be supplied. The grocers admire this step on the part of the jobbers and as a result more friendly relations exist.

The principle should be carried out by all jobbers if for no other reason than it is unfair for one man to undersell another who handles the former's goods and who is a necessity in his business life.

MEN TO BE ADMIRED.

The Canadian Grocer is pleased to be able to show in this issue the reproduction of a photograph of a body of broad-minded business men, all interested in the raising of the standard of the retail grocery trade in Canada. The reference is to the officers and executive of the London Retail Grocers' Association.

This association is one that has been doing aggressive work in many respects and the credit must be given to the officers and executive elected from year to year. They are men not solely interested in the ideas of building up their own business without considering others. They believe that in giving good service to the grocery trade in general, they effect the greatest good to themselves.

What is needed in every city in Canada is just such a body of men. There are without doubt questions in the trade which require the attention of the best and broadest-minded men in it—men who are not swayed by any little personal prejudice or petty jealousy.

The London Retail Grocers' Association is recognized to be a valuable one because it does things and because it exists, not particularly for its own advantage, but for the edification of the retail grocery trade in general.

Good Business Prospects for Nova Scotia — Price Changes in Halifax—Montreal Retail Merchants' Association Anticipating Pleasant Outing.

MONTREAL.

Sept. 7.—A pleasant outing is anticipated by members of the Montreal Retail Merchants' Association, who will participate in the holiday trip, which comes off September 19. On that date a special train will leave Bonaventure Station, Montreal, bound for Saratoga Springs, Albany, New York, Boston, Portland, Old Orchard, and the White Mountains. The trip will be of ten days duration, and the price of the round trip ticket is $15.50.

E. B. Goodacre, of Watt, Scott & Goodacre, Montreal, has returned to the city after a two weeks' fishing trip, spent in the Laurentians.

C. H. Catelli has returned to Montreal from Toronto, where he attended the Canadian National Exhibition, as the official representative of the Montreal Chambre de Commerce.

Harold H. Hughes, manager Spratt's Patent, Limited, Canadian branch, has returned to Montreal. He was in Toronto during the exhibition, superintending the feeding of the dogs at the fair. The dogs were fed on Spratt's foods.

Bovril, Limited, Montreal, owing to increased business, has been forced to secure larger office accomodation, and, with that end in view, the building which they occupy on St. Peter Street is being considerably remodelled. When all the work is finished the office staff will have splendid quarters on the first floor, instead of on the ground floor, as formerly, while the entire ground floor will be utilized for warehouse purposes.

HALIFAX.

Sept. 7.—Dealers say that very little butter is coming to hand from Nova Scotia shippers and what little is arriving is of poor quality. June and July butter is usually of good quality, which is usually maintained throughout August, September and October. This year, however, it has started to deteriorate earlier than usual, probably on account of the weather, which has been so dry that the pastures dried up and there was no afterfeed to speak of. A feature of the market is the scarcity of fresh made dairy prints, which are to-day worth 23 to 24 cents. There is nothing new in creamery butter, which is a little higher in the upper provinces, without affecting the price in this market. As soon as the stocks are reduced here, however, and dealers have to purchase in the Montreal market, prices are likely to advance.

Eggs are about the same as last week. The market, however, is firm with no signs of any change for some time. Consumption is being lessened somewhat by high prices during the last few weeks, but that does not seem to affect the market to any extent.

Cheese is reported likely to advance this month, which is usual in September. The prospects are that there will be a quantity of cheese bought up this month and stored away, which would mean higher prices but no extra demand.

Prevailing prices are:

Butter—
Creamery, boxes, per lb.	0 24	0 25
" prints, per lb.	0 25	0 26
Dairy, 2-lb. prints, per lb.	0 23	0 24
" tubs, per lb.	0 19	0 22
" rolls, per lb.	0 21	0 22
Cheese—
Large, per lb.		0 12½
Twins, per lb.	0 13	0 13½
Eggs, per dozen	0 21	0 22

Pork has taken another jump, which seems to be its weekly habit lately. 'Woodlawn' clear backs are now quoted by wholesale dealers at $28.00 to $28.50 per bbl. and "Kenwood" clear bean pork at $25.50 to $26.00 per bbl. Dealers here have lately been importing some Canadian lard, almost the whole of which has hitherto been going to England, until the recent high prices have let it in to some extent.

Canned peas are so scarce that deliveries are only about one-half the amount that the wholesale trade had contracted for.

Table codfish are also high and scarce; No. 1 shore table cod being worth $5.50 per qtl.

The new season's teas are just landing and dealers say they are much pleased with the "cup" quality of the goods.

Among the weekly changes are the following:

Lard, pure, higher at 16c lb.; barley, bags, higher at $2.65; pork, clear backs, higher, at $28; bacon, rolls, higher, at 15c lb.; onions, Valencias, lower at 2½c; rolled oats, lower at $5.65.

The fall prospects for business in this province, taking all things into consideration, looks favorable.

Trade is rapidly adjusting itself to the changed conditions. The farmers are getting good prices for their products, the fruit and vegetable crops are satisfactory, and generally speaking, there is a good catch of fish, which will probably bring good prices. While collections have not attained to the old standard, yet there is a much better tone evident.

CHATHAM.

Sept. 8.—An interesting item in the office equipment of H. Malcolmson's grocery is an advertising scrap book. The book has pasted into it the advertisements of the firm covering a considerable period. "I was too busy to keep it up," remarked Mr. Malcolmson; adding, however, that the scrap book had proven a great help, particularly in supplying hints for new advertisements.

D. J. O'Keeffe, of the Triangle Grocery, corner of Thames St. and Grand Ave., is making regular use of "readers" in his advertising, a few lines every day among the locals being used to remind the buying public of seasonable lines carried. The phone number is usually given, while Mr. O'Keeffe styles his store, "O'Keeffe's cash grocery"—with the emphasis on the cash.

Though fruit is plentiful on the local market, prices remain high. Peaches bring from 30c to 50c a box and plums 70c to 75c. Little butter is being offered this summer, farmers preferring to turn their butter over to the stores, or to sell their milk to the creamery. Eggs are also scarce, selling from 20c to 22c.

James Murphy, who has for many years past conducted a grocery at Mitchell's Bay, passed away last Thursday. He was 52 years of age and leaves a widow but no children.

There is talk of a sugar beet association being formed among the farmers in this section. The promotion of scientific and intelligent methods in beet culture is one object, while the association may also endeavor to secure a branch of a Michigan factory, probably the Mount Clemens concern, for Chatham.

N. H. Stevens, president of the Canada Flour Mills Co., is in receipt of congratulations from a host of friends on the fact that he on Wednesday celebrated his 68th birthday. Mr. Stevens has been active in Kent's political and commercial life.

The Aylmer pork packing factory was put up at auction recently, but no sale was made, the sum of $7,000 which was bid not coming up to the reserve bid.

Ingram Taylor, formerly of Bradley & Son's staff here, has left for Salt Lake City, where he will take a position with a large grocery house.

D. J. O'Keeffe, the Thames St. grocer, is erecting a handsome residence on William St.

The Kent Canning Co. started operations last week with 100 girls and 20 men. They commenced work on corn, for which they have 350 acres under contract. The company expects to put up 700,000 cans of corn, 50,000 of apples, 25,000 of pumpkins and 25,000 of pears.

GUELPH.

Sept. 8.—Last Thursday afternoon was an exceptionally quiet one, and several grocery men in Guelph attributed the fact to the effects of the Thursday afternoon half holidays which were the order throughout July and August. "It's just force of habit," said one of the grocers here, "the people get used to a thing far quicker than you would think. We could get them used to early shopping on Saturday nights just as well as not, if we only went about it in the right way."

"Bob" McCrea, of J. A. McCrea & Son, is spending an enjoyable holiday in Toronto.

George Williams had the first oysters of the season in Guelph on the first of the month. Benson's and McCrea's were not far behind, however, and these three are about the only local grocers who make a specialty of oysters in their season.

One of Jackson & Son's drivers is sporting a new wagon around town.

Ernest G. Hicks, of Hicks' Paisley St. grocery, spent the last week visiting friends in Toronto.

Joseph Costigan, formerly of Costigan & Little's grocery store, was behind the counters in Peter Anderson's grocery on Saturday, where he looked quite natural, for not so very long ago he was one of Anderson's regular clerks.

Peaches were rather scarce in Guelph on Saturday. Hardly any of the grocers could get a supply equal to the demand.

"We as having a run of pickling supplies, just at present," said A. J. Groom, when your correspondent called at his Upper Wyndham street grocery, "and our customers are rather impatiently looking forward to getting cauliflowers. We have not been able to get very good one of late, but expect to soon."

The quality of the early apples is improving and they are also becoming more plentiful.

Miss Jeanett Gow, of James Gow & Son's Ontario street grocery, has returned to her home after a pleasant summer vacation spent with friends in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island.

Commencing with this week, the price of bread is reduced in this city. The reduction is not a reduction proper. It is really an increase—that is more bread for the same money. The bakers have gone back to the old standard and hereafter the weight of the ordinary bread will be a pound and a quarter to the loaf, with fancy bread a quarter of a pound lighter. There has been little reduction in the price of Manitoba flour, but the bakers have decided to go back to the old standard.

OTTAWA.

Sept. 8.—Merchants in Ottawa and throughout the surrounding country are raising strong objection and in some cases refuse to handle the new public school books. They claim that there is no money in it at all since the number they sell is comparatively small. The freight and express rates eat up nearly all the meagre profits there might be. Then they say that any person can send to Eaton's and get the books just as cheaply as they can. The result is that the store keepers, while in the majority of cases are handling the books in order to accommodate their patrons, yet they are doing so under protest and some will not handle them at all.

G. W. Hunt, fruit broker of this city is promoting the "Ottawa and St. Lawrence Electric Railway," to run from Ottawa to Brockville and from Ottawa to Fitzroy Harbor.

The new management of T. Lindsay, Ltd., have fully decided that from Sept. 1st, 1909, to July 1st, 1910, the hours of business shall be from 8 a.m. until 5.30 p.m., excepting Saturdays, when the store will then stay open until 6 p.m.

The retail grocer again finds that his time is not his own owing to summer people returning to the city, principally on account of school opening, and with preserving and pickling season on. He has not time to think of his troubles if he has any.

The following travelers called on the trade this past week. Mr. Piper, of The Pure Gold Mfg Co., Ltd., Toronto; Chas. E. Bucklee, of Park, Blackwell, Ltd., Toronto; J. H. Tabor, representing Moirs Ltd., Halifax, and the veteran traveler, John Everett, of Christie, Brown C Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Monday being Labor Day, mostly all the grocers closed on that date and were able to take a two day rest—something unusual for the retailer.

ST. CATHARINES.

Sept. 7.—The light frost reported in this section last week did no damage to either fruit or vegetable.

Late tomatoes are not coming in as heavy as was expected. The canners are getting some, but not as many as they would like. If present conditions continue, or if we should have an early frost the tomato pack in this section will be a small one.

The shortage of canned peas is already being felt. One grocer reports having been offered thirty cents per case to cancel his order.

Noting the remarks of a letter in last week's issue from "Lover of Fair Play," some grocers situated along the Welland Canal complain that their trade with the vessels this year is not as heavy as last, because the wholesalers are supplying the boats at practically the same prices as they charge the retail grocer.
RR—Grocer—Cor

Peaches are a splendid crop. One fruit farmer, W. H. Bunting, expects to market ten thousand baskets of all varieties of peaches, while from the Fisher fruit farms at Queenston, twenty thousand baskets are expected. Plums are a heavy crop, and almost unsaleable on this market.

BRACEBRIDGE.

Sept. 8.—In spite of the heavy fall of rain, merchants report a splendid day's trade on Saturday last. Owing to the stores closing on Monday, this brought the people out in large numbers to do their shopping. Fruits, now one of the main features in the grocery store seemed to be the favorite.

The cutting out of the Saturday night delivery will meet with success. The agitation in its favor is growing amongst the townspeople who see the folly of it, and when once started, and the merchants here intend to try it during the fall season—it will be backed up by all. Your correspondent has discussed the question with a good many townspeople and all may be placed in the same category as one old Irish woman who said on Saturday afternoon: "Let the town folk do like me; I do my big ordering during the week and if I want something on Saturday I says to myself says I, I can carry it up; it will save the poor byes and horses, and give them all a chance to go to church Sunday morning."

KINGSTON.

Sept. 8.—Autumn again was heralded by high winds, rain, a scattering of hail, noise of coal carts and the hurrying of thousands of feet off for the National Exhibition where the displays of cereals, starches and all kinds of eatables and drinkables exceed former years. Order slips from customers are coming in every day for goods purchased at the demonstration booths on the grounds. Toronto's great effort has among others one good point, viz., that of bringing together friends from all parts of the world to meet, greet and renew acquaintances, and search for new lines of goods hitherto unheard of except through the columns of The Grocer. They may get a new wagon, a coffee mill, a meat grinder, a meat slicer, or perhaps a silent salesman.

Tons of fruit are coming in daily but sales are slow. It would pay the fruit men to make cordwood out of some varieties of plum trees. The plums are large and fine looking but the flavor is like a raw "murphy" or turnip. One grocer sold 10 bushels of sugar gages grown in Prince Edward County, the small old fashioned free stone variety, while 10 baskets of large plums sat until mortification set in. Attention should be directed to flavor as well as size. Colored netting is used to deceive buyers and make ordinary peaches pass for Crawfords. Large fruit is placed on top also. A grocer recently said: "People won't buy unless they are fooled a little bit."

The phone saves many a dollar if used often. If a lady leaves you a big order and is going to open up an account and runs down the last grocer she traded with, just call him up as I did last week and you will get her standing.

President Dyde of the Retail Grocers' Association, attended the Exhibition this week.

LONDON.

Sept. 8.—Wholesalers report trade fair in the country towns. There is little change in staples. The market for teas is firm, all grades advancing. Coffees are steady. Brokers' advices report that the pack of sockeye salmon will be short and prices higher. Canners complain of a scarcity of tomatoes, but the crops of corn and beans will be good.

Local bankers report that the fourth of the month, "settling day," passed off satisfactorily, bills having been well met. Several banks note an improvement of late and expect trade to go ahead much better from now on.

With the return of families from the summer resorts, business in local retail circles is beginning to pick up.

Percy Brown, grocer, corner of English street and Lorne Avenue, has assigned to Scandrett Bros.

The winner of the most popular lady prize at the grocers' picnic at Springbank, was Miss Falkner, daughter of J. Falkner, grocer, not Miss Falconer, as erroneously printed in last week's Grocer.

Geo. Fulcher, for some years chief clerk in J. Deproses east end store, has resigned his position.

The regular meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association has been postponed from Tuesday next to the Tuesday following, owing to the Western Fair next week.

In spite of the efforts of the Retail Grocers' Association, hucksters continue to ply their calling on the local market, and it is said there will be some prosecutions shortly.

TORONTO.

Sept. 8.—T. W. Edwards, who has been doing business at 1014 Dundas St. for the last two years has moved into a new store just one door west, which has been built under his supervision for his own convenience. His wife who is an excellent saleslady and a good stock keeper, deserves considerable credit for their success in business. The store is not quite finished, but when completed with silent salesmen and other up-to-date fixtures, Mr. Edwards will certainly be in clover, and in splendid trim to serve his customers.

The "High Park Grocery" on the corner of Roncesvalles and Howard Park Ave. is another grocery recently started to wait on the people in that section of the city. The Grocer representative forgot to ask the names of the parties who constitute the "High Park Grocery" but he saw in small letters on each side of the window. W. J. Lappin and C. W. Mitchell. He then concluded like the countryman who stopped at a hotel, when asked at which one, he said he did not know, but there was "Push and Pull" on the door and he thought "them's the fellers that run the business." It must be concluded therefore, that these fellows run the business. They are after business and are likely to get it.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Canned Salmon—Advance expected.
Sugar—Advance of 10c.
Teas—Firm market.
Molasses—Falling off in sales.

Montreal, Sept. 9, 1909.

Canned salmon is very firm this week, with every likelihood of there being an advance, possibly of 40c a case. Tomatoes are exceedingly firm, and if this cool weather continues there is likely to be an advance in price. Some weakness is displayed in other lines of canned goods, by some wholesalers, who are making slight concessions in price to stimulate trade. Sugar advanced 10c on Tuesday morning, and is quite firm. Teas are particularly firm, with little buying being done. Valencia raisins are firm. Currants are strong, too.

SUGAR—Sugar advanced Tuesday morning 10c, and has been quite firm since then. The raw markets having advanced caused the refiners to ask more for the refined article. Demand continues very good.

DRIED FRUITS—Latest cables from Spain, on the subject of Valencia raisins, state that the market is stronger, with an advancing tendency. There has been a considerable business in this line at opening prices, both via Liverpool, and for shipment by direct steamer. Currants continue remarkably steady, and all offers under current quotations have been promptly refused. There has been no change in Sultana raisins. Figs, also, are unchanged. California fruits are about the same, prices being firm, and the markets steady. Buying in dried fruit lines generally is beginning to show some activity. Almonds, in the shell, are reported firm, while shelled almonds have advanced slightly. Nuts generally are firmer.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL. — Canned salmon continues very firm, with an advancing tendency. It is not at all unlikely that an advance of 40c a case may take place in the near future, as it is generally expected. The run has proved disappointing to packers, who are endeavoring to pull some profit out of their pack this year. Present cool weather is firming up the market for tomatoes in all quarters, as the unseasonable days we are experiencing are rotting the vegetables on the vines, thus leaving packers short. No actual change in prices has been made, so far, but one is bound to occur, unless there is a marked improvement in weather conditions. Some of the wholesalers are slightly easier in their vegetable prices, as will be seen from quotations. This is because business was being booked so slowly that something simply had to be done. The concession is but a small one, in all instances, but it is booming business considerably.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Sugar—Advance of 10 cents.
Tea—Firm market.
Molasses—Market is firm.
Rice—New variety on the market.

The wholesale men are all smiling. Their country friends are in to see the "Exhibition" and casually call in to see where all their money goes to. This is so satisfactorily explained that it invariably results in liberal orders. These wholesale men are always courteous to everybody, but the man who is a prospective buyer gets the preference. This, however, is so well understood by the ordinary business man that even The Canadian Grocer can afford to do with less attention. Business is brisk and is creeping out of the holiday season, and takes on a more earnest aspect. The only important change in the markets is the advance of 10 points in sugar. This, however, was not unexpected as the market has been at bursting firmness for some time.

The business prospects are cheerful and a large trade is looked for. The summer is over and perhaps the largest crop of every line of agricultural products has been or is being harvested in the history of the country.

SUGAR.—The forced tension of the sugar market gave way, and sugar went up 10c per 100 lbs. this week. This means only 1-10 of a cent a lb., but on the whole quantity a retailer sells, it means more than a trifle, and every grocer should regulate his prices accordingly. These small advances are the most dangerous to the retailer, for in many cases, he thinks it is too small to charge more, and he is just that much out of pocket. With the heavier expenses, and smaller profits, absolute accuracy and close calculations alone can succeed, and therefore the retailers must respond to the smallest changes in prices.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES.—Molasses are firm with some of the finer grades of syrup entirely off the market.

TEA.—In answer to the question, "How is the tea market?" every tea man will respond promptly and say emphatically, that it is firm. Different from many other articles of consumption, tea is never out of season and therefore the tea business is one continual grind the year round, and the peculiar and attractive feature is that dealers are not grinding in vain.

COFFEE.—The coffee market is fair and prices are regulated largely by the blends of the different varieties. Nothing new in sight.

DRIED FRUITS.—It is the general feeling that all kinds of dried fruits from the new crop will be cheaper than last year.

RICE AND TAPIOCA.—The only new feature in these lines, is that new "Carolina rice" has made its appearance on the market and sells at 10c to 11c a lb. There is no change in any other respect.

How "Good Tea" Drew Trade

Here is the story of how one of the best grocers in Kingston and one of the smartest business men in Ontario was more than ever convinced that Red Rose Tea is a profitable line to handle. He is proprietor of one of the largest stores in the Limestone City, and one day last month a lady, whom he afterwards learned was a wealthy summer resident on one of the Thousand Islands, came into the store and asked him if he kept Red Rose Tea. He replied that he did and she said: "I thought this was the store. I got a pound of the 50c. grade a couple of weeks ago and it was the best tea we ever tasted. I looked quite a while for your store because I wanted to make sure of getting more of the same tea."

She ordered several pounds of Red Rose Bronze Label, the 50c. grade, but what made the incident much more important in the eyes of the grocer, she gave a very good-sized order for other high-class groceries.

This single instance illustrates a very strong trend in the grocery trade. Good tea is the grocer's best advertisement. The grocer who sacrifices the quality of his tea, either for a larger profit or to the desire of a few customers for a cheap tea is going to lose both in his tea trade and in his general business.

It will pay you to recommend Red Rose Tea

It draws trade and holds it.

Current Business Happenings in Western Canada

Flour Prices Decline in Vancouver — British Columbia Fruit Meets with Favor in Germany — Sockeye Salmon Prices Advance—A Scarcity of Western Fruit.

VANCOUVER.

Sept. 7.—This week marks the reduction in the price of flour, the standards being quoted at $7.10. Although flour has gone down, there is no word yet of the bakers reducing the price of bread, which they were very prompt to advance at the time flour prices started to climb. If flour continues to drop, it is probable that bread will come to something less than 10 cents a loaf, bought retail, but the chances are that even so, bread will maintain its present price for some time yet. One brand of flour is quoted at $7.20, but the sellers claim that the difference of 10c is covered by the fixed retail price of this brand, which gives the retailer the same profit.

Eastern eggs are firm at 30c, and 31c and 32c is being asked. Locals are retailing at 50c and are not plentiful by any means.

High grades of eastern butter are quoted at 26c at the factory, with a local figure of 27c and 28c, and firm at that. The higher prices for this necessary article will soon obtain.

The death took place of W. L. McKenzie, who kept a grocery at the southeast corner of Denman and Nelson streets. He was a sufferer from tuberculosis of the bone. Deceased came to Vancouver from the prairie country.

The business of the New General Stores, carried on at Eburne by H. Weeks, has been transferred to the Eburne Trading Company. He did a good business, but got a first rate offer and for personal reasons besides decided to accept it.

Armour Packing Co. is about to establish a warehouse and cold storage plant in Revelstoke, which will become their distributing point for the immense territory between Spence's Bridge and Field on the main line of the C.P.R. in British Columbia. S. Bradley will be manager.

Carl Basedow, of Hamburg, Germany, is a visitor to the province this week. He is a leading auctioneer of Hamburg, and visited Vernon, in the Okanagan, as the outcome of a small shipment of fruit sent his firm by C. G. Guy & Co., of Vernon. The object of his visit was to get consignments of Okanagan fruit for the Hamburg market. Mr. Basedow claims that a much better price can be obtained for British Columbia fruit in Hamburg than in the east or the prairie provinces, so much so that several cars shipped to England had been reconsigned to his firm in Hamburg, and this reconsignment had netted the shippers very good returns, notwithstanding the increased freight charges, consequent upon the change of plans. Grimes Golden, he said, was a fine class of apple, but the name should be changed, as the same fruit shipped from the east had got into disrepute.

CALGARY.

Sept. 7.—As anticipated the unexpected small pack of sockeye salmon has resulted in a sharp advance in prices. Coast packers are now offering limited quantities at 50c per case, and prices advanced accordingly. It is freely admitted that choice sockeye salmon will bring still higher prices before another season's pack is available.

In the produce market butter has advanced 1c per lb., and eggs from 50 to 75c per case. Eastern cheese is firm and slightly higher, the jobbing price here is 15c per lb. for large, 15½ for twins and 17c Stiltons. Alberta cheese is quoted at ½ to 1c per lb. less.

Local vegetables are plentiful, and of unusually good quality. Alberta potatoes are a good crop, the quality will be better than usual as the season has been favorable to maturing of the crop.

B. C. fruits are scarce. Plums are arriving in limited quantities. There will not be any B. C. peaches shipped to Alberta this season, the crop being light, barely sufficient for home requirements.

Dealers find it difficult to obtain supplies even from California, the demand being unusually heavy from the large U.S. centres.

Sugar advanced here on Tuesday, 10 cents per cwt.

MANITOBA MARKETS

Corrected by Tellegraph.

POINTERS—

Advances — Delhi strawberries, almonds.

Firm Prices—Evaporated apples, apricots, peaches.

Weak Market—Beans, prunes, currants, fresh vegetables.

Winnipeg, Sept. 9, 1909.

Wholesalers claim that the increased business this season is due to the influx of harvesters and visitors. Merchants throughout the country are not stocking goods for the fall and winter trade. This is to come yet but the orders for immediate use are remarkably large and urgent. The wholesale houses have the complete staff in working order again after the holidays and everyone is working. It is interesting to visit the various wholesale warehouses and watch the continuous trucking of goods from the stock to the freight wagons. The output is so large that jobbers are finding it difficult to get goods. A local broker, who has occasion to feel the life of the trade, stated yesterday that he did not know where the goods were going to come from when the fall rush, which is opening, comes on. The trade for immediate consumption has been so large that many lines are depleted.

The market situation shows weaknesses in new crop lines and firmness in lines which stocks are known to be limited. We quote last week's prices on almonds although in some quarters they are wholesaling in advance of this price. Delhi strawberries are up although we cannot quote canned goods. Collections are fair locally but little is coming in from rural merchants. The time is coming near when some long hauls will be made in this connection. Nothing has taken place to injure the great crop to which so many are looking; and as most of the cutting is done hopes run still higher for an enormous yield and a good price. A report gathered from a reliable source predicts a wheat yield of over 118,000,000 bushels. This looks good to the wholesaler and retailer.

Produce and Provision Situation of the World

Demand Increasing for Cured Meats—Quantities of Butter Being Stored Away—Prices High For Export—Hogs Higher on Montreal Market—Quebec Cream Going to United States.

The feeling of the markets in general is easy and lifeless. Buyers are afraid to venture and holders are not willing to make the concession necessary to tempt the buyers. Possible margins for profits are indistinct, and uncertain. The hay supply is still way below the requirements, and even high prices will not change the situation. The demand for cured meats is gradually growing better and larger, and therefore the tendency is in favor of the holder.

The butter market is also waiting for something to turn up, but what that might be no one is prepared to say. From the fact that little of our butter has been exported, it must be concluded that very much larger quantities are stored than last year. England would now take some of it, but our prices are too high. If our prices continue too high, and Great Britain draws its butter from some other source, we may find ouselves with a surplus on our hands, that will be a drag in our market for some time. The Northwest, instead of taking butter from us are asking for an outlet for their surplus, which they can spare. It is quite probable that within a short time, some of our butter must change hands.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS.—The main features of the provision market are the increased price of hogs, live $9; dressed $12.75, and the weakening of some of the ham prices. Plate beef is also lower. The general tone of the market is dull.

BUTTER. — There is practically no change in the situation this week, except a slight strengthening in the price of dairy butter, in tubs, which is now 18c to 20c per lb. Receipts last week amounted to 15,686 packages, as against 14,467 packages the same week a year ago. Total receipts for the season amount to 268,720 packages, as against 294,689 packages same period 1908.

Considerable interest is being shown by provision men who are cognizant of the facts in the increasing exportation of cream from the eastern provinces to the neighboring States, the quantity is steadily growing, and will, in time, raise the price of butter here.

The receipts last week were 8,202 cases as against 5,108 cases the same week last year. Total receipts for the season amount to 150,341 cases as against 150,360 for the same period 1908, showing a slight loss. The quality is good, and prices are much better than this time last year.

PROVISIONS — Packers have, for some time, been looking for a better supply of hogs, but their hopes have not materialized, and they have to content themselves with what they can get, and pay the limit prices for them. The demand for cured meats is brisk and prices in several lines have advanced about ½c per lb. It seems now that bacon eaters need not look for lower prices for some time, at least, and be very well satisfied if they will not have to pay even more.

BUTTER—Butter is plentiful and if the market were regulated by supply and demand, as it used to be, butter would be considerably lower. But large quantities are held in cold storage on speculation, and in the interests of the holders, prices are kept up. TRAVELERS' FIRE ESCAPE COMPETITION.

Utica Company Wins First Prize of $100—Hamilton Defeats Toronto in Ball Game.

The prize of $100 offered for the most acceptable fire escape for hotels by the Commercial Travelers' Association, was competed for at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds at Toronto, on Saturday, Sept. 4, (Commercial Travelers' Day).

There were 14 contestants. The first prize was won by the U.S. Fire Protection Co., Utica, N. Y., with Davy's automatic safety fire escape, an invention of Chas. F. Davy, secretary and general manager of the company. Practical demonstrations were made by the various contestants, but a number of fire escapes were regarded as more fit for factories and public buildings than hotels. What was especially aimed at was a contrivance simple enough to be attached to every room in an hotel and cheap enough to warrant the Government recommending such a contrivance.

The Utica machine recommended itself to the judges at once. A second special prize was awarded to the "Simplex Fire Escape," made in Toronto, because of its simplicity and cheapness. The latter machine can be supplied at $5, and the former at $8. All that is necessary with each machine is for a person to buckle a belt under the arms and jump out the window. The judges were J. G. Cane, Lt.-Col. Stoneman, Hamilton, and Arthur Hatch, Hamilton. The Ontaria Government's representative on the committee was Inspector Snyder.

Hamilton Wins Ball Game.

Travelers' Day was also marked by a grand baseball contest between Hamilton and Toronto drummers. Hamilton carried off the honors as the following sparklets submitted by an admirer of the Mountain City ball-tossers plainly indicates:

Manager Wm. J. Dore with his wee laddies, spick and span, wore grey suits to play "Bob" Asher's pick of Toronto and suburbs. Every man of his team picked out his own suit, and the contrasts were quite noticeable.

"Bob" has not regained his voice since rooting so hard for Toronto, when "Billy" Dore's team won at the Snack outing. On Saturday he could be heard chastising his team in a weak voice, when they could not find the ball after Hamilton had hit it.

Sol. Walters wanted to bet a quarter on Toronto, but after betting twice he closed his pocketbook. After the game he could be seen arm and arm with Jack Wildfong, each consoling the other.

It was a dry game. Water could not be procured until kindhearted "Billy" Meehan came along and acted in the capacity of water boy.

Tommy Gloucester said that if ever he hit the ball, no one would ever find it—but thanks to Tommy he never found it to hit.

"Bob" Asher did a loop-de-loop trying for a fly, but was unsuccessful.

Notice the score, 34 to 17 in favor of Hamilton.

"Billy" Dore ought to be arrested for stealing so many bases.

Sammy Male, Hamilton's star pitcher, was a hodoo to the Toronto boys.

STREET GETS BACK ITS TRADE.

Merchants Organize Big Celebration to Recapture Their Customers Who Leave While Street is Torn up.

Toronto, Sept. 8.—The retail merchants of Arthur Street have recaptured their fair share of business through a unique and cleverly-managed celebration. This street from one end to the other was torn up and was undergoing repairs, and reconstruction since the 1st of April. It was in such a condition that traffic was practically impossible. Business was suffering. The street looked for a long time as if an effort had been made to do something, and then, as if the officials had given the work up in disgust.

For weeks and weeks nothing was done. Either the workmen were out of material or else the engineer was changing his palns, or for some other reason the work was delayed. A great deal of indignation was felt by the merchants against the officials whose business it was to look after it. Women and children were in danger of breaking their necks, or at least, of spoiling their shoes in trying to wade through mud, mortar, stones, etc., and, therefore, turned away from Arthur Street to do their buying.

It was in this condition from the 1st of April to September, and when at last it was completed, the merchants conceived the practical idea of holding a celebration in order to let the people know that Arthur Street was once more passable and that they were anxious to see their customers back again. A few of them put their heads together, formed an organization, appointed a chairman, secretary and a treasurer, laid their plans, and went to work. All the merchants on the street fell in line and became enthusiastic supporters. Money was liberally subscribed; 2 500 Chinese lanterns were secured; two bands engaged, and the great celebration came off on the night of Sept. 1st. Great generalship was manifested on the part of the promoters. They distributed the Chinese lanterns to every house on the street, with the instructions to put them up in a certain way and at a certain minute on the evening of the celebration. Almost like lightning the whole street, which was packed on both sides by thousands of spectators, was under the brilliant illumination of 2,500 Oriental sparklers. Bands, calithumpians and the ever irrepressible boys, paraded the street until eleven o'clock, greatly to the enjoyment of the mass of the people and to the perfect satisfaction of the merchants of Arthur Street.

It is claimed that 30,000 people lined the street. Everybody went home well pleased, and Arthur Street had retained its full share of the trade to which it is entitled. While the promoters deserve much credit, the fact must not be overlooked that the merchants on the whole street worked unitedly and in harmony for the good of the street—this is the secret of the great success.

WON'T SELL TO JOBBER.

The Kellogg Toasted Corn Flake Co., is waging war against a large New York wholesale grocery firm, accusing it of having cut prices on the cereal product to a retailer. The cereal manufacturer has refused to further sell its goods to this particular jobber until a fine for alleged cutting of prices is paid or affidavits furnished that such cutting has not been done. The New York manager of the Corn Flake Co., claims that a retailer who received a discount disclosed this fact to him. Nothing definite has yet been done.

Why Tie Up Your Cash?

We want the Grocers of Canada to fully realize that Christie Fancy Biscuits —La Fete, Orange Wafers, Coffee Wafers, Philopenas, Dominoes, Acorns, et cetera, et cetera,—are far superior to any fancy lines manufactured on this continent, and equal in Purity, Nutriment and Quality to the highest grades manufactured in the British Isles. The point is this:—Why tie up your cash when you can buy fresh and pure and in small quantities when you want them? Remember—we're not saying one word against the high and unvarying standard of English fancy lines; but we do maintain, and reasonably, that Christie fancy lines are the equal of the best produced anywhere. As a practical Grocer you know that a sea voyage never adds anything to the flavor of food stuffs. The moral is plain. Stock Christie fancy biscuits when you want the best fancy lines with the right flavor. Don't tie up your cash!

Flour, Cereals and Confectionery Department

Grain Dealers Acting Cautiously In the Export of Wheat—Old Country Demand for Oats—Little Change in Flour Market—Time to Order Christmas Confectionery.

The wheat market has been disastrous to many large dealers; even importers from the old lands have suffered to the extent of 9 to 10c a bushel. All are acting cautiously and business is dragging. Since the price of oats has declined, an export demand has made its appearance, but prices must drop still lower before much will be taken. On the whole the market is quiet, with a good deal of thinking as to how it is going to move. As the Northwest wheat figures largely in determining the value of wheat all over the world, there is still a marked difference of opinion as to the yield, which varies all the way from 110 millions to 150 millions. The weather is favorable and harvesting is progressing rapidly.

The present is an opportune time for grocers to order their Christmas confectionery. Each year manufacturers excel themselves in getting out attractive goods and this year will be no exception. The confectionery trade in the grocery stores has wonderfully increased during the past year. This is true with respect to quality as well as quantity.

TORONTO.

FLOUR. — The wheat market shows little change since last week. If anything the tone is a trifle firmer. The stock of old wheat is rapidly diminishing, and new wheat is coming in slowly. A great many of the farmers, who can afford it, are not too ready to sell. This is the cause of the firmness of the market. Flour also has not made any change. Business, as a rule, is of a hand to mouth character. The mills are undergoing repairs, and millers are getting ready for next season's business.

CEREALS.—The market is firm, but this is principally owing to the small receipts of grain. Wheat at the mills in the city from farmers is selling at $1 per bushel, and oats at 48c. This is a drop of 40c on wheat and 14c on oats from its highest point.

BONUSING BABIES.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—Re the last clause in the story in last week's Grocer from M. STUDYING CANADIAN CONDITIONS

Great Britain's Interest in Canada Becoming More Apparent Every Year.

Harrison Watson, London, Eng., is now in Canada, having been brought out by the Canadian Government to revisit this country and study Canadian conditions. Mr. Watson is a former resident of Montreal, where he once was with the Montreal Rolling Mills Co. He expects to be here until the end of October, and during the intervening time will cover the whole of the Dominion for his information. This is his first visit here for many years, and is, of course, for the purpose of studying our trade conditions, with a view to closer trade relationship with the Mother Country. Canada is becoming of more and more interest every year to Great Britain, and the better the knowledge that our trade commissioners have of us and our resources and possibilities, the more interest will the people of the Old Country take in us.

Food Value of Honey and Bee-keepers Methods

Little Adulteration Practiced—How Wet and Dry Seasons Affect the Supply—Science of the Bee a Wonderful One—Why Comb Honey is More Expensive Than Extracted—Basswood and Clover Blossoms Produce Choicest Flavors.

By A. H. Harvey.

The retail grocers deserve a good deal of credit for the fact that very little adulterated honey is on the market today. Through their agitation for pure foods, strict laws were enacted which now makes it dangerous for any one to adulterate honey.

Honey is an article of food, the value of which is, in general, not understood. Not only is very little known of honey but less is understood of the science of bee-keeping, and the wonderful busy bee, as well as the care and attention required from the bee-keeper.

There are from 60,000 to 75,000 bees in one hive, under complete and perfect government of one queen. These gather, over and above what they need for their own sustenance, from 60 to 150 lbs. of honey in a season. There is, like in many other things, a great deal of uncertainty and anxiety connected with the production of honey. If the weather conditions are not favorable, the whole season may be required to gather enough for their own support, and leave nothing to spare for the trouble and time of the bee-keeper.

Clover Honey Predominates.

The bulk of the marketable honey is gathered from the nectar of white clover, although honey is gathered from the blossoms of fruit trees, berries, basswood, dandelions, thistles, buckwheat and many other flowers, all of which have flavors of their own. In order to get pure white clover or basswood honey—which are the two most desirable flavors,—the bee-keeper has to watch his bees from day to day to see that the honey does not get mixed.

The time the bees can work on white clover runs from 10 days to 3 weeks. This year the time only lasted about 10 days, during which they could work to advantage.

If it rains they cannot work, and strong winds also interfere with them. If there is much rain, it not only interferes with their work but the nectar is much thinner and requires more bulk to make the same amount of honey. This requires not only more loads to carry to the hive, but it requires more time and labor to evaporate the water and bring the honey to its proper consistency.

Under thorough obedience to the queen who rules on absolutely true principles, no cap is allowed to be closed until the honey is perfect.

Dry, hot weather also is unfavorable to the bee-keeper. The nectar which rises into the flower dries and gets hard and if drouth continues over a certain time destroys the nectar and the season ends.

Colonies Created Regularly.

Bees are constantly changing and a new generation follows about every 6 weeks. During good working weather they are said to kill themselves working, actually wearing out their wings. They go as far as three miles to gather honey. This means that they have to travel in many cases 6 miles to bring home a small drop of honey the size of a grain of wheat.

There are other things many people do not understand about honey. Very few know how to eat it when they get it. Honey is a very rich food, equal in food value to three times its weight in meat, and therefore must be eaten in small quantities at a time.

Comb Versus Extracted Honey.

A good many people also cannot understand why comb honey is so much dearer than extracted honey, and are apt to think that extracted honey cannot be pure. The fact is that bees can gather as high as 20 lbs. of honey in the same time that it takes them to get 1 lb. of wax or comb, and in order to make the best use of the bees, the bee-keeper takes the filled combs from the hives, and through a rapidly revolving machine throws out the liquid honey and he then places the empty combs back again for the bees to fill.

Pure honey will naturally harden and become solid in a few months' time. This can either be liquified by warming, or it may be eaten, as I think it should be, in the candied form. In its solid condition it retains all the original flavors whereas by melting, if not very carefully done, it loses some of its richest and most delicate flavor.

SHOP PHILOSOPHY.

By Frank Farrington.

If there is such a thing as luck, you will generally find it on the side of the man who is always right there with the goods. There is no profit for you on goods not in stock.

The public is always looking for a chance to get something for nothing. The store that seems to come nearest to giving them that gets their trade.

If your store is a big store, you may still find that the methods of some of the smaller merchants are clever enough to be worth studying. If your store is small, the methods that have made the other stores big would make your own big if rightly applied.

Prosperity never wears dingy clothes. With paint at its present price and so easy to put on, you can't afford to let your store front get dim.

A vacation even with hard work will do you good if it affords a relief from responsibility. It is not straight hard work that uses people up, it is the care that goes with it.

When you buy goods on long time, be sure that somebody has to pay interest on the investment for that time and that somebody is pretty apt to be you though you may not know it.

Variety of goods makes variety of customers, and I don't need to tell you that the more kinds of customers you have, the more kinds of money you will have in the cash drawer.

It is very doubtful whether the advertisement that you can put on your wrapping paper will do you as much good as the reputation for wrapping all parcels in good quality, neat, white paper without any advertisement upon it at all.

The advertising that people read is the kind that is not printed and distributed just like that of everybody else. The fellow in the rut attracts no attention.

WHAT THE MAN OF SYSTEM KNOWS.

System is order, instead of chaos. It is the neatly arranged shelves, instead of the miscellaneous heap in the corner. It is music instead of noise. It is the organized army, instead of the mob. It is calmness, instead of confusion.

The systematic man works according to method, instead of in a haphazard way. He proceeds logically, instead of helter-skelter. He knows where to find his things when he wants them. He knows the what, the why, the where, and the when, of every phase of his business. He knows the quality of goods he has on hand, how much was ordered, how much is yet to come, how much it cost, who made it, and how the stock is being kept. He can tell from his records how fast the goods are going, how long it will take to get a repeat order, and what extras there are to consider. He can show what he wrote last year, and what the other man said in reply. He can locate a trouble quickly, and remedy it effectively and permanently.—The Commercial.

Most people succeed not because of brains, but because they are workers. Work never kills, but worry does. Enthusiasm is the white heat which melts the obstacles. The enthusiastic man tackles the hard things first. The first task for the modern business man should be to sum up and organize himself.

"I saw a scientific note the other day," observed the professor, "to the effect that the oak furnishes a home for 309 species of insects."

"That's very kind of the oak," said the Idiot, dryly, "but it can't compete with the average country hotel."

Canadian Fruit, Vegetable and Fish Markets

Enormous Quantities of Canadian Fruit Going Into Consumption—Growers Packing it More Carefully—Tomatoes and Potatoes down in Price — Temporary Withdrawal of B.C. Salmon Prices.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS.—With the exception of bananas and peaches, most of the other lines show a falling off in price, due to increasing supplies. Raspberries are no longer on the market. Cranberries are temporarily not on the market, but new shipments are expected shortly. The price will be about the same as previously. The reductions on perishable goods are considerable. Delaware and Tokay grapes are now quoted $2 a crate. Malagas are selling at $1.75.

VEGETABLES.—Corn shows a very marked reduction this week. It is now quoted at 6c to 10c a dozen. Green peppers have also weakened, as the supply is increasing. They are now $1.50 to $2 per crate. No horseradish is offered. The general trend of the market is upward, although several of the earlier vegetables have dropped slightly. The market, taken as a whole, is active, and prices are reasonable.

FISH.—The principal items notable in the fish market are the temporary withdrawal of B. C. salmon prices, the addition of dressed perch at 10c, and fresh eel at 9c per lb., and a reduction of 3c in the price of brook trout, this latter owing to increased receipts. In the salted and pickled list are also added quotations on small, medium and large green cod. Dore and pike are still scarce, but lake fish are coming in more freely. The demand for halibut is increasing, and their scarcity is advancing the price.

GREEN FRUITS.—Judging from the quantity of fruit which arrived on the day after Labor Day, the fruit growers had a "labor" day all right. The market this week is simply loaded wth all kinds of fruits and vegetables. Any one who visits the market must be struck with, not only the enormous quantity, but also with the excellence of the goods, and with the careful and honest packing. While we still hear of the unreliable packing of the Ontario fruit, anyone who carefully examines the fruit, as it is now assorted and done up, must come to the conclusion that our fruit packers no longer deserve a great deal of censure. Thousands and thousands of baskets come in which are packed absolutely straight, but if one comes which won't measure up to the standard, there is always a howl made. The fruit growers have wonderfully improved during the last few years, and deserve credit. They are only too glad to put up the goods right, if the consumer is willing to pay the price according to quality. Owing to this careful assorting we find the same varieties of fruit vary in price from 30c to $1 a basket. Some consumers are now kicking because they cannot pick out the best baskets in an average lot at the same price. If one wants cheap fruit, he must take low grades. This is as it ought to be, and every one will get the quality to correspond with the price he is willing to pay. Peaches, plums, pears and apples are the leaders this week. St. John and the early Crawfords are the varieties now on the market, but some of the best varieties are still to come. Plums are in great varieties and in splendid condition, on the whole the market (and if it were in a more attractive place it would still be more so) is a picture of beauty and never before was fruit in such large quantities and in such excellent condition.

Cantaloupes, especially are plentiful and of first-class quality. Tomatoes are also fine, and a little lower, selling from 15c to 25c a basket. Potatoes are 10c a bushel lower. DROUGHT AFFECTS FRUITS.

Government Correspondents Deal With the Crops in Canada.

Apple prospects, according to information received by the Fruit Division of the Dominion Government, declined during August. The drought, which continued throughout the greater part of the month, caused a fairly heavy shrinkage in the crop, though winter varieties particularly have been much benefited by the recent rains. The sample generally is undersized but a favorable fall may bring a large percentage of the crop up to the average at maturity. A noticeable feature in this year's apple crop has been the many clusters or bunches of small 'nubby' apples that have hung to the trees. This condition is apparently quite general both in Ontario and Nova Scotia, though large quantities of the inferior fruit have fallen. The dry summer, the depredation of insects, and in particular the work of the Aphis, in sombination with heavy 'setting' of fruit is responsible in a large measure for an unusual quantity of undersized and misformed fruit.

The report in referring to pears says that there is very little change in the pear outlook. A light to medium crop only will be harvested in Ontario. Pear blight is not quite as prevalent as last year.

Situation in Plums.

The plum outlook in southern Ontario is fair to good, although the drop has been very heavy, especially among the Bradshaws and Gueii. Considerable damage has also been done by hail in the Niagara district. The rains of the latter part of the month have been of great benefit to the crop, which will be at least a good medium, with the exception of Japan varieties. Correspondents report Japan plums light to medium; European plums a good medium and American plums medium to full crop. Red June, Burbank, Abundance and Bradshaw are light to medium; Lombards and Golden Drop medium to full crop; Reine Claude and Grand Duke, medium. The crop in British Columbia is light.

Peaches generally are a good crop in the Niagara district and in the Essex peninsula. Hail did some injury in the neighborhood of Grimsby. The Triumphs and Early Rivers and other large varieties are harvested and have been bringing good prices. Crawfords are reported heavier than usual in the Grimsby district and Elbertas somewhat lighter. Early peaches are reported medium and late peaches medium to full crop. There is very little peach rot this season.

There will be a fine crop of grapes in the commercial grape sections in spite of hail, which reduced large quantities to the wine class between Beamsville and Winona. The crop this year is very free from insect and fungus diseases. Concords are a full crop; Niagaras nearly full, and red grapes a medium to full crop.

Good Crop of Tomatoes.

The early varieties are now marketed in southern Ontario. They have been a good crop. Prices have ruled rather low. Late varieties promise a medium to full crop. They are ripening rather late and there is some danger from early frosts before they are all picked. A medium to full crop of tomatoes is reported generally. There is very little complaint of rot.

More Energy Needed Where Competition is Keen

Comparisons Among Various Towns and Cities Showing Average Population to Every Grocery Store—The More Fortunate Have an Average of About 500—Methods Required for Enforcement Where the Competition is Lively.

By B. H. Thomas.

The number of grocery stores that can exist with profit in a town or city in comparison to the population is a problem which is thought over a good deal by many merchants.

The question is one, of course, which presents various phases. For instance, if a city has a population of 50,000 and has 100 grocery stores it does not necessarily follow by any means that each grocer looks after the wants of 500 of the inhabitants.

At the same time a city may have too many stores for the population. Every grocery, no matter what its size or the quality of service or goods it possesses, attracts a certain amount of custom. If every other store on the main street is a grocery store or if every corner in the outlying districts contains a couple of groceries there are going to be too many in that city.

If all these are on an equal footing as regards appearance, service methods, etc., are concerned, none would have much of a chance to become successful in making money. Even if they are not on equal terms, every one has its own attractions and few of the proprietors become millionares.

It is clear that there can be too many grocery stores in a business centre and it is a fact that in some places there are too many in order that all or even the majority may secure enough trade to make their remaining in the business profitable.

Some Less Lucky Than Others.

A comparison among a few of the leading towns and cities in Ontario, demonstrates the fact that grocers in some are more fortunate than those in others. Bradstreet's trade guide in its latest issue, is authority for the figures used below. Toronto with a population of some 300,000 has 603 groceries, which on an average means about 500 to every store. It may be placed in the same class as Ottawa, which city has a population of over 80,000, and has about 170 groceries or about 500 to each store. These two cities should consider themselves lucky when Hamilton and London are looked over. The former with 62,000 people has about the same number of groceries as Ottawa, having only 360 people to each one. London fares still worse. Its population is estimated at 48,000, and yet there are 246 grocery stores. This means a store to about every 200 of the population.

Brantford, Peterboro, Guelph and Berlin, are in the next class, so far as population is concerned. Brantford, with 20,000 people, has 40 stores, or one to every 500; Peterboro with 16,000 has 50 groceries, which means one to 320; Guelph has 30 stores to feed 14,000, or one to 466 people, and Berlin with 13,000 is fortunate in having only 25 stores, one to 522.

In Chatham there are 40 groceries for 10,228 of a population, or one to 250. Belleville has 25 for 10,000 people, which means one to 400, and Lindsay with 7,500, has 17 stores, one to about 444.

While these figures were nearly correct at the time the last estimates in Bradstreet's were compiled, they are certain to have changed somewhat since. But it is not likely that the change has been very great and so far as the average number of people to each grocery store is concerned, the above figures will not be far astray.

Value of Competition.

Competition therefore is keener in some places than in others; and this is the very point that needs the attention of those members of the trade who are anxious to build up their business.

Where a man is alive to the trend of the times, competition becomes the life of his trade. He is continually reaching out after new business, and ways and means continually present themselves to him. He surmounts obstacles that, without competition, would impede his progress. His business vehicle travels on because he applies his utmost energy to the wheel.

There are various means by which competition can be met. In these modern times service in the store is one of the paramount features. No grocer who neglects to serve his clientele as they require to be served, will have a chance to do so for very long. It is the man who uses tact in attending to his customers who wins out in the race for business.

Next to service comes system in looking after the buying of goods and the disposal of them to the consuming public. Modern book-keeping methods are now in use, and it is not much trouble for the systematic man to know just where he is at. Buying must be carefully attended to in order that the proper prices are paid and in order that the goods that are demanded are on the shelves.

Quality of goods, educating clerks, general store management, window and exterior displays and advertising are among the other prominent features for careful consideration.

The story of the "survival of the fittest" is old but true, and it applies to the grocery trade as well as to armies and nations.

FROST AND THE BEAN CROP.

Damage Done in Some Places in Western Ontario—Beans Now Being Pulled.

Chatham, Sept. 7.—Light frost was reported throughout this section on the night of Sept. 1. In the immediate vicinity of Chatham and Blenheim, as well as in the Essex section, little damage is reported.

In the vicinity of Highgate, in Oxford township, the frost is reported to have been more severe. Ice was formed in some places. In many cases the bean crop suffered severely, and bean growers will be heavy losers. Here and there weeds protected the crop, and comparatively little damage was done.

As Highgate is the centre of a large bean growing section, the effect of the frost on the bean crop in general, if the first serious reports prove correct, will be considerable. In other sections the frost does not seem to have hurt the beans.

The pulling of the early beans is actively in progress in many places.

ON A START OF $50 A YEAR.

Death of a Millionaire Merchant, Who Acquired Great Wealth in Business.

Death recently removed the most picturesque businessman in Ohio State, U.S.A., when Leon Houston, sixty-eight, a bachelor, worth probably $1,000,000, died of cancer of the stomach at South Charleston.

Mr. Houston was born in Springfield, and started his business career on a salary of $50 a year. He soon established a country store at South Charleston and acquired his wealth through that institution as a nucleus. In time he and his two brothers branched out until they were in a position to supply all the needs of the rich farming community about Charleston, a village of 2,000 people. The Houston brothers sold everything there was to sell from lumber to silks, from needles to traction engines.

They established a bank and took care of every kind of business. They have long held the reputation of being the heaviest wool buyers in the State of Ohio. At the time of his death Mr. Houston was the owner of more than 5,000 acres. Many stories are told of his generosity, and of his carefulness in a business deal.

Scores of worthy families, holders of fine farms in this and adjoining counties, got their start from Mr. Houston, who would rent them land, give them cows, horses and implements, and set them on their feet in farming. He was active in politics a score of years ago, having been a county commissioner and later a member of the state board of equalization. He was greatly interested in South Charleston, and as a member of the village council, constantly strove to make the town more beautiful.

Mr. Houston became in later years a great traveler, and visited almost every known country, crossing the Atlantic a score of times.

The Advantages of One Line Window Displays

Attention, Says an authority, Should be Confined to the Particular Article on Sale—Even if Onlooker is not in Receptive Mood a Knowledge of the Display is Likely to Remain With Him—Bermuda Grocer Dresses a Tea Window.

Down in Hamilton, Bermuda, the grocers pay especial attention to the art of window dressing as well as they do in Canada. The photograph reproduced on this page is one of the window displays in the store of A. S. R. Spurling, of that town.

Mr. Spurling is an influential merchant in the Bermuda capital. He believes in having an attractive store with attractive windows and finds these methods profitable. As the display indicates only tea is used, the one line idea being carried out.

An authority on window dressing in this respect says that displays simply serve to attract attention and unless those attracted are in a receptive mood, that is ready mentally and financially to buy—even though they may be wholly or partially unconscious of the fact themselves—there is only a remote chance for a sale. To those interested in the goods shown and prepared to buy, a good display of these goods must necessarily be a more attractive and effective inducement to enter the store than any freak, fancy or showy display, however, catchy and generally interesting. With the public already educated to demand a wide range of choice to select from, and the tendency strong toward increasing this range, it is obvious that every available inch of display space is needed to give the impression that a very large selection is carried in stock.

The effect of window displays on those not in the proper position to buy at the time is uncertain. The latter may be very pleasantly impressed, but not in the way that will bring their business, and almost never in the manner that produces an impulse to buy on the spot. Here the chance is in favor of the display confined strictly to the one particular class of goods. It is much more likely to germinate an impulse to buy at once, and it stands to reason that when the question of buying the goods comes up afterward, the choice of a store is more likely to be influenced by the remembrance of a good display, than one whose salient features, however, pleasing, had little or nothing to do with what is on sale.

Other kinds of advertising—newspaper, for example—coupled with special inducements to buyers, actually create or at least open markets for the articles. No dealer would think of supplementing these with an irrelevant window display. He would naturally strive to make the best possible and most complete showing of goods. His sales are at all times governed by the demand he can create for what he has to sell, and never by the interest centred on free shows that distract attention from them.

MODERN EQUIPMENT.

Stewart & Co., Nelson, B.C., have opened their new grocery store in Green Bros. and Burden's new block on Ward Street. The business will be under the management of Major Lorne Stewart. The premises have been splendidly fitted up and the shelves along the walls are crowded with a new stock of standard grocery lines. The store is well lighted in day time by three large windows and two glass doors and at night by huge 500 candle power Welsbach lamps. Two of the windows will be used for show purposes and the third for admission of light only. A feature of the windows is that above each is a large semicicular glass ventilator which will serve both to keep the air in the store pure and fresh and to admit light.

Friends—Not Growlers

RISING SUN Stove Polish in Cakes never comes back to you with growls from the housekeeper. It is always made up to the same high standard maintained for forty years, and it is always just right. That's why we have the thousands upon thousands of grocers pushing it everywhere. Grocers don't wish to run the risk of losing a good customer by passing out an inferior stove polish, which is wrong more often than it is right. RISING SUN makes friends for you and for us in every household where you put it.

Upton's New Season Pure Jams Now Ready

Absolutely pure and delicious in flavor and preserved in gold-lined, hermetically-sealed 5-lb. pails and 16-oz. glass jars.

Upton's Pure Orange Marmalade

Well and favorably known by the grocer and his customers throughout Canada, where it has been made and sold for over fifteen years.

THISTLE

Canned Haddies, Kippered Herring, Tunny Fish.

No other brand is "just as good" as the Thistle because no other Haddies are quite so scrupulously cleaned (always a Haddock and never anything else)—no other Kippered Herring can be quite so toothsome because the Herring come from St. Mary's Bay—no other Tunny Fish are quite so carefully selected. Buy the "Thistle" and you buy the best.

COX'S Gelatine

Let that household word "Cox" guide you right when stocking with Gelatine---the perfect product whose purity has never been questioned. With it you are safe,---powdered or shredded, but either way equally as free from deception. No "premiums" inside the box---because no premium offer is necessary to induce sales.

CODOU'S Macaroni

Look for the name "Codou's" on the package and rest assured of highest quality in Macaroni, Vermicelli or Pastes. Cleanliness is a hobby of the makers. And delicacy is a feature of the product of this grand old house in Marseilles, France, established half a century ago.

STRAIGHT POINTERS

Dealers who are in the market for Canned Goods will find it distinctly to their advantage to order the "Essex" brand, based on these prime facts:

—We are located in the finest garden section of Canada, where Corn and Tomatoes grow to perfection.

—We own one of the largest, newest and most perfect canning plants in the Dominion, with every facility for doing things right.

—We are thoroughly independent and have no connection in any way with the Canners' Combine or any other trust.

—We expect to pay something for advertising and are putting all we possibly can of value into all our goods.

Why not get the best when it costs no more? There are reasons why we can do better for you than any house in the trade. Put us to the test.

A strong combination-

¶ An extensive garden of three thousand acres in the heart of Prince Edward County, Ontario; a canning factory without a peer in the completeness of its modern sanitary and mechanical equipment, and the cleanliness and skill of its employees; that is the combination which produces "Farmer Brand" Canned Fruits and Vegetables.

¶ Consequently every can of Farmer Brand is pure in quality and perfect in flavor. Farmer Brand brings and retains for you the quality customers —people who want the very best and are willing to pay a fair price to get it.

The Best Canned Goods

There are many kinds in the market all making claims of being the choicest and the highest in excellence, flavor and merit, but

The Queen Quality Leads

WHY?

Because our fruits and vegetables are fresh, palatable, and the finest specimens that can be secured in one of Canada's most fertile and progressive districts.

Because they are uniform in quality, as we supervise the growing of the raw products from seed time to harvest and our inspectors reject everything that is not strictly up to the highest standard.

Because we have the most sanitary and up-to-date process and machinery and no detail is overlooked. We attend to the practical side ourselves and make our own cans of the best tin plate that can be secured.

All progressive grocers stock them and all discriminating customers get in them

The "Craig Idea" of Salesmanship Proves a Winner

How an Inspiration Put Into Practice Evolves New Principle for Selling Goods — The Misplaced Check Gives the Opportunity Which Makes the Sale—Made Out to the Wrong Company.

By Lynn Sumner in System.

When Woodruff stepped out of the western managership at Chicago to take general charge of sales in New York, four men fell naturally into a class by themselves as candidates for the vacancy.

Had you asked Woodruff specifically why they did, he would have told you you that Reeves had landed the big Wells-Burnham order for a hundred and forty machines at Milwaukee; that Langley had stood at the head in western sales for three months in succession; that in Toledo they said Hollowell could sell a Kingston typewriter to the gilded name on an office door; and that Craig—well Craig was the originator of the "Craig idea."

And now we will go back to the beginning.

Once down in Evansville, while perusing the day's news between his last call and train time, Craig had chanced to let his eye fall upon a single sentence in a verbose editorial on a pending alien exclusion act. "The best way to meet competition with cheap labor," it ran, "is to shut the door on it before it gets in."

Now, personally, Craig knew very little and cared less about the faults or virtues of alien exclusion, but he did have a very real idea about competition. It was the most serious thing he had to contend with every day he sold Kingston typewriters. It had lost him an order for two machines that very morning.

His attention arrested, Craig went back and read that sentence again, and unthinkingly, because the memory of the morning's lost sale was still the uppermost thing in his mind, he read it: "The best way to meet competition with the Wentworth machine is to—"

And right there the "Craig idea" was born. On the train going up to Fort Wayne he began to develop it, three days later he had almost perfected it—it only needed application. And it was something like this:

Just for a moment Craig stepped back and in that moment the whole situation

"Once each week he made the rounds of the building."

flashed before him. The Collins Company had moved in while he was in Chicago; the Wentworth man, on the trail in his absence, had jumped into the breach and sold them, delivered the machine, and that man sitting there this minute was waiting for the check.

"Craig described the little comedy that had been played in the outer office."

But the check was not delivered! That was the point, and until it was—! A step and Craig blocked the window, searching his mind for the right move, the right word. And before he could formulate a syllable, the girl, in the most deliberate way in the world, handed him the check.

Sluggish words cannot follow the flashings of the mind, especially Craig's mind in that moment when a foolish little absent-minded act brought just a hope out of an utterly hopeless situation. But Craig was not the man to yield to stage fright, even when he was thrust like a startled understudy into the most dramatic part he had ever played. Carefully folding the check, he placed it in his pocket and then, turning back, "By the way," he said, "may I see Mr. Collins for a moment?"

"Yes, you'll find him there in the back office," the girl answered.

Craig stepped in briskly to find Collins dictating, the stenographer seated at his left, the shining new Wentworth on the stand beyond. And Craig noted with inward exultation that even at serious work this man carried just a twinkle of good nature in his eye.

"Mr. Collins?" he queries, extending his hand.

"Yes," said the other, grasping it cordially, "and what can I do for you?"

For answer Craig held out the mis-delivered slip. "I want to see you," he said, "about this check."

"Why, is there anything wrong with it?"

"Yes, there is something very much wrong with it. In fact, it is made out to the wrong company."

"I don't understand," Collins stammered.

"The point is this,"—a smile lurked in Craig's lips as he watched for the words' effect—"this check is made out to the Wentworth Company and I represent the Kingston."

Then, replying to Collins' puzzled look of inquiry, Craig described the little comedy that had been played in the outer office. And when Collins saw it all, he did not stop at a smile, he burst out laughing, first at the undeniable humor of the situation, then in enthusiastic appreciation of Craig's quick turning of events.

"Now, I don't want to make unfair use, Mr. Collins," Craig resumed, "of this simple accident that placed your check in my hands. But aside from the humor of the incident there is a very serious side to this transaction. You are paying $100 for a typewriter. When you do that you want, of course, the very best typewriter that money will buy, a machine the durability and capacity of which have been proved in everyday service.

"You don't buy a $100 office appliance every day and when you do you want proof of its efficiency, not alone through a salesman's words, but through demonstration of what that machine has done in other offices. In short you want that machine that the experience of others has made their choice, has shown them to be best. Do you know Mr. Collins that every machine purchased in this building since it opened has been a Kingston?"

"But that may be a testimonial not to your machine, but to your salesmanship," Collins objected.

"In the case of the first machine, yes.

But every Kingston stands or falls on its merits. Eighty per cent. of the sales in this building have been re-orders. One machine given a trial, sells others. I take to myself only the credit for being on hand to get the order."

"Which after all," Collins smiled, "is not the least important principle of salesmanship."

"Now, Mr. Collins," Craig went on, "I am not going to take another minute of your time. But I do want to ask you simply for an opportunity. I want you to hold this check on your desk until five o'clock this afternoon and let me put a Kingston machine in here on trial. If you are satisfied after I have demonstrated its qualities that it is the best machine you can buy, I want you to keep that check and give me one instead for the Kingston Typewriter Company. Will you grant that favor?"

"If for no other reason," Collins agreed, "than to give a clever man a chance to plead his case."

That afternoon when Craig had demonstrated the qualities of the Kingston and the stenographer had voiced her own approval of its ease of operation, Collins drew a check from the top drawer of his desk.

"I made this out just after you left this morning," he said and a smile prefaced the added remark, "I hope you will find it payable to the right company."

Down in the lobby Craig took care to change that "127" to "128" before he dropped his postal in the mailbox.

And now you know what the "idea" was that put Craig, instead of Reeves or Langley or Hollowell, behind the frosted glass in the Chicago office.

UNDERNEATH VINEGAR BARREL.

A peculiar accident occurred to Fred Sayers, clerk for Oman & Mallion, grocers, Stratford, last Friday, which caused him several injuries. The wholesale grocery's dray had left a barrel of vinegar at the rear entrance to the store, and Mr. Sayers was moving it nearer to the boards by which the barrels are lowered to the cellar. The barrel, however, tipped too suddenly and started down the boards. Mr. Sayers stepped towards the steps leading to the cellar, but unfortunately did not go far enough and touching one of the boards he slipped down this to the floor beneath. The barrel followed and pinned him to the wall. The driver of the wholesale grocery dray ran down and removed him from his dangerous position. It was found upon medical examination that he had two ribs broken in addition to a hemorrhage of the kidneys.

THE GROCER CHANGED THE BOTTLES.

There is a good story going the rounds in Port Hope, Ont., about the traveling representative of a tea company with headquarters in Toronto. On a business trip there a couple of weeks ago, he carried a parcel with him and the shape of this parcel resembled a bottle very much.

Many merchants eyed it and finally a curious one asked what it was. The traveler replied that it was a gem of honey, a very favorite dish at his home. He had several calls to make in the neighborhood of this particular store and so decided to leave his honey there until his return. It was nearly train time when he got back and he grabbed up the bottle, and hustled away.

He reached home a few days later and several of his relatives were there visiting. He whispered to his wife that he had a great treat, a gem of fresh honey, and they must have it for supper. He knew his guests would enjoy it. The good wife went to the pantry to prepare the honey for the table, but on opening it she found that it contained a quart, full measure, of the sparkling waters of Lake Ontario.

The change in the bottles was made while the traveler was busy, but on his return to Port Hope, the sweet liquid was restored to him. Honey is a fighting word with "Me" now.

THE BEGINNER "CALLED DOWN."

"A new man in business" said an old experienced grocer the other day, "nearly always cuts the price or does things that have a bad effect on the trade as a whole. He suffers as much as the others, but doesn't know why until experience teaches him a severe lesson in the art of doing business on business principles.

"A salesman who believes that he can sell goods at a wrong price without his action being discovered by competitors was never more mistaken. Not one buyer in a thousand will keep the secret. He is so proud of his achievement that he will tell the first competitor that comes along all about how he "worked" the other salesman down in price.

"It is better to lose some business than to lose the profit on all business. I have never known a salesman who had the courage to refuse unprofitable business who failed to get an abundance of business of the right kind in the long run."

Canadian Industrial Prosperity is Manifest

President Hobson of the C. M. A. Sounds Optimistic Note at Annual Session—Effect of Splendid Crop Prospects on the Various Sections of Trade—Food Products Section Discuss New Pure Food Act.

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 16.—Industrial interests in all parts of Canada were represented at the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which opened here on Tuesday morning. President R. Hobson, Hamilton, delivered his retiring address on Tuesday afternoon in which he reviewed the industrial situation and dwelt upon some of the problems calling for consideration on the part of manufacturers.

He expressed his satisfaction with the trend of trade conditions, and with the breaking up of the clouds of depression.

"No Surrender" was the keynote of his opinions so far as the United States tariff revision was concerned. Canadian manufacturers should strengthen their own position, and the Government of Canada should put into effect the provisions of the Surtax Act of 1903. The United States had for its object in the tariff revision, the forcing of Canada to grant similiar concessions as had been given to France, and various parts of the Empire. He strongly maintained, however, that Canada should hold to her guns.

Trade conditions everywhere in Canada were showing a great revival. The assurance of a bountiful harvest is restoring the confidence of the banker, the manufacturer, the wholesaler and the retailer. Money in consequence is easier and general conditions more free. The president's address was full of optimism on the prospects for the future, and he was widely complimented for his broad-minded opinions on the various industrial questions of the day.

Pure Food Law Discussed.

The Manufacturing Grocers' section met on Tuesday in Room C of the Conservatory of Music, where the convention was held. There were present: J. Litster, Litster Pure Food Co., Toronto; F. F. Dalley, Jr., of the F. F. Dalley Co., Ltd., Hamilton; Geo. Scott, of the White Swan Co., Toronto; Jos. Wagstaff, Wagstaff's Limited, Hamilton; Wm. Gorman, Gorman, Eckert & Co., London, Ont.; A. Gunn, Gunn's Ltd, Toronto.

There was a discussion on the proposed new pure food act being introduced by chief analyst of the Dominion Government, A. McGill, and which has been modelled after the New York State law. The members were not sufficiently acquainted with the act to go into it deeply, and Mr. McGill will be written to furnish copies.

On motion of A. Gunn, the name "Grocers' Section" was changed to "Food Products Section."

The election of officers for the Food Products' Section resulted as follows:—Chairman, J. Litster; Vice Chairman, S. W. Ewing, Montreal; F. J. Ward (Jno. Nott & Co.), Halifax; W. N. Hood, Blue Ribbon Co., Winnipeg; Geo. E. Barbour, St. John; A. Gunn, Toronto; F. F. Dalley, Sr., Hamilton; Wm. Gorman, London; R. Kelly (Kelly-Douglas Co.), Vancouver.

The Biscuit and Confectionery Section met on Tuesday afternoon, at 1.30 in Room D, and in next week's issue a report of this meeting as well as others will appear.

Ads. Reproduced Showing How Best to Talk to the Consuming Public—Ideas on How the Receipt of Broken Chinaware Might be Advertised to Advantage—Use of Borders Illustrated.

The main feature in newspaper advertising that the retail merchant who prepares his own ads. should take into consideration is "selling power." Through the newspaper the retailer talks directly to the people to whom he wants to sell his goods and he must present his case to them in the best possible manner.

Up-to-date retail advertising embraces principally selling talks which show to consumers reasons why purchasing can be done to the best advantage.

The Bradley & Son advertisement shown on this page is one about which little fault can be found. A feature, so far as the type arrangement is concerned, is the uniform type used for "Use the Phone" and "Bradley & Son." This uniformity is pleasing to the eye and attracts attention. The telephone talk is also a good one and the fact that prices are given makes the ad. of direct value to the intending purchaser.

While the ad. of F. A. Haddy has many interesting features, probably a few suggestions might be given for slightly improving it. For instance, the apple and fleur-de-lis border appears to detract somewhat from the central idea —that of the talk to the consuming public about tea and dinner sets. Straight rules might have been better. A little more information concerning how that particular brand of tea was bought in order to show its value at the prices named would possibly have produced better selling properties. Naming the prices of tea is an interesting feature in this ad. and the talks on the tea, so far as they go, are good.

Mr. Haddy had a splendid opportunity to make many good sales in dinner sets by inserting an ad. in the newspaper dealing especially with the receipt of the dinner sets and the fact that some pieces had been broken.

The accompanying suggestion we believe might have been used with effect. What is necessary is a talk tracing the exact facts of the case, laying stress on the feature that some of the pieces were broken in delivery and that the remainder of the sets were to be offered at a big reduction. The suggestion, as will be noticed, contains special mention of two dinner sets which have been written entirely from imagination, simply as an illustration showing what we consider would produce a good selling ad.

Increasing Efficicncy of the Grocery Clerk

Things an Employer Takes Into Consideration Before a Clerk's Salary is Raised—How to Become Necessary to the Business of Proprietor—Initiative Must be Used.

By B. H. Thomas.

Every clerk is desirous of increasing his salary. In order to bring about this happy condition of affairs he must ask himself what he should do to obtain it. His query is invariably answered by the thought that he must increase his efficiency to his employer.

There is practically no limitation to the ways and means which a clerk will have the opportunity to utilize, in order to add to his present efficiency. No set rules can be laid down. He must meet the conditions as they arise and not delay until to-morrow. Do not say at 6 o'clock, "If I had done that better or in a different way my usefulness here would have become more of a necessity than it is now."

It's too late to think so when quitting time arrives. Learn to develop your capabilities when the proper occasion arises, and your proficiency will assuredly be recognized by your employer—providing he is honest to himself and to his fellow-men.

Many times are noticed proprietors turn to the clerks when travelers are in the stores and say: "How are we fixed for tea, etc.? Do you think we can sell more than what we have in a month? or what did we pay for the last?"

Necessary Accessories.

Those clerks kept tab on sales in the store. They know about how much of any particular goods leave the store, and they are in a position to be useful and practically necessary to the carrying on of the buying in that store—simply because they were observant and kept their eyes open and their heads at work.

The clerk who moves around like a mechanically driven toy, who simply does what he is guided to do when set in motion, and who takes no more interest in his work and the business of his employer than an Egyptian mummy, cannot expect many financial considerations from the store proprietor. He is doing what any other person with the same motive power could do, but he does not enhance his efficiency to his employer.

You often find clerks keen on window dressing. They take pride in showing the goods of the store to the best advantage, and where everybody can see them. The window is changed every few days or every week on their own initiative and not because of any order from the proprietor.

The effect of this upon the employer is evident. He has a clerk who is willing and anxious to aid as well as he can in booming his business. By his diligence and creative powers, he is bringing new custom to the store, and retaining the old. He sees that he is in earnest with his work and eventually comes to the conclusion that his clerk is indispensable. The result is he either voluntarily increases his salary or does not hesitate to do so when requested.

On the other hand there are clerks who would rather loaf about the store than see whether the window needs straightening up or not. Such a kind may expect an increase in his salary just because he has put in so much time there and "hands in his resignation" when it is not forthcoming. No person would blame any proprietor for letting him go, because there are scores who can easily take his place at the same wages. He has not increased his efficiency and therefore his services cannot be any more valuable than when he first sold a pound of sugar over the counter.

The actions of clerks towards customers is another consideration followed closely by their employers. When a customer is being served, courtesy and kindness on the part of the salesman must prevail. This is a characteristic that can always be cultivated, and it always creates a good impression upon the employer. He observes that his clerk respects his business so much that he is doing what he can to extend it. Such a clerk is in for a raise at the proper time. He should, of course, understand that this courtesy is due to all purchasers at all times. No exceptions should be made when the proprietor is not around, for if discourtesy is shown to anyone, he is practically sure of finding it out some time or another. Of course, there are times when clerks have reason to resent things, and on every occasion of this kind they should promptly explain to their employers the nature of the case, the course they took and the justification for it.

These are but a few things for clerks to consider if they want to do their duty to their employers. As stated above, opportunities occur often, and these should be met at the proper time if you want to enhance your efficiency and make your services so valuable that they become a part of the business.

THE MARKET FEATURES.

The past week again brought forth several changes in prices in grocery goods in Canada. Business conditions are splendid, manufacturers being optimistic as to future trade. Canneries in various parts of the country are in operation and soon an estimate of the pack of different goods will be to hand.

Some two weeks ago frost was reported from western Ontario, but the tomato crop escaped and little damage done.

Prices of canned goods have practically all an upward tendency and the market is quite unsettled.

The hog situation is still unsolved. The scarcity is the feature in this market and prices of hog products advanced again this week. Cured meats on the Toronto market are all up from a half to a cent a pound and lard prices have also advanced. In St. John, N.B., the prices of hog products were never higher. Eggs are still firm all over the country with advances announced in some cases.

The Winnipeg market shows a decline in syrups, due to the expectations of the new corn crop and also a decline in rolled oats of 30 cents per sack.

The tea market is still firm according to cable advices from the Orient. Sugars are also firm at the advanced prices recently announced.

CANADA'S EXPORT FRUIT TRADE.

The last weekly report of W. A. McKinnon, Canadian Trade Commissioner located at Birmingham, Eng., contains a suggestion that should be followed up by Canadian fruit exporters. The commissioner points out that the Canadian Manufacturers' Association did yeoman service for Canada when it sent a deputation to Great Britain, to study the possibilities of extending our trade in that direction. The representatives were heartily received and the visit resulted in their anticipations being realized to a considerable extent.

That Canadian fruit growers and exporters have room to enlarge their trade with Great Britain may be easily observed from the government trade returns in connection with our fruit exports during the past four years. In 1904 Canada exported 578,720 pounds of dried apples to Great Britain valued at $25,539 ; she also sent 1,513,744 barrels of green apples valued at $4,379,826, and other fruit amounting to $331,448, making a total export trade of $4,736,813.

In 1905 this trade fell off to a total of only $2,705,012 ; in 1906 it was $3.757,995, and for 9 months in 1907 it amounted to $2,815,604.

Last year our export fruit trade made a considerable advance over the preceeding three, but was not as good as 1904. For instance only 157,130 pounds of dried apples were sent to the Mother Country, valued at $11,687 and 1,490,311 barrels of green apples valued at $4,422,772. In addition to this, fruit amounting to $265,047 was shipped, making a total of $4,699,506. This was about $36,000 less than in 1904.

These figures bear out the contention that Canadian fruit is not being so extensively sent to Great Britain as it might be. The reason is that Canadian shippers are not thoroughly acquainted with the existing conditions in the Old World.

There is, no doubt, ample room for improvement and if a deputation of fruit exporters were sent to Great Britain, it could open the way to trade enlargement without difficulty.

To show that other countries are doing this, Mr. McKinnon states in his report that a party of Belgian fruit growers recently visited England with a view to learning the possibilities of sending their products there. About the same time a French party went on a similar mission.

These facts are very significant. And unless Canadian exporters do something to counteract this force, we shall be losing more of our trade. Canada is naturally an apple producing country. Our climate is such that we are able to produce durable fruit and there is no reason why our trade with the Mother Country should not be strengthened year by year.

Should a deputation visit these markets, it would bring back definite information which would well repay it. In addition to this, many valuable business connections could be established on the basis of personal acquaintance and confidence created on both sides of the ocean which would prove advantageous to all concerned.

"Show me a house where all the employees are educated to think kindly of the customers, so that in speaking of them even they use courteous phrases, and I can safely predict for that house a rapid and continuous success so long as that policy prevails."

CASH REGISTER IN THE STORE.

A United States exchange recently pointed out that one of the problems confronting the retail merchant is how to care for the cash that comes over his counter in exchange for goods and also how to prevent goods going out of his store without being properly charged.

On the face of it, this may not seem a difficult question to solve. It has, however, caused the failure of many a merchant, who realized too late the importance of providing a safe method of taking care of the money he is spending his life to get. The day of the open cash drawer and trusting to memory to charge goods sold on credit has passed and the successful merchant must adopt more modern and safe methods. In these days of keen competition profits are small, making it doubly important that all possible leaks should be stopped.

Of the many labor and money saving devices that have been brought out in the past quarter century, perhaps none is of more value and importance to the retail storekeeper than the cash register. The truth of this statement is proven by the remarkable growth of this industry and the almost universal adoption of the safeguard to his business by the up-to-date merchant of to-day.

From the simple contrivance of twenty-five years ago, which in a crude way told the merchant at the end of the day how much money he should have in his cash drawer, the cash register has developed into the elaborate mechanism that to-day is found in the latest models, with their multiple drawers; adding counters are, in some instances, electrically operated.

With one of these mechanical cashiers a merchant no longer has to guess, but he knows each day every detail of his business: not only his cash sales, but his credit sales and all moneys received on account, as well as his paid out transactions.

In any business the prevention of mistakes and the stopping of losses cannot but result in increased trade and enlarged profits. Clerks, too, are better satisfied and customers pleased and glad to patronize such an establishment.

IMPROVE YOUR FIRE RISK.

Recent investigations by The MacLean Trade Newspapers go to show that in the matter of insurance there is not that careful consideration given by merchants and manufacturers to their rating which the best principles of economy would forcefully suggest.

In view of the instances which are being multiplied every day, in which reductions have been made in individual ratings as the result of some inexpensive precautionary measure, it seems proper to say that the merchant or manufacturer who postpones competent examination of his premises with a view to improve want of his risk, is certainly negligent of his own interests.

Where the local agents are competent men the merchant will have no difficulty in obtaining that information with reference to the constituents of his rating—where he is penalized and where he is credited—to enable him to improve those conditions on which his insurance is based.

It is intended to deal with this matter in detail, and there will be presented much information obtained from authoritative sources, which merchants and manufacturers will find of value in considering the steps suggested.

PROTECT LIVES OF TRAVELERS.

Now that the committee of the commercial Travelers' Association, acting with the Provincial License Department, has announced its award in the contest for the best device to aid escape from a burning building, it is the manifest duty of the Provincial Government to fully satisfy itself that the fire escape device selected is thoroughly practical and then adopt regulations compelling all hotels and lodging houses to equip their buildings with the device.

Several hotel fires have occurred in Ontario during the past year and in at least two lives have been lost owing to the lack of proper life saving equipment. It should not, therefore, be necessary for the government to wait for another holocaust.

The Commercial Travelers' Association have performed a commendable public duty in bringing the agitation for fire escapes on public houses to a head. Their offer of a $100 prize for the best life saving device shown on Travelers' Day at the Toronto Exhibition, brought out a number of competitors, one particularly meritorious device demonstrated by a New York State man being awarded the prize.

Every public building should be equipped with a life-saving apparatus, but more particularly is this necessary in hotels and rooming houses where strangers lie down to rest in unfamiliar surroundings. Human life ought to be protected by the best device, regardless of the expense attached to the installation of proper equipment.

KEEP YOUR STOCK CLEAN.

The syndicate stores which have made such a success in handling "nothing over 10 cents" make it a rigid rule in each of their stores that every article must be wiped off or dusted every morning. The closer you can come to this end in your store the more goods you will sell. Sales in departments run in an untidy fashion can be doubled by the simple expedient of a good cleaning up.

Insist on your bargain department being run as your wife runs your house. Have no mercy on dust or dirt. The labor will not be as great as it may seem in advance. Do not be content with half-way measures. See that everything is done with thoroughness. Cleanliness and tidiness are inexpensive and always pay a handsome profit.

Run your bargain department right and it will help you to work off the odds and ends that gather in any merchandise business. Such goods should be sifted in with the attractive quick sellers on the bargain counter and be marked at prices that make them really good values. You can hardly expect to get regular prices for stickers. Better sell them at any price and put the money into other things.

The W. A. Gay, who we announced a short time ago was unauthorized to take subscriptions for the MacLean Trade Papers and Magazines is not the Robert Gay, who for twenty years has been in the employ of the MacLean Publishing Co., and, who is likely to remain there for at least another twenty.

PRICE CUTTING DISADVANTAGES

One of the props upon which the success of the big department stores is founded is the assortment of goods. It has repeatedly been shown that the retail merchants throughout the country can meet the competition of mail order houses so far as prices are concerned. In assortment, however, many fall behind.

An item in the Vancouver correspondence this week points out how the cutting on the price of a particular brand of catsup resulted eventually in one grocer declining to handle it at all. One grocer cut the price and the customers of the other soon found it out. They claimed that they could get it elsewhere more cheaply and as the merchant who had kept up his price couldn't sell the catsup with a profit and at the same time meet the competition of the other, he declined to handle that brand of catsup at all.

This has an injurious effect on all concerned. The assortment of the retailer who would not lower the price is cut down; the one who slashed prices was running his business, so far as that catsup was concerned, at a loss; the wholesaler lost business and the manufacturer as well. If this were done repeatedly by many merchants the effect upon the manufacturer is easily seen. This means less money in circulation and consequently less business for the retail merchant. The principle of cutting prices therefore can scarcely be commended from a retailer's standpoint.

HOW TO TREAT "KICKS."

When a customer brings back an article he thinks defective or unsatisfactory, remember, keep your temper. Look the case over in a fair manner. It may be a just claim. Put yourself in his place. Before you say a word as to the merits of the case, decide in your own mind what you are going to do and have the nerve to stick to it.

For, if you say to a customer that you cannot allow for a claim and then argue the matter and finally give in, the customer has the same opinion of you that he would have had, had you refused to allow him anything in the first place, and the chances are he will think less of you.

It is probably best to be on the liberal side when a claim is made but is undoubtedly proper to do what you are going to do with as much despatch as possible and without a word of grumbling. Grumbling is what drives the customer away—constant grumbling on your part.

If you are going to replace the poor piece of crockery or the spoiled basket of fruit, do it with the grace of a prince. Be pleasant about it and the customer will think more of you and will give you his business in the future.

TORONTO.

September 15.—W. T. Fullerton, 934 Dundas St., is one of those grocers who knows how to take real pleasure out of his business and at the same time please his customers, and make a good profit to himself. His aims are not too high and he is happy because he accomplishes more than he expects. His business has grown so rapidly that he found it necessary to enlarge his store.

Wm. Forster, of 104 Queen St. East, where he has been in business for a good many years, has built a new store on Roncesvalles Ave, which he has fitted up and equipped according to ideas which came to him through a long experience in the grocery trade. His counters and silent salesmen are all constructed to be proof against dust or dirt. The silent salesman, especially has features which are new and very convenient. He carries on both stores, but intends to make Roncesvalles St. his home and business place.

C. Mayes moved from Avenue Road to a new store on the corner of Roncesvalles and Jeffrey streets. His doors are not open yet for business, but when they do swing, a surprise will greet the many customers he expects to serve. He was very careful even to admit his best friend who always carries The Canadian Grocer in his pocket, for fear that he would give away what is waiting for the customers to see.

A. Snyder, Roncesvalles Ave., is occupying his new store which will be one of the leading stores on this new business street. Not only is the store new, but everything in it. The fixtures are complete and the goods all fresh from the wholesale houses. The appearance is attractive and with his experience and knowledge he is sure to capture a large share of the trade in that growing part of the city. Like all good grocers he values The Canadian Grocer as a great help in keeping up to the latest methods.

CHATHAM.

The question of early closing is again being agitated in Leamington. According to general report, the difficulty is with a number of the grocers. In the adjoining Town of Essex all business places are closed early three nights per week. All groceries are closed the other nights at 8 p.m., excepting Saturday, when the stores stay open till 10 o'clock.

The pickle industry in Essex seems to be yielding good returns to growers. As high as $125 has already been taken off three-quarters of an acre while one grower reports that a two acre patch is yielding $40 a day. Pickling is very expensive, however, owing to the scarcity of help. With more scientific methods, higher profits are anticipated.

Thomas W. Edwards, formerly traveler for Geo. E. Bristol Co. of Hamilton, has resigned to accept the position of Toronto manager for the Dominion Sugar Co. of Wallaceburg.

Tilbury grocers and butchers are out of ice, and arrangements are being made to import wholesale. The ice has kept poorly this season, owing to inferior quality.

Geo. Taylor, grocer, of Wallaceburg, is having a fine residence erected on James St., opposite his store.

W. R. Dawson, Inwood, has just concluded a popularity contest in aid of his business. The adjoining territory was divided into three districts, and coupons issued for cash sales, each counting for so many votes. The prize to each winner was a free trip to the Toronto Exhibition. Over $1,000 in cash was paid in on the concluding Saturady of the contest.

Products of the Leamington peach orchards and market gardens figure largely in Chatham grocery windows these days, as well as in surrounding towns. The first shipments of Crawford peaches have arrived, the 11-quart basket retailing at 75c, while smaller baskets run from 25c up. Some groceries, notably the King Edward, have been receiving daily shipments of melons since the opening of the season. The Leamington people go after the trade in business-like fashion, all the leading growers sending out attractive post card circulars with printed price lists, at regular intervals. The development of the Leamington country of late along this line has been marvellous.

The egg situation continues difficult. The retail price has climbed from 20c a dozen to 22c. Some grocers think eggs are coming more freely as a result of the higher price and that there will be no egg famine this winter; others consider that the outlook is rather dismal. There was quite a mortality among hens this spring, which would naturally affect the output.

Collections seem to be a great deal easier lately, merchants experiencing much less difficulty than for a long time past in securing settlements from customers. Evidently, there is money in the country. An indication of this is the fact that grain deliveries have been small, and that there has been no drop in grain prices during the past two weeks. This indicates that farmers have no pressing need of money and intend to hold their stuff for higher prices.

Clifford Mahler, of Spafford & Mahler, grocers, who recently purchased the grocery on Queen Street South, formerly conducted by D. Pelett, was taken ill last week, suffering several hemorrhages of the lungs. His condition is quite serious.

Miss Laura Dean, of G. A. Young's grocery, has been spending her holidays in Hamilton and Toronto. Miss Dean has the unique record of never having missed a single day in her six years of work at Young's grocery.

Miss Menota Burr, of the John McCorvie & Son staff, has been holidaying at Port Stanley, St. Thomas and London.

A. N. Doupe has resigned his position with the Craig Co., Limited, of Ridgetown, and leaves shortly for Brandon.

While delivering groceries recently for his father, Wm. Piggott, the South Side, Wallaceburg, grocer, Willie Piggott accidentally fell from the wagon, a wheel passing over his shoulder, breaking a collar-bone. He is progressing favorably, however. This is his third serious mishap, he having recently undergone an appendicitis operation, and also accidentally shot himself with a revolver.

A. W. Van Every, who for 20 years past has conducted a grocery and general store at South Woodslee, recently disposed of his business to W. J. Allison, and has moved to Essex.

A machine which has recently set many people in Leamington guessing has proven to be an onion-topper, which will top 1,000 bushels of onions per day. It is another example of the scientific way in which the Essex farmers conduct their business, and is the only machine of its kind in Canada.

GALT.

September 15.—Business of all kinds is good in Galt just at present. Industrial conditions were never better during the past five years. There are no idle men, factories are working overtime, people are paying their bills promptly, and are again beginning to indulge in those little extravagances which disappeared at the time of the financial depression. A canvass of the various merchants brought out the information that business conditions in Galt were never brighter.

Almost all the Galt grocers have visited the Exhibition. "We find that the trip is worth more than the expense," said one grocer. "There are many new pointers to be obtained at the Exhibition, especially in the line of making displays, and I consider a two days' visit to the various buildings an education in itself."

Galt merchants may petition the town council to have the system of oiling the streets given a trial in this town. They suffer considerably from the dust, and the watering carts seem inadequate to cope with the nuisance.

BRANTFORD.

Sept. 15.—James H. Edmanson, confectioner and baker, who has been in business in this city for several years, has sold to Williams & Co., who will continue the business at the present stand on Colborne Street.

Early next year, possibly in February, the Jackson Forde grocery will be removed from its present quarters on Market Street, to a new stand, now occupied by Mitchell, the bicycle man. The Forde grocery is one of the land-marks of the city, as it has been in its present location for many years. The new stand will be fitted up in the latest style.

One of the problems which the grocers, as well as other business men of the city, are up against at the present time, is high rents. Lately there have been a couple of cases where grocers have been the victims of what would appear to be exhorbitant demands in the way of rental. Those dealers who are fortunate enough to own their own places are all right, but for others the situation is growing serious. Brantford has grown somewhat rapidly in the last few years, with the result that the business section of the town is wholly occupied. There is scarcely a vacant store in the business parts. This condition of affairs has a tendency to send the rents skyward. It is expected, however, that the conjestion will be relieved by the erection of some new stores this fall and winter.

Most of the grocers are now back from their holidays and have again settled down to hard business.

While out driving recently, Fred Corey, the East Ward grocer, met with an accident. His horse ran into an obstruction on Park Avenue, where a house is being erected, and was slashed and injured. He is holding the city liable for damages, on account of the obstruction of the street without a danger signal.

The first Crawford peaches of the season last week sold at 90c per basket.

Out of 32 samples of milk collected by Medical Health Officer Pearson from local dealers recently, 9 were found to be below the required standard of specific gravity and butter fat. The standard of weight is 10.29, and the percentage of butter fat should be at least 3.50. In one case skimmed milk was found, and the officer administered a sereve rebuke. Some of the dealers will have to do better. The city keeps a strict tab on the milk sold and makes regular tests.

BERLIN.

September 15.—Business is good in Berlin, and sales for corresponding months are ahead of last year, although perhaps not quite up to the sales of 1907. Berlin is recovering fast from the depression felt in nearly all places; being a manufacturing town, it was hit a little harder than other places, which certainly made a difference to merchants' sales. However, everybody is busy again and wearing a smile.

The one thing that is a little annoying at present is the difficulty in getting some of the people to square up for what the merchants were good enough to advance them in the so-called hard times. Nearly all Berlin grocers do a little credit business. Of course, they are careful to whom they give credit, but be as careful at they may, they will get nipped sometimes in crediting people. The Retail Merchants' Association has a credit list, which is growing gradually. A cash business certainly seems to be the ideal one, but the general experience is that a good many good accounts would be lost if everybody was put on a strictly cash basis. One firm who renders accounts monthly, in cases where debtors are slow, go and see them personally, and keep following up weekly until such accounts are paid.

Blueberries must have been very scarce in Guelph this season, according to the correspondent there. Not so in Berlin. One firm reports having sold nearly three hundred baskets. In fact, they were a drug on the Berlin market for a few days. One commission merchant, M. J. Gorman, received as high as one hundred and twenty-five baskets in a day.

Berlin merchants assemble every morning, buying fruit at Mr. Gorman's fruit market, called "The Native's Home." The best of spirit prevails, even if a fellow does not get what he would like, being, perhaps, overbid by a competitor.

Some of the stores receive fruit on commission, which is probably the most satisfactory way of handling fruit, providing your shipper does not overload you. Beck & Schell receive consignments daily, which they sell in this way.

Berlin's intentions are to secure some large industries and to get heads of families to move here with their families. All the merchants in town should certainly give a helping hand and try to solve the problem.

BELLEVILLE.

Sept. 15.—The John Sloan Co., wholesale grocers, are now settled in their handsome premises, formerly occupied by the Corby Distillery offices and warehouse, situated in the heart of the business district.

The steamer Belleville, on Wednesday last, took on 1,500 cases of canned goods from the Old Homestead factory at Picton.

Wanted, some sun! This is the cry from several of Prince Edward's large canning plants. Unless September is beamed upon profusely by Old Sol, the results will be disastrous as far as the output of canned goods is concerned, the canners will tell you. A typical example of the unusual lateness of the crop comes from a farm at West Lake, where tomatoes ripen and grow, if nowhere else in Prince Edward. The farmer has picked scarcely sixty bushels of tomatoes compared with 600 this date a year ago. One canner said: "We must pack at the very least 30,000 cases of tomatoes, but I don't see how we are going to do so. We have not 2,000, yet, whereas we had half our 1908 pack by this date." The agriculturist and canner view the situation affecting corn almost more seriously than the yield of tomatoes, so cold and backward has been the weather. The crop outlook for canning factory products of Prince Edward will have a great impression on the general outlook. This country is represented as having nearly a third of the canning factories of the province, and numbers among the most important.

GODERICH.

September 15.—A change took place last week in the ownership of the Maple Leaf Grocery, J. W. Vanatter taking over Mr. Snyder's interest in the firm of Morrish & Snyder. Mr. Snyder has been in poor health for some time past, and to this is largely due his retirement for the time being, from active business. Mr. Vanatter, who is a former newspaper man, being till recently part proprietor of the Goderich Signal, has just returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast. The new finrm name will be Morrish & Vanatter. The firm is making liberal use of advertising space.

W. L. Lindsay of the People's Grocery, Hamilton St., recently disposed of his business to P. J. Ryan, formerly of Walton. Mr. Lindsay has left to take a trip to the west, where he may locate. To the lines formerly handled the new proprietor is adding flour and feed, bacon, bologna and other meat products.

Practically all the old wheat seems to be out of the west, and few grain cargoes are moving. The first cargo of new wheat is expected to reach Goderich about to-morrow. Prospects for a record fall trade at Goderich elevators are bright.

Neil Cameron, of Cameron & Moore, grocers and dry goods merchants, was in Toronto last week taking in the Exhibition.

Cameron & Moore's grocery department is advertising largely for butter and eggs. For the latter 23c. trade, or 21½c cash, is offered. With the opening of the fall season, the store's closing hours are now 6 p.m. on week days and 10 p.m. Saturdays.

E. C. Biehl, formerly of this town, has purchased the grocery business of L. F. Killoran, at Stratford.

LONDON.

September 15.—This being Western Fair week, grocery travelers are off the road and are meeting their customers in the warehouses instead of in the country stores.

The feature of the past ten days in the grocery trade was the advance of ten cents in refined sugars, due to the high price of raws, which continue very firm. Teas of all descriptions are advancing and there is no prospect of lower prices. Other staples are firm. California prunes have advanced ½c. to ½c. per lb., and are likely to go higher on account of the shortage of large French prunes and the heavy demand both in England and Canada.

Ewen Rogers, clerk with Scandrett Bros., has taken a similar position in John Diprare's east end store.

The grocery store of J. A. Glen, West London, was entered by robbers one night last week, and the till rifled of its contents. Mr. Glen's residence over the store was ransacked and some valuables were carried off.

The local bakers finding that the cutting down of the five-cent loaf to a mere bun of a pound weight has had the effect of driving some wives to baking their own bread, have decided to return to a more reasonable size and now the standard weight of the bakers' loaf is twenty ounces.

Housekeepers complain of the light weight of bags of potatoes sold on the market. It is claimed a bushel and a half bag of the tubers should weigh 90 lbs., but it is rare that it ever reaches that weight. Another grievance is that of the grocers who complain that the rolls of butter brought in from the country are from a quarter of an ounce to two ounces short of a pound, and as a result the grocers suffer the loss.

The grocery firm of Rowntree & Forger has been dissolved, Mr. Rowntree retiring. His interest in the business has been purchased by Mr. Taylor, who for some time has been a clerk in the store, and hereafter the firm name will be Forger & Taylor.

The merchants, including grocers, of the south-eastern section of the city have taken a step in the right direction in deciding to close their stores at 7 p.m. Wednesdays, and the hope is expressed that it will lead to early closing six nights of the week before very long.

PERTH.

September 13.—N. E. Dodds combined business and pleasure and visited the Niagara fruit district for a few days last week.

Sugar was on the scarce list last Tuesday and Wednesday. Dealers, however, helped each other out as far as possible, thus causing customers less inconvenience than would otherwise have been the case. The arrival of a carload on Thursday relieved the situation.

Present retail price of sugar here is: Extra granulated, $5.25 per bag, or 18 lbs. for $1. Practically no 2nd quality is sold here.

Almonte suffered its second big loss from fire within three years, last Thursday morning. This time the loss totaled $75,000. The chief loser is Wesley West. His large general store stock, valued at $22,000, was destroyed. Insurance is about $15,000. Mr. West was in Toronto when the fire occurred. This store carried as well-selected a stock of groceries as could be found in town and enjoyed a profitable trade.

C. E. Plain & Co., wholesale fruit merchants, Ottawa, have closed the Brockville branch of their business. Last orders were filled at Brockville, Sept. 11. J. G. Washburn has severed his connection with the firm.

Though H. F. Relyea occupies but a small store on Wilson Street, he enjoys quite a business connection, through having a wagon on the road in the country.

H. L. Jackson has closed his Christy Lake store for the season.

Lanark village dealers enjoyed "a big day" last Friday, it being the occasion of the annual fair. Quantities of bananas, oranges and basket fruit were disposed of.

Eggs still stand at 20c; butter at 22c. Potatoes are again easier, and 35c a bushel is probably the ruling price.

Retail book dealers must certainly be "up against it" with this famous Eaton school book contract. Very plainly on a page in Eaton's latest catalogue issued to the general public you find:

Primer Ontario Readers—4c each, 5 for 16c.

The 5 for 16c gives exactly the same discount as the retailer who buys $50 worth.

OTTAWA.

Sept. 15.—Joseph Cousineau, bailiff of Gatineau Point, has purchased the big general store at Gatineau Point owned by Wm. Smith. The store is the biggest in Gatineau Point, and does a large trade. The price paid was above the $10,000 mark.

KINGSTON.

Sept. 15.—A butter dealer sent in a circular to the trade offering creamery butter at a reduction by taking a quantity. One grocer had bought before and had been given satisfaction. But this time he sent sour butter. How can these methods be checked? Only by shipping it back at once. It's a mean business for creameries to practice, but they do it and bad butter is an invitation for customers to stay away from one's store—it's an insult.

Mr. Patterson, of Calgary, has opened a produce commission house on Clarence St. This makes two here, J. T. Parkhill having enjoyed the privileges alone for many years. Mr. Patterson expects to open up a trade for eggs and butter with the Northwest.

James McCulla, proprietor of the Belfast Grocery, spent his holidays at the famous Sand Banks. He brought a sample of the white sand home and it is just possible there will be a drop in the price of sugar.

Issac Allen general merchant at Missippi has purchased a large piece of land in Kingston and intends building a large saw mill and several dwellings.

BRACEBRIDGE.

Sept. 15.—Quite a number of our merchants spent last week in Toronto mingling business with pleasure. Among them are: P. Hutchison, E. J. Kirk, Andrew Gillespie and Melville Ross.

Wm. Hanna, of Hanna & Co., Port Carling, was a visitor to town last week. Mr. Hanna reports a busy season at the port this summer.

Saturday with warm sunshine brought many visitors to town, and many farmers, making the merchants happy with the steady rush of trade. Nearly all the fruit was sold off before closing time. The Canadian Crawford peach, the finest of all, seems to hold the banner for the day by selling at one dollar per basket. Bartlett pears sold at 50 cents, and good plums at 40 cents per basket.

Fruit jars in this town seem to be a ready seller with the grocer. Some years ago this important part of every household was sold only by hardwaremen. Now it is different, and all grocers claim their sales are increasing year by year.

With the opening of the pickling season comes the putting up of small spice orders, which should be done very carefully, not only for the protection of the owner of the stock, but also for the protection of the customer. When she orders one ounce of say, mace, she wants that amount—no more, or no less—which means a careful weighing. Then again the merchant at this season worries over the loss of so many vinegar jars and jugs through the carlessness of delivery boys. One way to prevent such losses is the charging of the jars up to the delivery man, in checking over orders, thereby making him more careful with the empties returnable.

GUELPH.

Sept. 15.—Robert Simpson, of R. & J. H. Simpson, wholesale grocers, predicts a brisk fall and winter season in the grocery trade.

A number of Guelph groceries keep open on Friday nights. They claim that Saturday night would not be sufficient for them to wind up ther lively week end business. These, of course, are the stores situated outside of the central section of the city—not the down town groceries, who have to hustle practically all day Saturday.

President Robert Simpson, of the Guelph Board of Trade, and senior partner in the firm of the Simpson Co., wholesale grocers, left this week for an extended trip to the west. Mr. Simpson is accompanied by Mrs. Simpson, and will likely be away for two or three months. They will take in the exhibition at Seattle, and will visit points of interest in the Canadian west, as well on their way through to Vancouver. Having stuck to business pretty closely for several years past, finding time as well to take an active interest in the welfare of this city, both as an alderman and Board of Trade member, Mr. Simpson feels that he needs the change, which, he believes, he will get in taking this trip west.

The Guelph Central Exhibition opened on Tuesday with several merchants' exhibits in the main building. One of the most outstanding displays in the whole building is that of J. A. McCrea & Sons. It is so situated that the display is a three-sided one. It is arranged in a pyramid and consists entirely of hand-painted and other beautiful and costly pieces of chinaware. It is a display that ladies of Guelph and vicinity look forward to every year with much pleasure and this year it is as beautiful as ever.

Butter and eggs seem to keep up in price well in Guelph. Last Saturday morning found eggs selling on the market at 23c and 24c a dozen, and butter at 24c and 25c a pound.

These busy days of late summer and early fall, when their customers are all crying for preserving and pickling supplies, it is almost impossible for grocers to refrain from displaying their goods on the sidewalks. Guelph, with the widest main street in Canada, has wide sidewalks, which are particularly good for the displaying of goods in front of their stores. But even in Guelph, it might be well for the grocers to have a care in this respect, for, though the sidewalks are wide here and give ample room there are still some very fastidious city fathers who even now are talking in civic circles of bringing in a by-law prohibiting merchants displaying their wares on the streets in front of their stores.

What seems to be a very profitable little side-line and a booster for Saturday trade, is apparently successfully worked by J. A. McCrea & Son. The scheme is that of selling fresh rolls on Saturdays. McCrea's get in, every Saturday morning, fresh from the bakery an immense basketful of rolls. Warmed up and buttered, these rolls are fine for Sunday morning's breakfast. They sell at one cent each.

The front of Hadden's store, on Quebec Street, is considerably improved in appearance by the application of a coat of paint.

Archie Benalick, of the staff of Anderson's grocery, has returned from his holidays, spent at Shelburne and other p'aces.

Early Closing By-law Not Strictly Enforced in Montreal — Unique Selling Display in Montreal Grocery — Flour Market Unsettled in St. John—Pork and Pork Products Advance.

MONTREAL.

September 14—The Laing Packing & Provision Co. opened two fine new branch retail stores here last Saturday. The one is on St. Lawrence Boulevard near Claremont, the other on the corner of Mount Royal and St. Andre.

One matter which is exercising the retail grocers of the city is the non-enforcement of the seven o'clock closing law. Two nights a week all grocers are supposed to close at that hour. It is manifestly unfair to those who do close to have one man in the neighborhood keep open, and as this seems to be the case in most sections of the city, considerable hard feeling has developed. This could, of course, all be avoided by a complete organization among the retail men, but as such an organization has not yet made its appearance the only remedy appears to be to either enforce the law properly or do away with it altogether. Otherwise violations are bound to increase until eventually it will become a dead letter as far as actual value is concerned. Men will not see others take their customers by unfair means.

The value of neatness and quick, accurate service is well exemplified in the store of one of our St. Catharine Street grocers. He has installed two phones, has a boy always on hand to deliver "specials" nearby, and a wagon kept only for rush orders at longer distances. In this way his customers are assured of prompt attention and this, combined with the general air of cleanliness about the store, tends to hold his old customers and gain him new ones. It would be well for every grocer to look over his store at intervals and see what improvements in this line are needed. None of us are ever beyond improvement.

H. Laporte, of Laporte, Martin & Company, Montreal is acting as president of the Montreal Citizens' Association, a body of ratepayers in Montreal who are seeking to promote better civic government. Mr. Laporte was at one time mayor of this city, and was one of the best chief magistrates the city ever had. He is always to the fore in movements of this kind, and it is no surprise to those who know him and his fine character to see him placed at the head of such a movement by a representative body composed chiefly of the business and professional men of the city.

One of the prettiest examples of stock display is shown by a general grocery concern here. Practically every article in placed in such a way as to be both easily accessible, and at the same time shown to the best advantage. Various stands for fruits and vegetables occupy the centre of the store, some giving a pyramidal effect, others a more massive. Most of the fruits are arranged on slanting tables and the whole effect is cleanly and yet not crowded. "People see the articles and want to buy them," is the expression used by the proprietor.

Walter Paul, owner of the large St. Catherine St. store, has just returned from a buying trip to Toronto.

The retail trade is increasing daily owing to the return of many of the customers from summer resorts. Trade has been particularly dull this summer but, with the cooler weather, it promises to shortly be as good as ever and, in fact, prospects are it will be considerably better than last year. One grocer reports the return of fifty old customers in the past week.

MONCTON, N. B.

Sept. 14.—H. A. Clarke has opened a nice and attractive grocery on Union St. which he has stocked with a fine line of groceries. Mr. Clarke is a young man of good business ability, and considerable experience. We trust his new venture will be successful.

Merchants here report business fair generally, and prices for produce are brisk.

Butter is selling at from 22 to 25 cents, and is rather scarce. Eggs are in good demand and bring 22 cents. Apples sell at $2.50 per barrel and potatoes are selling freely at from 45 to 50 cents per bushel.

Plums are being largely brought in from Nova Scotia and Ontario, and are selling at from 65 to 70 cents per basket.

ST. JOHN.

Sept. 14.—Local wholesalers report that the price of pork and pork products is now higher than ever before. On Monday last an advance of 50 cents a barrel was reported for American clear back, the quotation now is $28.75. Domestic mess is quoted at $26.50 to $27. Lard is firm at 16 cents per pound, by the pail. The high prices are attributed to the scarcity of hogs at the present time. It is thought prices will be a little easier, shortly.

The flour market is unsettled and sales lately have been light. The bakers are looking for easier prices with the coming of new wheat. Manitobas are now quoted at $6.75 to $6.85, and Ontarios range from $5.65 and $5.70 for medium patent to $5.75 and $5.80 for full patents.

S. W. DeWitt, of DeWitt Bros., wholesale feed and produce dealers, of Fairville, has been in Carleton county looking after the shipment of 3,000 barrels of potatoes for the Cuban market. The tubers are being shipped to this city, and will be put on board the steamer here. The price being asked for potatoes now in Carleton county is 75 cents a barrel.

Apples are coming in now from up river counties, and from Nova Scotia. The natives are selling at $1.50 to $2.50 per barrel, and the Nova Scotians at $2 to $3.

The buckwheat crop is reported to be heavy this year, and grinding has already commenced.

Stanley D. Carr, who has been conducting a grocery and confectionery store on Waterloo Street, was arrested last week on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences. Carr, who is hardly more than a boy, being only nineteen years old, started in busines a few months ago, and seemed to be doing well. Recently he borrowed sums of money, aggregating about $1,000, and left the city, going to Boston. Last week he returned to St. John, and was promptly arrested. It is understood that his assets amount to about $150 with liabilities about $1,200. The case is now before the court.

The annual exhibition at Fredericton opened on Tuesday, Sept. 14, and will continue until the 23rd inst. The list of entries is the largest ever received.

The Sussex exhibition held last week was not as largely attended as in other years. The agricultural and dairy exhibits were of a high order.

The factory of the Wilmot Spa Springs Company, at Middleton (N. S.) was burned, Sept. 7. The property was totally destroyed.

The grocery business at Amherst, N. S., carried on successfully for years by McLeod Bros., has been transferred to Wallis B. Calhoun.

THE WINDOW SELLS THE GOODS.

Your show windows are real, live salesmen, working for you at all times—and only salary you pay them is "attention." Keep these windows always attractive.

Your windows are advertising, and advertising is just one method of selling. Show windows, to prove most effective, to sell most goods, must display goods needed and wanted, right now. Seasonable goods. Not hurriedly placed in the windows, but carefully studying to get the effect which will do the most to bring people into your store to buy.

Large, neat, price tickets in connection with window displays are very important. Price tickets make the people ask themselves whether or not they can afford the article in question, and if so a sale is the result.

Keep your window display fresh—people get tired of seeing the same things in your windows, and unless they are changed regularly their value as salesmen is lost. Do not crowd the windows. Better too little than too much.—Tea and Coffee Trade Journal.

HOW A CUSTOMER WAS LOST.

Here is an example of service that a merchant should be careful not to follow as it was told by a critic who happened to call into a retail store:

"Men may endure more incivility than women, but they are more impatient of neglect. One morning I dropped into our suburban grocery. The old proprietor was alone behind the counter. A woman was checking over her monthly statement with him in a friendly manner, but leisurely interspersed with the gossip of the neighborhood.

"A hale, prosperous-looking man was pacing back and forth before one of the counters. How long he had been there I don't know, but he was evidently growing impatient, and the storekeeper paid no attention to him. Finally he stalked out, without a protest from the man behind the counter.

"Why didn't the storekeeper excuse himself a moment from the woman and wait on the man, or give the latter a friendly assurance that he would serve him in a moment? It would have held the man, made a sale, perhaps cemented a customer."

THE BISCUIT SITUATION.

The Biscuit Manufacturers of Canada held a meeting at the annual convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in Hamilton, on Tuesday, September 14. Representatives were present from all parts of the different provinces, with Jas. McLachlan, Owen Sound chairman.

After the report of the last meeting held in Montreal was read and adopted, Mr. McLachlan gave an interesting address on the general conditions of business and the prosperity of the country, due primarily to the magnificient harvest the country has had. Mr. McLachlan was very optimistic and looked for improved conditions of trade.

A discussion followed on the question of imported biscuits, which were finding their way into the Canadian market, owing to the cheap labor and cheaper raw materials possible to obtain by the foreign manufacturer. Prices under present cost of manufacture in Canada do not show any too much profit, and while flour has been reduced somewhat the extremely high price of lard has more than counterbalanced the reduction in flour. Owing to the small production of lard in Canada, the bulk of the lard used by biscuit manufacturers has to be imported under a duty of two cents per pound. Biscuit manufacturers were not yet able to use the new season's flour and prices consequently could not be expected to be affected.

HAMILTON NEXT ON THE LIST.

The Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association is the next to take up the collection of accounts. At their last meeting the members discussed ways and means to effect a good system. It is probable that some person acquainted with collection systems elsewhere will be asked to give an address in Hamilton soon.

TRADE NOTES.

John A. Gunn, of Gunn, Langlois & Co., Montreal, is in New York at present on a business trip.

Jno. O. Carpenter, grocer, Hamilton, visited the Exhibition last week and was among the callers at the Toronto office of The Canadian Grocer.

It is well to see that you get what you order. Mistakes will happen, but you can guard against many of them.

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION—The New Transportation Building.

Great Possibilities Shown by National Exhibition

Almost 800,000 People Visit the Biggest Annual Event in Canada's History—Profits $11,000 Greater Than Last Year and a Surplus of Probably $50,000—Exhibits From all the Provinces Show Country's Vast Resources—Foodstuffs and Store Equipment Displays Illustrated and Described.

Toronto, September 15.—No annual feature in the life of the Dominion is greater than the Canadian National Exhibition. Whereas other countries hold at wide intervals and in honor of some special event or anniversary great displays which are dubbed "world's fairs," and which on account of their infrequency and irregularity have little influence on national life, Canada has in the National Exhibition a great national fair, which is the result of years of development and which therefore has all the characteristics of a national event. It is as unique a feature as the great fair of Nijni-Novgorod, which is typically Russian, just as this is typically Canadian. They are both merely the perfection of the ordinary county fair, and this gives them all their beauty and their value.

The thirty-first season of the great Exhibition now belongs to the past and this year it was a greater success than ever before. In fact, the growth of the Exhibition becomes more remarkable with every time it is held. There are no signs that it has yet arrived at anything like its full growth. On the contrary, everything seems to point to its great development into the greatest annual fair in the world, a position it is already the second largest institution of the kind on earth, and it begins to be doubtful if even the great fair at Nijni-Novgorod surpasses it materially. But mere size is not everything. Even if there were many fairs surpassing in extent the Canadian National, this would not lessen its great national value. It would still serve as the great meeting place of Canadians from all parts of the Dominion. It would still bring them together as nothing else can do; and it would still make them acquainted with one another and with distant parts of their country in the best possible way—that is, through their productions. This is the great value of such an institution as this Exposition, and this is why Canadians of every province unite in "booming" it. They all realize that the Fair has grown beyond mere local restrictions, and that it is in every sense a national event.

This year the Exhibition was opened by one of the ablest and best liked men in all the British Empire, Admiral Lord Charles Beresford—"Condor Charlie"—and the enthusiasm of his reception has made abundantly clear the high esteem in which he is held by the Canadian people for his services to the cause of Imperial defence.

When the gates closed it was officially announced that the aggregate attendance had reached within a few thousands of the 800,000 mark, and it is expected that the receipts will show an increase of nearly $11,000 over last year. This means that the surplus will amount to about $50,000, which goes to the City of Toronto.

All Provinces Represented.

The exhibits from the various provinces of Canada are always one of the features of the Exhibition. They stand in silent testimony to our vast wealth-producing Dominion and show the possibilities of a country the resources of which are practically unlimited. Fruits, grains, mineral products, manufactured goods and products of the sea all combined to demonstrate the variety of the resources included between the Atlantic and the Pacific.

British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba came from the west and Quebec, and the Maritime Provinces from the east, combined with Ontario, and the result was the finest display of natural products that one would desire to see.

The display from the British West Indies in the Railway building was one of the strong educational features. Chas. S. Pickford, representing Pickford and Black, Halifax, was in the charge of the exhibit, his purpose being to demonstrate the commercial value to Canada of the products of the British possessions in the West Indies. The display was a magnificent one and thus served admirably the purpose for which it was established. Mr. Pickford attended to the exhibit personally and a great deal of interest was manifest in the thousands who traversed the Railway building daily and it should aid materially in increasing trade between Canada and the West Indies.

Many Food Exhibits.

Hundreds of merchants from all over Canada visited the Exhibition and naturally were more interested in the foodstuffs and store equipment displays than in any other. There has been such a great deal of comment during recent years on pure food that one could not expect anything else than see this department well represented, and the great crowds that surrounded foodstuff exhibits showed plainly the interest displayed in them by the public.

It is safe to say that had there been more accommodation, many more exhibitors in this line would have been there and considerable dissatisfaction was expressed because such was not the case. Plans, however, are under way whereby this hindrance will be met in all probability in another year. The various exhibits are illustrated and described at length in the following pages:

EDWARDSBURG STARCH CO.

A firm that has always been advancing steadily in the estimation of the grocery trade is the Edwardsburg Starch Co., of Cardinal, Ont. This firm was established half a century ago—to be exact in 1858—and its rapid progress proves beyond contradiction that it produces goods that the public appreciate and endorse. The display at the Canadian National Exhibition in the Manufacturers' Building was indicative of wide awake business methods. It was arranged in two distinct sections, one given entirely to the display of Crown Brand Syrup and the other to Silver Gloss Starch and Benson's Prepared Corn. The exhibits were in charge of Fred A. Verey, Toronto representative and J. T. Paul, traveler for the firm. They were kept busy handing out souvenirs to the crowds that stopped to admire the display. The Edwardsburg Starch Co. make a special feature of Children's day, and on that day over 14,000 pieces of advertising literature, including cards, blotting paper, etc., were distributed. They are not there merely for a day, but for years to come, and they believe in educating the folk, while they are young, to the quality and merit of their products. Every member of the grocery trade in Canada realize the extent of the business of this company. The question may be asked: Why is this trade so extensive? It is simply because the manufactured products of the Edwardsburg Starch Co. are the best that raw material, modern machinery and the latest scientific methods can produce. No grocer need hesitate to stock Crown Brand Syrup or Silver Gloss Starch, and Benson's Prepared Corn. The business that has been done in these products in the past is their guarantee, for the reputation of any business must depend upon its past. These goods, as every grocer knows, have been weighed in the balance, and not found wanting, and they have come to be so universally used in Canada that grocers everywhere find them absolute necessities on their shelves.

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION—Display of Edwardsburg Starch and Crown Brand Table Syrup.

Evidences of their extensive reputation were observed in plenty at the Exhibition. The first man who had the privilege of seeing the exhibit, when it was presented to the public, was one who handles the goods in Vancouver. Visits from grocers in Halifax, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Ottawa and even from away up in newly explored districts in the Temagami were welcomed. They all sell the products of the Edwardsburg Starch Co. so that the range of its trade is limited only by the oceans. This can only become the case when goods have such a quality when they command universal attention. Grocers can always increase their sales of such goods as the products of the Edwardsburg Co., by educating the consumer on the various ways of using them. The Edwardsburg Starch Co. is doing this for them. At the Exhibition they distributed thousands of recipe booklets to the ladies. These contained 84 receipes for dishes that can be prepared from their goods. This illustrates how this company is aiding the grocer to sell more goods, and is a business method to be commended.

TOLEDO COMPUTING SCALE CO.

Every merchant who wants to give his customers a "square deal" all the time, knows that the greatest matter of importance in the store is that of weighing goods. There is no merchant who does not want a "square deal" when he purchases from the manufacturer or distributer, and, therefore, it is nothing but simple honesty that he should treat the consumer as he desires to be treated himself. Weighing has now been elevated to such a science, with the introduction of automatic computing scales, that there can be no excuse for any unintentional dishonesty on the part of anyone. The scales manufactured by The Toledo Computing Scale Co., which were exhibited at the Canadian National Exhibition, for accuracy in weighing and computing, are unsurpassed. This statement may be borne out, at least, in part, by a knowledge of the remarkable growth of the company. In July 1901, the patents and property of the De Vilbiss Co., were purchased by the Toledo Scale and Cash Register Co., and in 1902 the Cash Register interests were disposed of and the entire efforts of the company were concentrated on the betterment of the scale. The name of the company was changed to its present one. Then as a result of the universal recognition of superiority of the springless principle of the scale, business immediately began to expand, and has continued to do so. In 1902 the Toledo line of scales comprised three sizes and eleven styles from $35 to $75. This year there are 91 styles and sizes running in value from $37.50 to $165, and there are over 60,000 in use. The Toledo is the first springless computing scale ever made, and it presents one of the greatest advances in scale building and in retail store weighing that remains on record. It has solved the problem of absolutely accurate weight, and is an undisputed practical and reliable device for the merchant. The Toledo is so constructed mechanically that it is impossible for it to give anything but the honest weight. Coupled with this fact, the Toledo is a positive insurance against any error in figuring and eliminates all the results of carelessness in mathematics. The value of this alone cannot be estimated. It is something with which every merchant has had to contend. These worries are definitely settled by the introduction of the Toledo Computing Scale, which, because of its springless principle, cannot be affected by varying temperatures. Another reason why this scale is a big asset to the merchant, is that it causes no delay to the customer. In these days service is one of the paramount features in the store. The merchant who gives the best service stands the best chance to succeed. No one wants to wait when he buys, and the computing scale materially aids in shortening the time between the order and the delivery of the goods over the counter. No customer wonders whether the salesman is good at fractions when the Toledo scale does the computing. Again the merchant who uses this absolutely honest scale has a talking point which is valuable in his advertising. He can positively assure his customers of accurate weight without fear of contradiction. There is nothing that will cause a customer to forsake his merchant more quickly than a belief that he is getting short weight, and the Toledo scale is absolute proof against this. The trade of this company in Canada is going ahead rapidly, simply because the Toledo Springless Automatic Computing Scale bears a reputation that is unsurpassed.

Manufacturers' Building at the Canadian National Exhibition gave a splendid opportunity to the visitors to see them demonstrated. It was that of the Pure Gold Manufacturing Co., 381 College Street, Toronto.

The demonstrators included several young ladies, who supplied some tempting dishes, which will undoubtedly create a greater demand for Pure Gold products. The company make it a feature to put quality into their goods. They believe in the old truth that "the memory of quality lingers when prices are forgotten." Quality is therefore placed before everything else in the manufacture of the Pure Gold brands. This has been recognized by leading grocers in all parts of Canada and has been the reason why their trade has extended so widely. The consuming public in these times are rapidly coming to the point when they demand only pure goods—goods of quality. This is undoubtedly a step up the ladder in the matter of food consumption. The products of the Pure Gold Co. are guaranteed the best of their kind in domestic use, and are absolutely pure.

Among the high-grade products manufactured by this company in Pure Gold brands are flavoring extract, coffee, table jellies, spices and salad dressing powder. These were all shown in the company's handsome exhibit, and the splendid appearance and arrangement of the various jellies were first-rate attention-attractors. In addition, recipe booklets were given away and these will do much to increase the demand for Pure Gold goods.

The value of the jelly powders was shown in different flavors and a great deal of satisfaction was found by the many visitors who tested them.

The important fact for retailers to bear in mind, however, is that Pure Gold products are goods of merit, and are such that any grocer can conscientiously and safely recommend.

This is something that all should bear in mind, because during recent years there has been considerable discussion on this particular point. More attention is being paid every year by the government to quality in foods and sooner or later we will have a pure food law which will be rigidly enforced. Pure Gold goods have always been found to be absolutely reliable. They are a safeguard against trouble which often arises when retailers persist in selling adulterated goods.

From a glance at the reproduction of their handsome booth, it is no wonder that it created a good impression upon the crowds who passed. Everything in it and surrounding it was neat and clean; the jellies which were served were tempting and perfectly made; the demonstrators were courteous and waited gracefully upon all who approached.

PURE GOLD MANUFACTURING CO.

Every grocer knows what a hold salads, salad dressings, jellies, etc., have on the mistress of the household. During recent years the sale of these goods over the grocery counter has been immense, and the demand for them is steadily increasing. One booth in the

BORDEN'S CONDENSED MILK.

While much is said these days in regard to Pure Foods, reference is usually intended for manufactured articles, and little consideration is given to the milk used in the household, and this is the most important article of food which enters the house. The health departments of all the leading cities have been issuing warnings about the indiscriminate use of dairy milk, and their work has brought Condensed Milk more prominently to the attention of the public, and the result is the consumption of Condensed Milk during the past year or two has shown a wonderful increase. Condensed Milk was originated by Gail Borden in 1857, and Borden's Eagle Brand Condensed Milk has always been acknowledged as the highest standard. The house-keeper can thoroughly rely upon the quality that has so satisfactorily stood the test of time. This valuable product was demonstrated at Borden's Booth in the Manufacturers' main building at the Exhibition. In addition to Eagle Brand Condensed Milk, the company also demonstrated Borden's Peerless Brand Evaporated Cream, unsweetened. The latter article is simply pure, rich dairy milk evaporated to a creamy consistency by Borden's original process, preserved by sterilization only. Nothing whatever is added, and the company claim it is pure and safer than so-called "fresh milk" ordinarily obtained, as it has all the advantages of fresh milk, and none of the disadvantages. Peerless Brand Cream is suitable for any modification, and may be used for any recipes calling for the use of fluid milk. With Eagle Brand Condensed Milk and Peerless Brand Evaporated Cream, Borden's Condensed Milk Co. solves the milk question by supplying substantial and wholesome nourishment in a compact form prepared at their Tillsonburg Condensary with scrupulous care for those who demand the best. The Borden booth was in charge of Jos. Irving and W. J. Bartley, who are special salesmen for Borden products in Eastern Canada. Crowds of Exhibition visitors surrounded it every day, and considerable demonstration was done, which must prove of considerable benefit to retail grocers. The reputation of Borden's products is one founded on merit. Their quality is of the highest order, and this fact has more than once been brought home to the retail grocer, who has been handling them. They are manufactured under a system of sanitary regulations, which are so rigidly observed that purity is absolutely assured.

This system does not only obtain during the process of manufacture, but it goes back to the dairy farm, where the raw milk is produced, embracing the care and feeding of the cattle, proper construction, lighting and ventilation of barns and location of milk houses, and minute details governing the handling of the milk from the cow to the can.

With these facts in mind the retail grocer has information that will be advantageous in the selling of Borden's milk products, the merit of which cannot be questioned.

Wm. H. Dunn, 27 Front Street East, Toronto, is the general sales agent for the company.

NEWFOUNDLAND FRESH FISH PACKING COMPANY.

The success with which the Newfoundland Fresh Fish Packing Co. has met in the short time their products have been on the market in Canada has more than amply justified their decision to enter this field. The cod steak manufactured by this company is an innovation that must be successful. It is made by a double steaming process which removes all skin, bone and oil. The fish is chosen from prime No. 1 shore cod and nothing more than 6 hours old goes into package. Wax paper is placed between the contents and package to absolutely prevent any deterioration. The product has for three years been under climatic tests in all sorts and conditions of weather. The fact that Swift & Co. have been appointed United States agents, where it is known as Tallasman Brand Cod Steak, is sufficient evidence of its importance.

The interests of the Newfoundland Fresh Fish Packing Co. are looked after in Canada by W. J. Young, 25 Front St. East Toronto, who in a very short space of time booked orders for 5 carload or 150,000 pounds. This cod steak is made ready for the table in ten minutes by simply placing the package in hot water and there is not the semblance of an odor while it is being prepared for table use. It will keep indefinitely, every package being guaranteed by the packers. The company intends eventually to handle a full line of all choicest deep sea fish.

As an instance of the enterprise of Mr. Young, it might be mentioned that he only secured the booth at the exhibition at 12 o'clock on Friday, the day before it opened.

HEINZ' 57 VARIETIES.

Probably the first thing that struck the visitor on passing through the main entrance to the Manufacturers' Building was the huge electric pickle above the H. J. Heinz Co.'s booth. The arrangement of the exhibit was artistic—a large pagoda was in the centre, and counters surmounted with pillars fenced off the booth. The woodwork was painted white, and was relieved with gilt lettering and trimmings. Samples of the famous "57 varieties" were placed in panels and in pyramids about, and while they were numerous enough there was not the slightest look of crowding, so well were they set off. The exhibit was under the direction of R. Muat, Toronto representative of the company, and he was assisted by Mrs. A. D. Schell, and six young lady demonstrators.

The company has recently completed an addition to its Canadian factory at Leamington, Ont., making it a fine six-storey structure. Before the end of the year all the goods required by the Canadian trade will be supplied from that branch plant. The company has contracted for the produce of 500 acres to cater to Canadian tastes, and the representatives in the Dominion have grown to ten in number, H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, and Hudon, Herbert & Co., Montreal, are selling agents and distributors for the Dominion.

In the United States the Heinz Co. has 11 branch factories, beside the main plant at Pittsburg, employing 4,000 hands, which during the growing season is increased to 40,000. Besides these there are 69 receiving and salting stations, and 31 branch houses. The traveling salesmen number 450, and they circle the globe. As well, there is a factory in London, Eng., and still another in Seville, Spain, where is prepared for the market, Heinz' celebrated olive oil. A number of related industries have grown up about the business. The company makes its own glass bottles, boxes and tanks, and build its own refrigerator cars as well as doing its own printing. The latest addition is a splendid "Administration Building" for the head office at Pittsburg.

The Heinz Company has always been noted for its quality goods. In fact "purity of product" is its watchword, and "cleanliness" the rule of conduct in its factories, which are models for other manufacturing concerns. The kitchens of the Heinz Company are always open for inspection. Just now, during the pure food controversy, the company occupies a foremost position by its aggressiveness. olate, etc. Their exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition this year was just another evidence of their energy and of the quality of goods they produce. Their goods are absolutely reliable, and there is a steadily increasing demand for them. They are, as well, backed up by a series of aggressive advertising campaigns, which are of material aid in extending that demand. The trade is covered from coast to coast by traveling salesmen, so that their products can be easily procured.

only one of the many improved machines in the Cowan factory to facilitate the making of their products.

The Cowan Co. is an old established firm. Its standing in Canada is unquestioned. Their factory equipment is freely admitted to be excelled by none on the American continent. This is fully evidenced by the favor with which "Maple Buds" have been met. Their manufacture has been amply justified by the extent of sales that have been made. It is chiefly due to the fact that their reputation has been built upon a quality foundation.

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION—Exhibit of The Cowan Co. Limited.

THE COWAN COMPANY.

Retail grocers in all parts of Canada have long since recognized the advantages in handling the products of the Cowan Co., manufacturers of cocoa, chocAt their booth at the Exhibition were demonstrated their celebrated Perfection cocoa, their quality chocolates, including Maple Buds and Nut Chocolate, etc., all manufactured at the company's large establishment in Toronto. An interesting feature of their exhibit was an automatic wrapping machine for wrapping Cowan's Cream Bars. This was operated in full view of all passers-by, and it attracted a great deal of attention. It is

The exhibit was the most successful the Cowan Co. ever held. They were delighted with the business they did by selling cocoa at five cents per cup, and attribute this to the fact that visitors are more willing to get a quantity perfectly made, at a slight consideration, than to merely obtain a taste. They, therefore, served large cups of cocoa made by an expert demonstrator and were highly pleased with the results.

C. Dimmock was in charge of the exhibit at the Exhibition. In fact he has been there for the past 16 years or more —another important feature in evidence of the standing of the company. Seven young ladies were kept busy attending to the thousands of customers who passed daily.

The exhibit was one of the most handsome in the Manufacturers' building, as the accompanying cut will testify.

MAPLE TREE PRODUCERS' ASSN.

The exhibit of the Maple Tree Producers' Association, of Waterloo, Que., in the Process Building this year was one that attracted constant and interesting attention, particularly of the visiting grocers and merchants. The fact that this company's efforts during the past ten years under the determined and consistent efforts of J. H. Grimm, president, have been the means of improving the quality of Maple Syrup and sugar generally throughout the producing districts as is shown by the report of the Dominion Analyst, has secured the confidence and support of the jobbing and retail grocers. This confidence of the trade is reflected in the increased demand by the consuming public in Pride of Canada brand Maple Syrup, and it is safe to predict that this splendid exhibit will result in further demand for this company's products. W. J. Dack, 512 Dundas Street, Toronto, is agent for the city and district, and his work during the past year has shown phenomenal increase in the consumption of Pride of Canada Maple syrups and sugars. The syrups are absolutely pure, and under the arrangements made with the producing farmers must all be up to the highest standard. The prices paid to the farmers are so high that it pays infinitely better to deliver the pure syrup than to attempt any adulteration, or to attempt to market their products direct with the chances of being manipulated before reaching the consumer. All credit is due to the Maple Tree Producers' Association for their work in the direction of of absolutely pure maple syrup and sugars.

HUYLER'S CONFECTIONERY.

For quality in confectionery, Huyler's products stand in the first rank. They were exhibited in a handsome booth at the Canadian National Exhibition, and certainly attracted a good deal of attention. Confectionery is an article which the retail grocer knows can be displayed to advantage. Where the display is clean and attractive, it gives the whole store an appearance which raises it in the estimation of the intending purchaser. Huyler's exhibit, with handsome electric light fixtures, made a splendid impression.

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION—Huyler's Confectionery Display.

There is a great deal in the phrase "a man is known by the candy he sends," and with the quality that exists in Huyler's, a grocer can safely recommend it.

One of the features of the exhibit was a display of a model, among others, of improved machinery used in the manufacture of Huyler's cocoa and chocolates.

RED ROSE TEA.

The popularity of the Red Rose Tea booth at the Exhibition this year was a remarkable demonstration of how wide spread is the knowledge that "Red Rose Tea is good Tea."

It never seems to occur to the Red Rose Tea people to be anything but original and at the head of the parade. Their unique plan of borrowing five cents from each person as they came in to have a cup of tea was the advertising "hit" of the Exhibition and created a lot of talk among experienced advertisers.

The beauty of it was, it was so simple. They charged five cents for a cup of Red Rose Tea with a small crisp roll and butter and gave the money right back again in the form of a coupon, good for five cents anywhere within sixty days as part payment for a package of Red Rose Tea.

Each coupon is numbered and bears on the face of it a fac-simile in red ink of T. H. Estabrooks' signature, so that there can be no mistaking them. Every merchant is authorized to accept them as five cents on a package of Red Rose Tea, and they will be redeemed promptly at their face value by any Red Rose Tea traveller or when sent to the Toronto office.

The readiness with which the people gave up their nickles for a cup of Red Rose Tea and a coupon and often waited for the privilege while free demonstrations and counter attractions abounded on every hand, reminded one forcibly of the wonderful progress Red Rose Tea has made in a very few years to the front rank among package teas. Standing at the exit and hearing the people as they left almost without exception, praise the tea, one got nearer to the secret of this remarkable success. It is the quality of Red Rose Tea. Indeed Mr. Estabrooks' position in the tea trade has been won by a steady adherence to the policy of competing in quality rather than in price. As a result of that policy Red Rose Tea has been made the best possible value in tea and the quality is always maintained.

The great success of the Exhibition demonstration was due also to the evident care with which it had been planned to the last detail. Snowy linen covered the small tables, special Red Rose china was used, the young ladies were attentive, courteous and attractive, and the greatest care was taken to explain the coupon system thoroughly. There was an entrance which was always crowded and an exit where, also, grocers and merchants visiting the Fair were admitted without inconvenience to a compartment reserved for them. During the two weeks a great many trade friends of Red Rose were welcomed by Frank Leech, who had charge of the booth or by Mr. Campbell, manager of the Toronto branch, who spent much time at the booth.

Throughout the demonstration Blue Label, the 40c grade of Red Rose was served and whatever may be said for the daintiness of the service, the coziness of the booth and the kindliness of the welcome the delicious quality of the tea was always the central attraction. The people came eager for it and went away praising it and with the coupon as an reminder and an incentive to buy a package of Red Rose.

JNO. B. PAINE CO., LTD.

The advance that the Jno. B. Paine Co. has made since its inception in March, 1907, is proof conclusive that it is manufacturing products which are in splendid demand. "Bull Dog" brands of Ammonia Powder, Chloride of Lime, and Liquid Ammonia have met with a good reception from the public, simply because they are what the public want. Knowing this, grocers throughout Canada, are feeling the necessity greater every day to lay in stocks of these products. By exhibiting them at the Canadian National Exhibition, the company aided the grocery trade materially by demonstrating their value to the thousands of visitors in attendance. Ammonia Powder is used for washing clothes and dishes and for general disinfecting around the house. Chloride of Lime is a disinfectant and bleaching powder unexcelled. Liquid Ammonia is used for softening water for washing clothes. It will thus be observed that these articles are practically necessary for the grocery store where the bulk of buying for the household is done. Although Liquid Ammonia and Chloride of Lime have just recently been added to the Jno. B. Paine Co.'s products they are meeting with much favor. "Bull Dog" Ammonia Powder has been on the market for over two years and the extension of the trade during that time has been remarkable. The care exercised in putting up the Chloride of Lime canisters is worthy of notice. The interior is lined with an absolutely porous proof mixture which when hardened prevents any possible chance of air passing through. The company gives away coupons which require being placed together to obtain a perfect "Bull-Dog." This may then be redeemed at the offices of the company in $5 gold coin. Jno. B. Paine, president of the company personally superintended the exhibit at the Exhibition, and it attracted large crowds. Mr. Paine is thoroughly acquainted with the manufacture of his products having been in the chemical business in Canada for 25 years. The secretary of the company is F. W. Anderson. Snowdon & Borland are the Montreal agents, and Lock & Williams the Winnipeg representatives. The manufacturing is done in Toronto.

ST. CHARLES CONDENSING CO.

The demonstrations that daily took place in the booth of the St. Charles Condensing Co., at the Exhibition, met with a greater reception than ever before. Questions concerning the purposes and manufacture of St. Charles Evaporated Cream were continually being asked by the crowds of visitors, who passed this exhibit, and courteously answered by those in charge.

In these days we hear much about the trouble of obtaintng a pure milk supply and of commissions being appointed to look into the causes, especially in the large centres. In fact, we can be hardly sure of our milk supply anywhere. Very often householders are disappointed, and too often they do not get a sufficient supply should company call unexpectedly. These are conditions which have practically forced people to look for their milk supply elsewhere.

St. Charles Evaporated Cream has solved the problem, and in a great many ways it has been found to be superior to ordinary cream or milk. Besides being more convenient, it is a purer article on account of its being thoroughly sterilized and consumers are absolutely sure of the quality of their supply.

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION—St. Charles Evaporated Cream Display.

The fact that St. Charles Evaporated Cream can be kept indefinitely before opening, is one of its paramount features. After opening it will keep longer than fresh milk if kept in a cool place. Consumers also find it more economic than ordinary cream or milk as they can use what they require and put the remainder away in a cool place until they wish to use more. Ordinary dairy cream or milk has to used up, as it is bought every day. The public is just beginning to realize the purity and convenience of this article, and it cannot be wondered at that thousands of people each day asked the ladies who were demonstrating this article, question after question regarding the product. Most of them left orders to be delivered through their regular grocers. This fact should be appreciated by the retail trade because by demonstrating this article to the public in this manner, new customers are made for the grocer and trade brought to him which ordinarily would be going to the dairyman.

The booth itself was more attractive than ever before. It was in charge of Dane, Hortop & Co., Toronto, the Ontario agents, who spared neither time nor money and went to considerable trouble in making it one of the most attractive in the Manufacturers' Building. The curtains hanging from the sides gave it a splendid appearance, and the interior arrangement was never more atractive.

INGERSOLL CREAM CHEESE.

The Ingersoll Packing Co., Limited, of Ingersoll, Ont., had a very attractive booth in the Manufacturers' Building at the Exhibition. Draperies hung from the sides handsomely setting off the display of the products of this company neatly arranged around the interior. The demonstration of their well known product, Ingersoll Cream Cheese, in blocks, was instrumental in securing many new admirers, which cannot fail to be of much assistance to the retail trade.

Thousands of visitors saw and appreciated their exhibit. Cleanliness was sufficient to draw crowds at all times, and the demonstrators courteously supplied Ingersoll cream cheese to thousands every day, the majority of whom were already familiar with that product. This demonstration at the greatest of Canadian exhibitions, cannot fail to produce a much greater demand from all over Canada. In this way the Inger- and the Pacific, where Ingersoll Cream Cheese is not known as a valuable food product. It is easily handled in the retail store, and can be used to advantage in window and interior displays.

But the best reason why retailers are handling Ingersoll Cream Cheese is the reliability of the product and of the firm. This explains why the product of this one of the important features of the booth, and had much to do with the favorable impressions made on the passers-by. Panels in green burlap decorated the walls in addition to attractive hangers and handsomely printed advertising show cards.

Pyramid piles of cream cheese in the well-known wrapper with the cow in the centre were neatly and systematically arranged on the counters. These were soll Packing Co., is materially aiding the retail grocer, through which medium the goods are distributed to the public, to increase his business.

The high quality of the Ingersoll Cream Cheese has already won over many customers. Plain, reasonable facts tell the story of the progress the company has made. There is scarcely a town of any size between the Atlantic company has been sold so extensively over the counters of the retail stores in all portions of the country.

This firm is also curers of the celebrated English Breakfast Bacon and Beaver Brand Hams and Lard. Whereever high class pork products are used these brands will be found in the best demand, simply because their quality is unsurpassed.

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION—Exhibit of Salada Tea.

"SALADA" TEA.

When any article prepared for food consumption withstands the test of time for eighteen years and continues to grow in public favor, it is proof positive that it is of real value to the retail grocer. When it comes to the knowledge of the trade that its sales have increased 323 fold during that period, it is beyond contradiction that such an article is an absolute necessity to the success of every store. That is the simple case of "Salada" Tea. "Salada" is a name familiar to practically every home in the Dominion and the United States. The Company's exhibit at the Exhibition was, as in former years, a splendid one. A feature which attracted much attention was the display of a herd of 16 ebony elephants. These "Natives of India" told the story of the Company's progress in a most effective and striking manner—beginning with the miniature quadruped of 1892, barely an inch in height, and ascending to the mammoth of 1909, measuring nearly two feet high.

Grocers who comprehend the importance of Ceylon as a tea-producing country, have every reason to be directly interested in "Salada." Investigations into its climatic conditions and soil have lead scientists to declare that it is the finest tea-producing country in the world. Before "Salada" was introduced to the public, the tea trade was in a wretched condition, peddlers and department stores doing a very large share of it in bulk form As pioneers of Ceylon Tea on the continent, The "Salada" Tea Co. have always believed that there was no tea the equal of that from Ceylon. Modern Anglo-Saxon skill, care, cleanliness, superseding the primitive, unsanitary, unwholesome methods of handling that still prevail in all other tea-growing countries, have made Ceylon Tea the standard of excellence throughout the Oriental as well as the Western World.

In 1892 "Salada" was placed on the market in sealed packets, and offered in this form to the consumer through the retail grocer. Nothing can aid the grocer more than the knowledge that he is in a position to absolutely guarantee his customers tea "fresh from the gardens," absolutely pure, of incomparable flavor and fragrance and strictly uniform quality. This last characteristic is an important one for there is nothing that will lose a customer quicker than to sell goods that vary in quality from time to time.

Not to know "Salada" implies the misfortune of not knowing the finest and purest grade of the world's best tea, free from all impurities, artificial coloring, hand rolling by Mongolians and other primitive disregards of cleanliness. The tender leaves and buds which contain the essence and vigor of the plant are prepared by modern scientific methods and machinery and packed in sealed lead "Salada" packets in the largest, most modern tea warehouse on the continent. "Salada" is a tea that wins on its own flavor and proves its claim as the choicest, purest and most economical tea for all occasions.

Reasoning the matter out in a business-like way it amounts to this:—every grocer by selling "Salada" makes for the betterment of his tea-trade all the way round—better satisfaction—better tea—better profits and better trade generally.

During the eighteen years that "Salada" has been before the public, more than one hundred firms have imitated their style of doing business. They used the "just as good" argument to get their packets on the grocers' shelves but after the public tried them they would not buy them again, because no firm has ever succeeded in imitating "Salada" quality.

Ever since they commenced business the same thought, the same effort and the same careful attention has been given to "Salada" Tea. This experience, gained by meeting and surmounting actual problems in the tea business, is the grocers' strongest guarantee of efficiency and absolute reliability.

Their enormously increasing sales are conclusive proof that the public are finding out in increasing numbers every year that they are best served when they purchase "Salada" Tea. They have placed a good article on the market, they have told the people of its goodness and the people have bought it and have continued to buy it. Their service has been honest and consistent and they have received the reward of merit.

The extent of the business of this Company is another point of interest. Its trade extends over the whole North American Continent with officers at Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver in Canada, and in the United States at New York, Boston, Buffalo, Cleveland, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis and Los Angeles. The exhibit at the Exhibition was visited by scores of retail grocers from all parts of the continent and details of the business were explained by the firm's representative in charge.

FRY'S COCOA AND CHOCOLATE DISPLAY.

FRY'S COCOA AND CHOCOLATE.

The display of Fry's cocoa and chocolate was an especially attractive one, the panel-work on the sides, both at the top and bottom, setting it off to the best advantage. A few sprigs of foliage hung from the top and greatly increased the effect upon the eye of the appearance of the exhibit. A feature which attracted much attention was the display of medals which Fry's cocoa and chocolate have won at various expositions throughout the world. Incidently this points to the quality of these goods, with which, of course, every experienced grocer, is already familiar.

VINOLIA SOAPS.

Without any doubt the display of Vinolia products in the Manufacturers' Building at the Canadian National Exhibition was one of the handsomest that was to be seen in any building on the grounds. The floral decorations, which hung from the sides of the booth were very atractive and the pleasant odor, which at all times emanated from beneath the purple foliage kept a constant crowd.

Lever Bros. (who are the sole agents for Canada of Vinolia soaps,) have world wide fame as manufacturers of Sunlight, Lifebuoy and many well-known brands of toilet soaps, were the exhibitors of the products of the Vinolia Co.

The soaps shown which are of direct interest to the grocery trade were Vinolia Baby, Liril Violette de Parme, Vinolia Sweet Pea, Premier Vinolia, Vinolia Bouquet and Vinolia Lasario Peau de Espagne. All of these sell to the trade at $9.50 per gross, either in one kind or assorted. They are all toilet soaps of the finest quality and are undisputedly among the leading toilet soaps manufactured.

The Vinolia Co are soap makers to His Majesty the King. Several Vinolia soaps are supplied regularly to the Royal palaces, including Vestal Vinolia and Vinolia Otto soap. Vinolia was introduced into Canada a couple of years ago, and the success which has attended its introduction shows conclusively that it is what the people want. Grocers who stock this high grade product, therefore, have selling points, which are of much value. This is something always to be desired.

The grocery trade has begun to handle Vinolia Shaving Stick successfully. It is particularly acceptable to the man who shaves himself, for comfort and ease and as a time saver. The Shaving Stick is enclosed in a metal case with a metal cap, easily removable. The soap is well matured, fragrant in perfume, quick and lasting in lather, and easily applied by simply rubbing on the face previously moistened with a wet brush.

Vinolia Baby Toilet soap is another that is making rapid headway. It used to be said that soap is not good for a baby's skin. For this popular error the soap of an earlier day may have been responsible. Nowadays there are factories in which soap manufacture has reached such a pitch of perfection and purity as to challenge the old and false tradition and to prove conclusively that it does not apply to the soaps there produced. No better evidence can be had of the value of Vinolia Baby soap than the words of a medical practitioner when he said, "For roughness of the skin in a little child Vinolia has proved eminently successful."

For the bath Vinolia soaps are unexcelled both from the point of cleanliness and pleasure. Vinolia Toilet Soaps are strongly recommended for the bathroom, and are extensively purchased for this purpose. This is because most people in these days believe their bodies are deserving of as much courtesy from refined soap treatment as are the hands and face.

The standing that Lever Bros. have in the world's soap trade is worthy of attention. They are known in every continent as the manufacturers of soap of merit, and quality, and this fact is sufficient to impress upon the retail grocery trade the value of trade connection with them.

QUAKER OATS COMPANY.

When the facts that only healthy persons enjoy life and that wholesome food is necessary to health are comprehended, we are in a position to understand the great growth of the Quaker Oats Company. Grocers know that Quaker Oats is a commodity, the food value of which commands attention. They know that if they sell Quaker Oats Quality Products that they are positively assured of giving satisfaction. That's why so many members of the trade carry the products of this company on their shelves. These products were splendidly exhibited in the Manufacturers' Building, at the Canadian National Exhibition, and thousands were given the privelege of testing them. A company which is not afraid to show its food products to the critics, which attend such an exhibition as the Canadian National, is considered one that manufactures goods of high standing in purity and quality. In both these characteristics, the Quaker Oats Company can easily qualify. It produces goods that are undisputedly pure because they are manufactured from the choicest of grains. This is knowledge that can be used with the best of results by grocers who handle the products. They are in a position to recommend them without fear of being in error or without fear of losing custom. Now-a-days the public is clamoring for quality in preference to quantity and the Quaker Oats Company stand in the first rank in this respect. The extent of the manufacture of Quaker Oats products is sufficient evidence, if these were none other, that they are what the consuming public wants. The mills are the largest and cleanest in the world. They are located at Peterboro, Ont.; Akron, Ohio; Battle Creek, Mich., and Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Another significant fact is that the products turned out from these mills are more generally sold than any other food products sold in package, and the amount of sales by retail grocers is greater than that from the sale of any other package food product. It is therefore easily seen that grocers who are not handling these goods can dust and germs, brightens up carpets and rugs, and keeps floors neat and clean. When used on tiles, linoleums and oil-cloths "Soclean" possess properties that grip the dust and dry-cleans them. It is as well a powerful disinfectant.

All these features should commend themselves to the grocery trade, through which avenue of trade "Soclean" is being pushed. Besides the above-mentioned qualities "Soclean" is economical, is fireproof and leaves a fragrant odor after sweeping. It can be used over and over again until saturated with dust, and last of all it is guaranteed.

Its use is increasing outside the home, and it has been introduced with great success into clubs, banks, schools, hospitals, hotels, theatres, steamboats and stores. For commercial use "Soclean" is put up in three sizes of barrels weighing respectively 125, 250 and 350 pounds; and for home use in tins retailing at 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1. At the booth a young lady demonstrator explained its use, and showed how even a child could sweep a floor without raising dust by simply shaking on the floor beforehand a handful of "Soclean."

CHRISTIE, BROWN & CO.

Of particular interest to grocers was the exhibit of Christie, Brown & Co.'s 500 varieties of biscuits in the main aisle make no mistake by laying in a stock. The public has after many years experience by comparison, pronounced Quaker goods the best value for the money. Their cleanliness and purity have won them universal favor. The company have issued and are distributing booklets showing Quaker Oats being carried across the desert by camels; they are shown in stores in India, and on the banks of the Rhine. Scenes in South America, Switzerland, the West Indies and South Africa, also are shown where Quaker Oats are in evidence. The reputation is world-wide. Another asset to the grocer who carries the products of this company is that numerous wholesome, tasty dishes can be made from them. Recipe books were distributed by the four ladies in charge of the booth at the Exhibition, and these contained some valuable information on the preparation of various dishes. The products of the company include Quaker Oats, Puffed Rice, Puffed Wheat, Corn Flakes, Pettijohn and Yellow Corn Meal. These are all manufactured in Canada at the mills in Peterboro, where car loads of the best possible oats are manufactured into cereal products every day.

"SOCLEAN" DRY CLEANER.

The Harnett-Ridout Co., Toronto, manufacturers of "Soclean," had a tasty display of their product in the Industrial Building. "Soclean" is a scientifically-prepared compound that makes sweeping possible without raising dust. It is a dry cleaner a little of which sprinkled on the floor at the beginning point of sweeping saves scrubbing, kills of the manufacturèrs' Building. Each of the four sides of the booth served as a frame for the display of the boxes of biscuits, (no two of them alike), which were set cornerwise to admit of a prettier effect. Above were suspended a number of colored electric lamps, and below on the shelf were set palms and ferns interspersed with small boxes of dainty confections and fancy biscuits. The display ranged from plain sodas to fancy macaroons, a new and very high-grade of which are now made for receptions and 5 o'clock teas. Another new line is the "cherry ring," which will likely become as popular as some of the older lines. Then there are plum puddings and fruit cakes put up in one and two-pound tins, and a variety of wafers, biscuits and cakes, plain and fancy, put up in special neat packages.

It would be impossible to name over the many lines of biscuits made at Christie's. The grocers of the country already know the majority of them by sample at least—from the arrowroot for babies, up through the animal biscuits for children, to the light reception wafers and fruit and fancy lines for grown-ups. Through all the varieties there is the stamp of quality. From the inception of the business the company has rested its claim on quality, and now the name "Christie" on a biscuit is a guarantee of purity. The purest ingredients only are used in their making, and nothing is permitted to enter into their manufacture that is not the best money can procure. Every batch of goods before being shipped is subjected to rigid inspection, and the many awards secured in competition attests the worth of Christie's products. A determining factor in the quality of the goods is the cleanliness of the factory, which is open for the inspection of friends. Improved machinery is installed, which necessitates very little handling of the biscuits in the making. There are baths and washrooms for the employes and white linen clothes are worn by all. To keep these spotless a fully equipped laundry is located in the building. Tin boxes returned before being used again are thoroughly sterilized, and naturally this care shows in the quality of Christie's goods.

The company although at present the largest biscuit manufacturing concern in Canada, is continually making additions to its plant, and it now has some 244,000 square feet of floor space in its Toronto plant, which itself speaks of the popularity of Christie's goods in the majority of homes from coast to coast.

TRUMILK AND MILKSTOCK.

The Canadian Milk Products Limited, Toronto, made a very interesting demonstration in the Manufacturers' Building, of the product of their new process, by which milk is reduced to a sterile powder soluble in cold water. This product is so fine that large quantities of liquid milk made from it were sold by the glass, many persons remarking that it was considerably better than the liquid milk which they were getting from their milkman.

From a scientific standpoint Trumilk and Milkstock, the dry milk powders, are very interesting in view of the fact that never before has milk been put into a form in which it would keep without the use of preservatives, except where the milk has in the process been subjected to such high temperatures as to injure the flavour and coagulate the albumens. It is also noteworthy that no exhibitors of condensed or evaported milks have ever dared to restore their products to liquid form and offer them for drinking to the public. The makers of Trumilk have not thought it necessary to disguise the taste of their products by serving them in tea, coffee, cocoa, etc., but have shown them as milk.

The advantages of these goods in quality, taste, portability, keeping qualities, freedom from freezing, etc., was evident to all who saw them. We are told that that the demand for these products is growing so fast that the makers will shortly build a second factory, although their present plant was only finished in July.

E. D. SMITH'S JAMS AND JELLIES.

One of the most striking exhibits in the Manufacturers' Building was the display of preserved fruits, jams, jellies and marmalade made by E. D. Smith, Winona, Ont. These goods are known for their absolute purity, only fresh fruits and pure granulated cane sugar being used in their manufacture. The exhibit was well set off in a white booth with gold lettering, the trimmings being in brown and green. Two demonstrators were kept busy showing the preserves and giving tasty samples. Mr. Smith's factory is located in the very heart of the fruit district of Ontario, and his farms are models for the surrounding country. He is thus enabled to obtain sound fresh fruit immediately after it is picked. The factory, too, is a model of cleanliness, and is open for inspection at all times. The visitor may follow the fruit through its process of manufacture, and thus be able to satisfy himself as to the excellent quality of the E. D. S. product. In fact, Mr. Smith's trade mark is a recognized guarantee of the high class quality of the contents of the bottles bearing his name. If proof is wanted on this score it may be had by a study of Bulletin No. 119 issued by the Department of Inland Revenue. Of 182 samples collected by that department in various parts of Canada, 128 were found to be adulterated, and only 29 were found pure and genuine. Of these 29 samples, 10 were made by E. D. Smith; not a single pure sample coming from any other large jam maker in the country.

E. D. Smith's Tomato Catsup is another product of his Winona factory. It is considered by judges to be equal to the best catsups selling in Canada, whether made in the Dominion or imported. It costs a little more than a number of other domestic brands, but it pays to buy quality goods. The exhibit was in charge of F. J. Blackburn. The agent for E. D. Smith's goods in Ontario is W. G. Patrick, Toronto.

THE McCASKEY REGISTER CO.

One of the great troubles of the retail merchant is paying proper attention to his credit accounts. Neglect to carefully watch this end of the business has caused many failures, and one of the best methods used in overcoming this difficulty is by using the McCaskey Register. The fact that with a McCaskey register, a grocer knows his own standing at any time in the year, makes its value inestimable.

Only five years ago a retail merchant who would rather sell goods throughout the day and play with the children at night, instead of working, and who hated drudgery at books anyhow, invented a simple device for keeping credit accounts. This was the register. He then threw into the fire every book-keeping book he possessed, and to-day over 60,000 merchants in the United States are using the McCaskey Register. It is because it relieves them of all accounting anxieties and drudgery, that it becomes an asset worth while possessing. It shows at a single glance how all accounts stand—this is a particular feature of the McCaskey Register. It prevents errors; it collects money automatically; it prevents disputes with customers, and it stops forgetting to charge goods.

The customer's account is carried forward and totaled with every purchase, and as the customer always has a duplicate, he becomes legally liable for the amount it shows.

With a McCaskey register, the man who gives credit stands practically no chance of losing money by bad debts. Credit sales are handled as rapidly as cash sales and you can see in five minutes' time what one hundred good customers owe you. The moment a customer calls, a glance at the McCaskey Account Register shows exactly what he owes, and he knows it too—so there are no disputes.

All copying, posting, making out statements, night-work, etc., is eliminated. Every clerk is a bookkeeper, but it costs him no time, trouble or work. The McCaskey register is a silent bookkeeper, with every account kept up to the minute. By a simple due card device, goods are prevented going out if the customer's account is already overdue.

The exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition was visited by many grocers, and the systems carefully explained. Two show cards, one reading "McCaskey Physician's and Surgeon's Clinical and Financial Record System" and the other "The McCaskey Commercial Credit Registers—Only One Writing System," were conspicuous and attracted a good deal of attention.

THE NUGGET POLISHES.

The waterproof qualities of Nugget Polishes were exhibited with splendid effect in the Process Building at the Exhibition. The booth used for Nugget Polishes was attractively arranged, and the demonstration so successfully carried on that it kept a continuous crowd of interested spectators.

As intimated above, the feature of the exhibit was demonstrating that Nugget Polish is absolutely waterproof. This was accomplished by polishing a shoe, until the shine showed the splendid qualities of Nugget Polishes, and then dipping into a basin of water. When the water was washed off with a cloth the shine still remains as well as before demonstrating, another important quality—that of durability. The cloth itself showed no signs of blacking so that Nugget Polishes do no harm to clothing.

The retail merchant who has trouble with frost in his store in winter may have no fear with Nugget Polishes. They are absolutely frost-proof, and moreover they will not dry in stock. Lines exhibited were Nugget Black, Tan and White Polishes, Patent Creams, Honest Polish, and Nugget Furniture Paste. These goods can be handled by the retailer on an attractive basis of profit. Therefore with such qualities as are possessed by Nugget Polishes, a grocer can place perfect reliance upon them, and at the same time make a good margin of profit.

A CHICKEN A MINUTE.

Harrow, Ont., Sept. 15.—It is not generally known that Harrow is the centre of a chicken-dressing industry second to none in Essex county, and the revenue derived therefrom means something to the farmers of this and adjoining townships. In addition to local hucksters who supply dredges at Amherstburg, Gordon Halstead has the contract for Bois Blanc Island, and his output runs as high as 1,000 chickens weekly, for which from $300 to $400 is paid out. The fowl are brought alive to Harrow and left to the tender mercies of Thomas Bridges, expert chicken picker, who has a record of killing, scalding and picking a chicken in 24 seconds. His usual "stunt" is a chicken a minute for all day if necessary.

HEAD OFFICE LOCATION.

In the advertisement of the Comet Chemical Co., on page 21 of the issue of August 6th, there was a slight omission. It should have been stated that the address of the head office of this company is in the Victoria Buildings, Manchester, whereas the advertisement referred to, contained only the address of the Canadian representative. Readers who are interested in the business proposals made by this company would do well to make a note of both addresses.

SMALLER CLOVE CROP.

Arthur Garrels, under date of July 20, writes as follows on the yield of cloves for this season in Zanzibar, East Africa:

It is expected that the total clove production in the crop year 1909-10 will be considerably less than in the crop year 1908-9. This forecast is based on the condition of the trees at the present time. Picking will probably begin in August and continue until January, part of the crop being early and part late. Clove deliveries for the 1908-9 crop amounted to 165,733 frasilas (frasila=35 pounds) for Zanzibar and 449,685 frasilas for Pemba, with average prices of 8.75 rupees (rupee=$0.3244) for Zanzibar and 8.31 rupees for Pemba per frasila.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Information supplied by sellers but for which the editors of The Grocer do not necessarily hold themselves responsible.

A table delicacy introduced into Canada in recent years from England, its mission being to make the art of eating more enjoyable, is meeting with much favor. It is known to every housewife in the home country as H. P. Sauce, and is prepared at the largest malt vinegar brewery in the world, where pure malt vinegar is specially brewed for its production by the Midland Vinegar Company, Birmingham, England. Cleanliness is a feature of the manufacture of H. P. Sauce, and it is not touched by hand from beginning to end. It is used for both cold and hot meats, fish and fowl, as well as with bread and cheese, and has been found to give a relish to food that is at all times pleasing.

EXHIBITION NOTES.

The various buildings on the grounds included exhibits of many other food products and store equipments, among them being the following: Armour & Co.; Blue Ribbon Tea Co.; S. F. Bowser & Co.; Canadian Shredded Wheat; Computing Scale Co.; Canada Maple Exchange; Dalton Bros.; Domestic Specialty Co.; Eureka Refrigerator Co.; W. A. Freeman Co.; Gowan, Kent & Co.; John Hillock & Co.; Hackney Stock Food; Imperial Tobacco Co.; Lowney Co.; Minto Bros.; J. J. McLaughlin, Ltd.; Tobler's Chocolates; Maggi Soups; Metallic Roofing Co.; National Cash Register; M. Peters; Stewart's Chocolates; Schram Automatic Sealer Co.; Black Jack Stove Polish; and the Wm. Davies Co.

On Labor Day 4,500 people were served Shredded Wheat at their booth. They had a miniature factory in operation.

Thousands of visitors were served Melagama Tea during the exhibition.

The "flying ship" in the exhibit of Dalton Bros., was certainly an attention—drawer due, no doubt, to its appropriateness at this time.

KELLOGG'S TOASTED CORN FLAKES.

In the centre of the Manufacturers' Building was set a booth which at all times had a crowd of people around it. It was the booth of Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes in charge of T. M. Sibbald, 20½ Front Street East, the Toronto agent. The young lady demonstrators in white caps and aprons gave a homelike look to the booth and were kept busy serving visitors with samples of Corn Flakes served in devious ways. Toasted Corn Flakes are made in Battle Creek, Mich., and in London, Ont., for the Canadian trade. Although the business in Canada has been in existence only two years, there are already more corn flakes sold in the country than any other cereal. the large consumption of these flakes is owing to the fact that it is the only cereal that has the starch changed by a secret process into dextrine, making it much more palatable than any other, and providing a food perfectly pre-digested and capable of being eaten by young children and dyspeptics.

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION—Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes.

There is a unique system of coupons attached, one in each case for the grocer, which are redeemable at the end of the year for extra packages of Corn Flakes. This gives the grocer a handsome rebate on the goods. The company also makes a feature of window displays, and will send material for these window pictures as well as samples of the corn flakes to any grocer inquiring for them.

Corn Flakes are handled by the wholesale trade throughout the Dominion, and are sold at $2.85 per case of 3 dozen. Besides the Toronto agency there are offices in charge of Locke & Williams, Winnipeg; Howe, McIntyre & Co., Montreal; Chas E. McMichael, St. John, N.B., and Shallcross, McAuley & Co., Calgary.

SOAP MAKER CUTS OFF LARGE JOBBER.

Claims That Latter Violated Terms of Agreement by Cutting Prices.

New York, Sept. 14.—Determination on the part of manufacturers who have contracts in force calling for a selling price not less than specified in the agreement has caused the cutting off of the supply of a New York wholesaler until he furnishes evidence that his company did not sell at less than the agreed price. The companies involved are among the largest in the United States in both the manufacturing and jobbing trade.

According to a statement given out this week the jobber was given time to prove that there had been no violation of the contract before the source of supply was cut off, but the necessary evidence was not forthcoming.

Last week it was told that a New York City house had cut the price of a cereal food, and had found it could not purchase from the makers until affidavits were furnished, and the present instance is directly in line with that situation, except that soaps instead of cereal foods are concerned now.

The latest infraction of the conditions of a selling contract involve the Proctor & Gamble Co., of Cincinnati, and a large local wholesale concern. The wholesaler, according to the statement of the New York manager of the soap company, had charges preferred againt it some time ago by rival concerns, but failed to properly refute the charges.

"Our company has a contract in force with every jobber who handles our goods to the effect that prices will be maintained in accordance with the agreement," said Manager Eiswald, of the Proctor & Gamble Co. "When we received complaints from wholesalers that certain concerns were violating their agreements we naturally called for an explanation.

"In one specific instance this proof was not forthcoming, and according to the contract we have refused to further sell the accused concern goods.

"We have no feelings, personally, in the matter, and the action on the part of our company is only in accordance with our selling policy, which is known all over the country. Our contract calls for certain conditions, and if they are not complied with the agreement automatically cuts off the supply of our goods.

"In this matter we deal with all concerns, be they little or big, alike, and while we are sorry to sever business relations with a company we have been friendly with for many years, we cannot, in justice to those who are abiding by our contract, do otherwise than to protect them under the conditions.

"It has been the policy of our company for many years to distribute our goods only through the wholesalers, and that all must be treated alike, and we consider that the violation of the selling agreement is unfair to those who maintain the provisions of the contract. Those who sell less than the stipulated price take unfair advantage of those who do not, and it would not be right for our company to overlook these infractions, either for the interests of our own or our majority customers.

"We have found that the wholesaler is the best distributing medium for our products, and we have followed that line for many years, and the success of our house shows that our plan was right, or we would not have been in the commercial position we are now.

"We are sorry that we were compelled to take the course we did, but there was no other open. The concern has been one of our best friends, and largest customers, and there was never the slightest friction until a few months ago."

Exhibits at Canada's Great Eastern Exhibition

Unfavorable Weather at Sherbrooke Kept Down Attendance but not Enthusiasm — Foods Shown for the First Time—Attractive Exhibits by Manufacturers Caught the Attention of the Grocery Trade—Some of the Displays Illustrated.

Sherbrooke, September 14th. — The 25th annual exhibition under the auspices of the Eastern Townships' Agricultural Association, at Sherbrooke, was, unfortunately, attended by such poor weather that the number of visitors was hardly as large as last year. However, it was a great success and those who did attend were well satisfied with the exhibits.

EASTERN TOWNSHIPS EXHIBITION—Exhibit of Rock City Tobacco Co.

The show of horses was fully up to that of last year and the exhibit of cattle was one of the finest ever seen on the grounds. There were many exhibits in the main building which claimed the attention of the grocery trade. One or two of the old regular exhibitors were missing but then there were also some new faces. Mackintosh's Toffee was shown for the first time—in fact the candy distributed and sold was of the first Canadian boilings. The inevitable baby contest was held and the three first prizes carried off by "Borden's babies." This company donated twelve special prizes for this event. Packards polishes and shoe bindings, etc., were shown in a manner which won for the exhibit the diploma of the fair, for the best dressed booth. J. B. Crochier who was in charge has been succeeded in the Eastern Townships by James Leddy. Fonner's orangeade was shown and free drinks of this beverage served by E. F. Trimble and assistants. There were many others of which the following illustrations are good samples:

THE ROCK CITY TOBACCO CO.

This was a very well decorated and set up exhibit, the work of C. S. Milette, the company's popular Eastern Townships' representative. The main feature of the exhibit was the showing of their famous "Rose Quesnal" brand of Canadian tobacco, a brand which has perhaps the largest sale of any in the Dominion. Among the other lines shown appeared the popular "Pipe Kenel" brand compressed plug smoking tobacco, the sales of which are rapidly approaching the volume of that attained by "Rose Quesnal. "Long Tom," too, had a place and little can be said to strengthen the hold that this brand has on the favor of smokers, and another of their brands in the same class is their "Master Mason" cut plug smoking tobacco.

An interesting part of the display was the leaf tobacco shown in the various stages of its manufacture up to finished cigars. Of these the exhibit consisted of the popular "Check" five cent cigars and "Laurier" ten centers. In connection with the latter was displayed a sample of the fine painting in oils of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, each one of which is valued at $40, but which are given away free to merchants purchasing 1,000 or more cigars of this brand.

DOMINION CEREAL MANUFACTURING COMPANY, LIMITED.

Some months ago L. G. Heon commenced to manufacture "Cafe Francais" at Victoriaville, Que. For a long time previously to this he was at work perfecting the special machinery needed to cut, roast and cool the imported French wheat used in its manufacture. It is simply the very finest French wheat washed and prepared by a secret process and the result is a delicious beverage. Besides being very palatable it is absolutely free from the harmful drug caffeine and possess nutritious qualities in a marked degree as is testified by many eminent analysts and doctors.

EASTERN TOWNSHIPS EXHIBITION—Dominion Cereal Manufacturing Co.'s Display.

The company is growing a crop of this wheat near Lindsay, Ontario, in an endeavor to ascertain whether or not Canadian climate is adaptable for the production of this special species of wheat. The result is still uncertain.

That the drink is fast becoming popular is testified by the fact that 8,000 pounds (four tons) of the cereal was recently sold in Montreal in one week. The first day's sales at the fair was over 2,200 pounds. The Dominion Cereal Manufacturing Co. is the only concern in Canada manufacturing this sort of beverage and the process is patented.

At the present 16 hands are employed at the factory and already extensions are planned. There is a big market ahead of "Cafe Francais."

There were four attendants at this booth which was incessantly besieged with visitors clamoring for a drink of this delicious beverage.

POINTERS—

Teas—Advance expected.

Sugar—Firm.

California Dried Fruits—Strong market.

Montreal, Sept. 16, 1909.

Canned salmon has remained fairly steady this week in spite of indications that it would go higher. Sugar has remained firm. Teas are high and in all probability will go still higher. Japans particularly are scarce. Until the new crop arrives, the dried fruit market will be very bare although it continues active. A few early apples have appeared, chiefly Duchess and Alexanders.

In general, trade is good for this time of year, and prices are comparatively steady.

Jacona, now loading currants at Patras, will be the last direct steamer to Montreal this season.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Sugar—Sales brisk.

Tea—Market firm.

Spices—Good demand.

Nuts—Easier prices.

Toronto, September 16, 1909.

The wholesale trade is active and looking forward to a splendid business this fall. The Exhibition visitors who called in to see the men who get all their money, reported good prospects all over. In consequence of their visit a good deal of goods was shipped out this week. On the whole, business is quite satisfactory and hopeful. The sugar trade, although up 10c per 100-lbs. is still brisk and sales have not suffered in consequence. Those who had exhibits at the Exhibition are well pleased with the results and expect increases in their business.

SUGAR—The recent advance in sugar has not in any way affected the sales. The fruit must be taken care of and to do that the sugar is required.

TEA PRODUCTION AND TRADE OF INDIA.

The area under tea in all India during the year 1908 was 544,937 acres, producing 246,722,551 pounds. In value the exports of tea from India during 1908-9 amounted to $33,743,627, or 7.2 per cent. of the total of all exports of merchandise from the country. The United Kingdom took 177,259,000 pounds; Russia, 18,552,000 pounds; Australia, 8,998,000 pounds; China, 6,770,000 pounds; and the United States, 2,139,000 pounds of the tea exported. There was an increase of 7,934,000 pounds in sales to the United Kingdom, 3,145,000 pounds in sales to Russia, and a decrease of 1,979,000 pounds in

SULTANA RAISINS A GOOD CROP.

Ernest L. Harris at Smyrna, sends a report dated July 26, to the effect that this season's crop of raisins in that Turkish district is estimated at 1,200,000 kintals (145,230,000 pounds), against 900,000 kintals (108,922,500 pounds) last year, the vines being overcharged with fruit. The quality is not yet definite, as weather conditions in July and August have great influence on the crop. It is feared that prices of sultanas this year will be very low on account of the large crop, but the Ottoman Government has proposed to submit to Parliament a law prohibiting the exportation of sultanas of inferior quality, so as to sustain prices, and give a chance for the introduction of alcohol manufacturing industries.

Disadvantages of Price Cutting in British Columbia — British Columbia Canneries in Operation — Methods That a Calgary Beginner is Using—Western Retail Merchants' Association Incorporated.

VANCOUVER.

September 14.—The harm resulting from the cutting of prices on an article is shown here in the case of a particular brand of catsup. This is bought wholesale at 24c, and retails generally at 30c. Some of the grocers in the down-town section who offer bargains as pullers have been selling it for 25c, with the result that trade is apt to fall off. A grocer in one of the residential districts said to your representative: "I have customers coming in, who, when I quote 30c for it, tell me that they can get it elsewhere for 25c, and when I reply that I cannot sell it for that they think I am very high in price. The result is that I do not handle it at all, since there is so much uncertainty about it, in preference to other brands."

Canning companies in the Okanagan are in operation this year. The Wood Lake cannery's first run proved very successful, the quality of the product being all that could be desired. Wilson Bros., of Victoria, have purchased the whole of this year's output of the Kelowna Canning Company, and negotiations are being made to secure next year's pack as well.

Tom White has gone on a trip to Fernie, where he was formerly in charge of the grocery department of the Trites-Wood department stores.

Broder Bros., who came from the American side of the line about a year ago and established a fruit-canning business at New Westminster, are about to start a vinegar factory. The vinegar will be made from apples, the capacity of the plant being 45 barrels a day. This firm will also start canning clams in a couple of months, and canned crab will be another departure. This latter was experimented with last year and found to be successful. As for the clam canning, the hulk of an old steamer will be used and taken around to wherever clams are caught by the hunters, mostly Indians.

Stewart & Co. have opened a new grocery store in Nelson, B.C., under the management of Major Lorne Stewart.

Thomas Cunningham, provincial inspector of fruit pests, is back from an extended trip to the eastern part of the province, where he inaugurated a thorough system of inspection of fruit coming from the United States. While there he condemned a large shipment at Kingsgate, and another consignment of wormy peaches for the Nelson market. Mr. Cunningham is highly pleased with prospects in the Kootenay. There the damage from last winter's frosts, which affected other parts of the province, are hardly noticeable, although the crop of fruit will be light. As an instance of the progress in that district, he said that at Creston, seven years ago, he held a meeting and advised settlers, who were engaged in cutting ties, to turn their attention to fruit. Many did so, and achieved success. Two young men, in particular, have made splendid orchards by their own exertions, and one of them was offered $25,000 for his place a short time ago, but refused to sell. A large number of new orchards were noticed in the Kootenay. In the Grand Forks district, where the Italian prune is extensively grown, a Mr. Hanzburger expects to ship ten carloads this year. Among the apples, Mr. Cunninghom found the McIntosh Red to be best this year in cultivation, quality and frost-resisting powers. The Wealthy and Duchess varieties have also done well.

CALGARY.

September 14.—The grocery business like the boundaries of Calgary's residential districts continues to extend. Paterson & Mills have recently taken over the Bow Marsh Grocery; the premises have been enlarged, refitted, and neatly painted, thus adding greatly to the appearance of this west end establishment. The present proprietors are capable grocers, Mr. Paterson having spent several years behind the grocery counter in the Hudson's Bay stores here, and for the past three years city salesman for G. F. & J. Galt, Ltd., wholesale grocers. His experience together with personal qualities admirably fit him for his new undertaking. Mr. Mills was for a number of years proprietor of the Palmers Cafe, a high class 8th Ave. confectionery and refreshment house. Both partners have spent several years in Calgary, have a good connection, and with the city growing westward the business of the Bow Marsh Grocery is bound to expand. The new firm carry only reputable goods and are determined to build up a business on quality, fair prices, courteous treatment of all customers, prompt delivery and terms cash or thirty days to all approved accounts.

The most important change in wholesale grocery circles is the drop in price of condensed milk and evaporated cream. How long the present low prices will prevail is a mere guess. It is certainly a propitious time for the retailer to stock up.

Sugars after a long period of steady prices took an upward trend, resulting in an advance of 10c. per 100 lbs. Other grocery lines are unchanged, but the market is firm.

Flour and rolled oats are likely to decline shortly, although the latter will not be affected for a week or two, until new oats begin to move freely.

Some apprehension was felt through a report that Alberta wheat would not come up to the usual high grade of former years. This has happily been dispelled by a statement over the signature of Grain Inspector Hill to the effect that Alberta wheat would grade No. 1 and a good No. 2. Prices being paid are satisfactory and the next month or two should see millions of bushels marketed throughout the province.

WINNIPEG.

Sept. 14.—A meeting of the retail merchants of the city was held in Travelers' Hall on the evening of Sept. 17. The object was the discussion of the incorporation of the Western Retailers' Association. The wording of the charter had been previously prepared, also a constitution and by-laws. The former was drawn up by Edwin Loftus, of Mulock & Loftus, and was pronounced by the members complete and satisfactory. The constitution and by-laws were prepared by a committee consisting of W. R. Milton, W. T. Devlin, Horace Chevier, Jas. Hyndman, John Dyke, Norman Lindsay and A. T. Connell. Both by-laws and text of charter were adopted. The terms of the proposed Act, as drawn up by Mr. Loftus, embody the incorporation of the association with perpetual succession and a common seal, which may be changed by a by-law; the power of consideration and discussion of all questions affecting the retail business and the protection of the interests of retail merchants; the communication with chambers of commerce, boards of trade, and other mercantile and public bodies in retail interests; improvements in the law affecting retail merchants; the collection of debts for members; the providing of club conveniences for members and friends; the supplying of information regarding persons seeking employment in the retail business; the recovering by suit or action in the name of the association of all subscriptions and penalties due under any by-law. In the meantime the business of the association is being carried on in the old rooms of the association, in the Travelers' Building. The work of Acting-Secretary Clark has been generally commended by the merchants with whom he has came in contact, and it is pleasing to note the general harmony that prevails in every phase of the work of the association.

D. W. Buchanan, of the Buchanan nurseries, St. Charles, Man., called at the Winnipeg office of The Canadian Grocer recently. Mr. Buchanan's name is perhaps the most familiar one in the sphere of horticultural experimentation in Canada. He produced nine varieties of plums, which he had cultivated, by crossing the wild native plum with other varieties. The plums are declared by experts to compare favorably with the celebrated "American." Dr. Saunders, of the experimental farm, Ottawa, is highly pleased with Mr. Buchanan's achievement, and says that the new variety will grow luxuriantly anywhere. When these varieties become propagated, it will only be a matter of about three years when the local market can be supplied with Manitoba grown plums.

The great rush of the day among the retailers is in the fresh fruit trade. Until recently the preserving has been decidedly limited, owing it is thought, to the supposition that housekeepers have been waiting for the time when cheaper fruit would be obtainable. The price, however, is not lower than in previous years, in spite of the extra attempts to have it so. One thing, however, is noticeable, and that is, the quality of the Ontario fruit is greatly improved.. If the Western and Ontario co-operative Company has not been successful in landing fruit at lower prices than heretofore paid, they have been successful in establishing a new record in handling Ontario fruit, and in landing it in good condition. The C. P. R. some time ago negotiated with the British Columbia fruit growers in order to perfect the facilities for fruit transportation from that province. As far as distance is concerned there is no reason why fruit from Ontario could not be brought in as well as from the western province. And if the Ontario shippers have secured the assurance of more rapid and perfect transportation from the railways, the western provinces should be more liberally supplied with fruit than ever before.

A permit has been granted G. F. & J. Galt, wholesale grocers and tea importers. for the construction of a six storey warehouse and basement on a prominent corner in this city. The building will be 92 feet by 80 feet in dimensions.

J. Patterson has been granted the tender to supply groceries to the isolated hospital for one year. Those who tendered were asked to state their price for each individual article to be supplied, and although Mr. Patterson did not make any sacrifice, his items totalled considerably less than any other merchant.

W. Harbing, chief clerk in the employ of the J. G. Hargrave Grocery Company, returned last week from a trip to the coast. Mr. Harbing strongly recommends a brief holiday for all grocery clerks.

W. Flavelle and A. E. Silverwood, of Flavelle's Ltd., wholesale produce merchants, London, Ont., were in the city last week, reviewing the produce trade. It is rumored that the London Company may open a branch in Winnipeg.

Mr. Baird, of Christie-Brown Co., Toronto, and Walter Woods, of Hamilton, called on retailers last week.

new crop harvests and new crop outlooks. Perhaps there is no time in the year when the output is as large as at present. The extended period of beautiful weather is good for the farmer, and harvest supplies continue to go out in large quantities. The various construction camps in every part of the country have been a constant drain on the wholesalers. The fact is that the weather has been so favorable to the farmer that he has had little time to visit the merchant regularly. The consequence is that little money is coming in and the merchants have not finished ordering their later fall and winter stocks. The season will be comparatively long this year and the usual fall business will be prolonged into the winter months.

Housewives have delayed their preserving duties in the hope of getting cheaper fruit, and many are disappointed; the result is that there is a great rush in the fruit line at present before the season closes. Prices are quite firm, but large quantities are moving. The preserving means a good trade in sugar and this has tended to advance the price that was quoted last week.

SUGAR—We quote an advance of 10 cents on all sugar. The market has been strong for some time previous to the rise.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES—A decline has just taken place in syrup. Both brands maintain a uniform price. The trade is good and lower prices may stimulate the output. The new crop of corn is the cause of the break.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS — Last week's declines in prunes and currants remain unchanged. Valencia raisins are much firmer, owing to a shortage in the much firmer. Owing to an advance in the new crop an advance of a shilling per 100 lbs. is reported. It is assumed that the advance will be made on the market before the new goods arrive.

MAPLE PRODUCTS—Local retailers are pushing off old sugar stocks at present at a low figure. The syrup market is injured by the mapleine, which sells at a lower price. As a consequence little of the genuine is moving.

HONEY — Wholesalers have their stocks in and it is mostly Ontario production. The Manitoba product, although acknowledged to be slightly superior in quality, has the same market as the Ontario. The following prices prevail:

" 5 " "	0 75
" 12 oz. jars, per dozen	2 10

CORNMEAL—These figures have remained unchanged for some time. The trade is quite good generally.

NUTS—Shelled nuts have rarely been so high before on the western market. Walnuts are up 1c, and almonds are still firm. Sales are heavy.

BUTTER—This commodity is in fairly good demand, particularly the No. 1 dairy, which is jobbing just now for about 21c. No. 2 is moving from 16c to 17c per lb. The creamery, which always has a good market, is 24c to-day.

EGGS—The fresh laid candled eggs are 24c per dozen to-day. The demand for eggs is good, notwithstanding the uncertain quality. The first order for southern eggs left the city last week.

LARD

The prediction which we made regarding prices for Lard during September has been more than proved correct. The quotations this week are the highest we have ever known. Such, however, is the scarcity of Pure Lard that we should not be surprised to see prices even higher before the end of the month.

We want to remind you we have excellent Lard Compounds and Cooking Oils. These are quoted at very reasonable prices and are being largely sold at the present time.

Produce and Provision Situation of the World

Few Hopes for Packers in Getting a Sufficient Supply of Hogs —Not Enough Stock Fed on the Farm—Surplus of Butter on Hand—Cheese Prices High.

Hopes for more liberal supplies of hogs and lower prices must be abandoned for the present, and likely for some time to come. Hogs are not in the country to supply the requirements of the packing houses to meet the constantly and rapidly growing demand for cured meats, and farmers, in spite of the high price, are not disposed to go largely into hog-raising. The high price of feed tempts them to sell the grain, and save them the trouble of feeding swine.

This, however, must be drifting away from the best methods of farming. The custom of selling everything off the farm was followed by the farmers years ago, until they found that their land was so exhausted that it was impossible to raise paying crops. A better system was introduced, and more cattle, sheep and hogs were kept, and the grain fed on the farm and returned to the soil. This improved the land to such an extent that farmers are now raising more than double what they did then. The present generation is now reaping the benefit of the lessons learned by their fathers and are forgetting that they are in danger of drifting back into the same unfortunate condition again.

Hogs are now selling at country points throughout Ontario at $8.25 per 100 lbs. f.o.b. live weight. This, at even the high prices of feed, which, however, is grown by the farmers themselves, must leave a fattening profit to them, to say nothing of the value which goes back to the land.

The butter market is now, and has been for some time, waiting for something to turn up. That the large surplus of our butter, which is not required for our local needs, is still on the hands of dealers and makers, must be admitted, and unless some foreign demand springs up to take this from our hands, we may have a repetition of last year's experience. The English market just now is ready to take some, but our prices are just a few cents above their idea of the value of it. In a very short time they will look for fresh supplies from Australia and New Zealand, and if the prospects materialize they will have there a large increase in their production.

Cheese is very much in the same position. Prices during the whole season have been at a point where it required an extra strain to reach them. As our cheese, however, as a rule, will be required in England at some time during the year, it stands in that respect on safer ground than our butter.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS.—The market is quiet. Supplies are short, which has caused a slight rise in some of the lines. It is expected prices will be easier shortly.

BUTTER.—Creamery butter is higher in the country, owing to the decrease in make, and competition among some buyers to secure stocks while the market is at present level. Apparently stocks are accumulating here and it is difficult to say how the market will shape later on. Dairy butter is in slow demand. The total receipts for the week were 13,522 packages as against 12,791 packages for the corresponding week last year. The total receipts for this season are 308,211 packages as against 281,581 packages same period 1908.

PROVISIONS.—Hogs are again higher, and as a natural consequence prices of several lines of cured meats have advanced from ½ to 1c. per lb. Lard especially is scarce and higher. "Will this high price affect the consumption ?" was asked by The Grocer representative. "Not a bit, I never saw as good a demand in my life," was the reply.

"Well, do you call these good times ?" "I do not," said the manufacturer, "I think the ordinary working people as well as the business men have a hard struggle to make things meet. The farmer is king now."

The reference to "bonusing babies" was not made by Mr. Moyer, but was contained in another article written by a consumer, and which followed directly after Mr. Moyer's story on "The Policy of Retailers Going Out for Orders."

New Ontario Merchants Lead in Store Equipment.

F. C. Preston, & Co., Haileybury, Have Latest Methods for Holding and Increasing Trade—Exclusive Cash Trade Necessitated by Drifting Population—Up-to-Date Bin Fixtures, Show Cases and Shelving—Carry Dry Goods as Well.

Haileybury, Ont., Sept. 13.—General merchants in old Ontario must not go away with the idea that there are no up-to-date stores in the north. Right here in Haileybury—a thriving New Ontario town—practically discovered but yesterday—there is a retail store second to none north of Toronto.

It belongs to F. C. Preston & Co., and is laid out in modern style and fitted up with the most modern equipment.

The F. C. Preston Co., although only in business for the past twenty months, have worked up a splendid trade.

Their store is a solid pressed brick building, handsomely fitted with the latest bin fixtures and sectional show cases and shelving. The block is electric lighted and steam heated.

Handsome Interior of the Grocery Department of F. C. Preston & Co., Haileybury, New Ontario.

Do Cash Trade Only.

Since coming to Haileybury, the company have carried on a strictly cash business. They carry on hand at all times an average stock of about $10,000 in groceries. This may seem a rather large stock for the population of this town, which is only between four and five thousand people, but owing to the large floating population that is constantly coming and going, this being the great distributing point, they have to carry a large stock.

F. C. Preston has had some eighteen years' experience in the general store business, having been associated with the Playfair-Preston Company, of Midland. In coming to this section of the country he has been very successful, and that success he attributes to the running of a cash business.

The fact that Haileybury is located in a mining district makes it practically necessary to do a cash business. So many come so suddenly and leave similarly that credit to them would be disastrous.

A Splendid Interior.

F. C. Preston & Co. pride themselves in having one of the best-appointed grocery departments in the north—in fact, the fittings, as the accompanying illustration implies, are not excelled in any of the large city stores. The size of the department is 18x80 feet, with a 14-foot ceiling.

The company has also a large dry goods and men's furnishing department. The size of the whole store is 50x80 feet.

CANADA ON THE ALERT.

Trade Between This Country and South Africa Recognized by United States Authorities.

Edwin S. Cunningham, Durban, South Africa, writing from a United States standpoint in reference to the efforts of the Canadian government to promote trade between Canada and South Africa says:

"The Canadian government is on the alert to obtain as much of the South African trade as possible for its manufacturers. It is fully alive to the fact that this trade will be a very important one in time, and the appointment of a trade commissioner, with headquarters in Durban, for Natal, Transvaal, Orange Colony, Portuguese, and British East Africa, gives notice to the rest of the world that it is the intention to place the Canadian exporter in possession of as great an amount of information as is possible to obtain as to the trade conditions existing in this district, so that he may avail himself of the lower freight rate on certain articles made possible by the Canadian-Cape Direct Steamship Line.

"Many articles are carried by this line from St. John to Durban at a cheaper rate than they are carried from New York. Besides this, Canada being a reciprocating British colony, obtains a preference in the matter of duty upon her merchandise shipments. There is no doubt that American business will increase, or at least hold its present proportions in South Africa, but with an American line of steamers a trade between American ports and South Africa would materially increase.

"The value of imports into British South Africa from Canada in 1907 was $1,927,528, and in 1908, $2,055.445. The imports into Natal for the same two years were $723,356 and $557.726, respectively."

WEDNESDAY HALF HOLIDAY.

Some Toronto Grocers Want it the Whole Year Round—Their Reasons for it.

Toronto, September 15.—Some of the grocers who had their stores closed on Wednesday afternoon during June, July and August, and suffered no loss are now considering whether it would not work to have them closed not only during these months but during the whole year.

They claim that the ordinary laboring people who work no harder than they do, get a half holiday each Saturday, but as they could not ask for the Saturday they should have the half holiday each Wednesday. They also claim that during the winter, there would be no fruit to spoil and that nothing would interfere with business as it does in the summer.

They also say that it takes several months to get customers used to the store being closed, and if they were closed all the year on Wednesday afternoons they would find no difficulty. While these are discussing the advisability of weekly half holidays, there are others who are opposed to it entirely They never close on any Wednesday. The trouble therefore would be to get them united.

However, those who close through the summer state that as soon as their customers get used to it, they lose no business. If this is the case it would show that the general public would sympathize with the merchants and govern themselves accordingly in making their purchases.

FIX RETAILERS' SUGAR PRICES.

B. C. Sugar Refining Company Issue Ultimatum to the Trade.

Vancouver, September 14.—The latest move in the sugar situation here is the ultimatum by the B. C. Sugar Refining Company that the dealer who sells its product shall sell it at a certain price come of the bringing here of sugar manutured by no other firm. This is the outcome of its bringing here of sugar manufactured by the Glebe Company, of Greenock, Scotland. This has always been sold at 25c cheaper than the British Columbia product. Last week mention was made of a step by the B.C. Sugar Refining Company to meet this opposition.

In issuing the following circular to the trade, the B.C. Sugar Refining Company, increase the price of sugar half a cent per pound: "The sugar covered by this invoice is sold to you under the conditions that it be not resold to the consumer at less than the following fixed prices, viz., standard granulated in 100 lb. bags, $6; standard granulated in 20 lb. bags, $1.25, and further that no sugar is bought or sold by you other than that manufactured by the B. C. Sugar Refining Company, Ltd., and in case both of these conditions are not adhered to no further orders for sugar will be accepted from you."

The increase in the price of sugar is from $5.50 to $6 per 100 pounds, which is 75c more than the imported article.

Some Grocers have decided that it is not good business to import Fancy Biscuits

They do not question the quality of Fancy European lines—before shipment. But, they know that a long sea voyage depreciates the flavor of any food stuffs. Besides, it ties up cash in considerable quantities placing long orders months ahead. That's how they argue the point. They stock

Flour, Cereals and Confectionery Department

Millers Paying More for Wheat but Flour Prices Remain as Last Week—Some Figures About the World's Supply—No Change in Cereal Products—Good Demand for Confectionery.

The flour and wheat situation is still in an unsettled condition. The old stock is pretty well exhausted and the new stock has hardly began to move. According to the Hungarian estimate of the world's supply, this year's wheat crop exceeds last year by 262 million bushels. If this estimate is anything like correct, and the world's daily need is 1,400,000 bushels, then this surplus would feed the world 180 days, and the entire crop of this year would feed the whole world for over 6 years if we did not grow another bushel. This will probably explain why dealers in spite of all the newspaper reports are acting cautiously and according to their own judgment. Reports when figured out very often show their absurdity. At the Canadian National Exhibition an enthusiastic demonstrator made the statement that they served 30,000 people in one day with a little lunch. This would mean that, if they kept going for 8 hours, 62 people had to enter the booth, sit down, eat the lunch and get out again every minute.

Besides the uncertain reports, millers are taking this time of the year to repair their mills, which also has an effect on the market. Farmers are yet too busy to bring out much wheat, and in order to get supplies, millers in some places are paying $1.02 which is a few cents higher than last week. The harvest in the Northwest is progressing rapidly, the quality of the wheat is excellent and the yield quite up to expectations. Although wheat is holding its own at the present time, it is, however, the general opinion that lower prices will rule later on.

Confectionery manufacturers state that there is a good demand for high class goods from the best grocers in the various cities. They expect that Christmas orders will be large this year in view of the better trade feeling in the country and the tendency of consumers to purchase confectionery for Christmas presents.

FLOUR—There is not much wheat coming out. Farmers are not as much in a hurry to sell as was anticipated, and in order to get it, millers are paying $1.02 a bushel, which is 2 cents higher than last week. One miller says, "we are paying $1.02 but it is not worth it." They must have it to supply their trade. How Peanuts Grow and Different Types and Classes Produced in America—Various Uses of the Peanut in the Preparation of Human Food.

PEANUTS—There are several varieties of peanuts grown and placed on the market, with about five or six distinct kinds in the United States alone. Peanuts, to correct a wrong impression entertained by some, grow on the roots of the peanut plant something like potatoes. They shoot out from underground stocks which extend from the base of the stem. When ripened they have to be dug from the earth like potatoes and of course roasted before they are ready for eating purposes.

By classifying the varieties of peanuts according to types, we have the jumbo-large podded—and the smaller podded peas. These are subdivided into bunch and running peas. The kinds having a bunch habit of growth are the more general as they can be planted closer together than the running varieties.

The following facts about different classes of peanuts are interesting :

VIRGINIA BUNCH.—Large-podded variety, plant rather dwarf, stems upright, foliage rather light ; pods clustered about the base of plant ; usually two, sometimes three, seeds in a pod ; pod bright and clean ; colors of peas light brown ; pods adhere well to plant in digging. The customary weight per bushel of this variety is 22 pounds.

VIRGINIA RUNNER.—Large-podded variety, strong grower, stems creeping, foliage heavy ; pods scattered along procumbent stems ; pods and peas very similar to those of the Virginia Bunch ; pods do not adhere well in digging. The customary weight per bushel of this variety is 22 pounds.

NORTH CAROLINA.—Similar to Virginia Runner, except that plant is not so large or vigorous, and pods and peas are both smaller. This variety contains a high percentage of oil.

SPANISH. — Small-podded variety strong grower, stems upright, foliage abundant and heavy ; pods clustered about base of plant ; usually two seeds in a pod, entirely filling the pod ; pods rough and inclined to be darkened in color ; color of peas light brown ; pods adhere well to plant in digging. This variety frequently yields 60 bushels of marketable peas and 2 tons of hay to the acre. The peas of this variety are rich in oil content. The weight per bushel of Spanish peanuts is 28 pounds.

TENNESSEE RED. — Small-podded variety ; similar to Spanish, except that the pods are longer, sometimes containing five or six peas crowded together ; peas dull red in color. This variety is well adapted to stock feeding, but does not sell upon the market, owing to the color and quality of the peas.

DIXIE GIANT.—The variety known as Dixie Giant is so called, owing to the great size of its pods. It is distinctly a novelty, does not yield well and requires a long season for the pods to mature. Recommended only for southern part of Gulf coast States. The peas of this variety are very large and are desirable for the manufacture of fancy blanched nuts.

The peanut is eaten from the shell, as salted shelled peas, as blanched peas, in the so-called peanut candies and brittle, in combination with popcorn and puffed rice, in the form of peanut butter and as an ingredient of peanut and vegetable meats, peanut meal and salad oils.

TO EMPLOY PROGRESSIVE METHODS.

A change in the proprietorship of the Maple Leaf Grocery, Goderich, Ont., has taken place. J. W. Vanatter, well known to the people of Goderich, taking over Mr. Snyder's interest in the business, which will now be conducted under the style of Morrish & Vanatter. Mr. Snyder has been in indifferent health for some time and has been seeking relief from the cares of business, and Mr. Vanatter, who recently took a trip out west, having decided to remain in Goderich the transfer was effected. The firm will employ progressive methods in their business, and with one of the best-located and most commodious stands in Goderich, a staff of experienced clerks and a large and excellent stock of good groceries, will doubtless command a good share of the patronage of the town and vicinity.

"BACK TO MONTREAL" WEEK.

Although it is too early as yet to give any details as to the effect of so many visitors on the grocery trade of the city, it is plain from first indications that it will be largely increased. Several thousand visitors over and above the usual number means many more meals served, and that of course has its direct effect on the hotel and restaurant trade and through them on the grocers. Both wholesalers and retailers already report larger orders in preparation for the week, and prospects are that every one will feel it even more strongly later.

Decorations in the way of flags, signs, electric and otherwise, and banners are visible everywhere, and as a special means of showing honor to the visitors, Wednesday, the 15th, has been set aside as a public holiday.

WAITING ON THE HEN.

A pioneer of country week work was praising the country vacation.

"A country vacation is better than a seashore one," she said, "You see things so much quainter. And the further into the country you go the quainter become the things you see."

"I once spent August in a village called the Head of Sassafras. The post office there was the general store. The morning after my arrival I went to the general store for my mail.

"A little girl preceded me with an egg in her hand."

"'Gimme an egg's worth of tea, please," I heard her say to the post-master-store-keeper; "and ma says ye might weigh out an egg's worth of sugar, too, for the black hen's a-cluckin', and I'll be up again in a minute,"

ENGLISH COFFEE.

The American opinion of coffee, as understood in the English home, is not high, and how the coffee of the English lodgings is esteemed may be understood from the following traveler's tale. It was his first morning in London "apartments," and his landlady came up with the breakfast, and as he began the meal opened a slight conversation.

"It looks like rain," she said.

"It does," replied the American, "but it smells rather like coffee."—London Chronicle.

NEW COLD STORAGE PLANT.

The B. Wilson, Company, Ltd., Victoria, B. C., have recently occupied their new cold storage plant, completed and equipped with an up-to-date plant involving an expenditure of $100,000. Eight years ago the firm began business and since then it has grown so rapidly that several extensions have since been made.

ONTARIO AS A FRUIT GROWER.

A placard on the fruit exhibit of Ontario at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, read as follows:

"Ontario produces 75 per cent. of all fruits grown in Canada.
60 per cent of plums.
70 per cent. of apples.
80 per cent. of small fruits.
99 per cent. of peaches and grapes."

THE LEMON CREED

There is more real—actual—value in a box of "ST. NICHOLAS" Lemons at any time of the year—in any year—than any other brand of lemons on the market to-day, yesterday, or any old day—and that has been so for 28 years. There may be times when things occur over which we, "The Common People," have no control: the carriers may not use the fruit right and we may be unable to get revenge—Providence may interfere (not just because we are in the lemon biz, but just because—)—which things may make us lose money, but give "ST. NICHOLAS" a fair show—in fact, you may even handicap it some—and you will make more "REAL" money (the kind you can take a trip to California on) in a year than any other pack of lemons in existence to-day, or likely to be.

GREEN FRUITS—The exhibition is over, the country friends have left and now the preserving rush is on and the demand for fruit is greater. Carload after carload as they arrive are picked up so rapidly that everything is cleaned up every night. Peaches are at their best, this week, and there never was nicer fruit sold in this market. Plums, also, are here in abundance and of every variety. Pears show up well. Apples are in good demand, and are sold by the basket. Lawtonberries hold out well and are still arriving daily. Grapes are coming in more plentifully, but they are still a little on the green side and therefore sour.

VEGETABLES—The city stores are now largely supplied with vegetables from the local gardeners, which do not reach the market, and still the large quantities which arrive by train are all taken, and the market is cleared up each day. Cantaloupes and tomatoes are the leaders this week, and are selling at low prices. With so much cool weather and danger of frost, the tomatoes escaped well and the supply both for immediate use and for packing is liberal, and therefore canned tomatoes will be a reasonable price this year.

FISH—The fish market is very active, the demand is brisk, and the supply is increasing. Prices seldom change. Contracts are made for the season and dealers get very little chance to boost the market. The fish arrive in good condition which helps to increase the consumption. Oysters are now in season, and are coming in sanitary packages, solid meat. Instead of being in ordinary pails with the ice with the oysters, they are now packed solid in a tin inside of another which is packed with ice. They are selling at $1.90 per gallon for selects and $1.60 for standards.

Allison COUPON BOOK SYSTEM

A man wants credit. You think he is good. Give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book. Have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10 — No trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on until the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes.

A Great Selling Team

¶ Buyers must be moved through several steps to be brought to the buying point.

¶ They must have their attention attracted to the article. They must have their interest in it awakened. They must be informed as to its nature, utility and merits. They must be convinced of its value. They must be moved to action—to closing.

¶ Good salesmen and good trade-paper advertising make a great team to carry the buyer through these several stages to the buying point. Alone, the salesman is at a disadvantage.

Getting Your Name Up---

SOME advertisers have a way of thinking that the advertisement that doesn't bring in immediately and directly more than it cost is a failure. "Yet they know perfectly well," says the New York Journal of Commerce, "that 'getting your name up' is a far more valuable asset than the mere sale of a bill of goods; that the big houses of the country have reputations quite as much because they advertise like big houses as because their ads bring direct sales of goods. There is no more certain way to remain small than by letting the world know that you regard yourself as small—too small and poor to be able to advertise."

Advertising except for a mail order proposition seldom completes sales. It does, however, move the buyer through several stages toward the buying point, and therefore, it must be credited with necessary selling work.

VALUE OF GOOD COPY

Personally, I believe "ads." in trade papers should be made so attractive, so interesting in some way that the merchant as he glances through the trade journal will stop and see what you have to say. The simple announcement that you are in business is not enough. I don't care how prominent a firm is, they should not get the idea they are so big that all they need to do is to reproduce their name on a page in a trade journal and say nothing more. They should do something to make the merchant curious; in fact, somewhat anxious to meet the travelling man you are sending out to represent you.

The "life blood" has not been taken away from the imported fruit skins used for "Taylor's Peels" because the essential oil has not been extracted, leaving them like the sere and dried-up Autumn leaf.

Taylor's Candied and Dried Peels represent the height of high quality. Whether the Lemon, Citron or Orange Peel is wanted you are just as certain of getting the best in "Taylor's" every single time.

MR. GROCER,

Have you ever stopped to think over the question as to which of the most popular Package Teas gives you the best returns? Compare our prices against other package teas you are handling. We think you will soon see, with the popularity Blue Ribbon Tea has with the General Public to-day, that, if you are not handling our lines, it would be to your advantage to do so.

STRAIGHT POINTERS

Dealers who are in the market for Canned Goods will find it distinctly to their advantage to order the "Essex" brand, based on these prime facts:

—We are located in the finest garden section of Canada, where Corn and Tomatoes grow to perfection.

—We own one of the largest, newest and most perfect canning plants in the Dominion, with every facility for doing things right.

—We are thoroughly independent and have no connection in any way with the Canners' Combine or any other trust.

—We expect to pay something for advertising and are putting all we possibly can of value into all our goods.

Why not get the best when it costs no more? There are reasons why we can do better for you than any house in the trade. Put us to the test.

THE ESSEX CANNING AND PRESERVING CO., Limited

ESSEX - ONTARIO

A strong combination-

¶ An extensivegarden of three thousand acres in the heart of Prince Edward County, Ontario; a canning factory without a peer in the completeness of its modern sanitary and mechanical equipment, and the cleanliness and skill of its employees; that is the combination which produces "Farmer Brand" Canned Fruits and Vegetables.

¶ Consequently every can of Farmer Brand is pure in quality and perfect in flavor. Farmer Brand brings and retains for you the quality customers —people who want the very best and are willing to pay a fair price to get it.

The Farmers' Canning Company

Bloomfield, - Ontario

We are pleased to announce that we have appointed Mr. T. W. Edwards as our resident representative for the City of Toronto.

We will, as in the past, manufacture purely No. 1 Sugars, equal in quality to the best that is on the market.

Mr. Edwards will call on you regularly, and we trust will be favored with a share of your business.

Old Homestead Brand

Canned Fruit and Vegetables—

—of all the many brands of Canned Goods now before the public, perhaps stands in higher favor than any other.

The reason is not far to seek. Every suggestion or contrivance that care, skill, science or sanitation can afford has been embodied in the manufacture of these famous goods.

A long reputation for unequalled purity is being maintained, and every can is positively guaranteed to contain nothing but the fruit or vegetable the label indicates.

No preservatives or additions are either needed or used in canning

Get On The Winning Side

¶ The winning side of the flour question is not the one that makes the most profit per barrel or bag for you—but the one that wins the confidence of your customers.

¶ You can perhaps show a little more profit in the first sale of an inferior brand, but it will never inspire a customer's confidence in you that Purity Flour does.

¶ The superlative quality and uniformity of Purity Flour creates such a favorable opinion of your flour-judgment that a customer naturally concludes that you are a good judge of quality in other lines as well as flour. And you get her confidence and all her trade.

PURITY FLOUR

is on the winning side whatever way you look at it, so get on the winning side right away. It is easy to sell Purity because of its splendid quality-reputation. It is made exclusively of the high-grade constituents of the hard wheat berry—no low grade constituents in it. That is why it costs a little more, but it is really unsurpassed value.

¶ And it's THE BRAND you will push from now on if you are looking for a bigger future business.

Personality the Hope of the Small Canadian Grocer

Correspondent to an English Journal Tells of Conditions in Canadian Stores as He Finds Them—Suggests Methods as to How Mail-Order Competition Can be Met—Clerks and Employers as Comrades—Working Hours Becoming Shorter—The the Great Danger to the Trade.

A correspondent writing to "The Grocer and Oil Trade Review," an English journal, on retail conditions in Canada, gives some interesting information about methods used in this country and advice on how the competion of mail-order houses can be met. He says that the grocery trade in Canada may be said to be in the hands of two distinct classes, the ordinary grocer and the departmental store or universal provider. As a general rule, the retail trade in the big cities of North America is becoming concentrated in one district—the "downtown" district—to a greater extent than has been the case at home, but the grocery trade is more an exception to this rule than most, as there is generally a grocery store at one, and often two, of the four corners of every street intersection in the residential districts. Happily for the grocer, neither the multiple-shop system nor the co-operative society is developed to anything like the same extent as we know to our cost is the case at home; and owing to the primitive state of the roads, snow in winter, and other causes, the practice of rural deliveries by the big firms is not so damaging to the country retailer as will probably be the case ere many years. The Canadian grocer, therefore, still enjoys many of the advantages which we enjoyed until a generation ago, but competition is increasing at a greater rate than the population, and it is becoming more and more difficult for the grocer to make a good living.

The present danger to the trade seems to be the departmental store rather than the multiple shop; both are bad enough for the independent trader, but probably the departmental store does less damage to the grocer, though in some other trades it would probably do more damage than the multiple shop. The Canadian grocer has great belief in advertising, and spends a surprising amount of money with the local weekly paper, as well as on handbills and other printed matter. In the newspaper he generally mentions one or two lines in particular which are said to be "on sale," which means that the prices of those articles have been somewhat reduced for that week only. The reduction is quite genuine, and is made in the hope that the bargain-hunting instinct will induce customers to take this bait, and when they come to the shop they find a tasteful display, which makes them think that they need other things as well. Another form of advertising is to have elaborate shop fittings. Sharp competition with the departmental stores has done one good thing, and that is to displace credit business by cash sales.

Cash Buying a Habit.

The big stores, from the nature of their organization, cannot well have credit customers, though some try it, and so the public gets into the wholesome habit of paying cash over the counter. A good many high-class Canadian grocers have boldly set out to do nothing but cash trade, and while this resolution may somewhat reduce the number of customers, those who are eliminated are likely to be such as are hardly worth having; and although the grocer may advertise "cash only," he sometimes has accounts with a few safe customers in whom he has confidence. The tendency of the trade in Canada, as at home, is altogether in the direction of packet goods. Almost everything nowadays is handed over the counter in packets, and fewer things every year are weighed or measured from bulk. Packet teas, cocoa, or cornflour we know of old, but now the grocer has to stock raisins, dates, cheese, biscuits, custards, soaps, and many other things in packets. The grocer who loves his trade may well look with regret at this inevitable tendency, as it takes his expert knowledge and the art of salesmanship out of his life, and makes the man behind the counter little better than an automatic machine, which delivers out packets when money is put into the slot.

The Inner Workings.

The Canadian grocer takes his business very seriously, and perhaps may often be accused of living for his business rather than making his business the means of gaining for him a livelihood. We do not find in the new country the old hereditary shop which for generations has been the source of a steady and sufficient, if small, income to the same family. Today people are not so well satisfied with a moderate income and a slow rate of earning it, and although happily the shop hours are tending to get shorter, the successful grocer cannot dismiss his business from his mind when he locks up his shop, but has to take his business cares home to meditate on at night. This means that a man gets completely absorbed in his business, he works at it by day, and makes it his hobby which he plays with at night. The spirit of "get rich quick" makes itself felt in many respects behind the counter. It is not very often now that the grocer lives over his shop; in fact it is probable that he lives several miles away unless the shop is already in the residential district. Distance, however, will not prevent him from being the person to unlock the front door in the morning; he does not entrust this duty to the apprentice to go round to his house before breakfast to fetch the key, nor some trusty head assistant or manager whom he can rely on to see that the early morning duties are properly attended to while he is comfortably having his breakfast. The example of the "boss" being the first man on the spot in the morning has a most wholesome effect on the staff.

Ambition In The Clerks.

The clerk in the shop has a confident hope of being a proprietor himself before many years, and is disposed to look upon his work from that point of view; in a word, he is ambitious. He does not treat the grocer as a superior sort of being, but more as a comrade, like a fellow-employee. This is the spirit of the country, and the sensible grocer rather encourages it, as although it may occasionally offend his pride, it is good for his pocket, for the assistant who treats his master as a comrade and thinks about the business as "we" takes a personal interest in it, and will be careful about the tap of the oil tank, and will not put a new consignment of anything in front of the old stock. His confident ambition makes the assistant willing to learn, and here again he is encouraged by his master. There are slack times in every shop, and if the assistant cares to utilize an hour or two of such time by studying the trade paper he is not regarded as a "waster," but of course if he uses the firm's time in this way he must first see that his shelves are clean and other routine duties are properly attended to. The grey-haired assistant is very uncommon in a Canadian store, and where he is to be found he is probably an immigrant from "Th' Ole Country" whom adversity has driven to seek a better livelihood in the new. The faithful "old stager" is uncommon, so there is a constant stream of young newcomers in the store; not apprentices, for there is not much left now of the old apprenticeship system, but youngsters who start their business life on a weekly wage basis. It is naturally the last comer who has most of the dirty work to do, but the grocery shop is no place for dignity, and the proprietor often sets a good example to the rest by taking a share in doing heavy and dirty work himself. The newcomer is often tested by having nasty jobs given to him for the special purpose of showing whether he will do them cheerfully and willingly, and his future treatment depends more on these first impressions than he often realizes. Especially is this the case with the immigrant from the Old Country, and when tested thus he often fails to do himself justice, as at home he has been accustomed to see a porter do the heavy carrying and floor cleansing. Probably there is no such person in the Canadian shop that he goes to, so the "clerks" have to do all the work themselves.

The Departmental Store.

As already stated, the chief rival of the individual trader in Canada is not so much the multiple shop as the departmental store, with its abundant telephonic facilities, frequent town and suburban deliveries, and C.O.D. system. These facilities make the great "down town" store a very formidable rival of the corner grocery, as it is easy to do all one's shopping and buy many different classes of articles without leaving home; but when people do feel inclined to do a day's shopping at the departmental store they will find everything they require under the same roof. A still further inducement is the fact that people may meet their friends shopping at the same store, which thus becomes a rendezvous where people may meet, whether they mean to buy anything or not. The proprietors of the great store actually encourage this habit, and try to make such a captivating display that when people go into the shop they cannot help buying. Visitors to the departmental store are never asked to buy; there are "floorwalkers," who keep a general supervision and direct would-be customers to the right departments, but there is no solicitation to buy apart from the mute appeal of tasteful display. Whatever the Canadian grocer may think of the departmental store—and he is apt to think in about the same way as his English brother of the multiple shop—the stores are certainly the means of distributing a great quantity of English packet goods. Tea, cocoa, pickles in enormous quantities, and many other commodities packed by manufacturing grocers in the Old Country find a Canadian market which they might not get were it not for the buying offices which the departmental stores maintain in England. By means of these buying offices many English manufacturers do business direct with the retailer, but on a wholesale scale, and so are spared some of the risk and expense of cultivating an export trade. The departmental store is a selling machine which has been brought to a very high state of efficiency, although happily it is not without its shortcomings, and it is along the lines of its failings that the small trader has the best chance of competing with it. The store is nothing better than a machine, and instead of being waited on by an expert grocer, the customer is served by palefaced girls, who should be at school or playing with their dolls rather than handing out packets of tea from eight till five.

Do Not Need To Know.

Of course, these children know nothing whatever about the trade, nor do they need to; they are put beside a few piles of packet goods, which they hand out or send to the delivery department in return for the price printed on the label. No salesmanship is needed. When these girls grow up a few of them are made under forewomen, or are even promoted to be forewomen, but there is no prospect worth mentioning, and when they can reasonably expect to have their wages raised they are sent away, and their places are taken by other younger and cheaper girls.

The small trader does not have this cheap and inefficient labor in his shop, which necessarily cannot be so much specialized into departments; his assistants are all men, which of course places him at a disadvantage as regards the wages bill; but, on the other hand, men know the trade, and can advise customers to buy the thing that they require.

The great hope for the future of the small trader is the establishment of personal relationship with his customers. By developing his personality he has an advantage over the departmental selling machine in Canada.

Unbusinesslike Methods of Out-of-date Grocers

One Refuses to Use the Carbon Sheet in a Counter-Check Book Because it is Different From What He Was Brought up to—Another Talks to Traveler in Discourteous Manner — Foolish Answer to Customer Who Had Paid for What She Didn't Get —Some Remedies Suggested.

By M. Moyer.

If one travels through a town or city and calls on all who handle groceries with a view of studying their different methods of doing business, and keeps his eyes open to see, and his ears to hear, he should learn from the many well managed and successful stores some useful lessons in storekeeping. He should also learn from those who are "back numbers" the causes of their condition.

If the best from all could be sifted out and retained, and the worst eliminated and destroyed we could expect ideal storekeeping.

While this consummation may be in the distant future, it is the aim and purpose of a trade paper to lead in that direction. It is through the medium of a trade paper that ideas can be collected, and again distributed for the benefit of others, and in this way gradual, but constant improvement is made in all lines of trade.

If all would take the interest in this work that some do, the evils now existing in the retail trade would soon be weeded out and trade based on a more satisfactory footing. While the more enterprising are actively engaged in improving trade conditions they are handicapped by those who are out of date, and are satisfied to keep struggling in the same old ruts. It is surprising how many are blindly groping for an existence, and are so far out of date that their style of doing business is extremely ridiculous and stupid.

Sticking to Old Methods.

Think of an old out-of-date grocer in these days of improved methods and appliances, replacing the old-fashioned bill-head that he used to have for taking orders for the ordinary duplicate checkbook, simply because he can buy the latter cheaper, but who is not utilizing the carbon paper to copy. He compels his lady assistant to copy every order from the check book, word for word, into an old fashioned day-book, and from that into his ledger. At the end of the month she has to make out itemized accounts of the whole month's business.

This man is absolutely opposed to anything different to what he learned when he went into business many years ago. He will not admit that any new ideas are improvements on the old. He will not read a trade paper nor discuss trade questions from any other motive than to prove that the old methods are the best. He works behind his counter from early in the morning until the late hours of the night without knowing anything of what is going on outside of his own store. His business is gradually leaving him, and he does not know what is the matter.

The trade paper gathers up helpful ideas and methods from Halifax to Vancouver, and brings them within reach of every grocer, and yet there are lots of them who do not avail themselves of this opportunity, and even do not know what is meant by a trade paper.

I called on one of these grocers, and tried to interest him in the value of modern methods and their connection with the trade paper. After talking to him till I was almost blue in the face, he looked at me as if he were taking a deep interest in what I was saying, and then asked "what line of goods are you selling?"

For a grocer to be offered anything to read was beyond his comprehension.

He Didn't Want to Know.

A traveler recently called at a store on his first trip, and the grocer pretended to be very busy, which is often done as a blind. After waiting a while, he addressed the traveler as follows: "I suppose you are hanging round here for an order. I don't know you, and I don't know what you are selling, but I don't want anything."

Would any merchant treat a traveler in this way if he were not out-of-date?

Would any one not know better if he read, as he should, his trade paper?

A lady bought a dozen of eggs in a store where they were sold as "strictly fresh." When she used them she found, three bad ones. She called up the grocer on the phone, and told him so. She asked him what she was to do, and the word came back "Salt them down."

These are some of the foolish things "out of date" grocers will do, and yet they think they can get along without learning anything.

Trying to educate such people and to bring them up to a decent level, against their own will, is wasting time. The better way to do is to help those who are anxious to be up to date, and raise the standard of store service to such a degree that out-of-date stores will no longer be patronized.

Department in Aid of the Retail Grocery Clerk

Whims of Customers Should be Carefully Considered and Dealt With Accordingly — More Interest Should be Displayed in Learning How Business is Carried on—Need of Studying the Goods Sold and the Origin of Them.

By B. H. Thomas.

The first requirement in the progressive retail clerk is an ability to serve as he should. Great writers have expended much energy in giving to the world the value of service in all stations of life. It is one of the fundamental principles of a moral education and it is absolutely necessary in the store if the business is to become a success. In order to serve well a clerk must study the customers. Each person has his or her own whims and a consideration should be shown to these if that customer is to be made a permanent one. For instance there are clerks who will allow customers to come into the store and stand before the counter for half a minute before they make a move to determine their wants. In most cases nothing makes a purchaser more disgusted than to have to wait an unreasonable length of time before a salesman arrives. Clerks, therefore, should be on the alert to serve as they should and to wait upon customers without the least delay. By doing so they increase their own values to their employers because they at least tend to hold the customers they have.

Frequently one goes into a grocery store and is at once able to spot the clerk who shows little interest in his own work and cares much less about "holding" and "getting" custom. Most clerks know all about the ball games or other sports in their city, town or village —which in itself is all right and natural —but to dress a window attractively some of them would be at sea. It's the clerk who takes the interest in the success of his employer—the one who makes himself a part of the business in which he is employed—who can command the biggest salary and become the greatest use.

In Business for Himself.

The majority of young men who start out in business life as salesmen behind the counter, do so with a view to owning a business of their own some day or becoming traveling salesmen for wholesale houses. All are anxious, or should be, to take charge of a retail business when an opportunity affords itself and to do this they need an education that will carry them through the early and difficult stages.

In order to obtain such an education their powers of observation must be developed. If their employers are honest with them, as they should be, they are sure to "take in" the things that will stand them in good stead when they stand behind the counters as proprietors.

As most experienced clerks and employers now know, too many enter the grocery business lacking experience. The result is that the trade is hindered in its elevation to a higher plane.

There is a lot to learn. Buying, getting discounts, proper stocking, necessary store equipment, interior and window arrangement, dealing with all classes of customers, watching the slow pays—these are but a few of the many things a new storekeeper has to deal with. These should all be taught by the employer and learned by the clerk before the latter decides to launch out into the retail arena himself.

Know the Goods You Sell.

If a clerk would only spend a little of his spare time each week in studying where the goods he sells come from, he will learn more geography than he ever did at school. It will take him from the Americas to Japan, and to almost every out-of-the-way corner of the globe. In short, it will give him a cheap and instructive trip around the world.

A CLERK WHO WANTS TO LEARN.

Success of Any Business, He Says, Depends on Employes—Refers to Article in Last Week's Issue.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—I take this opportunity to write you in gratitude of the great benefit which I feel that I am deriving from the reading of your most valuable trade paper, The Canadian Grocer.

Upon reading the paper week after week, as it enters the store where I work, I have felt as though I would like to write to you and to your paper, and through courage, I have at last done so.

I do truly feel, as I have already stated, that your paper is a great help to me, as a grocery clerk, and I am sure that it must be so to all who read it. Of course, you know that I am not a subscriber, as I said that my employer is one. That is my reason for not being one myself.

Here is one fact which I do think and believe, "That the growth of any man's business concern depends first of all upon those employed therein." Therefore I say frankly as my opinion that all grocery clerks, as well as their employers should read The Canadian Grocer, for therein we all can get the helps and hints which will enable us to make our employer's business move "onward" to a high standard of excellence.

I might also add, that I have found all the different articles throughout the columns of your paper to be most interesting.

In your last issue, I found an article which has attracted may attention considerably. Besides the excellent reading about The Canadian National Exhibition, the one to which I refer is to be found on page nineteen, namely: "Increasing Efficiency of the Grocery Clerk." The article, I consider, is a splendid one, and I truly agree with the points and teachings to be found therein. I say, that in addition to what has been said there about the clerk's efficiency, that I believe in an employed person letting his employer see that is is worth an increase in salary, rather than for the clerk to demand the same or else send in his resignation.

I will now close this letter, wishing The Canadian Grocer success, etc.,

E. B. T.

Simcoe, Ont., Sept. 21, 1909.

[Editorial Note].—The Canadian Grocer is pleased to hear these words of appreciation from this Simcoe clerk, and also to see the attitude he takes towards employers. We should be glad to obtain an article from him or from any other clerk for this page on duties of clerks, how they should treat their employers and how they think employers should treat them.

NEW WHOLESALE HOUSE.

The Marland Woolnough Co., wholesale jobbers of groceries, fruits and confectionery, will begin business in Niagara Falls Centre on October 1st.

J. B. Hallworth, president and general manager of White Swan Spices & Cereals, Ltd., Toronto, has just returned from Fort William, Port Arthur and Nepigon, where he found general trade conditions bright, and prospects for the coming season exceptional on account of the heavy western crops. His company have appointed J. B. Peltier, as a representative in that district.

Successful Methods Adopted by Canadian Grocers

Suggestions on How Business in the Store May be Improved—Scotch System of Display Used in Hamilton Store — Cobourg Merchant Satisfied With Cash System—Grocer in Vancouver Builds His Own Store—Money in Ice Cream — Necessity of Watching Fruit Carefully.

BUY EARLY IN THE WEEK.

Ottawa, Sept. 22.—It is a great mistake that grocers leave their heaviest market buying until Saturday. On that day everybody is too busy to give the proper attention and furthermore you pay from 10 to 15 per cent. more for your supply from the market. The grower knows that you must have the goods and asks his own price. Next week compare Tuesday's and Thursday's prices with those of Saturday, and see for yourself.

DO ONLY CASH TRADE.

Cobourg, Sept. 22.—Last December E. Guillet & Co., grocers, began selling for spot cash only and "are perfectly satisfied with results so far."

The Guillet business is one that was established 63 years ago by the late John Guillet, father of the present proprietor.

The fact that it still stands among the best is because it has been built up on a quality basis.

"We do not handle any compound jams or compound trash of any kind," is the way Mr. Guillet puts it.

"We have a side line in 'Best American Coal Oil and 76 Gasoline,' and the turn over in this is more than 12 carloads a year.

Their policy at all times is to handle only the best goods obtainable.

MAKES MONEY FROM ICE CREAM.

Lindsay, Sept. 22.—There is only one grocer in Lindsay who handles ice cream, namely, Mr. Harrison, who recently established a grocery business in Lindsay, and who came from Norwood. Mr. Harrison occupies Laidley & Newton's old stand, and at the opening of the summer he installed a modern and up-to-date soda fountain in the rear of his grocery store and also sells ice cream. The interior of this store is always bright and attractive and is a good example of purity and cleanliness, the result being that Mr. Harrison has built up a good trade. He maintains that it pays him to keep the ice cream parlor in connection with his grocery store. Frequently ladies come in during the day-time, and being tired and hot they not only purchase their groceries or leave the order, but also are enticed to the cooling ice cream parlor and have cooling dishes and drinks.

DEVICE FOR CUTTING MEAT.

Montreal, Sept. 21. — A somewhat unique labor saving device has been installed by a grocer of this city. It is a simple contrivance for holding meats steady for slicing. The affair is only a board about a foot long by six inches wide, with a large circular cut from end to end of one of the long sides. By placing the meat in this cut it is steadied, and a more even slice can be made.

BUILT HIS OWN STORE.

Vancouver, Sept. 20.—The Cashion Bros. are two Cobourg, Ont., boys. "Jim" J. Cashion was book-keeper for the MacLean Produce Co. of Toronto 18 months ago. Like many others, however, he felt the "call of the west." He went to Prince Albert and worked for six months with Thomas Hume, grocer of that city, and then came to Vancouver. He bought a lot at Cedar Cottage, one of Vancouver's many suburbs, for $700, and built his own store. He is now doing a thriving business. His lot alone apart from the building is now worth $3,200. Oh, no! he doesn't regret coming to Vancouver. The trouble is the expansion of his business is such that it takes all his surplus capital and he hasn't made up his mind which pays him best—buying lots or selling groceries.

KEEP FRUIT INSIDE.

Montreal, Sept. 22.—A Montreal grocer, in discussing window display, expressed himself very strongly against placing fruits and vegetables outside the store front. "It is neither cleanly nor good policy to put them there. City dust and dirt are bound to collect, and not only mar the fresh appearance of goods, but make them sometimes even unsanitary." It is a point of view well worthy of consideration.

SCARCITY OF FRUIT JARS.

Guelph, Sept. 22.—Grocers of this city have been put to considerable inconvenience during the past week or ten days by the scarcity of preserving jars. The demands have been exceptionally large—caused no doubt by the cheapness of fruit, and the merchants have had the stocks run low, and when writing to the wholesale houses have learned that they must wait patiently while the manufacturers turn out more jars. "Our stock got down pretty low in jars," said J. A. McCrea in speaking on this subject, "and we have had quite a lot of trouble getting enough to keep our customers satisfied."

NEW WINDOW FOUR TIMES A DAY.

Hamilton, Sept. 22.—D. McKillop is a Scotchman who began business here about 3 months ago. Being a thorough Scot he follows the Scotch system in the store. This system deals particularly with interior and window displays and price ticketing.

Mr. McKillop changes his window no less than four times a day, so that if a prospective buyer passes, her eye meets four different scenes. He believes in this as one of the best methods of interesting a passer-by. Another of his Scotch methods is placing price tickets on as many articles as possible, both in the store and in the window. In the proprietor's estimation these tickets are practically necessary to increase business. He has a rubber-stamp outfit which cost him the small sum of $2 and he prints all his own tickets and signs in spare minutes. On the glass door he pastes a paper sign with a list of seasonable goods.

Although in business only a short time and in a small store, Mr. McKillop does a business of about $150 per week. He makes it a point to keep only goods of the best quality. He buys for cash and sells for cash so that he always knows where he is at. "It's the only way you can go to bed in peace," he maintains. Since starting he has purchased a computing scale and a refrigerator. He keeps his butter and meats fresh and clean and does not lose custom by any carelessness.

WANTS MAUFACTURERS' AID.

Chatham, Sept. 22.—The collection department of the Retail Merchants' Association was discussed at the last meeting. Last month's direct collections (exclusive of considerable amounts paid to merchants) amounted to $164.41. It was made clear that the official lists were intended for members only, and that the contents must not be divulged to outsiders. A proposal of Wm. Anderson to enlist the aid of manufacturers in making collections was discussed, but ultimately left over for further consideration. Mr. Anderson pointed out that the credit extended to workmen by merchants during dull seasons enabled the men to remain in Chatham, with the result that manufacturers on resuming operations could count on experienced workmen. He thought this entitled the merchants to some return. The privilege of posting notices in factories was suggested.

WATCH DOGS AND FRUIT.

Ottawa, Sept. 22.—A few words are timely anent the practice of some grocers and fruit venders of placing baskets of fruit, vegetables, etc., which are offered for public consumption, on the sidewalks in front of their places of business exposed to dust and grime and especially to the disgusting attention of dogs. Your correspondent has repeatedly seen baskets of fruit on the sidewalks share such treatment. It is not to be presumed that fruit dealers witness these proceedings with a staid complacency engendered by reflections on the fact that "dogs will be dogs," or that as long as a basket of fruit does not remain unsold, it is a matter of little concern whether or not the flavor is slightly impaired. No! it is hoped that the business instinct does not operate to the exclusion of the primary notions of human decency. But it is nevertheless the case that these disgusting habits of dogs are carried on from day to day, and must come within the knowledge of the fruit vendors. Still the fruit is piled on the sidewalks week after week and while the owners of dogs are looking over goods the canines are allowed to run about wherever they please.

It is to be supposed that dog-life in cities is bound up with our existence not in most cases because of a manifested desire for their proximity, but mainly because it is thrust upon us by our neighbors. Therefore Mr. fellow grocer, keep your fruit and vegetables out of reach of these four-footed prowlers.

EXTORTIONATE PROFITS HARMFUL.

Winnipeg, Sept. 21. — Western rural merchants are making a grave mistake when they take advantage of their isolated position to exact undue profit from their customers. There are few people who buy sugar or salt from the lonely merchant on the prairie, who have not bought the same commodities elsewhere, and they invariably know the reasonable price at which they should retail. The customer may not be quick to complain of the high prices, but they will take advantage of the first opportunity where goods can be purchased for one cent a pound less. The rural merchants of Manitoba can afford to quote prices equally as attractive as the merchants, who board the trains from the city centres, and call on their country customers weekly. If the country merchants wish to retain their trade they must deal justly with their customers. By maintaining extortionate prices they are robbing themselves, since the mail-order houses only receive larger orders through the mails, and the city merchant is encouraged to make his weekly calls. It may be argued that the rural merchant must allow for freight and deterioration, but the same thing applies to any other concern, which lands goods to the country customer.

Every merchant must learn to treat customers with equity. No merchant wishes to lose a customer, but it is hard to learn the lesson that it is easier to keep a customer than to win him back when once he is turned away.

UNIQUE COFFEE GRINDER.

This Merchant Gets His Exercise While He Cuts Up the Coffee.

A grocer down in Kansas City, says a writer in Popular Mechanics, has an ingenious device for grinding his coffee and at the same time for obtaining exercise while he works.

Bicycle Power Plant for Grinding Coffee.

When considerable coffee is to be ground he props his bicycle up as shown in the illustration, connects its rear wheel by pulley to the coffee grinder, and stations a boy at the hopper to pour the coffee in. He then mounts the bicycle and begins to tread slowly, as if climbing a steep hill, then gradually increases his speed and bends low over the handle bars until the coffee mill is fairly humming.

The Medicinal Qualities of Fruits Grocers Sell

Peaches Said to be the Most Digestable—Value of Baked Apples for the Weak Stomach—Lemonade, One of the Best Drinks for Fever—Nutrition in Small Seeded Fruits—The Grocers' Encylopaedia.

It is a well-known fact that fruits are generally used for medicinal purposes. Herein lies an opportunity for grocers who deal in fruits to advertise them from this standpoint with profit. Fruits are eaten more to-day than ever before simply because they are recognized to be suitable to a healthy body in view of their actual medicinal qualities.

A medical authority states that of all the fruits with which we are blessed, the peach is the most digestible. There is nothing more palatable, wholesome and medicinal than ripe peaches. They should be ripe, but not over-ripe and half rotten, and of the kind they may make a good part of either meal or be eaten between meals; but it is better to make them part of the regular meals.

The apple is one of the best of fruits. Baked or stewed apples will generally agree with the most delicate stomach and are an excellent medicine in many cases of sickness. Green or half ripe apples stewed and sweetened are pleasant to the taste, cooling, nourishing and laxative, far superior in many cases to the abominable doses of salts and oil usually given in fever and other diseases. Raw apples and dried apples stewed are better for constipation than most liver pills. Oranges are very acceptable to most stomachs, but the orange juice alone should be taken, rejecting the pulp.

The same may be said of lemons, pomegranates and all that class. Lemonade is the best drink in fevers and when thickened with sugar is better than syrup of squills and other noxious drugs in many cases of cough.

Tomatoes act on the liver and bowels and are much more pleasant and safe than "liver regulators." The juice should be used alone.

Nutrition From Sugar.

The small seeded fruits, such as blackberries, figs, raspberries, currants and strawberries, may be classed among the best foods and medicines.

The sugar in them is nutritious, the acid is cooling and purifying and the seeds are a laxative. We would be much the gainer if we should look more to our orchards and gardens for our medicine and less to our drug stores. To cure fever or act on the kidneys no fibrifuge or diuretic is superior to watermelon, which may, with very few exceptions, be taken in sickness and health in almost unlimited quantities, not only without injury, but with positive benefit. But in using them, the water or juice should be taken, excluding the pulp, and the melon should be fresh and ripe, but not over-ripe and stale.

INCREASES ALL AROUND.

Healthy State of Canadian Trade Shown by Government Returns for August.

August trade returns for the Dominion, issued recently from Ottawa, again indicate a large increase over last year's figures. The total trade for the month was $55,869,031, an increase of $7,761,972 as compared with August of last year. Imports of merchandise totalled $30,241,376, a gain of $7,189,371. Exports of domestic products amounted to $23,537,330, an increase of $626,791. Exports of foreign products totaled $1,726,341, an increase of $186,040. Customs duties for the month were $5,351,157, an increase of $1,170,970.

For the first five months of the fisca. year the total trade of the Dominion has been $247,788,335, a gain of $36,130,252, or about seventeen per cent. as compared with the corresponding period of 1908. Imports of merchandise entered for consumption have totalled $142,033,218, an increase of $29,566,672. Exports of domestic products were $96,935,925, an increase of $6,820,304. Exports of foreign products were $8,098,417, an increase of $2,100,303.

SHORT PEPPERMINT CROP.

Growers of peppermint throughout Michigan and Indiana have started distilling the oil. The world's supply of peppermint is said to be grown to a large extent within a radius of about 100 miles in northern Indiana and southern Michigan. The biggest grower is A. M. Todd, of Kalamazoo, Mich., who has large peppermint farms at Mentha and Pearl, Mich. The second largest growers are Albert Beebee & Sons, who have big farms at Mendon, Niles and Baroda, Mich.

The Niles farm, which is under the Beebee, comprises upwards of 900 acres. Last season the average yield per acre on this farm was 50 pounds, which was the biggest yield reported by any growers. Mr. Beebee stated the crop is from 25 to 50 per cent. short this season. The present price is $1.50 a pound, but in view of the prospective short crop, the market is expected to advance. The price last year ranged from $1.25 to $1.40 a pound.

Concerning the vagaries of the market, Mr. Beebee said he has sold peppermint oil for as high as $5.25 a pound, and as low as 60 cents a pound, but that the low water mark was reached during the panic of '93, when labor was very cheap, men being glad to get work at 75 cents a day.

Peppermint oil is used principally for medicinal purposes and for confections. The plant thrives best in low, marshy land and is not productive on high land.

INDIAN AND CEYLON TEA.

Harrison & Crosfield, Ltd., in their report of Sept. 10th, give the following information on tea:

"Indian.—Arrivals of Indian tea have been smaller, but supplies in the public sales have been practically the same as last year. The quality was generally satisfactory, and buyers seemed willing to operate freely for all good liquoring teas. The quality of all growths has been above average for the time of year, and although the quantity on offer was rather more than the market had been expecting after the shortage reports, there was a steady to firm demand, with an upward tendency. Compared with the prices ruling at the end of July, common grades of both leaf and broken tea seem to be a full half-cent per lb. higher. Medium teas have not shown the same tendency to harden, but have been selling well at steady rates. Finest descriptions of all sorts have occasionally brought long prices.

"Ceylon—The quantity offered in public sale in August considerably exceeded last year's figures, but the quality was so generally satisfactory that the market showed a firmer tendency throughout. High-grown teas have been attracting the attention of buyers, but even the commonest teas, with plain leaf, have met with a steady demand. The average price of all the Ceylon tea sold in August shows an advance of 3/8d per lb. on July, which is in part due to the improved quality, and in part to the better demand after the holidays, whilst there have also been reports received from Ceylon of rather less desirable quality being probable in the near future. The estimate for the current month is 7½ million lbs. It is noteworthy in this connection that America and Australia have taken 20 to 30 per cent. more from Ceylon since 1st January, and Russia 30 per cent. less than in the corresponding months of 1908; the increased shipment to London in the same period was 11 per cent."

ALARM CLOCK IN WINDOW LIGHTING.

The automatic electric time switch device is one of the simplest of the many devices for shutting off electric lights used for illuminating windows or signs. It is nothing more than a common alarm clock, attached by a chain and lever to a regulation electric switch. The alarm hand of the clock is set for the time desired, the lever on the switch is turned to indicate on or off, and the chain hanging from the end of the lever is fastened in the slot of the alarm key by a hook. The proprietor then leaves his place of business for the night, knowing the device will switch off the lights at the time set.

WHY BROOMS WENT UP.

Brooms are up in price again and are liable to go higher. Merchants will remember that on Sept. 1st last, a decline occurred of about 50 cents per dozen, but the original prices recovered towards the latter end of last week and are now as high if not higher than before.

The apparent shortage in the broom-corn supply is the cause for the advanced prices, and it is maintained by Canadian broom manufacturers that if the shortage is found to be real the prices will again soar.

In the meantime there is little hope of lower prices before January at least, and the chances are that they will go higher.

Advices from Chicago indicate that the broom corn manufacturers will be confronted with a serious situation. The price of the raw material has already risen from $85 to $200 per ton—a remarkable increase.

The cause is a general scarcity in broom corn. This may be that the crop is short or that farmers have not undertaken the sale of their harvests. The fact, however, remains that broom-corn can only be obtained with difficulty and at high prices.

Other reasons contribute to the present lofty condition of the broom-corn and broom markets of Canada and the United States. Last year, it will be recalled that raw material was high and naturally manufacturers had to work with small supplies. This is the time when manufacturers purchase and so when all went to buy stocks on hand were considerably depleted and prices went up. The rush of buyers therefore in addition to the scarcity of stocks further aided in boosting the prices of the raw material.

"The advance is general," remarked a manufacturer this week, "and there is little possibility of prices going back again before January."

They will only do so then in case broom-corn growers market their products and if the crop is actually a heavy one. The home of the broom-corn is from Illinois down to Texas.

Ruling prices for brooms at present are from $3 to $4.50 per dozen. These prices extend over Ontario and Quebec and practically throughout the west.

EGGS ABNORMALLY HIGH.

One of the features of the market this week is the high price of eggs. In Toronto retailers are paying 26 cents by the case, which is 5 cents higher than at this time last year.

This is a remarkable situation inasmuch as never before in the history of the Toronto market have eggs been as high at this season of the year.

The immediate cause, of course, is the scarcity. Provision merchants have difficulty in getting them from country dealers because the latter are not getting them from the farmers.

There may be several reasons for this. It is possible that with the high prices that grains have been holding at recently, the farmers are not raising so many hens. It is a fact that at the present time they are holding back eggs until they can obtain the price of fresh laid autumn eggs. This condition of affairs has been observed all summer. Although the percentage of bad eggs is decreasing from what it was during the summer season, considerable quantities of stale eggs yet come to the provision dealer's hands. This has naturally a tendency to keep up prices.

Thousands of dozens have this year been put away into cold storage for winter and early spring use, and the increased facilities for keeping them has been another strong factor towards elevating the cost to the consumer.

When all these reasons are considered, it is no wonder that eggs are high, and it is apparent that they will only decline when the farmers either sell their eggs when fresh or keep more hens.

MARKET FOR WINTER APPLES.

There is a rather accommodating situation in the apple market this year. Here in Canada the earlier varieties are rather poor, while winter apples have been greatly helped by recent rains, and the crop will be large and of good quality. In European countries it is the reverse. Their early varieties are in fine shape, both as to size and quality, while the winter crop will be light. It furnishes Canadian growers and commission men with the market for which they have the most need.

In a recent communication, an English firm called attention again to the old failing of some Canadian packers—the lack of care in selection and packing of apples for their market. Already England is about our best customer in this line and would do far more were it not that she so often receives badly packed and inferior fruit instead of the best grade. Yet the price is always for the best. With a little more care exercised by those of our packers who are a little negligent, and which will surely be insisted upon by our commission men, the English market can be very largely increased. It is worthy of serious consideration.

THE SUGAR ULTIMATUM.

The sugar situation in British Columbia is occupying particular attention just now, consequent on the printed notice attached to all shipments of the B. C. Sugar Refining Company, as follows:

NOTICE.

The sugar covered by this invoice is sold to you under the conditions that it be not resold to the consumer at less than the following fixed prices, viz.:

Standard Granulated in 100 lb. bags, $6.00.

Standard Granulated in 20 lb. bags, $1.25.

and further that no sugar is bought or sold by you other than that manufactured by The British Columbia Sugar Refining Company, Limited, and in case both of these conditions are not adhered to no further orders for sugar will be accepted from you.

From what can be learned, the Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association, in its effort to prevent price-cutting, asked the company to insist upon a fixed retail price for its standard article, and in return the company sought the concession, that if it did this it should be allowed to stipulate that no other sugar be bought or sold.

Sugar has been brought here from Scotland regularly for some months past, and sugar from other places has also been sold here, and the object is to curtail the sale of these. There will likely be a show-down in the matter, for dealers who have been buying the other sugars at 25c or so cheaper than the $5.50 price of the local standard granulated have placed orders to be filled on the arrival of the next Blue Funnel liner with more sugar from Scotland.

VAST WEALTH OF AGRICULTURAL CANADA.

Some twenty or more years ago the value of the vast Canadian Northwest, so far as a grain producing country was concerned, was practically nothing.

Gradually, since the peopling of the Prgirie Provinces began, the yield increased in leaps and bounds—with the probable exception of 1907—until this year it is estimated that the wheat crop alone will exceed 113,000,000 bushels, and greater than ever before.

According to the Dominion Government crop bulletin, issued a few days ago, the revenue from the cereal crops of the whole country this year, should, in the aggregate, yield something over $50,000,000 more than last year. The total value of the crops is estimated (at first cost) at $500,000,000, and the increase over last year is therefore 10 per cent. The condition of the grain crops in Canada on Sept. 1st, was really better than had been expected. The yield of wheat in all the provinces was 168,386,000 bushels, or 43,696,000 bushels more than a year ago. All the provinces, with the exception of Ontario, show substantial gains in the yields of wheat, barley and oats. But aside from the three Northwest Provinces and Ontario, very little wheat is grown.

The Prairie Provinces this year give an increase of no less than 45,231,000 bushels in wheat, 79,942,000 bushels in oats, and 7,942,000 bushels in barley.

A resume of the increases in areas and yields of wheat in the west during the past five or six years shows wonderful transformations.

In 1903 there were 3,125,000 acres under wheat cultivation and the yield was 54,000,000 bushels.

In 1904, under wheat cultivation, 3,500,000 acres, yield 58,000,000 bushels.

In 1905, under wheat cultivation, 4,252,000 acres, yield 86,300,000 bushels.

In 1906, under wheat cultivation, 5,000,000 acres, yield 95,000,000 bushels.

In 1907, under wheat cultivation, 5,013,544 acres, yield 82,000,000 bushels.

In 1908, under wheat cultivation, 5,767,250 acres, yield approximately 100,000,000 bushels.

The acreage for this year is distributed as follows:

Area in Manitoba under crop: Wheat 2,642,111 acres; oats, 1,373,683; barley, 601,008; flax, 20,635. Last year: Wheat, 2,850,640; oats, 1,216,632; barley, 658,441; flax, 50,187.

Acreage planted to grain in Saskatchewan: Wheat, 3,912,497 acres; oats, 2,192,416; barley, 235,463; flax, 278,835. Acreage last year: Wheat, 3,703,563; oats, 1,772,976; barley, 229,574; flax, 264,728.

The exact figures for Alberta are not available, but those for last year are: Spring wheat, 212,677 acres; winter wheat, 104,956; oats, 431,145; barley, 77,867; flax, 9,262. Acreage is increased nearly 100 per cent. this year.

The value of the 1909 crop is placed at $100,000,000. This is a conservative estimate made by a leading Canadian bank:

	Bushels.	Farm Value.
Wheat	113,979,336	$100,301,815
Oats	157,537,750	47,261,325
Barley	24,324,648	9,729,859
Totals	295,324,734	$157,292,999

This story carries with it a world of thought of what this great west means to Canada's future, to the manufacturing, financial and mercantile interests throughout the Dominion. The people pouring into the west from various countries must be of great importance to the western merchant who is planning to take care of the trade.

The high prices of wheat seem to puzzle the trade. North America produces by far the greatest amount of wheat in the world—about a third of the full supply. This year the yield is some 882,000,000 bushels, 80,000,000 bushels more than last year, or 50,000,000 bushels more than the crop of 1906, when the United States production was exceptionally large. Many speculators are at present onlookers, waiting for the mists to clear away. They hope that by the end of September complications will have been cleared away and that they will be in a better position to grasp the situation accurately.

GET WHAT YOU PAY FOR.

On various occasions The Canadian Grocer has advised retailers to weigh the goods that come into the store, in order to find whether they are getting the weight or measure contained in the invoices. Some grocers are doing this. They are keeping tab on everything they purchase to make sure that they are receiving the proper quantities.

Vinegar barrels have been found to be short, crates of lemons have been known to be more than a dozen shy, and in many other instances shortages of weight and measure have been discovered.

A case in point comes from a village in the United States where a grocer was charged for six pounds of cardboard placed in boxes in which cake was purchased. By weighing the cakes he found the mistake, which meant a consideration of 81 cents to him in that one business deal.

The same grocer states that several times he has saved money by weighing the goods he buys. He does not believe that the jobbers or manufacturers intend to act dishonestly in the matter—it is simply a case of carelessness, he claims. But, nevertheless, weighing goods that come into the store is a precaution that should not be overlooked, as it means dollars and cents when mistakes occur that are not discovered.

EXECUTIVE ABILITY REQUIRED.

Executive ability is an essential qualification to advancement to positions of responsibility—the positions which carry with them the good salaries, the leadership in commercial or mercantile fields. Unfortunately, however, too many young men aspiring to these places, are not in possession of this necessary quality. A case, typical of many, is recorded:

A salesman in a retail store has been there for twenty years. Five years ago the proprietor was on the lookout for a partner. I wondered why the salesman was not taken into the firm. He had been a faithful worker for the concern. He was a good salesman. He had saved a little money. Why, then, was he not taken in? I asked the merchant. He replied:

"I am getting along in years, not old, you know, but at an age when one must look out for the unexpected. I married late in life and a family of girls must be looked after. My expectation of life is being shortened every year. That is why I want a partner. I have thought very strongly of John as a partner, but I always come around to his one great failing. He lacks executive ability. I have tried him out a great many times and he always falls down. The partner I select must be able to manage the business after I'm gone. That is what I want one for. I don't need more capital, neither do I feel now as if I should take things easier—though I would be glad to do so."

Let your customer know that a personal interest attaches to him—a real personal interest that is not measured wholly by his orders and his dollars—and you will win in return that close personal association and active support that builds up business.

Interesting Trade Items Gathered in Ontario

Ottawa Exhibition Makes Busy Time for Grocers — Electric Signs Now Permitted in Brantford—Canning Factories Busy in Western Ontario—Fresh Vegetables Scarce in Chatham.

ST. CATHARINES.

Sept. 22.—Merchants here are selling the new school books at a discount of twenty per cent. from the printed prices as a result of keen competition among themselves, for the patronage of the school children. Residents of St. Catharines are not likely to send mail orders for school books, when such prices prevail at home.

W. J. Parks purchased the building formerly occupied by "The Gaiety" five cent theatre, and is having it refitted as a grocery. When completed, Mr. Park will move his stock and fixtures from his present location in the M. McGuire building to his new location. The new store is located facing the city square on St. Paul Street, and should prove a profitable location.

Potatoes experienced quite a drop in the retail selling price Saturday, owing to the arival of several carloads from outside points. They are now selling at 75c per bushel retail, and from ninety to ninety-five cents per bag wholesale.

Miss Dougan, who has carried on the successful grocery and crockery business of R. Dougan & Co., in Thorold, Ont., is closing up the business by holding a "Great Retiring From Business Sale."

The rush is on at the local canning factories at last. Extra help is being added to each staff daily, and every person is working overtime to get the heavy deliveries of fruit and tomatoes, which arrive daily into cans. The weather has been warm during the past week, and very favorable for the crops.

BARRIE.

September 22.—Gren. Colwell has purchased the grocery stock of E. J. Armson, and will take possession next week. Gren. has done well on the road, for the past three or four years being connected with Perkins, Ince & Co., wholesale grocers. John J. Jamieson, late of Minto Bros., will succeed him for Perkins, Ince & Co.

The Barrie commercial travelers presented Wm. Colville last week with a beautiful gold-headed cane, on the eve of his departure for Fort William, where with his two sons, will go into the retail hardware business. "Billy" has been on the road for the past twenty years.

Prospects for a good fall business are at hand, with the opening of the two or three new industries, which will be in full swing in a month or two, and with the new families coming into town for the same, the merchants are beginning to wear that sunny smile; in fact, they claim that business up till the present time is far ahead of last year.

James Vair has the credit of unloading a car of mixed fruits Friday morning of last week and practically disposing of it locally by Saturday night.

Chas. Strange, who has been in business here for the past fifteen years, has turned down the retail business to go on the road. He is this week on the hustle for Parsons, Brown & Co., wholesale grocers, Toronto.

James Crossland has improved his store interior by having a handsome office built in the rear of the store.

A. G. McNabb, who has been on the sick list for the past week, is able to be around again.

Hinds Bros. have built an addition to their store, now making it one of the best stores in town. They are to be congratulated on this move.

S. H. Reynolds is once more at work in his old stand, having been put to considerable bother over the recent fire, which occurred over the store.

Brown & Company have greatly improved the front of their grain and feed store, having now one of the best-equipped flour, feed and grain stores in this district.

GUELPH.

Sept. 22.—Joseph Heffernan, of the staff of Williams' grocery department, visited friends in Fergus last week.

Eggs are up in price and Guelph grocers cannot get enough of them at 24 cents a dozen, nor can they do much better on contract prices, so great is the scarcity, which results in many of them having to sell eggs at 26 cents a dozen.

To have some well dressed young men come into their stores with large baskets, and ask for old fruit fit for the garbage pail, was the queer experience of some Guelph grocers last week. The strange requests were made by Second Year Students at the Ontario Agricultural College, who wanted the rotten fruit in order that they might bestow it liberally upon their friends, "The Freshies" at their annual "Opening Exercises."

The Simpson Company's delivery wagon took first prize at the Guelph Central Fair. C. T. Hicks, the retail grocer, who last year won first prize in this delivery outfit class had a fine outfit entered again this year, and was the only retail grocer in the running.

Fruit is becoming more plentiful. Grimsby and Niagara grown fruits are coming in in good condition. Crawford peaches are particularly good, and are being sold in large quantities. Plums have been so plentiful that they were away down in price on Saturday, when they sold at 20 cents a basket. Tomatoes were almost as bad, exceptionally fine ones selling at 25 cents a basket. Good cauliflowers are so scarce that scarcely any grocers in Guelph can get enough to satisfy the wants of their customers.

Private Estate Coffee put up in tins, is a new line as far as Guelph is concerned, and is being pushed by the grocery department of Williams' store, which has the exclusive agency here.

Unless there are better buildings provided at the grounds of the Guelph Central Fair, a lot of Guelph merchants, who from year to year have had exhibits there, will abandon the practice. They claim that the main building, called "The Palace," is not fit for the storing of any goods of value, not even for a few days. The building is so old that it does not turn the rain, and in the storm of Wednesday, a few of the merchants who had exhibits there had some of their goods slightly damaged by water. It is all new and carefully selected stock that is used in these exhibits, and consequently the merchants do not want to have it damaged. J. A. McCrea & Son, grocers, had their exhibit insured against damage by fire or water for $400. Penfold Bros. had some fancy carriages, and also a couple of stoves slightly damaged by the rain.

BRACEBRIDGE.

Sept. 22.—On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week will be held our annual fair, and if the weather keeps fine large crowds will pay visits to our busy town. Those are the days when the merchants do the trade of the year, and our grocers will be prepared for the rush.

Tons of fruit were on sale Saturday, and the weather being rather on the cool side, prevented the usual waste which is quite a loss to the grocer, especially with the Lombard plum.

PHOTOGRAPHS WANTED.

The Canadian Grocer at all times appreciates good, clear photographs of window displays and store interiors. Window dressing has practically become universal in Canadian grocery stores, so that suggestions from any are always useful and acceptable to the rest. The arrangement of the stock in the interior, as well as the equipment, takes much thought and time, and all suggestions shown in The Canadian Grocer are of assistance in lessening the time and trouble for grocers all over the Dominion.

All that is necessary is to send good photographs and such facts as will prove beneficial in explaining the nature of the displays. The photograph must be clear to make a good illustration.

George Fenn moved from his store on Main Street last week to the new store in Chancery Lane. George has certainly got a better stand, and expects to increase his trade accordingly.

Merchants in this town advanced the price of sugar last week 10 cents a hundred, but at the same time reduced the price of flour 25 cents a bag. So its not so bad when some of the necessities of life come down in price.

Butter retailed in the stores Saturday at twenty-three cents per pound, a decrease in price of two cents. Eggs are holding their own at twenty-five per dozen. Potatoes have also dropped in price, the grocers only paying the farmers 65 cents per bag.

CHATHAM.

Sept. 22.—Last Tuesday evening saw the windup of the 1909 Merchants' Picnic, when Chairman Wm. Potter, of the picnic committee presented his final report to the Retail Merchants. The veteran grocer's figures showed a balance of $67.60. "I don't know when we have had a committee that has done the work so well," remarked President Westman, in extending to Mr. Potter and his colleagues an honorable discharge. "One thing you forgot," added Wm. Anderson, "was to compliment Mr. Potter on his handsome appearance as leader of the parade." A felicitous little event broke the routine of the meeting when Eddie Dore, western representative of Fowler's, of Hamilton, was presented with a handsome watch fob with beautifully engraved gold locket as a token of appreciation of his services in connection with the past two picnics. An appropriate address was read by Mr. Potter, while Wm. Anderson made the presentation. Mr. Dore, in responding, admitted the truth of the allegation that he was shortly to become a benedict, adding that his home would be in London, and the he still hoped to call upon his friends here.

A curious situation has arisen with respect to vegetables. Last year canned vegetables were scarce and dear, and fresh vegetables were plentiful and cheap. This year the reverse is the case, the canned goods being plentiful and the fresh goods cheap. The latter state of affairs is probably due to dry weather, which affected all the root crops. Reports regarding tomatoes are conflicting. Around Chatham they are scarce; in the Sandwich section they are plentiful. On the whole, they are a fair crop, and canners will probably be able to supply them to customers in large lots cheaper than the latter can put them down.

Potatoes were sold by the bag on the market last Saturday, the opening price being $1.

There has been an exceptional demand this year for sealers, many grocers having been compelled to duplicate their originally large orders. Sealers are still moving out rapidly. This in spite of last year's big demand. It has been suggested that the big demand this year is largely to replace the defective articles, which grocers had to give their customers last year. Pint sealers are in pretty good demand, the manufacturing of the new style with quart tops having done much to restore them to poularity. Pints are popular with newly married couples.

Richard Reaume, who has for several years past conducted a grocery at the corner of Grand Ave. and St. Clair St. is clearing out his stock and fixtures. Though negotiations have been in progress for the transfer of the business, they seem to have fallen through. Mr. Reaume is returning to Pain Court, where he will conduct a general store.

Edward Watson is starting a grocery and general store in the premises at Dresden lately occupied by the Austin Company.

R. H. Miller, grocer and general merchant, at Cottam has sold his business to W. H. Stinson.

Recent frosts have done considerable damage to the corn crop in Orford and Howard townships, though in other sections the damage has not been so bad.

LONDON.

Sept. 22.—The Western Fair brought a large number of grocery buyers to the city last week, and the result was that travelers (who were off the road), and warehouse staffs were kept busy, and a large trade was done. The down-town retailers profited by the great crowds of visitors, but those in the outskirts found business rather quiet, housekeepers having shut down canning operations in order to entertain guests.

Brokers report little change in prices. Sugars continue firm. Teas of all kinds are firm and advancing, and the same may be said of coffees. California prunes and apricots are in brisk demand and advancing. Large quantities of both are being shipped to England.

As a result of the efforts of the Retail Grocers' Association, to put a stop to the violations of the huckster by-law, which are now so common, one of the offenders was summoned before the police magistrate last week, and was let go with a warning not to offend again.

Owing to the dry summer, which has seriously affected the growth of potatoes, the tubers are likely to be high in price the coming fall and winter. Large quantities were brought into market on Saturday and sold as high as 70 to 75c per bushel. Tomatoes seem plentiful, now selling at six baskets for a dollar. Butter and eggs are both scarce, and high in price.

The cold storage people are picking up all the eggs they can lay hands on, and to that is attributed the high price of the hen-fruit, a great quantity of which is being held for the western market, where gilt-edged prices are obtained.

Wm. Gorman, of Gorman, Eckert & Co., was in Hamilton last week, attending a meeting of canners and fruit men, called to consider the pure food act. He was elected a vice-president.

TORONTO.

Sept. 22.—Anderson & Co., 506 Queen Street West, is gaining quite a reputation for nicely dressed poultry.

The "Vair Produce Co.," 468 Spadina Avenue, under the management of Mr. Craig, is gaining a strong hold on the people of that part of the city. Good service does the trick.

C. F. Good moved his business from 49 Davenport Road to 1089 Bathurst Street. Here he is in a new store, with everything clean and tidy, and he himself as happy as a bird. He is intensely pleased with his change. That there is nothing that stimulates like success is verified in his case. He is a careful and anxious reader of The Canadian Grocer, from which he derives much help. He followed three different ideas which were suggested by this paper, and all are very profitable to him. He will soon be one of the most influential grocers in that fine part of the city.

M. Pocock, 208 Howland Avenue, has had a good taste of the Great Northwest, but has now settled down in the grocery business, in a good residential part of this city.

Riesberry's Grocery, corner Howland Avenue and Dupont Street, have a bright, up-to-date store, and are doing a large business. Their new store was built and fitted up to meet the rapidly growing needs of good storekeeping. Better service on improved methods is the key note all over the city.

S. Bone, corner of Avenue Road and Davenport, has opened a branch at 480 Bloor Street West, in one of the finest stores in that street. He has every advantage and stands a good chance of doing a large business. He is a strong believer in united effort on the part of the grocers for the general good of the trade.

OTTAWA.

September 22.—At the Ottawa Cheese Board meeting on Friday, 1378 cheese were offered for sale. The opening price was 11¼ and after one sale the price rose to 11 5-16. The first lot sold was the Central Canada Exhibition cheese to the Ottawa Cold Storage. Last year on the same date only 1082 cheese were offered this being 269 less than on Friday. The price last year was 12 9-16.

Saturday's market showed even a better attendance than usually characterizes it, and the offering was also a large one. In spite of the cooler weather the offering of vegetables was still good. Eggs on account of the drop in temperature had become a little stiffer, and the general figure was 30c a dozen. Tomatoes were rated at 15c gallon; parsnips at 25c dozen; cucumbers at 15c dozen; cauliflowers at 60c to $1 a dozen.

The biggest and best Ottawa Exhibition ever held in Ottawa is now over and the management are to be congratulated on the success which has attended their hard work, especially our grocer friend T. C. Bate, who is president of the Central Canada Exhibition. Retailers reaped a harvest owing to the number of visitors in the city during the week. Almost every second house had friends stopping with them and, of course, they had to give them "something nice" to eat.

The retail clerks will give a banquet at the Russell House on Thursday night when C. Ross of the C. Ross Co., Ltd., will read a paper.

A. L. Pinard, 175 King Edward Ave., is advertising his grocery business for sale. This is one of the oldest groceries in the city.

LINDSAY.

September 22.—A number of the Lindsay grocery men took in the Toronto Exhibition, combining business with pleasure. The result of their trip was fruitful in more than one way. Some of them took occasion to purchase fruit by the car loads. In fact the town has been well stocked with fruit during the last two weeks. Prices have been reasonable and the demand has been unusually brisk. The quality of the fruit this year is excellent and grocers are experiencing little trouble in disposing of several carloads.

This is the week of the big Lindsay Central Fair and the grocers expect to do a brisk business during the three days of the fair, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Citizens in general sympathize with R. Spratt, of Spratt & Killen, grocers, whose son, Dominic, was killed accidentally, when a boat hand was shooting mud hens. The boy was a general favorite with everybody.

The market was unusually large during the last two market days. On Saturday last a large number of ducks and chickens were offered for sale, the prices being steep.

OLDEST STORE IN CANADA.

In a recent issue of The Grocer a request was made to readers to send in photographs of old stores. Already one has been sent in to us and it is shown in another page of this number.

What we want is simply a photograph of a store which you think is worthy of a place in our "Old Store Competition," and a little bit of past history.

If you are not in a position to supply a photograph, kindly put us in touch with the store, its location and some interesting facts about it. We will do the rest.

BRANTFORD.

Sept. 22.—Plans are out for the proposed new market in this city. The location, which is being considered, is along the south side of Colborne Street, between Hartman's store and the Foster wholesale grocery, a stretch of nearly four hundred feet. It is free from dust and noise, offers ample space, and is convenient for customers and attendants, being adjacent to railway and radial connection. If the plan carries, the market will be removed from the present square, on which a new city hall and government building will be erected, and located in the proposed site.

At the Brantford cheese market at the court house on Friday, 450 boxes of cheese were offered, and all sold, at 11 7-16 cents per pound.

A. L. Vanstone has a fine line of china, which he is displaying to good advantage during the fall season. Excellent sales are reported.

One feature in connection with the grocery stores of Brantford, which impresses travelers and visitors is the uniformly attractive appearance which they present. Practically all of the dealers in recent years have made extensive alterations and improvements. The public is quick to note such changes. A good environment in a grocery store is always appreciated.

The city council has changed its by-laws to permit of the erection of electric signs in this city. Previously overhanging or projecting signs were prohibited in order to preserve a uniformity of business streets. Now, however, projecting signs, so long as they are illuminated, are permissible. The move is somewhat in the the nature of an experiment. Experience will demonstrate its merits. The trouble is that such signs are of little value, except at nights, when stores are closed, while in the day time they are not particularly attractive from the standpoint of beautification.

GALT.

Sept. 22.—The fruit season is in full swing in Western Ontario, and as usual, Galt merchants are handling large quantities. The crop this year is the largest for some years, and naturally prices are lower. The buyers this season, however, are depending largely on the market for their supply, and a number of grocers have stated that their sales were not as large as in previous years.

Galt grocers are having no difficulty in making collections, a fact which points conclusively to the return of good times.

Wesley Gerbracht has joined the staff at Sloan's. Alex. Osborne, on the staff for the past two years, leaves this week to attend college in Toronto. Miss Susan Coxhead, one of the lady clerks, has severed her connection with the firm and left to reside in Toronto.

So rapidly has the Galt market grown that the present quarters have been found inadequate, and arrangements are being made for an extension.

There is a scarcity of green corn in Galt. There is certainly no falling off in the crop, but farmers evidently do not consider it worth bringing in. There is a demand for an unlimited quantity at 10c dozen. Grocers say that they cannot secure it.

HAMILTON.

September 22.—The convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association was one of the pleasantest events that has been held here in a long time. The people seemed to be determined to give them a good time, and the delegates enjoyed themselves to the full. As a convention city, Hamilton is a success, as a splendid time is always assured. The president, in his annual address, made some remarks in regard to foreign "labor agitators," which has caused considerable discussion. The matter was taken up by the Trades and Labor Council, and a motion was carried, inviting President R. Hobson to meet a representative of the Labor party on the platform at a public meting, and thresh the question out. Mr. Hobson has not as yet replied. Among the grocers' old friends was Jas. McLauchlin, of Owen Sound, looking as hale and hearty as ever. Mr. Bodley, of the Geo. Weston Co., was also attending the meetings, and handed around a few smiles to the Hamilton fellows. The many friends of W. H. Seyler were delighted to see him after his long illness, and found that the grip in "Billy's" hand was as strong as ever.

John L. Brown, the McNab St. grocer, is removing to his large new store at the corner of Catharine and Gore Sts. John L. has been in business on McNab Street for ten years. He is an athlete and a hustler, and during the last decade has made good success.

Geo. Morris, of Sherman Ave., has moved into his new store. It is equipped in a thoroughly up-to-date manner and few stores in the city can show such a natty appearance. Mr. Morris recently met with a painful accident, in getting out of his wagon. He injured his knee-cap and has been obliged to lay up altogether.

The Hamilton market still continues to be one of the sights of this part of Canada. Farmers line up about 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon before market days and the people are now treated to a night market, with a brisk business going on until midnight. The quantity of peaches and plums on sale is enormous.

Don't leave your counter until the customer leaves the store.

The employer or clerk who reads his trade journals is usually the best posted business man in the shop.

Notes from the Maritime Provinces and Quebec

Active Fish Market in Nova Scotia — Great Export Demand From Naples—Pork Prices Going up in Maritime Provinces— Sugar Refinery Probable for St. John — Carnival Parade at Montreal.

HALIFAX.

September 21.—The wholesale grocers report the fall trade opening up in good shape and business at the present time is quite brisk. Owing to the high price asked for such lines as pork and bacon and hams, lard, flour, etc., the orders are not as large as usually received at this season of the year. Pork, especially, is an article that is in heavy demand at this season of the year bu the record high prices quoted are restricting the sales to a large extent. The general impression is that the supply is not equal to the demand.

The fruit season is now at its height and the market is abundantly supplied with apples and pears, all local grown. There are also some fine California pears now on the market but they are not in great demand though the price has eased off considerably during the past week. The retail price is from ten to twenty cents per dozen lower. Good pears can now be purchased at forty cents per dozen. The first Nova Scotia Gravensteins are now on the market. They are quoted at $3.50 for the choicest stock. Drops of the same variety are selling at $2. The apples are a little green yet but they will ripen fast from now on. The crop of Clapps Favorites (pears) this season is the heaviest for years and the price is very low. The choicest fruit can be purchased for $3 per barrel.

The market is glutted with tomatoes and the price is within reach of all. They are selling at 25 cents per ten pound basket. Green tomatoes are selling at 60 cents per bushel.

The fish markets are now active. The catch of the Lunenburg fleet to date is about 124,000 quintals. The Bankers continue to arrive with full loads of codfish, the season for their craft on the whole, being possibly the best (considering the number of vessels,), for twenty years. Fish are still reported plentiful on Bank Quero, conservative estimates as to the Bank cure now in course of making, running from 170,000 to 190,000 quintals. The prospects are that quite a few new vessels will be built and a larger fleet engaged in the fishery next season.

A pleasing feature of the fishing season, to the sailing vessels, has been the partial failure of the steam trawling fleet. Steam trawlers were known to be only taking 1,000 fish a day when fishing over the same ground where the Bankers would take 5,000 to 6,000 fish in twelve hours, principally due to the fact that the fish were caught at fifty to sixty fathoms,—a little too low for the trawler to operate. It is doubtful if the trawling fleet from the other side will be as large next season, as the owners find that to prosecute this fishery so far away from their base, expenses are great, and full trips are necessary to ensure good returns. There is nothing new from the Labrador. The trap fishery has been abandoned, and has been a dire failure. The floaters have yet to be heard from, but if the weather continues fine, and October is a good month for curing, it may not be too late to land a successful voyage.

The world's fish markets continue to absorb rapidly the supplies that are available, and demand will continue good throughout September. Summer Bank cure are now being offered to the exporters. It is to be regretted the quality is not sufficiently good to enable operators to offer it in the Mediterranean markets. The pleasing feature of the export business of late has been the large quantity of fish shipped from here for Naples, three thousand casks having been shipped during the last two weeks. This business could be doubled, or even trbled, if fishermen would only cure the fish in the proper way. They are gradually realizing now that it pays to slack salt their fish and wash and cure them properly.

There has been considerable herring arriving of late, August cure, large size fish, but the price of this grade is gradually tending downward, the grocery demand being small, due, doubtless to the warm weather. No cargoes of Newfoundland spring cure have been sold during the last week, but vessels are now loading there, and ample stocks will be available in a short time. Other grades of pickled fish are dull and neglected.

ST.JOHN.

September 21.—The price of pork continues to soar and quotations now are: backs, $29; clear, $27 and mess, $26.50 to $27. There has been no change in the price of flour since September 2.

New canned goods are coming and the jobbers report that peas are scarce. Early quotations were 75 cents a dozen but now the dealers are asking $1 Many of the jobbers have not been able to secure enough to fill their orders.

New beans are being quoted lower but delivery will not be made until same time in October. The price now is $2.45 to $2.50 a bushel for hand-picked and $3.50 to $3.70 for yellow-eyes.

Samuel T. Vaughan who for forty five years has conducted a retail grocery store at 96 Main street, died on Friday, September 17. Mr. Vaughan was seriously ill in February last but during the summer appeared to be as well as could be. During the past few weeks, however, he gradually failed until death occurred. He was in his 70th year and was one of the oldest grocerymen in St. John.

Frederick C. Durant, of New York, who was in St. John some few weeks ago looking for a site on which to erect a large industrial plant and who was very reticent on that occasion about divulging the nature of the industry, is again in the city. It is now known, however, that it is a sugar refinery that Mr. Durant has in view. He has been in consultation with the board of trade and with a committee from the common council and if the concessions asked for are granted, St. John will have, according to Mr. Durant the largest sugar refining plant in Canada. It has been learned that Mr. Durant is the representative of a company of United States and Canadian capitalists, who wish to establish an immense sugar refinery somewhere on Canadian soil. The company will operate under a Dominion charter and will be capitalized at $2,500,000. The plant it is stated would employ about 300 hands and would have an output of about 400 tons of sugar per day. Mr. Durant looked over sites at Halifax and in Western Ontario as well as St. John, but is impressed with the splendid opportunity afforded here for water and rail transportation. He is asking the city to provide a free site and to grant exemption from taxes and water rates for a term of years. The proposition is now being considered by the council.

De Witt Bros., whose big flour and feed warehouse at Fairville was burned down some time ago have completed the erection of a larger building on the site of the old structure. The new building is sheathed with steel and the owners feel satisfied that it is practically fireproof. Representatives of the firm have been in Carleton county recently buying up potatoes and hay for shipment to Cuba in the new steamship line which will commence its sailings from this port during the present month.

MONTREAL.

September 21.—Varied as are the forms of entertaining visitors, one of the most pleasing and unique is a carnival parade. On Wednesday, September 15th, Montreal and its visitors had the pleasure of witnessing such a one. Of the floats interesting to grocers the three best known were those of Lake of the Woods Milling Co., exhibiting their Five Roses flour, the Walter M. Lowney Co. of Canada with a chocolate exhibit, and Blue Ribbon Tea. An interesting float was that of J. O. Forrest, who showed the whole history of tobacco from the plant to the finished product. P. A. Milloy had a good ginger beer exhibit in the shape of an eight foot bottle. As a spectacle the parade was a decided success, and was conducted on a more ambitious scale than has evere been attempted here before. Fully fifty business houses and clubs took part.

The Royal Commission, appointed by the British Government to facilitate trade relations between ourselves and the British West Indies, will hold a meeting in Montreal, September 27th, in the Board of Trade building.

One of the best aids to the retail grocer is good and varied advertising in the store by means of signs and specialties. Yet many of our grocers seem to use only what is sent them. Write your manufacturers if you need a little assistance in pushing a good line. They are only too glad to help, and their advertising departments want to hear from a progressive man regarding such a necessity.

The Canada Industrial Exhibition, held in the Coliseum last week, was not the success the promoters expected it to be. Several booths were unoccupied, while the numerous other attractions of Back-to-Montreal week kept the crowds down to mere handfuls. On account of this lack of interest exhibitors who were there did not take the same care with their booths. It has proved a disappointment to both promoters and exhibitors.

E. B. Goodacre, of Watt, Scott & Goodacre, is in Ottawa this week on a business trip.

Chas. McGillivray, federal inspector of canning and preserving industries, is in town this week on a tour of inspection. He reports conditions in Montreal much improved over last year. With the new laws going into effect next year, it is hoped that Canadian manufacturers will have plants unequalled for cleanliness and general neatness.

Major G. W. Stephens, returning from his trip to New York, says, re the comparative values of Montreal and New York as shipping ports, that the position of Montreal is unassialable so long as Canadians keep terminal facilities ahead of the business. This is good news, as many have feared that New York would gradually absorb the greater part of the shipping trade.

Mathewson's Sons, the wholesale grocers, Montreal, on Tuesday purchased a warehouse on Longueil Lane, opposite the rear of their premises. The newly acquired building is 45 feet square, and will be renovated to suit the requirements of the firm. There is a cellar and there are three floors above it. Much of the space will be utilized for the storing of canned goods.

Joseph Edward Brown died in Montreal on September 13. Mr. Brown was head of the banana house, Joseph Brown & Sons, having been the energetic chief of the firm since the death of his father, some five years ago. He was known in fruit and retail grocery circles, where he had many friends, who valued his pleasant smile, his affable manner in business dealings and his upright character. Mr. Brown was secretary, and a director of, the Montreal Fruit Auction Co. His brother, Robert Brown, assumes the management of the business, in which he has been a partner right along, and which will not be changed.

A. G. Snowdon, of Snowdon & Ebbitt, has returned to Montreal, from Ottawa.

G. R. Small, of the Canada Maple Exchange, who has been in Ottawa on business, is back in Montreal.

Salmon Fishing Season Open Again—Butter Firmer in Price in the West—Vancouver Island Apple Crop Less Than Last Year —Carload of Confectionery and Cocoa From Old Country Arrives in Record Time at Winnipeg—Fruit Arrives From Ontario in Good Condition.

VANCOUVER, B.C.

Sept. 21.—The season for salmon fishing opened again on Wednesday night, with a price of fifteen cents each for fish. At this season of the year, while sockeyes are to be found, there are always many cohoes, which are regarded as an inferior fish, the sockeye being the best food fish. Markets are available for cohoes, and large quantities are packed. The fish have been running fairly well in the close season since August 25, though it is now too late to greatly increase the pack.

R. D. DINNING,

The Newly Appointed Secretary of the Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association.

Mention was made in these columns a few weeks ago of Copeland's celery farm in the Chilliwack Valley, of which such a success has been made. Last week all records for shipments from this farm were beaten, two tons of cabbage alone having been shipped to Vancouver. Altogether, the Copelands have between fifty and sixty acres of garden, fifteen being in cabbage, fifteen in celery and the remainder in onions, cauliflower, melons and other garden truck.

It is estimated that the apple crop on Vancouver Island this year will be about 10,000 boxes as compared with 14,000 boxes last year. In point of quality, this year's fruit compares favorably with that of last, in fact it is very good, with fair prices. The plum crop will be short, while pears will be better both in quantity and quality. Advices from Winnipeg show what favor British Columbia apples is meeting with in Manitoba. J. McLean, manager of the Pioneer Fruit Company, went to Ontario to place an order for 1,500 barrels, but did not place an order for one. He claimed that the reason was that the ordchards were in bad shape and the quality uncertain. That being the case, the Manitoba firuit men are looking to the coast for supplies. The point drilled into growers here by experts, both government and private, is to cultivate carefully, spray regularly, and pick off green fruit early so as to avoid an overload, thus getting the best. Every day, shipments of fruit from the States are being condemned, and if not sent back are destroyed.

WINNIPEG.

Sept 21.—On September 11, a carload of cocoa and confectionery arrived in Winnipeg via C.P.R., which was shipped from Liverpool on August 27. The shipment was carried on the "Empress of Britain" to Quebec, and then traveled via Owen Sound and Fort William. The through time from Liverpool was 14½ days, which is a record in the transportation of import freight to this country.

Robert Thompson, manager of the St. Catharines cold storage association, who has had much experience in the growing and shipping of fruit, is convinced that the best method of handling fruit in Winnipeg is by public auction. Cars of fruit arrive daily direct from the growers and are eagerly bought up by the retailers. The St. Catharines company have taken particular pains to grade and pack the fruit as skilfully as possible, and thereby dismiss the complaints of previous years, that it was not handled properly. None but refrigerator cars are used in transportation, and in this way the fruit arrives in good condition.

E. Whatley, formerly of the grocery department of the T. Eaton Company, is making preparations to open a retail store in the west side of the city. Mr. Whatley has served several years in the trade, while in the old land. He is fond of Winnipeg, and the west, and is delighted with the opportunities which this country affords.

Asa Vanalstine has been traveling on the Canadian Northern's routes in Manitoba, in the interests of an apple packing concern in Western Ontario. He has secured orders for eight carloads of winter apples, to be delivered from $4 to $5 per barrel. Mr. Vanalstine says that the merchants everywhere are doing well.

Local grocers have just passed through a remarkably busy period. The fresh fruit season was comparatively short this year, and merchants bought and sold their stocks within a very few days. One grocer stated that on September 23, his cashier reported over $1,300 worth of goods retailed. Of course, this comprised all lines, but fresh fruit formed a considerable portion. The customers are all back from their tours and summer resorts, and are daily renewing acquaintances with the grocers. New household supplies have contributed greatly to the hustle of the past few days. Customers are anxious to get something good to eat again, and table delicacies are in great demand. Altogether the local trade is in good condition. Wholesalers are supplying new and fresh stocks and money is always ready.

FAN SHAPED FRUIT WINDOW.

How to Arrange a Window That Will Sell the Goods.

A window display to be effective must be such that it: 1. Attracts attention. 2. Affords information. 3. Creates a desire to buy. These are the three fundamental principles that should underlie all window dressing, and no display can be termed complete until it has fulfilled these three qualifications.

It should attract attention either by its entirely original design or by "standing out" completely different in its arrangement from every other competitor's window in town or city.

It should afford information in having each pile or pyramid neatly ticketed with information regarding the quality, purity, flavor, etc., and price of the article displayed. Above all, the price should be shown, as a much larger proportion of sales than might be expected are made direct from the window display, hence the necessity of having it well priced.

Fan shapes for window trims, says an experienced window dresser, will often be found desirable for a change. To make them most attractive due regard must be given to the principle of harmoney between the two sides of the display. That principle ought never to be neglected, any more than should perspective and proportion in a picture.

Here is a suggestion for a fan-shaped trim: Run lines in chalk or pencil from a central point in the inside line of the window ledge to the outer edges. The two central lines should start at the central point, but should be, at the outer line, ten inches to two feet apart, according to the size of the window. This space should be filled with a single line of goods—peaches, perhaps, would be desirable at this season. In the next divisions on either side, which should be a little narrower at the street end than the centre piece, should be placed the same kind of goods—apples, pears or whatever is most appropriate to stock and season. If apples are used on one side, apples should appear on the other. This plan may be followed to advantage throughout, the third lines on either side being alike, the fourth lines alike, and so on. The artistic value of the display can be helped immensely by use of leaves or even tissue wrappers to separate the different folds of the fan.

No one refuses to do business with the banks because they close early and are not opened on Sundays or holidays.

THE " OLD STORE COMPETITION "

The above illustration is that of the general store of A. F. Choate, Warsaw, Peterboro County, Ont. The building was erected in 1855 by the late Thomas Choate and has been used as a general store continuously since that time. It is therefore 54 years old. The interior arrangement has been changed considerably making it one of the most convenient general stores in the country districts. Mr. Choate has been Post Master for many years and has the exclusive agency for several important manufacturing houses.

A FAIR ALMERIA GRAPE CROP.

A. E. Carleton, Almeria, Spain, writes regarding the crop of Almeria (Malaga) grapes as follows:—A local paper has published a tabulated list of the probable production this year of the Almeria white grape in the various villages of the province. The total number of barrels estimated was less than 900,000, or slightly more than half of last year's crop. After careful investigation I am convinced that the paper's forecast is altogether too small. Leading growers and shippers say that 1,500,000 barrels may be deemed as a conservative estimate, or 200,000 less than in 1908.

The rains during the budding season and recent hot winds have greatly harmed the fruit, or otherwise the crop should have been at least 3,000,000 barrels. From various reports it appears that at present the grape promises to be large in size and of a good keeping quality.

THE PROOF OF POWER.

The man who is worthy of being a leader of men will never complain of the stupidity of his helpers, of the ingratitude of mankind, nor of the inappreciation of the public.

These things are all a part of the great game of life, and to meet them and not go down before them in discouragement and defeat is the final proof of power.—Elbert Hubbard.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Tea—Japan market closed.
Tomatoes—Advance expected.
Peppers—Prices advanced.
Peas and Beans—Lower market.

Montreal, Sept. 23, 1909.

Apples are beginning to make their appearance in larger quantities. Peas and tomatoes seem firm and, in all probability, will advance in price. Tea is being eagerly taken up as fast as it appears, but the Japan market is practically closed and, outside of one or two low-grade shipments, not much more is expected. Sugar is firm at the advanced price. Some new crop currants and raisins are expected this week or early next.

SUGAR—Prices are stationary, but the strength of the raw market makes it seem more likely there will be another rise unless conditions change.

TORONTO—Canned goods are firm, will be advances on several lines. Peas are now selling at $1 per dozen. Tomatoes are unsettled. So far the quantity packed is considerably below last year, but with the large part of the crop still not ripe, the weather conditions will have a great deal to do in determining the settled price for the year. The season is late and a frost might occur any time, which, of course, would at once end the season. The price of corn will also largely depend on what can still be put up.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Canned Peas—Higher market.

Sugar—Prices firmer.

Valencia Raisins—First arrivals.

Spices—Peppers firm.

Toronto, September 23, 1909.

The wholesale men all report good business, and while some are not quite as optimistic as others they all look for a rushing fall trade. Some, who either struck it better or are easier satisfied, stated that their trade was very good, and others thought it just lacked the "snap" which they would like to see. However, they admitted that they were doing well, and if the trade is not what they expected, the trouble might be that they expected too much, but the outlook is good.

They all seem to be in the dark as to the prices of canned goods, but with the quantity carried over from las year and the probable put up this year there is no reason to fear that they will be very much higher. There is nothing in sight of a startling character, so far as prices are concerned, and therefore, in the meantime, the retailer need not worry.

SUGAR—The demand for sugar is still very heavy and the market is firm even at the recent advance. The preserving season will soon be over, which will lessen the demand, and in consequence no further rise is expected.

EARLY DELIVERY IN MOOSE JAW.

No Orders Taken on Saturday Night After Eight O'clock.—Merchant Thinks Other Places Should Waken Up.

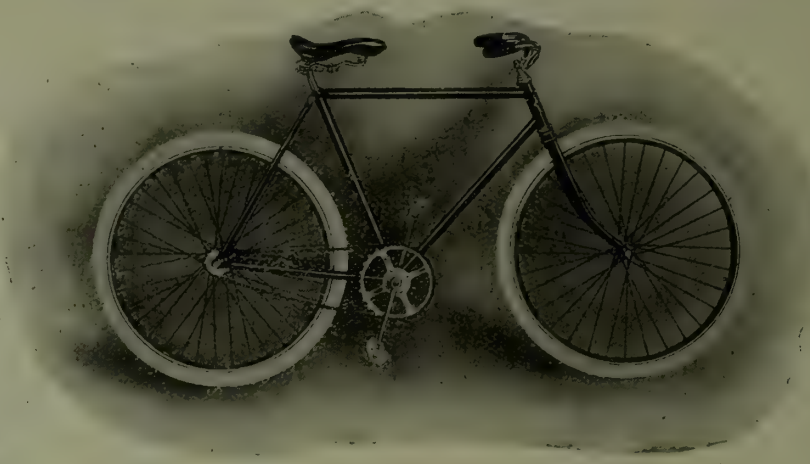
Editor Canadian Grocer,—Re "Saturday Night Delivery," I noticed an article in a recent issue of The Grocer relating to the Saturday night delivery question, and I would like to say that it is a mistaken idea to think that this cannot be done away with.

It is now three years since we have taken any orders to be delivered after eight o'clock on Saturday night. We take orders up to eight or perhaps fifteen minutes to eight, and any orders left after this time are either held over until Monday morning or the customer has to carry home the goods. We—the merchants of this city—of course, agreed upon this system among ourselves, and got cards printed to this effect. We had them placed in prominent places in our stores, and we never have had any trouble whatever. In fact, the public seemed to assist us in the matter, and we have had several expressions of praise from different customers congratulating us in the matter.

There is no question at all, that this can be done in any town or city if the MERCHANTS THEMSELVES WILL ONLY STAND BY IT.

Before we adopted this plan our drivers had been out as late as 12 and 1 o'clock Sunday mornings, and, in fact, I have seen them come back to the barn Sunday morning and finish up. This system is now behind the times and the sooner the merchants of all cities and towns wake up to this fact, the better it will be for the drivers, the customers and the merchants.

T. J. McCammon.



Moose Jaw, Sept, 17, 1909.

[Editorial Note].—The above letter from Mr. McCammon shows that western merchants are well up to the front in progressive methods, and indicates that there are many towns and cities in the older parts of Canada which must feel that they are behind the times. The early Saturday night delivery question is just now a live one among merchants in Canada, so that the letter from Moose Jaw is appropriate and timely.

Your business will not grow unless you do add new customers constantly. The old ones will drop out with surprising regularity, and those that remain will not increase their purchases materially.

Different Ways of Country Store Advertising

Newspapers, Signs, Window Displays and Circulars Advocated —How to Conduct a Compaign Along These Four Lines — Newspaper Space Often Misused—Much Counts on Personal Work of the Merchant.

By. J. R. Gamble.

The term "country stores" is used here to distinguish the dealers of the smaller towns from the city merchants. In my opinion, there are at least four methods of advertising that can be made profitable to the dealers of the small towns:—

First—Newspaper advertising.

Second. — Fence and tree signs and posters.

Third.—Show window advertising

Fourth.—Circulars, leaflets and other advertising sent out by jobbers and manufacturers in connection with personal work of the dealer himself.

Newspaper advertising is the medium perhaps most commonly used by the country merchant, and the one from which he derives the least benefit. Not because space in his country paper would not pay if properly filled with good reading matter in which the farmer and his good wife would be interested, but for the fact that the advertisements of some of our country grocery dealers remind one of the letterhead or bill head of his neighbor, the general merchant, which is something like this:—

Office of John W. Jones, Dealer in Dry Goods, Notions, Hats and Caps, Boots and Shoes.

A little ancient, but it was good enough for his father years ago, and it hasn't been changed, although he hasn't had a pair of boots in his store for ten or fifteen years.

Misusing Newspaper Space.

Of course, the grocer who thinks his card inserted in the halfpage of his weekly paper, for which he paid his good money, appearing week after week and month after month, and reading something like this.

John Brown & Co.,
Dealer in Butter, Eggs and General Groceries, may think he is advertising his business, but he is merely contributing his share toward keeping up the country newspaper.

But with the help he can secure from the jobbers and manufacturers in the way of valuable suggestions and good cuts to attract attention to his advertisement, there is no excuse for the dealer letting his ad. though it be a good one, get stale. If we would make a study of advertising, selecting cuts of the proper size, and in the right proportion, and if we would just think over the lines that we could and should be advertising, our trouble would not be to think of something to take the place of the ad., which has been running so long that it reminds one of the appearance or Rip Van Winkle after his twenty years' sleep, but we would be trying to decide which lines we could best afford to leave out until the next change.

One Line at a Time.

Never advertise but one line at a time. One particular ad. advertised at a time, and at the right time, will bring better results than calling attention to several different lines in one advertisement. Change your ad. often. Never let it run more than two or three issues of the paper.

Here is where we country merchants are at great disadvantage in newspaper advertising. The papers are published weekly, and if we change often we can not have more than fifteen or twenty different ads. during the year.

It is well to get all the help you can from the advertising experts of the jobbers and manufacturers, but their ready-made ads. hardly ever seem appropriate for your particular trade. They do not know how to appeal to a dealer's home people, as the dealer himself does; especially if the dealer studies his trade and knows the peculiarities of his customers as he should.

These experts can give you some very valuable points as to arrangement of advertising, the space required, the style of type, etc., but when it comes to describing the good points of a certain plow to the farmers, or the baking qualities of a certain flour, the dealers are better prepared to write up the copy of their ads. than the other man, though he be an expert ad. writer, for he knows the people he is trying to reach.

Therefore, it is my advice to get all the valuable information of this kind you can; get the ready-made ads. and study them, for there is much in them that you ought to know, and that you never would otherwise secure; with the good points gotten in this way, combined with your own plain common sense, you will have an ad. that will not only bring attention but will bring results.

Pushing Certain Lines.

By all means have two or three guaranteed lines that you are continually bringing before the public's attention. I do not mean by this to fill your newspaper space with these and nothing else, but advertise them in the papers occasionally, and call attention, at the proper time, to them in circulars, posters, etc. For instance, if you will pardon a personal allusion, we have a particular line of tea, and one particular line of paint that we are always advertising in some way. We never let up, and the result is that we have built up a reputation on these lines that has advertised us more than all the other advertising we have done.

The second method, the use of the fence and tree signs and posters, is good, but one of doubtful value. It will discourage any of us, when driving through the country, if we see the signs we have gone to so much trouble and expense to put up, cut to pieces by some 'possum hunter's axe, or perforated by pistol balls, put there as the result of a near-beer or white-top jag, or a wildcat-whisky drunk.

It is a source of pleasure, however, to feel that you have the most attractive signs on the leading roads coming into town, and to know that the prospective customer is having it brought to his attention every few hundred yards that yours is the one place to buy cheap, for cash, the very best goods possible. That these signs increase your sales to some extent there is no doubt, but they are very expensive, and unless they are placed with care on the most prominent roads I doubt the use of them being profitable advertising.

Show Window Advertising.

Third—Show window advertising I consider the most attractive that can be done. But I believe that there are comparatively few of the grocers in the smaller towns who take advantage of this cheap and profitable method of advertising.

It is true that some have good windows and trim them regularly, but there are hundreds of others who make practically no use of their windows other than to crowd them full of miscellaneous articles and leave them there indefinitely, to become dust-covered and shop-worn.

Some of the manufacturers are getting up attractive window trims and are doing a world of business in educating the dealers in window dressing. The trade papers are also doing an educational work along this line. The same idea should be carried out in window dressing as in newspaper advertising. Never crowd your windows with a conglomerate mass of different kinds of articles. One line at a time, well and attractively displayed, is much better. Of course, show window advertising is not as valuable to the country dealer as it is to his city brother, for comparatively few of his customers see any one display if his window is changed as often as it shou.d be. If, however, he has an attractive window, one that will challenge the attention and admiration of the man from the country, he will be sure to tell his family and his neighbors about it, giving a description of the display.

It is troublesome and sometimes expensive to decorate a large window, but it pays well for the trouble and expense. Of course, it goes without saying, that unless the windows are kept fresh-looking and scrupulously clean, they will produce exactly the opposite effect to that which is intended. They will repel, rather than attract.

We now come to the fourth and last method mentioned, and the one I consider to be the most profitable to the country stores.

Printed Matter.

I believe that the very attractive and instructive printed matter sent out by the manufacturers and jobbers, used in connection with the merchant's mailing list and handed out by his salesmen, wrapped up with purchases and enclosed with personal letters, bills and statements, to be the most valuable advertising the merchant in the small town can do. It is true that much of this matter is entirely wasted by being placed on the counter, to be blown about the store, where it is trampled on and so soiled that it is unfit to be sent out, and at the best only attracts attention to those who happen to come into the store. This, however, is the fault of the storekeeper and the misfortune of the concern who sent the matter out.

The best method we have hit upon to keep this matter in order and ready for distribution is to have a shelf, divided into sections, just under the wrapping counter, where this matter can be so classified that the salesman can readily lay his hand on the particular kind to suit the customer being waited on.

You can never tell where this class of advertising is going to bring returns. I had this fact brought forcibly to my attention only a few weeks ago, when one day an old negro walked into the store and called for a broom. He said he had his little grandchild sit down and read the leaflet which was wrapped up with his purchase of a few days before clear through, and if the broom was as good as that paper said it was he "sho' wanted one of dem brooms." The consequences were he got the broom he wanted, it sold itself—and he went away satisfied, and we had a much better profit than we would have had we sold an unadvertised brand.

Personal Work.

We cannot understand how any live merchant can afford not to take advantage of this inexpensive and very profitable method of advertising. This method alone in connection with the merchant's personal work would keep his firm so prominently and favorably before the public that he would, if necessary, dispense with all other advertising and hold his own with his competitors who depend solely upon newspaper advertising.

By personal work we mean the work of studying and catering to the wants of your customers. If you haven't what they want, get it—it makes no difference what it is—if it is in your line. Let them know that you are in the business to serve them to the very best of your ability. Shake hands with the men, be polite to the ladies and always give them personal attention, if possible, and kiss the babies.

We know men who live on such good terms with their customers that these customers enter the stores with smiles on their faces and outstretched hands, expecting nothing less than a whole-souled welcome and a hearty hand-shake; and when a customer enters into a store in that manner, you have the right kind of a salesman to handle him, he will certainly carry away with him the article for which he came.

It is the duty, it is the privilege, and it should be the pleasure of every merchant to be not only on friendly, but on the very best of terms with his customers. I know we very often hear such remarks as, "It is a cold-blooded business proposition," and "There is no sentiment in business," but, gentlemen, there is sentiment in business, and the merchant who lives such a clean life morally that his fellowman has the utmost confidence in him; and if he can look his customer to whom some great trouble or misfortune has fallen straight in the eye and can truthfully say, "God bless you, my friend, you have my profoundest sympathy," or can actually rejoice with his friend and customer who has just harvested a bountiful crop, or to whom some other good fortune has come, is doing advertising, the result of which will last as long as life itself shall last. The customer may forget the catchy ad. in the newspaper or the beautiful window display, but he will never forget the man whose sympathy he had in time of trouble or the man who rejoiced with him in his good fortune.

MANITOBA MARKETS

Winnipeg, September 23, '09.

The market is in a weaker condition this week than it has been for some time. The cause is no doubt attributed to new crop goods coming in in large quantities. Fall stocks are moving at present and this consists chiefly in canned goods. The 1909 crop pack is large this season and the quality is said to be excellent. Canned vegetables are on the market but the fruits are to come yet and prices may be considerably reduced.

The general optimism in the west prevails and wholesalers are already getting some money in as a result of the wheat crop. Merchants are preparing to stock heavily and their creditors have no fear of a money scarcity.

SUGAR—Last week's advanced prices remain unchanged. The greater bulk of the preserving season output is depleted and merchants are doing their fall stocking at present.

Talking to the Point

CLASSIFIED WANT ADS get right down to the point at issue. If you want something, say so in a few well-chosen words. Readers like that sort of straight-from-the-shoulder-talk, and that is the reason why condensed ads are so productive of the best kind of results.

CLASSIFIED WANT ADS are always noticed. They are read by wide-awake, intelligent grocers, who are on the look-out for favorable opportunities to fill their requirements.

The prediction which we made regarding prices for Lard during September has been more than proved correct. The quotations this week are the highest we have ever known. Such, however, is the scarcity of Pure Lard that we should not be surprised to see prices even higher before the end of the month.

We want to remind you we have excellent Lard Compounds and Cooking Oils. These are quoted at very reasonable prices and are being largely sold at the present time.

Produce and Provision Situation of the World

Now Difficult to Obtain Hogs to Supply Home Demand—Much Less Butter Exported Than Last Year—Cheese Prices High—Price of Eggs Never Known to be as High at This Time of the Year.

In order to arrive at a reasonable conclusion as to the condition of the produce market, it is no longer necessary to take into consideration the state of the English market, which on account of liberal receipts from Denmark, is a little lower. This week, as the representative of The Canadian Grocer called the attention of one of the packers to this fact, he replied: "I don't care a darn about the English market—we cannot get enough hogs to supply our own local demand. We have lots of orders which we cannot fill, even at an advance of our present prices. Our stocks are depleted, and the supply quite inadequate to meet the requirements."

It was also reported by some that hogs are a little easier this week. This was told to others. "Report or no report, we have got to pay what the farmers want. They hold the situation, and if we lower the price, they simply won't sell. They know that we must have the hogs," he answered.

There is a better feeling in the butter market, but still, from the disinterested standpoint of one who looks at the general situation, the question comes up in his mind, where is the Canadian butter this year? Last year up to the same time our exports exceeded this year's shipments by 42,246 packages. It may be argued that not so much is produced this year, and also that home consumption is greater, but after all there must be large quantities of our butter waiting to be put on the market.

The cheese market is like "one holding on, and the other one not letting go." The prices are too stiff to cause business to move smoothly.

The egg market is firm, and the price has reached the highest point ever paid in Toronto at this time of the year, and is 5 cents a dozen higher than last year. Judging from the quality of the eggs which come in, it is evident that the farmers are holding them back for the higher prices later in the season. The egg question is a matter that requires to be looked into in the near future. Strict laws are enacted against adulteration of foods, but why should a farmer be allowed to hold his eggs until they are at least unwholesome, if not entirely unfit for human food? While the eggs coming in now do not show as large a percentage of bad eggs, the percentage of stale eggs is greater. This shows that they are intentionally allowing them to deteriorate in value, with a view to obtaining the higher price that is paid for fresh eggs.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—Pure lards are all up ½c over last week. Porks and hams are also higher. A strong demand is the cause. Somewhat curious is the fact that live hogs have weakened somewhat, being quoted at $8.75 to $9. This condition will probably be only temporary.

BUTTER—This market is high and firm, due to the short make just now. Also high markets in the United States have had a sympathetic effect. The total receipts for the week are 10,885 packages, as against 10,481 packages for the corresponding week last year. CHEESE—With the high prices for all kinds of meats, grocers who study the interests of their customers, as well as their own, should educate them to use more cheese. Cheese, even at its present price, is far below its value, compared with meat or eggs, and its sale should be pushed.

POULTRY—Country merchants who buy poultry from farmers should do some educational work among them, and get them to feed their stock better before they put them on the market. Why a Choice Dairy Butter Cannot be Secured

Winnipeg Grocer Points Out How a Dairy Product Can be Produced Equal to the Creamery—Middleman Makes the Profit in Manufacturing the Latter at the Expense of the Farmer and Merchant—Great Demand for Manitoba Fresh Eggs.

Winnipeg, Sept 22.—Referring to the butter and egg situation in this city, A. Hendry, grocer, explains why in his estimation, choice dairy butter cannot be provided for the retail trade. He also points out the great demand for eggs, and particularly for the Manitoba fresh quality. Mr. Hendry reviews the existing conditions as follows: —

"Hundreds of times each month we try to give satisfactory explanations to customers why it is that we cannot nowadays furnish them with really choice dairy butter, which so many of our very best people have a decided preference for. We give them such reasons as most readly suggest themselves to us, such as, the almost impossible task of getting suitable dairy help, or again, that it may be as profitable for the farmer to sell his cream direct to the creamery or to one of their many agents who thread their way through almost every section of our western country.

"Still, that is but partially satisfactory when we reflect but for one moment. In the first place, we know for a certainty that creameries are paying concerns in Winnipeg, and secondly that strictly gilt-edged dairy butter has a market value equal to the finest creamery butter made. The question then rises—Where does the creamery make its profit? and we naturally conclude, out of the farmers' cream, there being the middleman between the farmer and the merchant, who handles both on equal terms of price and profit. One thing, however, we must emphasize here, and emphasize strongly, and that is the word "quality." To compete successfully against the creameries the farmer must produce the perfect article as near as it is possible by the help of the most modern methods, and a strict observance to scrupulous cleanliness in everything that pertains to the manufacture of butter. By so doing he will find dairying is still a very profitable part of his business.

"As regards eggs, too, there is an unlimited and ever increasing demand for Manitoba fresh eggs. This article alone would fairly astonish the ordinary farmer were it possible to give him anything like the accurate figures regarding the immense quantity of eggs consumed over the Manitoba production, and the good prices paid for same during the entire year. From October, 1908, till March, 1909, five Winnipeg houses imported from the south and east some thirty or forty car loads of eggs, containing not less than thirteen thousand cases, at prices ranging anywhere from 27c to 30c per doz. for local consumption alone, and as for absolutely new-laid eggs gathered and marketed inside of one week, the citizens of Winnipeg would gladly pay almost any price, were they to be had.

PERSONALS.

J. H. Simpson of the Simpson Co., wholesale grocers, Guelph, Ont., was in Toronto on Tuesday on a business trip.

T. J. Connors, general manager of Armour & Co., Chicago, spent a few days in Toronto early this week, on his way home from Europe. To The Grocer he spoke encouragingly of the industrial outlook abroad. He was much taken with the high quality of the bacon cured in Canada.

Templin and McDonald, Kincardine, Ont., have purchased the business of the John Hiles Co. in the grocery line and are using modern methods in advancing their trade. They expect to have a large increase in sales from this department. Mr. Hiles disposed of the business he conducted on account of ill-health.

CHICORY QUALITIES VARY.

Authority on Coffee Blending Says it is Necessary to Get the Right Quality.

The fact that chicory is placed in coffee for those who desire it, does not, according to one blender, always mean that it improves the coffee to the best advantage so far as those who request it is concerned. He says.—

"We presume that you are anxious to hold your old coffee trade as well as increase it. This appears to you as rather a difficult proposition, for although you are careful in the selection and blending of your coffee it sometimes fails to give full satisfaction. You try one combination after another, but without success, and the task seems almost hopeless. In many cases a customer when purchasing a pound of coffee requests you to grind it and put a little chicory to it.

"Have you ever tasted this chicory you add to your coffee as carefully as you would your teas and coffees? Possibly you have not, and this may be just the reason why your coffee does not give satisfaction. Unknowingly, you have thought that "Chicory is Chicory," and this may be the cause of your trouble. There is a great difference in the quality of chicory. If you will test and pay as much attention to the cup qualities of your chicory as you do to your coffees you will not only satisfy your old customers, but gain new ones.

"If your trade demands chicory, be particular that the chicory you sell them is an improvement to your coffee, for genuine chicory will furnish body and flavor, which it is impossible to obtain with straight coffee."

FOR BUSY MEN.

One of the shortest and simplest methods known for calculating interest is to multiply the principal by the number of days and divide as follows:—

For 4 per cent., divide by 90.
For 5 per cent., divide by 72.
For 6 per cent., divide by 60.
For 7 per cent., divide by 52.
For 8 per cent., divide by 45.
Then point off four decimal places.

For instance, to find interest on $360 for 92 days at 8 per cent, multiply $360 by 92, and divide by 45, and point off four decimal places. The result is $7.36.

Flour, Cereals and Confectionery Department

Extraordinary Demand for Flour — Recent High Prices Had Kept Dealers From Purchasing—Authorities Differ as to the Outcome—Easier Market in Rolled Wheat.

Owing to the high price of flour, with the prospects of an extra good crop of wheat in sight, the stocks of flour all over the world were allowed to run down to an unusual low ebb. In bringing it back to its normal condition, orders for flour are altogether above the ordinary. Some millers could accept orders for flour at the present prices that would keep them running for several months. The market is in an unsetled condition. Millers differ widely as to the course the market will take. While the crop is an unusually heavy yield, the low condition of the stocks of old wheat and flour on hand must be considered. But with the enormous magnitude of the production of wheat and the wide differences in the estimates it is difficult to arrive at anything like a reliable conclusion.

The weather condition in the Northwest has been favorable, and harvesting and threshing are progressing rapidly. Wheat is being rushed to the elevators and the quality is splendid. In certain parts of England wheat is still in stooks and is suffering from wet weather.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Information supplied by sellers but for which the editors of The Grocer do not necessarily hold themselves responsible.

"Wherein true happiness lies"—a contented mind and a good digestion. There is no more truism than this, but how few of us fully realise it. A contented mind should follow a good digestion; this plainly shows that digestion should be pleased first, no mind can be contented when the body is at variance with it. Now the necessary essential to a contented mind is to relish and enjoy one's food, and what is there to give a more relish than a piquant and delectable sauce? Take for example the world-famous Worcestershire Sauce, manufactured by the house of Holbrook, in England. Here we have a sauce of the highest quality, which both pleases the palate and helps to digest those foods that the soul loveth. As an appetiser and a relish of both flesh, fish and fowl, it is incomparable, and this in itself is the reason of its success. Holbrook's Sauce, like good wine, needs no bush. It is only necessary to once try it, and no culinary artiste who values the success of a good dish would be without it. Holbrook's is the alpha and the omega in condiments.

We could sell Five Roses much cheaper—but under another name.

There are very many processes in FIVE ROSES milling.

Each with individual complications.

Having Immense Influence on the Finished Article—

To make or mar its Quality.

Said a Grocer:

"Yes, I believe FIVE ROSES flour "to be the best ever. But it's too dear "for my trade. You see, my custom- "ers want a good flour costing—why, "maybe a dollar less than ROSES. "Fix the price, and I'll fix the sales."

Well, we could Fix the Price—sell FIVE ROSES cheaper, ever so much cheaper.

By cheapening FIVE ROSES.

If we "saved" in wheat buying and grading, in separating and cleaning, in polishing and grinding.

If we then added more "savings" taken from good men's wages, taken from quality in packing and packages. We could sell FIVE ROSES, maybe one dollar a barrel less.

And it would sell like hot cakes at the "reduction."

Because of Past Performance when it cost More—when it was worth More. When it was really FIVE ROSES, not "near-good" flour.

And we'd never get a Repeat.

You'd never get a Repeat.

We'd both be living on a Lost Reputation.

Slim Living, Brother Grocer.

We'd no longer "be there with the goods," neither of us.

Aren't we both in business for Keeps, Brother Grocer?

Are YOU going to Boss your Business or is Price Competition Boss?

That's why the FIVE ROSES standard can't be lowered.

Because the confidence of our Retailers and the Consumer in FIVE ROSES' stability is worth more to us than Introductory Sales, which could not be backed up with Results.

Immediate Profit holds no Compensation for Lost Trade.

When you think of the high grade material, the high grade men, the care and expense concentrated on FIVE ROSES—

You forget the small difference in Initial Cost.

You are not tempted by a Cut in Price due to a Cut in Quality.

You feel a genuine interest in talking FIVE ROSES to your trade—speak as though you expected an order.

You get it, Brother Grocer—and again and again.

You have lost money and confidence by not selling FIVE ROSES sooner.

But it is not too late to catch up.

Is it, Brother Grocer?

Good Service Needed in Handling Fresh Fruits

Suggestions as to How the Retailer can Best Keep Fruit so that Quality is Retained—Spoiled from Dust in the Street — Merchants Should Purchase What They Know They can Sell.

The handling of fruits is becoming a heavy item in the management of the grocery trade, and calls for the best possible methods. On account of its perishable nature a grocer requires special knowledge of the fruit, and careful judgment in buying and selling.

From the time the first strawberries come in, to the time the last grapes are cut off by the advent of the winter, the grocer is never free from anxiety or even worry. He must be on hand when the fruit arrives to make his selections, and after he has done this the next train may bring in a heavy supply, and prices may drop so that he will have to sell his goods at cost or else hold them and see them decay on his hands.

With the fact in his mind that it must be sold, instead of keeping it inside, free from dust, he places it outside of his store to attract the attention of those who pass by, and in this way tries to get rid of it as quickly as possible.

Cleaner Goods in Demand.

While this is practised with good results, so far as sales are concerned, it nevertheless is by no means good, clean, up-to-date, storekeeping. The trend from day to day is more and more for cleaner goods, and if kept inside away from dust and dogs it will be appreciated by the better class of customers.

Although, according to law in many places, fruit is to be placed when outside, in certain positions, it is often left on the sidewalk. This, if seen by certain customers would keep them from ever again buying fruit at that place.

Fruit Spoiled by Handling.

The fingering of fruit by customers is another serious source of annoyance and loss to the storekeeper. How much fruit is unconsciously spoiled through this careless habit is only known by the merchant. How often the retailer almost bites his lips in anger when he sees a customer poke her thumb in almost every pear or peach on top of the basket which he knows will show a black spot in a short time afterwards, and then walk away and let the merchant sell the fruit which she has spoiled, to some one else.

A large quantity of fruit was handled so far this summer with good judgment, and less fruit was wasted than ever before. The foolish spirit of trying to buy the largest quantity of fruit was not in evidence this year in most places. Merchants were careful to buy only what they felt sure that they could sell and the result is that they almost all made money on it.

It is a fact proven by daily experience that competition is no longer a matter of price, but a matter of good service.

JOSEPH PREVOST DEAD.

Montreal wholesale circles lost a long known figure on Saturday last, when Joseph Prevost, of the purchasing department of Laporte, Martin & Co. died, following an operation for appendicitis performed three days previously. A perfect gentleman, a conscientious, hard worker, and a man who knew his business to the smallest detail, his loss will be felt by a host of friends, but more particularly by his firm, who will with difficulty replace one whose unfailing courtesy and ability enabled him to fill with honor to himself and profit to his firm a position which was anything but a sinecure. Mr. Prevost was only thirty-seven years of age. He had been in the grocery business for twenty years, all of which time he was in the employ of the one firm.

Character is formed by conquering difficulties.

THE LEMON CREED

¶ There is more real—actual—value in a box of "ST. NICHOLAS" Lemons at any time of the year—in any year—than any other brand of lemons on the market to-day, yesterday, or any old day—and that has been so for 28 years. There may be times when things occur over which we, "The Common People," have no control: the carriers may not use the fruit right and we may be unable to get revenge—Providence may interfere (not just because we are in the lemon biz, but just because—)—which things may make us lose money, but give "ST. NICHOLAS" a fair show—in fact, you may even handicap it some—and you will make more "REAL" money (the kind you can take a trip to California on) in a year than any other pack of lemons in existence to-day, or likely to be.

GREEN FRUITS. — With the strict rules, between the retailers and the wholesale fruit dealers, that no one but merchants can buy at the fruit market, few outside of the dealers have an opportunity to see the magnificient display of fruit which arrives from day to day, and is sold to hundreds of dealers, who come there for their supplies. Upwards of 15 car loads are handled each day, and the total number of baskets sold last week was 107,388. Not only is the quantity almost beyond belief, but the quality has never been its equal, and may not equal it again in ten years. Peaches, plums, pears and apples are all carefully assorted, and run in price from 25c to $1 a basket. No fault is found with the packing, the bottom is as good as the top, for which the packers deserve credit. With all this choice fruit, it is interesting to note that the oranges, which are on our market now practically all the year round, are still in good demand, and are sold in large quantities. The first car of Cape Cod cranberries made its appearance, and the quality was never better. They are sold at $9 per barrel.

VEGETABLES.—As stated last week, vegetables of all kinds are now supplied direct to the grocers by the local gardeners, and therefore very few are seen on the market. Cantaloupes, however, as well as egg plants, are in abundance. Potatoes are firm, and the Ontario grown are quite equal in quality to the eastern potatoes, which for some years were considered superior to our own.

All agreed that there is no change in prices.

Bean Crop in Kent Will Fall Short of Estimates—Decline in Price Anticipated.

Chatham, Sept. 22.—The great bean crop of South Kent is nearly all harvested. A careful survey of the field indicates that the yield will fall somewhat short of more optimistic estimates voiced earlier in the season.

The farmers have had on the whole excellent weather for the harvest. In some sections frosts early in September were not too late to injure some of the beans planted late in the spring, and quite a bit of damage resulted from this source. There has been little wet weather, however, and this is one of the worst foes of the beans after they have been ripened, though essential to their growth prior to that stage.

The major portion of Canada's home bean supply comes from the County of Kent. Farmers in the bean country along the waters of Rondeau, where the beans thrive best, anticipate in the neighborhood of 20 bushels to the acre, though in good years as high as 30 bushels to the acre have been known in this section.

HUGH WALKER & SON
GULEPH, ONTARIO

Estimates as to the extent of the crop vary considerably and at the present stage a very large element of guesswork enters into the best of them.

Locally, beans are still quoted at $1.75 to $2, a bushel, which has been the standard quotation throughout the summer. This indicates that deliveries have not been very active so far. Buyers expect a decline when deliveries commence. It is doubtful, however, if the decline will be a very maked one.

A feature of the situation which must be considered is the marked prosperity of the farming community during the past year. Farmers are no longer in dire need of money. As a result, there is no noticeable rush of grain deliveries. Farmers are able to hold their grain, and this condition will also affect beans, for a time at least. Of course, beans run considerable risks of deteriorating when held; nevertheless, the outlook is that the growers will take their chances to a considerable extent.

BUSINESS MAXIMS.

Faith and persistency are life's architects.

What appear to be calamities are often the sources of fortune.

We ought to aim at such pleasures as follow business, not at those which precede it.

What we are not willing to suffer in others we ought by all means to avoid in ourselves.

He who reigns within himself and rules passion, desire and fear is more than a king.

Each day, each week, each month, each year opportunities offer themselves, but many pass them by unnoticed.

The best idea we can form of absolute truth is that it is able to meet any condition by which it can be tested. Half truth is sometimes worse than a lie, because it is more insidious and misleading.

Dark clouds roll up and exclude the sun, but we know that there is light behind the clouds. So no one should be unduly depressed by non-success. There may be a better time coming.

TRADE NOTES.

Geo. Fleming has purchased the general store business of Wm. Stuart, of Crossfield, Alta. O. D. Fleming will manage the business. The new proprietor announced the change by using liberal space in the Crossfield Chronicle and the fact that he was holding a clearance sale.

Mr. Level-Headed Grocer

Which will YOU do, hold the credit customer AND GET YOUR MONEY OUT OF HIM? Or lose both the customer and the money he owes you? The answer ought to be simple. There is ONE WAY to hold this class of customers, please them, and avoid loss. That way is by using the

Allison COUPON BOOK SYSTEM

A man wants credit. You think he is good. Give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book. Have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10—No trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on until the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes.

A strong combination-

¶ An extensive garden of three thousand acres in the heart of Prince Edward County, Ontario; a canning factory without a peer in the completeness of its modern sanitary and mechanical equipment, and the cleanliness and skill of its employees; that is the combination which produces "Farmer Brand" Canned Fruits and Vegetables.

¶ Consequently every can of Farmer Brand is pure in quality and perfect in flavor. Farmer Brand brings and retains for you the quality customers —people who want the very best and are willing to pay a fair price to get it.

IS SECURED WITH THE

RIVERDALE BRAND

The only sure, steady and sound way to retain it is to keep on selling this brand of canned fruit and vegetables, which is the standard of quality and excellence. It represents something that bears out exactly what we claim--absolute purity.

Can You Use the Money ?

Many merchants complain of poor collections. They are sending statements, spending good money for postage, and time in trying to collect their bills. There is some little thing about the statement that the customer does not understand and he will come in some day and go over the account. Then the chances are he will ask for an itemized statement and take it home to have his wife look it over.

VALUE OF GOOD COPY

Personally, I believe "ads." in trade papers should be made so attractive, so interesting in some way that the merchant as he glances through the trade journal will stop and see what you have to say. The simple announcement that you are in business is not enough. I don't care how prominent a firm is, they should not get the idea they are so big that all they need to do is to reproduce their name on a page in a trade journal and say nothing more. They should do something to make the merchant curious; in fact, somewhat anxious to meet the travelling man you are sending out to represent you.

Have You Place in Your Organization for An A1 Business Builder?

I want to get into touch with some manufacturer or wholesaler with a proposition big enough to warrant the employment of a man to push the sales end of the game.

To such a connection I can bring an equipment of experience and energy backed up by past success. Trained in some of the best of the big organizations in the States—up from a stenographer. Railway, newspaper, road and office experience.

For a perfectly satisfactory reason I am severing my present connection as Sales and Advertising manager with a leading Canadian manufacturer, and want to tie up with a concern where resourcefulness, directed enthusiasm and the ability to show results will be appreciated and remunerated.

Have proven ability as a sales promoter and can handle advertising to trade and public if desired. Capable and diplomatic correspondent.

I am thoroughly equipped to lift the burden of this work from an executive who is anxious to devote more time to other phases of his business, but is laden down with the important detail of the sales department.

Write me fully, with the assurance that confidence will be rigidly guarded.

How a Merchant May Improve His Insurance Ratings

Failure to Apply Principles of Economy to This Deparment of Expenditure — Consultation With Local Agents Advisable in Order to Ascertain Details of Rating and Necessary Items of Improvement—Where a Small Outlay Made Big Saving.

One of the most important questions that the merchant or manufacturer can ask himself at the present time is: How can I improve my insurance rating? Authorities with whom this matter has been discussed declare that the indifference displayed by some of the most wideawake business men with reference to the risk represented by their premises is nothing short of surprising. The great majority have never taken the trouble to ascertain from local agents what their key rates are or to inform themselves with reference to those details which constitute them. It is safe to say that, if they did, they would stand self-accused of their failure to apply the first principles of economy to this department of expenditure.

Fair Basis of Rating.

Although it is a commendable fact that forces are at work with the object of bringing about a better condition of things, the local insurance agent has not, heretofore, been expected to exercise his initiative in this matter. While a town is under a minimum tariff where risks are not always considered on their individual merits, but subject to the same rating whether good or bad, no great reform can be worked. Obviously, the specific rating which weighs the conditions surrounding a building and charges accordingly is the fairer; it discriminates justly between the good and the bad. Of course, the town's fire equipment and its fire record are always matters for consideration and are made the basis of penalties or credits as the case may be. Authorities state that the time is not so far distant when all centres of population will come under the specific rating.

Consult With the Agent.

What step must the merchant in a town to which specific rating is applied, first take in the direction of improvement of his individual risk? He will go to his insurance agent and ascertain his key rate. The agent will inform him as to the full details of that rating, where he is penalized and where he is credited, and, if he be a competent man, will also be able to tell him what he must do to improve the risk.

On one point there cannot be too great emphasis—that the first duty of the merchant is to emply a competent insurance agent, not because he is a relative or friend, or out of charity, but because he is a competent man.

A merchant's insurance is more frequently gauged by the rate than by his own requirements. He is willing to spend three, four or five hundred or a thousand dollars for insurance, and the agent who can supply him with the largest amount of insurance for that money is the man who is doing him a service. Low rates do not necessarily mean less premiums, but probably would mean a larger amount of insurance. The minimizing of fire possibilities is likewise an important point to keep in mind.

In stringent times, the merchant looks at his insurance and if he thinks he can save a hundred or two he is going to do it. The man who can show him how he can best affect that saving is the man can best effect that saving is the man Reductions Mean Improvement.

There is scarcely a conceivable circumstance under which this rule will not apply, that reduction in rate is made for improvement. Instances are not wanting which go to show that where changes have been made to comply with recommendations with the object of securing better rates they were of such a character as to add materially to the value of the buildings, and in many cases were in contemplation before the owner had thought of their significance from an insurance point of view.

A merchant who has in view the "improving" of his risk by remodeling or rebuilding should first ascertain from the insurance agent doing his business how those changes are going to affect his rating.

Consultation between the agent and the insured, at such times, should be the rule and not the exception. It is here that the competent man can do good service; if he does not advise his clients somebody else will.

Small Outlay for Big Saving.

Case after case can be cited in which the most inexpensive improvement to building or equipment has effected great saving in insurance bill. The Canadian Grocer's attention was recently drawn to a notable instance in which a manufacturer by an expenditure of $50 cut down his bill by over $500. By installing a bucket tank, by bricking up a small hole, by protecting floors or woodwork near stoves or furnaces, by keeping packing material in proper bins—these and scores of other little things all count in the making up of a rate. The fact that there is a deduction made for no cellar or basement is significant. The cellar is so often made a dump hole for all kinds of rubbish, and is the place of origin of many fires that the penalty seems justified.

Faults of Management.

The faults attributed to management, in the mercantile survey on which rates are based account for a large list of penalties, any one of which may be easily overcome. For example, if there are stovepipes through the floors or partition, not protected, an additional 50 cents is charged! through the window, roof or wall, with double metal chimney, 50 cents additional; not protected, $1; entering bottom of flue vertically, 25 cents extra; entering flue in attic or unused room, 25 cents additional; bottom of elevator shaft used for closets, etc., or waste, 50 cents; untidiness, rubbish, ashes, etc., in cellar or attic, 25 cents; open lights in show windows or electric bulbs covered with tissue paper or paper shades, 25 cents extra, and so on. There may be points about the construction of a building which the tenant or owner can as easily improve upon as in removing any of the "faults of management," and with reference to these the fullest consultation with local agents is urged. There is not only the individual risk to be considered, but likewise the reputation of the town. It is safe to say that the progressive merchant who recognizes the importance of his own status will not long stand for deficiency of municipal equipment.

This paper intends to discuss the matter further and would be pleased to learn the experiences and opinions of merchants and manufacturers throughout the country by whom the question of improved risks has been seriously considered.

Cost of an Education on Grocery Trade Matters

Comparison Between this and the Expense of Running a Business—What an Education Means to the Success of a Business and How it can be Obtained.

By M. Moyer.

How much do retail grocers spend to improve themselves and their clerks in the art of conducting a grocery store? How does the amount spent for this purpose compare with his other expenses? Let us take a look at it and see how it works out.

There are numerous books published by successful retailers on the best methods of conducting business, and at the same time pointing out the dangers in which many business ships have been wrecked. Besides these, there are trade papers which contain information of incalculable value and yet how many merchants are depriving themselves and their clerks of these helpful mediums because in their judgment they cost too much.

Is there nothing to learn, when only about 8 per cent. in the grocery business make successes, and is it not worth some consideration to improve on such a state of affairs? The object of a trade paper is to study the conditions, and gather from all over the world ideas and methods which tend to assist merchants and clerks in getting on the right road to success. If a book or trade paper does not succeed in this effort it misses its usefulness, but it is only responsible in this respect to those who read it.

What about those who, for the sake of a few dollars expense will not avail themselves of this advantage? Are they, for their own sake justified in doing so, or is it the worst kind of a destroying weed which cannot be eradicated because you cannot get at it? The common excuses for not improving their knowledge of the trade through reading matter, is either that they have no time to read, or else they cannot afford it. The first is an admission of either laziness or of untruthfulness and the latter is lacking good business judgment.

Said Clerks Wouldn't Read It.

A few days ago a grocer was asked to subscribe for a trade paper, if not for himself for the benefit of his clerks. He made the statement that they would not read it if he got it for them. If he was right in his opinion, then his clerks are not worth having, and the quicker they quit the job the better. If clerks do not care to learn and make themselves more valuable to their employers, then they have no right to take up room behind a counter, and if the employer does not insist on them fitting themselves better from day to day for their work, he is neither fair to them nor to himself.

Look at the qualifications of some of the clerks and then wonder why they don't like the grocery business. They scarcely know enough to do anything right, and there is no pleasure in any work unless you are master of it. Look at the bills they make out. Will an employer do his duty to himself or to his clerk if he allows those that go out to his customers that look like child's scribbling, and without any improvement from week to week?

Although it is the clerk's work, the employer falls in the estimation of the people. Retailing is undergoing a wonderful change and nothing but high-class goods and intelligent service will do. "Bosses" have to brush up and clerks must learn, and to do this they must be within reach of good helpful literature, and the cost of which must not be allowed to stand in the way.

Costs Four Cents Per Week.

Let us take a look at the cost and see how ridiculously small it looks when compared with other expenses. A good weekly trade paper costs about $2 a year which is, say 4 cents a week. The expense of running a store in a city like Hamilton or Toronto that does a business of $500 a week is about $75, and there are actually some retailers who pay this without a complaint and then stop and refuse to spend the 4 cents to learn how to handle their business to better advantage. Yet on this alone depends success or failure.

JAPANESE TEA COMPETITION.

Finest Teas Not Extensively Exported—Popular Kind Among the Japanese.

Under the above heading the United States "Daily Consular and Trade Reports" gives the following:—

> "American markets the object of the producers.
> "Vice-Consul Walter Gassett, of Kobe, quotes the following from the Osaka Asahi, showing the success which is attending the efforts of certain Japanese tea growers to secure the American trade:
> 'Of the 7,000,000 pounds of tea annually exported to America through Kobe, the greater part comes from Yamato and Yamashiro. Intrinsically these teas are far superior to Shizuoka tea in fragrance, taste, and color, and owing to superior facililities, both financial and transport, the tea from those districts comes to Kobe for export instead of to Yokohama or or Shizuoka.
> 'It is noted, however, that the tea from these provinces is deteriorating in quality, owing to methods of manufacture. This year's tea, for instance, contained a good deal of stalk, with the result that its market price in Kobe was only $16.50, or $17 per picul (132,277 pounds). The producers are dissatisfied, saying that the price of even Kawayanagi tea, which is intended for home use only, is $20, but they show no disposition to improve the quality of the tea for export.
> 'In the meantime the producers of Shizuoka tea have been making the greatest efforts to improve the quality, while the prefectural government there has granted subsidies to encourage the tea export trade. The natural result is that the Shizuoka tea is getting more and more popular in America.' "

A tea authority of Montreal, in commenting upon the above, said it was very true, but did not quite tell the whole story. Yamato and Yamashiro teas are undoubtedly the best in fragrance, taste and color, and for this reason are far more popular in Japan itself than Shizuoka teas. They bring a higher price if kept at home, and are rarely exported, except in mixtures. As to the appearance of too much stalk, one of the expensive teas in Japan is composed wholly of highly toasted stalks. It is very popular among the Janapese. The amount of Shizuoka tea reaching the United States and Canada this year is about 34,000,000 lbs., whereas the Kobe teas are only 7,000,000 lbs.

As an additional reason for the retaining of the better teas in Japan, they are not sufficiently appreciated in other countries to bring the prices they will at home. A Japanese family will have three or four grades of tea in the house. One, say, at $2.50 per lb., one at $1 and a third at 50c. In the case of a wealthy family, these figures would be higher, $5. $3.50 and $2, and a still lower grade at $1. The first grade is only served to guests, or on special occasions. The second is for the family, and the third for the servants. In Canada and the United States people have only one grade in the house.

WANT FIXED SUGAR PRICES TO CONSUMERS.

Retail Merchants Suggest Similar in Ontario to that in British Columbia.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—Your article on "The Sugar Ultimatum" in last week's paper was a worthy one and a step which should in our opinion be taken by the St. Lawrence and the Redpath people in Ontario here, as these are the two main sugars sold by the grocers of Ontario. Sugar is one of the most staple lines sold by the grocer, and about the only one on which he does not make a fair margin of profit.

The district through here is noted for cheap sugars. At the present time sugar costs $4.93 and is sold for $5 per 100 lbs. or 18 lbs. for $1. In fact, one business house advertised it for two days last week at $4.67 per cwt. If you could in any way bring this idea to the attention of the sugar manufacturers, I am sure there are a number of grocers who would be pleased.

BROOM PRICES TO ADVANCE.

Montreal, Sept. 29. — (Special)—The broom market is in a very uncertain state. Further advances have taken place, and a buyer from one of the largest Canadian broom concerns has sailed for Austria on a hunt for supplies of the raw material. Brooms, which last year sold for $2.50 per doz., now sell for $4.

The Central Canada Exhibition Extending Rapidly

Thousands Visit the Ottawa Fair, Which is Another Big Success—Many Exhibits of Foodstuffs and Other Commodities Sold by Grocery Stores—Effect of Food Displays at Exhibitions Upon the Business of the Retail Merchant.

Staff Correspondence.

Ottawa, September 27.—This year the Central Canada Exhibition, at Ottawa, eclipsed all previous efforts, from every standpoint, and the week that the fair was actually open to the public September 13 to September 18, saw enormous crowds from all parts of central Canada pouring into the grounds.

A new grand stand, erected at a great cost, and even yet not quite finished, was a decided improvement. The new process building attracted many thousands of visitors. It is expected that in coming years this will be made a special feature of the fair. There were a number of excellent displays by progressive manufacturers, who took advantage of the new idea promoted by the directors to show the public how their goods were manufactured.

In the Aberdeen Pavilion, and in the annex to the process building, there were numerous and artistic exhibits of food stuffs which reflected credit upon the owners, and did much toward educating the consumer.

These fairs, when run on a business basis, and when the attendance can be secured, are of special benefit to the manufacturer in enabling him to give the consumer a first hand, and essentially more thorough knowledge of his products. Such displays of pure foods do a great deal to encourage the housewife in the use of only the goods of reliable manufacturers, firms who have a reputation for integrity in the manufacture of their lines.

Quite a number of the exhibitors at the Ottawa Fair employed demonstrators whose duty it was to make clear to the housewives how best to prepare the various foods shown, and to explain their composition.

Illustrated descriptions of some of the more attractive booths, and the goods therein displayed, follow.

GEO. MATTHEWS COMPANY, LTD.

As usual, the exhibit of the Geo. Matthews Company, Limited, Hull, Peterboro and Brantford, was one which commanded immediate attention, owing to its size, the quality of the goods displayed, and the artistic arrangement of the different lines. The firm devoted special attention to their famous Indian-Ceylon teas, and to their coffees, employing demonstrators who served dainty cups of tea and coffee to thousands of visitors. Rose Brand Smoked Meats, for which the company is known all over Dominion, occupied a very central position. Matthews' hams, bacon and other lines of smoked meats have in no small measure contributed to the reputation enjoyed by Canada abroad as a producing country in these lines. All of Matthews' meats are Government inspected, so that there can be no doubt as to their genuine high quality. So many years have they been putting up these goods that they have attained as near perfection as is possible, and the enormously increasing sales of their products, annually, prove the superiority of the goods.

Matthews' Rose Brand pure lard was to the fore also. It enjoys an enviable reputation, too. The firm's pork and beans, which are so popular with the public, were demonstrated. These goods are selling in larger quantity every year, striking proof of their undoubted merit. They were in great request at the fair. The company's canned meats, and smoked meats in glass, attraced steady attention. Their range of canned meats is so large that it is impossible, in limited space, to mention them all. Suffice to say that the complete line is of superior quality. The products of the Matthews Company enjoy such a splendid reputation at home and abroad that it is not at all a difficult matter for the retailer to sell them, and, as the margin of profit allowed the grocer is more than generous, it is not surprising that so many progressive dealers feature Matthews' lines.

Special praise is due the firm for the more than neat display they made.

WAGSTAFFE, LIMITED.

Not a visitor, of the thousands who were at the fair, but was surprised at the artistic style and neatness of the booth occupied by Wagstaffe, Limited, Hamilton, known throughout the length and breadth of Canada as packers of the purest jams, preserves and marmalades. The booth was characteristic of the goods displayed and the founder of the business. It is an enormous business that has been built up by this go-ahead firm, and, what is more to the point, it is a solid business. This would not be the case were the firm failing in its mission to please trade and people both. The name "Wagstaffe," on a jar of preserves, marmalade or jam, however, has always been and is to-day, a guarantee that the contents are of superlative quality, the very finest fruits, from the most famous fruit growing districts in the world, carefully graded, and scientifically packed in a strictly sanitary factory. With such a guarantee going with every jar, is it a wonder that such a business has been built up?

Displayed at the fair were noticeable neat pyramids of peaches, pears, plums, cherries, strawberries, raspberries, all in 16oz., 20oz. and 28oz. jars, and 5 lb. and 7 lb. tins (marmalade and jams). These pyramids, which commanded especial attention, were in the rear of tall glass jars containing whole fruit, as it is preserved in the Wagstaffe factory. Considerable comment was heard on the perfection of the methods which made it possible for the packers to put up such neat packages. Anyone who has been through the firm's modern and cleanly factory, however, and observed their scrupulous care and scientific methods would no longer marvel. Dainty dishes of the company's different lines were served daily.

CENTRAL CANADA EXHIBITION—Wagstaffe, Ltd., Display.

Wagstaffe, Limited, were awarded the diploma for having the finest collection of preserved fruits.

The exhibit was in charge of A. G. Snowdon, of Snowdown & Ebbitt, Montreal, eastern Ontario and Quebec agents, and Mrs. Cole, demonstrator. Mr. Snowdon welcomed numerous grocers to the booth.

DIAMOND CLEANSER EXHIBIT.

"Makes Everything Glitter." — These were the words that flared before one in one attractive booth in the Lansdowne Pavilion, and it did not take one long to learn that it was Diamond Cleanser to which they referred. Since being put on the market this wonderful new cleanser has met with wonderful success. Its variety of uses, and the excellence of results obtained from its use, are largely responsible for its having won the popular favor so quickqly and so completely. Diamond Cleanser is invaluable in the household for cleaning brass, copper, tin, zinc, nickel, porcelain, tile, iron, steel, glass, oilcloth, marble, wood, agate, etc.

Once the housewife trys it, she will not be without it, for it saves weary steps and does the work better than anything else. It is an article that cleanses perfectly, but it is quite harmless, being absolutely free of dangerous chemicals. The company, located in Ottawa, is composed of progressive business men, who are in every way endeavoring to be of the greatest assistance to the grocery trade in selling Diamond Cleanser. A large amount of advertising has been done, and a vigorous campaign to the consumer is even now under consideration. Many thousands of samples were distributed at the exhibition, which will, naturally, give rise to an increased demand for Diamond Cleanser. At the rate Diamond Cleanser has been going, it will not be a great while until it is an indispensible household article. Grocers, therefore, who early begin to push its sale are bound to share in the returns which will be forthcoming. The manufacturers have wisely left for the trade a more than generous share of the profits.

CENTRAL CANADA EXHIBITION—The Diamond Cleanser Booth.

FAMOUS NUGGET POLISHES.

Occupying a large stand, prominently located—immediately to the right of the main entrance to the Aberdeen Pavilion—the Nugget Polishes attracted thousands daily. Nugget Polishes are polishes a little out of the ordinary. No other polishes possess the same, or as many, excellent and desirable qualities. As an example, the directions for the use of Nugget Polishes state that the smallest quantity should be applied to the leather, a difference when compared to many other makes.

Another feature of these pastes is that they are quite impervious to rain, or wet of any kind. Once a shoe is shined, it stays shined much longer than if other polish was used. Nor does it take the dust, this Nugget paste. Daily demonstrations were given, showing the non-effect of water on shoes shined with Nugget Polishes. Nugget pastes give a brilliant shine to all shades of leather, and can be procured for white canvas, and buckskin shoes as well. Dealers all over the Dominion report increasing sales, largely due, aside from the merit of the goods, to the progressive methods of the Nugget Polish Company, whose Canadian head office is in Toronto, and who spare no expense in educating consumers to the use of their lines, through exhibits at fairs, and other means, calculated to assist the dealer in marketing Nugget specialties.

The pointers mentioned in the foregoing, which enable him to truthfully tell his customers that Nugget Polishes go farther, and are less expensive in the long run than other makes, and the strong co-operation of the firm in marketing their goods, make the dealer feel that in Nugget specialties he is handling the best on the market. Nugget Polishes will not dry out, nor will they freeze—two more points in their favor. Nugget Furniture Paste, and shoe shining outfits, consisting of brush and pad, were also featured.

A. R. Kent, Canadian manager, was on hand throughout the fair, and met many of the firm's customers.

"SOCLEAN," THE DRY CLEANER.

Simply wonderful has been the success of "Soclean," the dry cleaner, since its introduction. This sweeping compound has certainly met with the approval of the housekeepers of the country, as evidenced by the number and the volume of orders filled for the retail trade throughout Canada. It is a scientifically prepared compound that makes sweeping possible without raising dust. It saves scrubbing, and kills dust of every description, and germs, while it brightens up carpets and rugs, and gives a hitherto unknown appearance of cleanliness to floors. It is a dry cleaning propress—the sweeping of a floor with "Soclean," and as the article contains absolutely nothing injurious, it is not surprising that it is prized very highly in all households where it has been once used. "Soclean" is another step in modern progress. The day of the dusty daily sweeping is over. Not only is dustless sweeping highly sanitary, but it is economical as well, in the matter of both time and money. "Soclean" is fireproof, so there is no danger in that direction.

These are pointers which up-to-date grocers in all parts of the country are using in selling this modern sweeping compound. They find it an excellent side line, for there is always a strong demand for it, and it yields them a good profit. It is put up in tins which the trade retail at 25c, 50c and $1, while it is obtainable, for commercial use in barrels of 125 lbs., 250 lbs, and 350 lbs. Many grocers have worked up quite a nice business in their own locality by introducing "Soclean" into clubs, hospitals, banks, hotels, jewelery and millinery stores. Once it is introduced the repeat orders come without solicitation.

During the fair daily demonstrations were given by an expert demonstrator, in charge of F. H. Reid, of the Manufacturers Sales Company, Montreal, eastern Ontario and Quebec agents for the Harnett-Ridout Company, Toronto, the makers of "Soclean."

Don't be too anxious to bore with a big auger. Keep your expenses proportionate to your receipts if you want to figure up a gain at the end of the year.

Want Closer Trade Relations With Canada

Royal Commission Investigating Prospects—J. D. Allen States Canadian Side of Question—Faster Vessels and More Frequent Service Necessary—Exchange Canadian Cheese and Island Fruit —Canadian Flour Entered as Product of U. S. Mills—From Manufacturers' Standpoint.

Staff Correspondence.

Toronto, Sept. 28.—The Royal Commission appointed to enquire into the prospects of trade between Canada and the British West Indies, held a session in the Board of Trade on Monday, Sept. 27. The commission consisted of Lord Balfour, of Burleigh; Sir Daniel Morris, Sir John Dickson-Poynder, Hon. W. S. Fielding, Hon. Wm. Patterson, R. H. McCarthy, Hon. Geo. Gordon, Lord Balfour's private secretary, and H. Russell Cowell, secretary of the commission. A large number of manufacturers, millers, and merchants were present.

Lord Balfour, who presided, in opening the meeting, stated the object of the commission and its importance to both Canada and the United States. He hoped that those desiring to express their views would do so freely and fully, as it was the desire of the commission to gather all the important facts that would aid them in arriving at a satisfactory conclusion.

J. D. Allen, who was chairman of the deputation of the Toronto, St. John and Halifax Boards of Trade, which made a trip through the West Indies. gave an interesting account of the difficulties that seemed to exist in the promotion of larger trade between the two countries.

Fast, Frequent Service Necessary.

Mr. Allen, in answer to Lord Balfour's enquiry, suggested, as he had in his report issued some years ago, that one of the means to the desired improvement was better transportation service from Halifax to the various islands. He instanced a number of cases showing where improved service would make for better and larger trade. In his opinion a faster as well as a more frequent service should be made between the Canadian ports and the islands. Under the present conditions, with more frequent sailings and faster boats from New York, that port was getting the largest share of the trade. Mr. Allen was of the opinion that a 15-knot service would materially help trade. A very large portion of the business now being done consists of flour, fish. potatoes and other food products. Considerable attention was paid by the commission to the question of flour. It was stated that one reason why the American millers received preference over Canadian millers was the fact that they made. and were able to make, a low grade of flour. this low grade flour being made of winter wheat. and it was felt that Canadian millers, desiring to secure a larger share of the West Indies low grade flour trade, must overcome this handicap by manufacturing the same grade of flour as the United States millers.

Mr. Allen laid stress upon the fact that a large number of the small islands were touched very irregularly, and no Canadian service was given at all to these islands, all of this being handled by U. S. boats, which zigzag in-and-out of the large islands, such as Barbados, Trinidad and Jamaica. He suggested that the Canadian railways should co-operate with the subsidized steamship companies, so as to give a four-day service from, say Toronto to Halifax, or not more than five days, or seven at the outside, from Halifax to Barbados. Mr. Allen stated that when making their tour of the islands the Board of Trade commission were struck with the possibilities of trade in various fruits which were not even known here, and he found a large business could be done if this phase of trade were more thoroughly cultivated..

Trade Possibilities in Fruit and Cheese.

Mr. Allen also instanced the possibilities of trade in West Indies fruits, not only with central Canada, but Manitoba and the Northwest, as well. In order, however, to compete with California fruit products, which were laid down in the west in good time and condition, it would be necessary to have a better transportation service between the islands and Canada.

He mentioned the necessity of Canadian manufacturers putting up goods in such style and packages as are desired by the consumer in the West Indies. He instanced that in the matter of cheese, a large trade seemed to be done in Holland cheese, which is put up in 6-lb. packages, instead of the large 50 to 60 lb. Canadian cheese. The Maritime Provinces were, of course, doing a large share of trade with the islands, principally in fish, hay and potatoes, and some N. S. firms in condensed milk, while Ontario was shipping principally flour. Canadian bacon was called for, receiving close attention on the part of the merchants in the islands. In order to encourage the shipment of bacon on small Canadian boats, Mr. Allen suggested cold storage compartments on the vessels.

"The charges for parcel post are also very heavy," continued Mr. Allen.

"That matter is under consideration by the Canadian postal authorities," said Lord Burleigh.

"The telegraph charges are also a check on trade," said Mr. Allen. "Why, when I wished to telegraph home I was amazed when charged $1.05 a word. The distance is not nearly as far as to Europe, yet the charge is four times as heavy. It is impossible to carry on business at that rate."

"You can't afford it; you can't afford it," declared his Lordship, emphatically.

"You say that Canadian goods are not properly placed before the people of the West Indies. Why not?" asked Sir David Morris.

"It wouldn't pay a Toronto firm to send a traveler to the West Indies and have him shut up for weeks for lack of transportation," replied Mr. Allen.

Canadian Flour via New York.

Hedley Shaw, of the Hedley Shaw Milling Co., Toronto and St. Catharines, followed. Mr Shaw in effect stated that mostly all their shipments to the West Indies were made through a New York commission house, and they had no knowledge as to whom this firm sold in the West Indies. The flour was shipped in bond and invoiced by his company to their New York agents. Mr. Shaw also was of the opinion that if a faster and more frequent steamship service were given from Canadian ports that his company would naturally ship by the Canadian route, and, all things being equal, they would prefer the Halifax route. In answer to Sir Daniel Morris, he stated that the shipments were made in barrels, though latterly the trade was being turned to bags. This was on account of the trouble Canadian millers had experienced with the quality of the barrels they were able to procure. There had, however, been some improvement in the matter of barrels.

Murray Brown, of the Alexander Brown Milling Co., also stated that his company's business was done mostly via New York, and was shipped in carload lots. The New York firms who had their agents at the islands and who used the small boats plying between the islands themselves. were able to distribute in lots of 25 barrels and over. Mr. Brown stated that a largeer trade could be done if more frequent and faster sailings were made between Canadian ports and the islands. He thought that the Canadian lines should be able to touch at the small islands, as well as the large, and make distribution of flour in quantities to suit buyers. They had this privilege with Canadian boats running down the St. Lawrence along the Gaspe and Gulf coast. In answer to Sir Daniel Morris, Mr. Brown thought that a personal visit by Canadian representatives would materially help towards increased trade.

The C. M. A. Viewpoint.

G. M. Murray, secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, handed to the commission a statistical statement, setting forth in comparative form the exports and imports from Canada and United States to the islands, and in answer to the specific enquiry of Lord Balfour, he mentioned several articles in which, in the opinion of the C. M. A., trade could be very much increased, viz., biscuits, winter wheat flour, cotton goods, etc. At the request of the chairman, Mr. Murray, after consulting with interested members of the C.M.A., will furnish the secretary of the commission with a complete list of such goods as is thought, could be profitably shipped to the islands. Mr. Murray stated that it was the wish of the association to encourage preferential trade between the West Indies and Canada. Asked what suggestion he could make, he said that in his opinion, and also in that of the members of the C.M.A., if it were possible to make a prefeential duty on Canadian products going to the West Indies, it would be a step in the right direction. He instanced that since 1903, when the United States gave Cuba a preference of 20 per cent., the imports from Cuba into the United States had increased tenfold and exports had done as well. It was his opinion that a similar move here would have a similar result. One of the matters pointed out in Mr. Murray's testimony was the fact that Canadian manufacturers and shippers did not care to send down representatives frequently to the islands to encourage increased trade, whereas United States houses had their travelers over all the islands. Mr. Murray stated that some years ago the West Indies Association had sent up an exhibit of fruits to Canada.

In answer to Sir Daniel Morris, as to whether Canadian manufacturers would be disposed to send to the islands an exhibit of their wares, Mr. Murray thought they would not, and gave as his reason that owing to the great variety of goods manufactured by the association's 2,100 members, it would be practically impossible to do this. He, as secretary of the association, would not care to enter upon such a plan, owing to the dissatisfaction such a course would create with one shipper assuming preference over another. At the request of Hon. Mr. Fielding, Mr. Murray will arrange and forward to the commission a list of such articles as, in the opinion of the C.M.A., are desirous of having a preference accorded to them by the Government of Canada and the West Indies.

Sir Amelius Irving gave testimony on the sugar question, which will be found dealt with in another part of this issue.

H. N. Cowan, manager of Cowan Co., manufacturers of cocoa and chocolate, spoke on behalf of cocoa grinders and manufacturers in Canada. Some time ago it was suggested that there was a possibility of a duty being placed on green cocoa coming into Canada from all countries other than the West Indies. Mr. Cowan clearly showed that if this were done their business as well as that of the other cocoa and chocolate manufacturers in Canada could not be successfully carried on, for the reason that the difference between Java cocoa, for instance, and Jamaica cocoa is so great that they are almost different products.

Jamaica cocoa is dark in color and strong in flavor and does not yield so great a quantity of cocoa butter as some others. Java cocoa is a very light golden color, mild in flavor and rich in cocoa butter. Mr. Cowan stated that there was as much difference between these cocoas as there was between a russet apple and a Northern Spy. About one-fifth of the cocoa used by the Cowan Co. is grown in the West Indies, and in reply to a question by one of the commissioners he stated that business relations between their company and Jamaica and Trinidad were of the most pleasant, and they bought as much goods from these sources as they possibly could. However, if they were forced to depend altogether upon cocoa from the West Indies, they would often find themselves in a position where they could not get certain cocoas and they must, therefore, use other kinds, grown in some other country, as it is absolutely essential for them to have different kinds for blending purposes. Mr. Cowan also stated that the demand was growing for a chocolate light in color. A very large proportion of the chocolate sold in Canada is light, and he stated it would be absolutely impossible to make light chocolates from cocoa grown in the West Indies.

Fashion is a factor in any business, and the fashion at present in Canada is for dark chocolates, which is gradually changing to light chocolates. This is a very desirable change, as it induces the manufacturer to use a higher grade of cocoa, such as Ceylon and Java. Competition in the United States is also an important factor, and it must be borne in mind that manufacturers in the U. S. are getting a drawback on sugar that enters into this product which nullifies the effect of preferential enjoyed by Canada to about 1c a lb. The manufacturer of cocoa in Canada is continually gaining ground, owing to the fact that Canadian mills have been equipped with the most modern up-to-date machinery; and many of the older mills in other countries, content to make use of obsolete machinery, do not enjoy the modern advantages which Canadians enjoy.

A CLEVER SWINDLE THIS.

But on Investigation the Story Does Not Hold.

The daily press has been publishing a story of a remarkable series of frauds said to have been uncovered in Vancouver, in which a number of Vancouver firms are interested, and in which eastern Canadian and American wholesale firms have been victimized.

Robert Kelly, head of Kelly, Douglas & Co., wholesale groceries, Vancouver, received a letter a short time ago from an eastern supply house thanking them for a large order, and stating that the firm was very favorably impressed with Kelly's buyer, Mr. Blank. Kelly has no employe of that name, and investigation showed that a "confidence" operator had visited wholesalers in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Battle Creek, Chicago and other cities, given large orders in the name of Kelly, Douglas & Co., and cashed a thousand dollars' worth of expense cheques. These cheques are specially forged with the photo of the Kelly C. Douglas building, and marked "accepted" with a fake stamp of the Bank of Montreal. The names of other Vancouver firms and banks have similarly been used, and it is thought that the swindler has probably cleaned up at least $10,000, while there is no telling how many carloads of goods are on the way west, on his bogus orders.

The Canadian Grocer interviewed a number of wholesale grocers in Montreal and Toronto in reference to this story, but beyond the newspaper mention of the swindle, none of those interviewed knew a thing concerning it. Some of the Montreal houses had not even heard of the swindle. Toronto grocers did not think the swindler operated in that city —certainly not among the wholesalers. If he was in the city and tried to operate he would choose as his game the manufacturers rather than the wholesalers, because the latter were competitors of Kelly, Douglas & Co., and that firm would not likely buy from the wholesalers when they could do much better with the manufacturers.

Another point brought out was to the effect that if an agent of another house bought of a rival it would be because of a rise in the market, and then the purchase would be put through a broker. In any event the quantity of goods bought of a wholsaler would naturally be limited.

DEATH OF PROMINENT CANNER.

Picton, Sept. 29.—(Special) — Amos H. Baker, of the Old Homestead Canning Co., Picton, Ont., died Wednesday, September 29. Mr. Baker, who was one of Canada's best-known and most prominent canners, had not been well for over a year, having met with a severe accident, which affected his nervous system and produced partial paralysis.

WHY NOT PUSH CHEESE?

Several articles have appeared in The Canadian Grocer, of late, calling attention to the fact that the consumption of cheese in Canada is altogether below what it should be, but no special effort, as far as we know, has been made to improve this state of affairs. That cheese would be eaten to a larger extent in place of meat if the value of it was fairly presented to the people by the grocers, is altogether probable, and why the grocers do not take advantage of it seems to show a lack of business push.

Cheese is retailing at 16 cents a pound, which is equal in food value or nutrition to about 35 cents worth of meat. During times, such as the present, when many articles of food are very high-priced, cheese should be recommended by grocers to their customers, not only as a cheap, but also as a wholesome, food. Properly used, cheese is not, as many people think, hard to digest, but rather aids digestion. On account of the richness in nutrition, the quantity eaten at a time should be moderate. A hint from the grocer on this point will increase his sales and cultivate an appetite for cheese.

ONTARIO POTATOES AN EXCELLENT CROP.

A note in our London correspondence last week drew attention to the fact that the potato crop is short in that district on account of dry weather. While this may be true regarding potatoes in that section, our readers will be pleased to know that the crop throughout Ontario is, on the whole, an excellent one. Both quantity and quality are above the average, and prices are expected to be reasonable.

If the London people are paying 70 to 75c a bushel for them it may interest them to know that in Toronto, as well as at many other points in the province, grocers may buy them for less than that a bag. One potato dealer, when interviewed, remarked that he "never saw better potatoes," and that "they are in every respect equal to the Eastern Delawares."

From reports available, potatoes will be plentiful, of a good quality, and at a reasonable price.

ITALY WANTS MORE OF OUR TRADE.

Italy, according to cable dispatches, wants reciprocal trade arrangements with Canada.

"Barkis is willin'." We have no official authority to say this, but there is no reason why Canada should not be willing to enter into such an arrangement.

As a matter of fact, Italy has been looking for closer relations with Canada for some time. A year or two ago, it will be remembered, they went so far as to send a special commissioner to Canada to investigate the matter. That commissioner was particularly desirous of establishing more direct steamship communication between the two countries.

The cable dispatch to hand this week is clearly an indication that the Italian Government is still at work on the reciprocal trade idea.

What has probably accelerated the matter just now is the fact that after the commercial treaty with France is ratified the latter country will probably have an advantage over Italy in the Canadian market, and particularly in silks.

The fact that Canada produces much that Italy requires and that the latter produces what Canada requires should make the consummation of the arrangement between the two countries comparatively easy.

Canada's trade with Italy is not at present large. The aggregate of imports and exports all told, according to the returns for 1908, is $1,156,320. Of this $806,481 were imports and $349,839 exports.

Our chief exports from Italy are fruits, macaroni, hats and caps, silk, oils, wines, drugs and salt, in the order named. Of these, dried and green fruit contribute nearly one half of the total, while next in order, macaroni is a very distant second.

Of our exports to Italy, fish contribute nearly one-third the amount, being valued at $220,693. Metals and minerals and manufactures thereof come next, being $96,384. Carriages come third at $10,903.

By all means let us have a commercial treaty with Italy.

COLLECTING ACCOUNTS.

Just now the farmers of the country are realizing on their crops and therefore the present is a favorable time for merchants to look after their country accounts. The crops are rapidly being turned into money so there is no doubt that the farmers have the wherewithal to settle those accounts which they may have contracted during the summer season when money was rather scarce.

While the farmers who are on your books may be fully responsible for the amounts of the accounts, yet these accounts can be of no benefit whatever unless you get them taken off the books and place the cash in the drawer.

Merchants know that a tendency exists among farmers to delay the payment of their accounts until they have realized on the bulk of the season's crops. But this should not prevent any merchant from waiting for his money any longer than the time necessary for farmers to obtain enough to liquidate their indebtedness. You should not delay until the end of the year when the account has grown considerably larger and when it is more difficult to meet.

Establishing a system to protect yourself against bad debts is probably of greater importance than following up accounts properly. Be careful always when opening a new account. Where an association has a protective system in vogue, it has something substantial to work upon.

A method now used extensively in the smaller places in the United States is that of having on hand a printed form to be filled out and signed by each applicant for credit.

This printed form contains the full name, present and past address of the applicant, where he is employed whether married or single, the amount of credit which he expects to require and the terms upon which he proposes to settle. Every applicant for credit is asked to fill out and sign one of these forms before an account is opened with him and the man who refuses to fill out such a form, in all probability is not a desirable customer. On the other hand, the man who fills out the form, representing himself to be in better financial condition than he really is, can if he fails to settle as agreed upon, be proceeded against for obtaining goods under false pretences.

Some good systems at any rate should be devised where credits are extensively requested in order that poor pay customers can be carefully looked after.

CANADA AND WEST INDIES SUGAR

The evidence of one of the witnesses before the Royal Commission on Canadian and West Indian trade affairs at Toronto on Monday, has again opened up the question regarding the treatment accorded to the West Indies sugar planters by the Canadian refineries.

The witness who produced the evidence was Sir Amelius Irving of Toronto, who is the owner of a plantation in the northern part of Jamaica.

Sir Amelius asserted that there is a combination or agreement among the sugar refineries in Canada to appropriate unto themselves the 33 per cent. which the Canadian tariff accords West Indian sugar under the custom's tariff. He said that when the preferential tariff first went into force the Canadian buyers conceded one half of the amount of the preference to the planters. Now they concede nothing. Therefore the planters received no benefit whatever from the Canadian preferential tariff. In consequence of this condition of affairs Sir Amelius said that his company now marketed their sugar in Great Britain.

The subject is not a new one, having been a bone of contention for several years. In the West Indies the feeling is particularly bitter and Canadians who have traveled of late years in the islands know.

All the complaints, however, do not emanate from sugar planters of the West Indies. The sugar buyers of Canada recriminate. They assert, not only that there is no combine among themselves as to deprive the planters of the benefit of the preferential tariff, but that one really does exist among the planters in the West Indies. As the latter emphatically deny this the public is still in the dark. Possibly the commission may be able to get at the facts.

The main point, however, to be considered is as to whether it is possible for anything to be done to remedy or remove the present anomolous conditions between the buyers in Canada and the sellers of sugar in the West Indies. Friction between buyers and sellers is regretable whether it be nations or individuals that are concerned.

The task before the Royal Commission in this respect is undoubtedly no easy one. It appears that the best it can do is to get at the truth, and this in itself may be of some benefit. Beyond that we feel that very little can be done.

If the grievance was appertaining to the tariff it could be solved by the Government. The particular grievance which the planters have against the Canadian sugar buyers is not, however, one which appertains to the tariff. It is simply a matter between buyer and seller.

How the Government can compel buyers in Montreal and Halifax to pay the planters in the West Indies the price which will allow the latter to enjoy part or whole of the benefit of the preferential tariff we cannot see. To compel the planters of the West Indies to sell at a certain figure would scarcely be less feasible.

Canadian refineries may be taking an undue advantage of the sugar planters of the West Indies, but if so their offence is a moral, and not a legal one, and consequently to rectify it is beyond the power of any Legislature.

While the friction between the West Indies sugar planters and Canadian refineries has no doubt interfered with the trade in the particular commodity concerned, it is at the same time worth pointing out that whereas fifteen years ago Canada imported 4,306,655 pounds of raw sugar valued at $85,223, last year the quantity was 271,762,609 lbs., valued at $5,836,536, which is an increase of 267,455,653 pounds in quantity and $5,751,313 in value.

This very great increase is obviously due to the preferential tariff. How much greater it might have been were it not for the present difficulty between the buyers in Canada and the sellers in the West Indies, it is of course, impossible to say.

Unfortunately the difficulties between the planters and refiners will deter rather than facilitate the movement for better trade relations between Canada and the West Indies. And it is herein that lies its most regrettable feature.

MARKET FEATURES.

There has been decided action in provision lines of late. From coast to coast advanced prices are noted in our correspondence columns this week. Salt pork which in Chicago is sold at $24 a barrel, costs laid down in Halifax and St. John from $27 to $30. The Canadian article is not to be had at all down by the sea. Montreal and Toronto report a scarcity of hogs. One reason given for the scarcity is the high price of grains; farmers preferring to get rid of their hogs rather than fatten them for market. Vancouver and other British Columbia centres also note higher prices, both in pork and farm produce generally.

A strong feature of the market situation is the way eggs are selling out at the coast. While eastern selects are retailing at 35 cents a dozen, local fresh eggs command as high as 55 cents.

Flour has dropped in eastern, western and central Canada. The maritime provinces report a decline of 30 cents a barrel, while Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba show a decline of 20 cents. The maritime provinces have cut on Manitoba flour only; while Quebec and Ontario have cut on local flours. Dealers in the former province state that Ontario millers have been cutting in the east and as a consequence they have been compelled to do likewise.

Dried fruit in the large centres is firming up, and there is a corresponding decline in green fruit. The west will take large quantities of Ontario apples this year, and already the new evaporated apples have taken a great hold in Winnipeg.

Syrups are selling at near cost in Manitoba, but an advance of 25 cents is promised shortly. Dried fruits are also slated for an advance in the west.

Travelers are already taking orders for Christmas goods. British Columbia salmon is the new line offering.

MADE MONEY BY READING.

That the trade paper should be read, there are ample reasons. Every week evidences of direct financial benefits of trade papers are brought home to retailers.

A case in point comes from Brantford, Ont. There is a certain grocer in that city who reads The Canadian Grocer from cover to cover every week whenever it is at all possible.

The paper was mislaid somewhere in the store one Saturday and he was heard to enquire that night, "Where is The Grocer? I just made $5 out of that paper last week."

This is a significant statement and bears a moral. Every week it is the policy of the editors to secure as many valuable suggestions and practical hints as possible for readers. Methods of grocers who are making successes and methods of those who are not, are given.

Outside of this feature, the grocery trade markets are carefully prepared and can be relied upon. Quotations that appear in The Grocer are always taken as authoritative by governments, so that their accuracy is unquestioned. Points in market reports are given every week that should not be overlooked and if it is possible for a Brantford grocer to make $5 by reading his trade paper, it is possible for others to do the same. The advertisements themselves convey a great deal of information that can always be used to advantage.

It is evident therefore that the business of every subscriber of a trade paper is to read it carefully, think over the hints and suggestions and do not be the last to make a change where a change is necessary.

Successful Methods Adopted by Canadian Grocers

Peterboro Grocer Gives Samples to Induce Trade — Push Quality, Not Price, Says Toronto Retailer—Montrealer Advises the Study of Buying Stocks—Loyalty a Feature of Bracebridge Grocery Staff — Westmount Merchant's Experience in Lapsed Insurance.

STAFF TAKES INTEREST IN THIS STORE.

Bracebridge, Sept. 28.—In one of our large grocery stores the question was asked of the proprietor, how is it your store is always bright and clean? The answer came direct, "because our staff take some interest in the store, and we appreciate it." Once a week all come back at night, arrange the stock, put up sugar and tea, open and check off merchandise and invoices, and once a month they scrub the floor. No wonder this man is blest with a large trade—increasing trade, in fact—when without whip or bribe the work goes along smoothly in perfect running order.

MICHIGAN BEAN CROP.

Chatham, Sept. 27.—(Special)—Reports from Michigan indicate that the extent of this year's Michigan bean crop is such that it may have a moderating effect upon the prospective high prices for Canadian beans.

A Saginaw correspondent says: "Instead of being a half failure, as was predicted only a fortnight ago, following the severe frosts in this part of the state, Michigan's bean crop this year will be one of the greatest and most valuable on record. As against a yield of only 3,500,000 bushels last year, it will exceed 6,000,000 bushels this year. The acreage last season was approximately 350,000, while this year there were upwards of 440,000 acres of land in the State laden with beans to harvest, or a 25 per cent. larger acreage.

"This is the estimate placed on Michigan's 1909 crop by Henry W. Carr, head of one of the largest grain commission houses in the State, following his trip last week and this week with the manufacturers' and wholesalers' trade excursion. The tour took Mr. Carr through hundreds of miles of territory in northern and northwestern Michigan, and all through the Thumb district, which is the greatest producer of beans in the State. With beans selling at from $1.75 to $1.90 a bushel, and a yield of 6,000,000 bushels, the value of this crop to the Michigan farmers may be appreciated."

BRANCH GROCERY AT SUMMER RESORT.

Winnipeg, Sept. 28.—W. H. Stone yesterday closed his summer store at Whytewold Beach. He has been very much encouraged with the trade for the past four months, and expects to open again next spring with a larger stock. The resort is growing rapidly, and will be quite a town.

GROCERS' EXHIBIT AT FAIR.

Bracebridge, Sept. 28. — Hutchison Bros., of this town, had a tea exhibit at the local fair. It was a beauty, and nearly every woman who attended had a drink of their famous "Queen" quality tea. Grocers in all towns should have exhibits like this one, at the county fairs. It is certainly a good mode of advertising.

A QUESTION IN STORE-KEEPING.

Toronto, Sept. 29.—It is a very common practice, said an old grocer of this city, for store-keepers to offer the cheapest goods they have, with the notion that they can undersell other competitors. They forget that if they sold for instance, a pound of tea at 25c, they only make say 5c, whereas if they sold a 30 or 40c tea they would make from 6 to 10c, and the customer would get better satisfaction. It is all right to keep those cheaper lines to give them to people if they want them, but when a lady asks for a pound of tea, it is rank folly for the grocer to say that he had very good tea for 25c, when the lady would likely have bought a 40c or 50c tea. He only makes probably half as much as he might have made, and the lady who has been in the habit of using a better tea will not be pleased with it.

Through his want of business tact he made less profit, and did not give satisfaction. The few cents less will soon be forgotten, but the fact that the grocer sold her an inferior tea may be the cause of losing her trade.

It should be the aim of a grocer rather to cultivate a demand for higher grades of goods than for lower qualities. The tendency of the age is for higher and better things, and those who understand this freely and do their business accordingly will win in the race.

CARE IN BUYING.

Montreal, Sept. 28.—In a conversation with a local retailer, the subject of stock buying and overstocking came up. He gave it as his opinion that grocers should make a careful study of their trade, and buy only in direct proportion to demand. "Never let any one sell you more than you want of any line." Fresh goods, with a quick turn of stock, means good business.

GIVES AWAY LEMON EXTRACT.

Peterboro, Sept. 29.—Walter M. Roebuck, who conducts the Inverlea grocery at Smith and Water Streets, is offering a particularly fine line of goods. He has some special bargains that he is announcing, and last Saturday to every purchaser he gave away a free bottle of extract of lemon. He is opening a new stock of goods and will only handle the very best.

KEEP UP YOUR INSURANCE.

Montreal, Sept. 28.—Insurance is one of the things a grocer must keep up. "A lapse in this regard," said a Westmount grocer, "may mean a big loss. A friend of mine, not, however, in the grocery business, but in its first cousin, the confectionery line, let his insurance lapse, and, of course, had to have a fire shortly afterward. It almost crippled him financially, and it was several years before he quite recovered."

OPPOSITION TO NEW MANITOBA CORPORATION ACT.

Winnipeg, September 27.—The continued examination of the Extra Provincial Corporation Act by the business men of Manitoba has tended to intensify the opposition to its coming into effect on November 1 next. Each organization namely, the manufacturers' association, the Board of Trade and the brokerage association have appointed committees to investigate the details of the act with a view to discover its scope. They have done this quite thoroughly, having each secured legal advice upon its interpretation and having further discussed the measure with the provincial secretary who is in the main responsible for its appearance. The various committees have also discussed the act with several other members of the cabinet and are quite prepared to submit reports to their respective associations.

The brokers' association committee has gone into the matter more thoroughly than any of the other enquirers and as a consequence the association has been hanging fire until this committee was ready. Some time this week, however, the brokers' association will hear the report of the committee, and should it be ratified then all the organizations will come together and call a public meeting, at which the conclusions of the committees will be aired.

The committees refuse to divulge anything regarding the nature of their reports, but it is known that their investigations have been thorough and the indignation keen, and little difficulty is anticipated in rousing public opinion against an enactment which according to their minds, legislates such a large volume of business away from this province.

Unjust to Provincial Business.

It has been made known that the provincial secretary has admitted that the act may be interpreted so as to be a severe injustice to the business of the province, but the interpretations which he puts upon it, and the interpretation which was meant to be put upon it when it was framed, does not in any way discriminate against extra provincial corporations doing business in this province through an agent or a broker. But according to the interpretation of the attorney general of the province it does aim at the outside corporations and the resident brokers also, for he says, "what I see that is objectionable in the act is the fact that resident brokers are discriminated against and encouragement given to commercial travelers which is absurd." It would seem then that the act was manifestedly incongruous, but so long as there remains the slightest possibility of such an interpretation as the average business man puts into it, the associations referred to above, are prepared to fight it to the finish.

The deputy provincial secretary in discussing the measure stated recently that the act was simply a reproduction of the foreign corporation act which this act repeals. The only alteration made is that the new act provides that outside corporations cannot use the courts of the province if they are not incorporated within the province. Heretofore extra provincial corporations doing business here through the brokers had the same privileges as provincial corporations with respect to the courts, and this was considered an injustice.

Should Not be Enforced.

Granting that it has been in force for some time under another name, say the business men, it does not follow that it should continue, neither does it follow that because it is almost identical with the Ontario act, and very similar to the act in force in the western provinces, that it should be enforced in Manitoba. The deputy minister drew attention to the fact that the act was in force in British Columbia and that it was enforced, but that there was no complaint from B.C. brokers or the firms they represented, simply because, he said, a proper interpretation was put upon the act. Further, he said, no one can interpret the act as the business men of Manitoba interpret it, and have it enforced without the consent of the government which reserves to itself the right of interpretation. These arguments throw the whole act into ridicule. It matters not how or where the act is enforced, or how long it has been in existence, no sane man in this province is going to stand idly by and see an act go through which may or may not throw into jeopardy the commercial life of the province. And the movement which is on foot at the present time will preserve at any cost the interests of this province and this country.

BEET SUGAR IN ENGLAND.

After several years' investigation, experts have pronounced the various projects to produce sugar from beets grown in England, particularly in Lincolnshire, entirely practicable. The chief obstacle has been the lack of government encouragement by way of exempting home-made sugar from the national tax on that commodity. The government has declined to take such action, on the ground that it would be inconsistent with the policy of free trade. However, the Lincolnshire promoters have now formed the Sugar Beet Syndicate of England. To the Lincolnshire farmers they propose that in consideration of a guaranty that 3,000 acres of land will be devoted 5 years to the growing of sugar beets they will build a sugar factory at Sleaford, in that county. Half the required area has now been promised, and it is hoped that the factory may be built before next winter and the industry be in full operation next year. The farmer is offered $3.52 per ton for his beets, and a market is guaranteed. The promoters are prominent and reputable residents of Lincolnshire.

A large meeting of farmers and other interested persons was recently held at Sleaford, when all phases of the subject were discussed. It appears from the remarks made that England imports annually nearly $100,000,000 worth of sugar, more than half of it refined, and is, so one speaker thought, the only country which does not produce some quantity of sugar; and yet, he said, experiments proved that England could produce sugar beets as well as any other country in Europe. This statement was amplified by another speaker, who testified that experiments showed the English beet to be superior to the German, containing 17.3 units of sugar against the German 15 units; that, in fact, the English beet contained a larger percentage of sugar than was required. It was also stated that some of the experimental crops yielded 25 tons to the acre, the average being about 18 tons.

The syndicate wishes to make the business co-operative, the beet growers to take shares. It is intended to make further proposals to the government, but if these fail it will not mean, the promoters declare, that the project will be abandoned.

Notes From the Maritime Provinces and Quebec

Large Apple Shipment From Halifax to Old Country — Fresh Meat and Provisions Prices Soar High in Eastern Canada— Maritime Trade Greatly Improved.

HALIFAX.

September 25.—The grocery business throughout the province is reported to be in a very satisfactory condition. Collections are improving, and the outlook generally is good. Prices are firm and some advances are noted since last report. The principal changes are: Sugar up 10c; lard, ½c; hams and bacon, 1c per lb.; and cheese ½c per lb.

Jobbers expect many of their customers to visit Halifax during the exhibition to be held in this city, and a number of the travelers will come in off the road to show them around. Many of the dealers combine business with pleasure during the fair, and it is expected that many of them will come this year.

The quantity of fruit that the dealers are handling this year is enormous, some of them turning over in one day on small lots as much as $500 worth. Pears are in abundance and are selling very low. Apples are in good demand, and all the fruit marketed so far finds a ready sale. No. 1 Gravensteins are selling at $3 per barrel. The fruit business this season is expected to be a record-breaker. Already large shipments are being made to London. One steamer sailed from here this week for Liverpool, taking 10,000 bbls. This is a very large shipment for the opening of the season. From now on they will continue to become heavier.

Eggs are in fair demand, with the price unchanged at 27c. Butter is in fairly good supply, the choicest dairy in tubs selling at about 23c. Some of the dealers have advices of large shipments coming later in the season.

The continued strong advances in U. S. provisions has been a surprise all this season to the trade generally. Wholesale dealers have been importing pork only for hand-to-mouth quantities, for fear of a break in the high prices, but, contrary to their expectations, prices continued to steadily advance. In January, 1908, United States clear pork was quoted by the packing houses at $16. In December of the same year it was $20. In May, 1909, it was $18. Since then it has been steadily advancing, till to-day the packers' price is $23.50, which means $28 landed here duty paid. The same strong advances apply to all grades of pork.

Lard has pursued the same course. Swift's leaf lard in pails, which, in 1908, cost 12¾c to import, cost 13¾c in May of this year, while to-day will cost 15¾c landed here duty paid.

United States plate beef, which did not follow the strong advance in pork, has now begun to advance rapidly. Prices having gone up from 50c to $1 and $1.50 per barrel, according to the packer, that is to say, that some packers have advanced more than others, but the situation is very strong. Some lines have been advanced by the packing houses a clear $1 a barrel, while other popular brands, largely used in this market, have been advanced so much higher as to prohibit the importation. To import good plate beef from the United States would cost about $16.25 a barrel duty paid, and if one can believe the reports from different sources, prices will be much higher in the near future. In the matter of Canadian beef there has not been any quantity to speak of brought into this market for some time, owing to the scarcity. It seems that our packers have not been able to get sufficient cattle.

ST. JOHN.

September 29.—Although business generally has been rather slack during the past few weeks the general opinion is that it has been a very good year thus far. The majority of the merchants report that trade has been better than up to this time last year.

Crop reports continue of a satisfactory nature. Potatoes are plentiful and except in some districts where rust is reported the quality has been very good. In some of the earlier shipments there has been complaint that many tubers affected with rot were shipped along with the good ones. In consequence the shippers have been imploring the farmers to keep them in the ground a little longer until they thoroughly mature and they also refuse to accept the shipment of any that have not been properly sorted. There is a great quantity of first class stock along the St. John valley and the shippers are determined that no more inferior grades will be loaded on cars. Owing to the glutted markets of the cities, dealers have ceased buying until the situation is relieved. Shipments to the Cuban market have been good.

The Elder-Dempster line steamer Bornu, which sailed from here last week took away 5,000 barrels of potatoes and also a large quantity of dried fish.

Oats have been a bounteous crop this year and are selling in Carleton county at 35 to 40 cents a bushel. The hay crop has been below the average.

In the local market Manitoba flour has dropped 30 cents a barrel, present quotations being $6.45 to $6.50. Ontario's are unchanged at $5.65 to $5.70 for medium patents and $5.75 to $5.80 for full patents. The scarcity of canned peas is causing some of the dealers uneasiness, as they have scarcely enough to fill their orders. Quotations range from $1 to $1.50 a dozen. One dealer received an order last week from a firm in Halifax for 200 cases but was unable to fill it. Roll butter has advanced two cents a pound and is now selling at 22 to 24 cents, with choice tub butter 20 to 23 cents.

Moose and deer meat has been coming in plentifully during the past week and is selling very cheap. Moose is quoted at 5 cents wholesale and deer at 4 to 5 cents a pound.

The price of salt pork is now higher than at any time within the recollection of the dealers here. It is selling at $24 a barrel in Chicago, which is a phenomenally high figure. The nearest approach to it was in 1892 when Cudahy cornered the market and it went to $21.80, but only for a short time, as there was a big slump when the corner broke. The price now ranges from $27 to $30 a barrel in the local market.

The Royal Commission appointed to investigate and report upon the measures that may be taken for the promotion of closer trade relations and for the development of mutual trading facilities between Canada and the British West Indies, will meet here this week. The Board of Trade will tender the visitors a dinner at the Union Club.

The grocery store of J. B. Robinson, at St. Stephen, was broken into on Friday last and a small amount of money was stolen.

The exhibition at Fredericton which closed on Thursday last was very successful. The total attendance for the ten days was 30,016. This week the Charlotte County Agricultural Society is holding a fair at St. Stephen. Governor Tweedie and Premier Hazen officiated at the opening.

Frank Vanwart who is associated in the grocery business with his father at Fredericton is to be married shortly.

E. A. Smith, of the Smith Brokerage Co., returned last week from a business trip to England. D. J. Purdy, ex-M. P.P., the north end grocer, also arrived home last week after an extended trip to the Pacific coast.

September 27.—Thos. M. French and Richard Steen, apple buyers, report that they have purchased 3,000 barrels of apples for shipment in this section and that they can find a ready market for all they can secure. Apples are a very fair crop in this vicinity, while further north, in the Lake Huron section, they are excellent. The chief difficulty in this section is that orchards have been neglected. There is a growing demand for good apples from the Northwest.

The business outlook in this vicinity is very good. While crops in some sections are rather short, high prices are anticipated, so that the farmers this winter should be well supplied w

The prospect is that egg prices this winter will be exceptionally high. The present price is 22c, and there is every indication of a real scarcity behind these high figures.

John Hales, the oldest established butcher in Chatham, is selling out. His business is being purchased by Mr. Kennedy, of Dover, who will take possession Nov. 1. The deal was put through Saturday. Mr. Hales has been in the business thirty-three years.

O'Flynn & Burgess, grocers, of Wallaceburg, have installed a McCaskey account register to facilitate bookkeeping. Another improvement is the lighting of the store, with Tungsten lights, recently installed.

Horace Brown, lately associated with Jas. S. Proal, in the pork-packing business at Leamington, has purchased his partner's interest. Mr. Proal will return to his former home in Oxford, Mich. Under the management of Mr. Brown the capacity of the factory will be enlarged, and a wholesale and retail department added. New premises have been already secured.

Leamington will have another pork-packing factory in the near future. H. Rymal, for some time past in the butcher business there, was in negotiation with Proal & Brown for the purchase of their business. The negotiations having fallen through, Mr. Rymal announces that he will set up in business for himself.

H. J. Heinz, of the H. J. Heinz Co., recently visited the Leamington factory. It is understood that the factory will be enlarged next season, with the possible addition of a plant for making vinegar.

I. A. Rice, 1212 Yonge St., has bought Williams Bros.' stock and added it to his own. He employs three clerks and keeps them all hustling.

Gibb Bros., 1174 Yonge St., keep everything up to date and naturally do a large trade. Good service is the watchword all over. Price cutting belongs to those who are rapidly getting ready to go out of business.

Charles Page, 1154 Yonge St., is one of those happy going fellows, who has never a kick to make, and everything comes his way. He holds no monopoly or a patent on it, and therefore others can use it without infringing on his right.

B. S. McMurtry, 1146, is another of the north Yonge St. "bunch," who take care that no one in that part of the city suffer for want of groceries.

"Rosedale Grocery," 1064 Yonge St., is making a lively race for its share of the trade, and it is getting there.

I. W. Island, 262 Dundas Street, to put it in his own language, is "losing his main guy," C. G. Trollope, who has been his head clerk for some time. Mr. Trollope has secured the position of city traveler for "Groceries, Limited."

MacKeon Bros., 349 Dundas St., bought out J. O. Strong, and are doing well.

D. McEachern, 934 Bloor West, who had sold his business to C. E. Hubbs a few months ago, has bought it back again, and is again at his old post, serving his customers with first class goods and renewing his old acquaintances. Nothing like "home, sweet home."

BRACEBRIDGE.

September 28.—Wednesday, Thursday and Friday last week our annual fair was held. The grocers more than others always prepare for the rush, especially Friday, and consequently stores of this kind had hundreds of baskets of fruit to dispose of. One grocer informed me that although Fair day was not up to last year, in cash sales, the Saturday following equalled the day before in trade and helped to clean out the enormous stock of fruit on hand.

The grocers expect the cutting off of the Saturday night delivery will come into effect the first week in November. May other towns follow this good example.

Sept. 25.—This week marks the upward trend of prices of eggs, lard, ham and bacon. Select eastern eggs are jobbing at 32c, which is a rise of 2c. A short time ago, sellers offered grocers certain amounts at 30 cents, if orders were put in then, and those who did so will still be able to retail at 35c, with a fair profit. Three cents on the retail price is a close margin, but it means either that or charging more than other grocers. Local eggs retail at 55c, the wholesale price being 46c and 47c.

Hog products have gone up. Swift's premium bacon, quoted previously at 25c and 26c, is now jobbed at 27½c. Griffin's has raised from 18c and 19c to 21c and 22c. Hams are three cents higher, being 21c. Lard has made half a cent an advance, being 17c for threes, fives and tens, composition being half a cent less.

Wholesale grocers are joining in the effort being made by Vancouver merchants to secure a reduction on freight rates to western Alberta points. At present, there is about 30 per cent. of an advantage to Winnipeg, with the result that this handicap prevents Vancouver from securing trade in Alberta, which would otherwise come this way. A committee of the Vancouver Board of Trade is steadily working on the matter, and if there is any possible way of attaining their end it will be accomplished.

At the meeting of the B. C. Retail Grocers' Association this week, the following officers were elected: President, Fred. W. Welch, Vancouver; Vice-president, E. J. Wall, Victoria; Secretary, for Vancouver Island, T. H. Futcher, Victoria; Secretary for the mainland, R. D. Dinning, Vancouver; Directors, H. O. Kirkham and T. Redding, Victoria; F. McDowell, W. Clark and W. J. Andrews, Vancouver; legislative committee, the president, J. T. McDonald, Geo. Hobson and T. H. Futcher.

The grocer who sells the best product and tries to secure trade by honest efforts, will welcome action on the part of the Alberta Government to stop the use of labels on butter that does not come from Alberta. In this city, a dealer told The Grocer, butter is put up under the label, "Alberta Government creamery butter," that never saw Alberta. The Alberta Government creamery buttter is a good article, and consequently its reputation is being tampered with. The butter is secured at a cheaper price, put up in bricks and wrapped here, the labels, presumably, being printed here also.

Wallace Bros., who for a number of years have had a cannery at Claxton, near the mouth of the Skeena river, will erect this winter one of the largest fish-packing establishments in the world. For some time, they have been experimenting in the business of freezing salmon and halibut for shipment in casks to eastern United States and Europe, and the business has now increased so greatly that a plant will be erected to cost half a million dollars. A large amount of salmon and halibut will be handled. Some outside capital, including some from Vancouver, will be utilized in the extension.

W. Crawley Ricardo, manager of the Coldstream ranch at Vernon and R. H. Agur, of Summerland, were with the Minister of Agriculture, Hon. R. G. Tatlow, present at a conference with Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the C.P.R., who is on the coast this week. They discussed the fruit situation, and Sir Thomas promised that the company would give the growers every consideration. He stated his willingness of the company again taking the provincial exhibit to the Old Country free of charge. This will leave on October 22, and will be in charge of W. E. Scott, who was over last year with R. M. Palmer, deputy minister of agriculture. Mr. Scott had charge of the display of the province at the Toronto Exhibition this year.

Prof. Prince, who has made a study of fish in British Columbia waters in his capacity of Dominion Fisheries Commissioner, makes the statement that the wealth of herring in Nanaimo harbor is unexampled in the world. The dense shoals of herring were phenomenal, and that the industry has not attracted greater attention is remarkable.

Manager Wilson, of the Cash Grocery, Kamloops, has returned from Kingston, Ont., where he went to bring out his family. He also brought out the family of his partner, Mr. Davis.

Salmon fishing since the resumption of the industry after the close season, which terminated on the 15th instant, has not been satisfactory. Adequate labor was not available, with the result that fish had to be refused. The sockeyes were not very plentiful, but cohoes were caught, and both together would have helped to increase the pack materially if conditions were favorable. As it is, the aggregate number of cases will not be much increased.

VICTORIA.

Sept. 22.—The second annual convention of Retail Grocers' of British Columbia was held at Victoria, Sept 20 and 21, and was well attended. The proceedings were interesting; important subjects were discussed; and much benefit is anticipated from the interchange of views and resolutions adopted. Unfortunately the secretary for the Island, T. S. Futcher was taken ill about a fortnight since, and was unable to leave his room or take any part in the proceedings. H. Kirkham was asked to take the duties pro tem, and he was assisted by other willing workers who made the meeting a complete success.

Thanks of all are due to President F. Carne and Directors, T. Redding and E. J. Wall the local members of the B. C. Association.

CALGARY.

September 25.—Alberta is being favored with bright weather, which has enabled the farmers to complete harvesting under perfect climatic conditions. The yield will in all probability much exceed earlier estimates. Prices are satisfactory, so there appears to be no cause for complaint of any kind. Owing to the splendid crops and to the fine wheat lands still obtainable at moderate prices, the rush of settlement goes on unabated.

Produce of all kinds commands the best prices at all times. The moment there is an excess of any farm produce locally, the B. C. markets are always accessible. Owing to the immense crops of barley and oats this year it is likely that much stock-feeding will be carried on the coming winter. At present live hogs are worth 8c per lb.

The grocery trade continues very satisfactory. Wholesale houses are making large shipments to country points. Locally business is good, prices are gradually firming up on many staples. Canned peas are already becoming scarce, it is freely admitted that the pack will be short of the season's requirements. Canned goods generally are firm, the early buyers were the fortunate ones.

Recent advices from the coast report a fairly satisfactory run of late sockeye and Cohoe salmon. It is thought that the Fraser river pack may yet reach 600,000 cases of sockeyes.

California dried fruits are firmer in tone; large prunes are commanding attention from European buyers, consequently prices have advanced from ½c to 1c per lb., on Santa Claras 30|40's. Apricots are well cleaned up and stocks remaining will likely command a good figure. Peaches at to-day's asking price looks like good buying.

A. Hutchison, of the St. Lawrence Starch Co., paid Calgary a visit during the week, together with his wife and daughter. He left last night for Banff, Vancouver, and will visit San Francisco before returning to Toronto.

WINNIPEG.

Sept. 30.—According to an official report, the Ogilvie mills will double the capacity of the Winnipeg mill. This will make it the biggest mill in the British Empire, with a capacity of 8,000 barrels per day. The present mill was built in 1881, with a capacity of 1,800 barrels, and enlarged at different times until its present capacity of 4,000 barrels per day. This year the elevator capacity of the mill was increased by 300,000 bushels.

R. Simpson, president of the Guelph Board of Trade, and also president of the Simpson Wholesale Grocery Co., Guelph, passed through the city a few days ago on his way to the coast. While in Winnipeg he spent a few hours calling on the local wholesale houses, and introduced himself in the office of The Canadian Grocer. Mr. Simpson will return in a few weeks, visiting on his way the Seattle Exposition.

The Minneapolis flour mills, which grind considerable quantities of Western Canada wheat, will be influenced to handle more of the Canadian product by the new Payne Tariff Act. Heretofore millers were compelled to export the entire product, including flour and by-products, of imported wheat, and this was almost unworkable. The new Act provides that the by-products may be used for home consumption. As a consequence much of the wheat which would have moved east to Fort William from Winnipeg, will move south to Minneapolis.

George Nicholson, who for some time has been in the employ of A. Hendry, of this city, has been engaged as chief clerk in the store of Dunn & MacDonald.

W. E. McCrea, a clerk in the employ of W. H. Stone & Co., returned a few days ago from a tour in Ontario. He is very much delighted with his holiday, having visited the cities of Ottawa, Belleville and Toronto, in which latter city he visited the exhibition.

T. H. Grant, of the West End Grocery store staff, New Westminster, has been appointed manager of T. S. Annandale's grocery store at the same place.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS.

Flour—20c lower. Another drop probable.

Peppers—Firm at the advance.

Provisions—Pork and lard high.

Sugar—Firm.

Montreal, Sept 30.

An interesting situation has developed in the flour market. Ontario millers have been cutting prices in the Maritime Provinces, and, in order to compete, Quebec millers have to meet them. A cut in the east of 30c has been made, while here the cut has been 20c per bbl. in all lines. This was a necessary reduction in sympathy with the Maritime situation. It looks as if prices would go still lower.

Fish are very plentiful and the demand is good. The close season for brook trout begins to-morrow, October 1, but at present they are plentiful at 22c.

The sudden rise of two cents in both lines of peppers last week has not yet been satisfactorily explained. Some dealers say prices have been too low, and it was only to be expected. Others that speculators have bought up the visible supply. One thing is sure, if present prices hold, and they seem firm, there will be considerable difficulty in filling contracts.

Porks and lard are high this week, and will, in all probability, go higher. A scarcity of good hogs is the cause. It was a natural outcome of the situation.

Sugar is very firm this week and trade is somewhat quiet. The reason for this is the higher price for the past two weeks. No immediate changes in price are expected.

SUGAR—Sugar remains firm at present prices. No change is expected in the near future. Sales are slightly better than last week.

DRIED FRUITS — California fruits are now showing considerable advance over lowest prices, particularly in apricots and peaches, purchasers having almost exhausted the crop. Valencia raisins remain steady at last quotations, while Sultanas are slightly easier. Currants have strengthened and shippers are now asking an advance on recent quotations. Almonds and nuts of all kinds show no change. Heavy purchases of walnuts have been made for shipment via Havre, at reasonable prices, and shippers now are disinclined to contract for further supplies by that route, except at an advance. Reports from Smyrna quote figs somewhat higher. Dates, first tide London shipment, are expected to reach here early in December at very reasonable prices.

CANNED GOODS

Montreal.—Peas will be short this season. Other lines will, in all probability, have a full pack. The market for vegetables is brisk. The bareness of the dried California fruit market is a great help to the sale of canned fruits, which would otherwise be very slow.

TORONTO—The canned goods situation is still unsettled, with a good deal of surmising as to what will be the outcome at the end of the season. Peas on account of their short pack are sold and in some cases rebought at an advance. The corn also is not a full pack compared with other years. The packing of tomatoes is still going on, and if there is no frost for a few weeks longer, the tomato pack will be all that could be desired. No one will admit that there is any change in prices, but on the quiet, sales are effected at prices slightly varying from the quotation.

Toronto, September 30.

The wholesale trade is fairly active. Sugar, to meet the wants for taking care of the large crop of fruit, is still the largest part of their trade. This is just before a great many lines of new goods are expected to arrive and, therefore, the real fall trade has not yet commenced. Raisins, prunes, apricots, etc., will be in by the middle of October.

SUGAR—The tone of the sugar market is firm, but no change in prices is noted. The demand is still heavy on sugar for preserving purposes.

THE CLEAN STORE WINS TRADE.

Cleanliness and the general appearance of your store, both inside and outside, do much to determine the enthusiasm which will be shown toward your store. Clean windows; well-scrubbed floors; neatly painted counters, shelving and tables; surplus stock cleaned away from under tables—all these things help cultivate in your customers the feeling of wanting to trade with you. Helps to make them your customers.

Try to look at your store through the eyes of a customer. Is it attractive? Does it create in you the feeling of wanting to come in and buy? Small matter, you say. It may be, but just the same it's a mighty important link in the chain which should bind trade to you.

A CANADIAN COMPANY FORMED.

The Dominion Register Co., Ltd., has been formed to take over all patents and rights for Canada of the McCaskey Register Co., of Alliance, Ohio, who have for some time operated a factory at Hamilton. The success which has attended the McCaskey Register in Canada makes it necessary for the new company to open up an extensive factory in Toronto, to be located at 96 to 104 Spadina Avenue. It is gratifying to know that these registers are being made in Canada.

A. G. Ryley, president of the McCaskey Register Co., and also president of the Dominion Register Co., is a Canadian. H. B. Macdonald, of Toronto, has been appointed managing director of the latter company.

A Department of Commerce and Finance

University of Toronto Establishes Department to Replace Commercial Course—Two Year Curriculum to be Later Extended to Four Years—To Illustrate Business Principles and Methods—Graduates Entering Business Rather Than Professions.

The utilitarian conception of universities is broadening all over the world in accordance with the spirit of an age that is eminently practical. The mere aesthetic and idealistic are giving way to the concrete and the technical. The tendency is witnessed on all sides. The leaven of reform and improvement is working rapidly, permeating every avenue of education and, animated by the broad, tolerant spirit which characterizes it, the University of Toronto has added a new course to its progressive curriculum. It is one that will serve to make the institution more national in aspiration and usefulness and wider in scope and results. The course, that for the first time is presented by the great provincial seat of learning and designed to bring it into closer and more intimate relationship with the business and commercial life of Canada and its people—for after all we are a nation of workers—is known as the Department of Commerce and Finance. It replaces the old commercial course established a few years ago and is more extensive and thorough in its application, as well as more complete and comprehensive in its nature. For the present a two-year curriculum is announced, but it is intended eventually that the course shall run through a third and fourth year.

For years the MacLean trade papers have consistently and strongly advocated such a course for all our universities, and it is pleasing to record that the subject has at last received the attention that a matter of so great and far reaching importance merits, and a beginning made. In the inauguration of this move the University of Toronto is demonstrating that, under the guidance of President Falconer, the provincial seat of learning is growing more national in its work and worth and more in touch and sympathy with the development, spirit and expansion of the times than at any previous period in its long and honorable history. It is meeting the need and demand for a training for our young men that will fortify and equip them for the practical workaday world which surrounds them on every hand.

The object of the new course of Commerce and Finance is to fit young men for business—not in the sense of making them technical experts or masters of detail which, after all, can only be learned by actual contact and experience with things—but to give them a training in the illustration of principles and a mental discipline and grasp of affairs that will readily place them in a position to adopt and appropriate business methods and measures as soon as they leave college. It is well known that the trained and developed mind rules in all spheres of achievement and speedily comes to the front in all trying situations and difficult undertakings, in just the same way, that in technical success, higher standards and more efficient administration in any trade or calling the practical hand, the skilled arm and the quick eye have accomplished much.

Speaking of the new course, President Falconer said he could not as yet venture an opinion as to what advantage it would have upon the business interests of the country as the University was merely making a beginning at present, but he had observed that every year more and more graduates of the Arts course were entering business life instead of the professions, and the indications were that this number was likely to increase. The object of the University was to turn out well-trained men, thoroughly skilled and disciplined in a mental sense, who would view things on a broad base and be so admirably prepared that they would be in a position to become masters of their chosen calling, to realize its advantages and possibilities, and grasp its full meaning and significance. Some universities across the border have courses similar to that being initiated by the University of Toronto but such courses are open only to graduates and come under the head of post-graduate departments.

It is only after a thorough and extended series of interviews with leading business men, bankers, financiers and insurance men of the province that such a step is being taken. Dr. Falconer said that these interviews were on the whole satisfactory and many valuable suggestions of a practical character were offered. The faculty found it was desirable that if a young man was to realize the highest and best in any branch of business, he should begin at an age not later than nineteen. This was the general opinion of those consulted and accordingly a two-year course has been mapped out, at the end of which a diploma will be awarded as has been the custom in the commercial course which, as already mentioned, the new one is superseding. It is not intended however, that the student shall stop here but it is hoped that he will proceed to his degree in Arts. The diploma is granted him that he may begin his business career at the end of the second year of his course and that he may go on to his degree under the guidance of the University while engaged in business. In order that a young man may do this the lectures of the third and fourth year will as far as possible be given at times convenient to those students who are engaged during business hours and, on petition, exemption from attendance at lectures may be obtained in those cases where the student finds it impossible to be present.

A recent announcement issued by the University explaining the aims and purpose of the new department of commerce and finance, says: "Each year a number of graduates enter business for which they have found training in one or other of the honor courses of which political science and mathematics have afforded the greater opportunities, preparing for commerce, finance and other business occupations. A few years ago the University established the Commercial Course which has attracted a number of students every session, but the present time seems opportune for further advance, and accordingly the new Honor Course in Commerce and Finance will be begun in 1909-1910, with the object of providing training of educational value and instruction in branches of knowledge which are important in business. As in the Commercial Course, a diploma will be awarded to all those who complete the first and second years. The greatest freedom consistent with the maintenance of a uniform standard for the degree is permitted in the choice of options so as to meet the needs of students entering various branches of business."

An idea of the comprehensiveness of the course will be conveyed when it is stated that the scheme for the first two years includes English, Latin, physics or chemistry, at least one modern language, mathematics and history, with such commercial and financial subjects as elementary economics, money and credit instruments, mathematics of finance and insurance, commercial geography and accounting. Many subjects are eclectic so that the student, whatever end he has in view or whatever business he may choose for a career, will be strengthened and trained in these optional subjects, but the ones already mentioned are compulsory.

The subjects from which selections will be made to meet the requirements of each student, will include:

Modern history, ethics, religious knowledge, history of economic theory, history of industry and commerce, banking and corporation finance, national and local finance, transportation, statistics, the calculus of finite differences, the infinitesimal calculus, the theory of life contingencies, the science of government, commercial law, investments, partnerships and corporations, company law, French, German, Spanish, physics, chemistry, geology, mineralogy.

At a glance it will be seen these subjects are such as to afford a scientific training in the theory of the different departments of business, and young men who look forward to banking, insurance, accountancy or actuarial work, as well as those who intend to engage in other branches of commerce or manufacturing, will find, among the options provided, an appropriate theoretical training. Judging by the results of the past and the outlook for the future there seems no doubt but that the new course is bound to become popular and well patronized, and to all young men, who take it up with the right attitude and object in view and apply themselves seriously and industriously to the work and subjects in hand, that it will be practical, useful and beneficial. In truth, it may be said that the end justifies the means, and that the utilitarian application of the University is nearer to-day than ever before.

Collections are beginning to come in from Manitoba points and from a few centres in Saskatchewan and Alberta. The majority of the wheat in this province is shipped and farmers are receiving returns. Merchants will be making heavy collections just now, and his wholesale bills are receiving prompt attention.

Adulterating Honey by the Busy Bees Themselves

Upon the Location of the Place Depends the Quality and Flavor of the Honey—Bee can Only Gather What is in the Flower—Season Must not be Too Wet or Too Dry—Strained Honey Now Out of Date—The Grocer's Encyclopaedia.

By H. G. Hertel.

Not long ago I heard the question asked "Do bees make bad honey?" Apparently there are many silly notions current and many erroneous ideas entertained by the public concerning bees and honey. In order that the retail grocer may be able to correct some of these mistaken impressions which so many of their customers seem to have I will answer the foregoing question.

In the first place let us remember that bees do not make honey, but collect it. They must gather the nectar which the flower offers. These nectars vary greatly in quality, according to the genera and species of the flowers which produce them, the locality in which the flowers grow, and the weather conditions which happen to prevail during the flowering season. The flavor of honey is due to the specific aromatics or flavoring substances which are peculiar to a given species.

The sage honey of our western states differs very much in flavor from the smartweed honey of the Mississippi valley. The white clover honey of the central states is materially different from the "fall" honey of the same states, which is gathered chiefly from the Spanish needle, vervain, aster and goldenrod. The "fall" honey is more pungent in taste and of a high specific gravity, owing to its containing a larger percentage of sugar—a more concentrated syrup.

Locality Determines Flavor.

Locality plays quite a role in determining the flavor and quality of honey. In those sections where large industries are constantly polluting the atmosphere with malodorous and noxious fumes the nectar will become impregnated with these gases, rendering it less palatable to the taste and less wholesome as a food. Is the bee to blame for this? Not at all. He can gather only what the flower presents. If environment has affected the nectar in a way that would deteriorate it, the bee has no choice in the matter; he simply gathers it, and, of course, makes bad honey.

It is a well authenticated fact that plant lice produce a sweet excretion known as honey dew. Ants use this excretion, and some naturalists go so far as to say that the ants herd the lice for this purpose. During periods of drought, when nectar becomes very scarce, bees also avail themselves of the louse excretion, gathering it, and place it in their combs. Honey dew contains a ferment which, like other ferments, has an optimum temperature, i.e., it is inhibited in its activity by cold and killed by excessive heat, but shows its greatest activity at a certain constant temperature. This ferment is also inhibited in its activity by the absence of air. Now, when the bee collects honey-dew, places it in his cell, and hermetically seals it—caps it—the ferment will cease to be active; but as soon as the honey is removed from the comb and placed in a vessel, exposed to the air, and placed in a warm place (the warm place will supply the condition of, or approaching to, optimum temperature), and as it is necessary to keep the honey in a reasonably warm place in order to prevent it from crystallizing into a solid, the ferment will become active, set up a fermentative process, sour the honey, and render it unfit. In this case the bee again makes bad honey. For this he
